TO THOSE WHO DOUBT.—Mr. Sylvanus L—, a well-known builder in the city of New-York, a worthy resident of the Ninth Ward, has been troubled more or less, for fifteen years, with Rheumatism—has finally been cured with R. R. Reliff. In the month of December, 1852, he had a severe attack—was confined to his bed for a week. The Ready Relief was applied one night, and he was up about his business the next morning. He continued well until the begining of April in 1853, when he went to Mamaroneck, to put up some country seats, where, by exposure, he was prostrated with Fever and Ague. He was treated according to the old mode of treatment, which made him worse—came back to New York, took the Ready Relief and Regulators was cured entirely in thirty six hours. On or about the 1st of September, he was again attacked with Rheumatism—by the advice of a neighbor tried some home-made remedy, reckoned by the good housewife a never-failing cure; but, unfortunately for the worthy builder, it did no good. He lingered in pain until Sunday, Sept. 4th, 6 P. M., when he determined to give Radway's Ready Relief another trial. He sent to the residence of his son-in law, No. 76 Jane street, who constantly keeps a supply of the Ready Relief in his house, for a bottle. Ten minutes past six P. M., it was applied; at twenty minutes past six he was free from pain. On Tuesday morning, the 6th of September, he called at the R. R. R. office, and stated that he was entirely cured, that he would never again throw aside the R. R. R. 'It has always proved itself to me a Ready Relief for all complaints, whether internal or external—whether Rheumatism, Dysentery, or Fever and Ague. It has cured me of each."

Let those who doubt the efficacy of R. R. R., try it. In a few minutes it will work a great change—pains it will instantly stop—diseases it will quickly check, and the causes it will speedily remove.

DIRECTIONS

— FOR —

AUTUMN PLANTING.

IF the soil has not previously been put in condition for planting, by thorough manuring, and deep and repeated plowing;—places must be prepared where each tree is to stand, at least 6 feet across, and 15 inches or more in depth, by spading in, and thoroughly mixing with the soil, a good dressing of compost or well rotted manure. If the soil is not naturally dry, surface drains or ditches must be opened, [under-drains would be still better,] so as to prevent entirely stagnant water standing on, or within a foot of the surface of the soil.

The ground being ready, open the place for the tree large enough to admit all the roots in a natural position, and deep enough so the tree will stand just as deep as it did in the nursery; then let one person hold the tree in its place, and another scatter in fine, rich earth, carefully working it in among the roots, so there be no cavities. When the roots are covered and the hole is nearly filled, press the earth down gently with the foot, and then complete the filling. Now tie the tree to a stout stake with a twisted straw band, passing it once between the tree and the stake to prevent chafing, and the transplanting is finished.

Pruning or shortening in of the tops of the tree should be deferred till spring.

WINTER PROTECTION.—As soon as the trees are set, or at farthest before the ground freezes up, a small cone or heap of earth should be raised around each tree, at least a foot high, and extending from the tree two feet or more on all sides—this will protect the tree from mice. Lastly, put around each tree on top of the mound of earth, 5 bushels or more of strawy horse manure, or decayed leaves from the woods, and the trees are secure for winter.

In the Spring, about the time of corn-planting, draw back the manure,—remove entirely the mound of earth, and replace the manure; which is to remain as a mulching during the summer.

Fairfield Academy.

THE NEXT TERM OF THIS INSTITUTION will commence on Monday, December 12th, 1853.

The Male Department will be under charge of Seneca Wieting, A. M. as Principal, and Miss L. W. Carey as Preceptress in the Female Department, assisted by others eminent in their Profession. It is one of the oldest and best established Academies in the State having been in operation nearly 60 years and now enjoys a large and steadily increasing patronage.

The Trustees are confident in the opinion that with the able teachers employed, the splendid Astronomical, Philosophical and Chemical Apparatus, Mineralogical Cabinets, large library, &c., belonging to the Academy, that no New Institution can present equal advantages to the students. Student in straightened circumstances will find it for their advantage to attend this school. Many are enabled to do so at a cost of about $14 per term of 14 weeks. Students in this Academy are free from the many temptations which beset youth in large places—intoxicating liquors are not sold in the place, and no conduct inconsistent with the strictest rules of morality and virtue is allowed. Great advantages are offered to those wishing Instruction in Instrumental Music. Mr. Louis Cauther, the Prof. in this Department, has no superior in the country. Students from a distance will leave the Railroad at Little Falls or Herkimer, thence by daily stage (eight miles) to Fairfield.

"Man Know Thyself."

An Invaluable Book for 25 Cents.

"EVERY FAMILY SHOULD HAVE A COPY."

20,000 Copies sold in less than 5 months. A new edition, revised and improved, just issued.

Dr. Hunter's Medical Manual and Hand Book for the Afflicted—

Containing an outline of the origin, progress, treatment and cure of every form of disease, contracted by promiscuous sexual intercourse, by self abuse or by sexual excess, with advice for their prevention, written in a familiar style, avoiding all medical technicalities, and everything that would offend the ear of decency, from the result of some twenty years successful practice, exclusively devoted to the cure of diseases of a delicate or private nature.

To which is added, receipts for the cure of the above diseases, and a treatise on the causes, symptoms and cure of the Fever and Ague.

Testimony of the Prof of Obstetrics in Penn. College, Philadelphia.—"Dr. Hunter's Medical Manual."—The author of this work unlike the majority of those works who advertise to cure the diseases of which it treats, is a graduate of one of the best Colleges in the United States. It affords me pleasure to recommend him to the unfortunate, or to the victim of malpractice, as a successful and experienced practitioner, in whose honor and integrity they may place the greatest confidence.

JOSEPH LONGSHORE M. D.

From A Woodward M. D., of Penn. University, Philadelphia—It gives me pleasure to add my testimony to the professional ability of the author of the "Medical Manual." Numerous cases of diseases of the Genital Organs, some of them of long standing have come under my notice, in which his skill has been manifest in restoring to perfect health in some instances where the patient has been considered beyond medical aid. In the treatment of Seminal weakness or disarrangement of the functions produced by Self-abuse, or Excess of venery, I do not know his superior in the profession. I have been acquainted with the Author some thirty years, and deem it no more than justice to him as well as a kindness to the unfortunate victim of early indiscretion, to recommend him as one, in whose professional skill and integrity they may safely confide themselves. ALFRED WOODWARD, M. D.

"This is, without exception, the most comprehensive and intelligible work published on the class of diseases of which it treats. Avoiding all technical terms, it addresses itself to the reason of its readers. It is free from all objectionable matter and no parent, however fastidious, can object to placing it in the hands of his sons. The author has devoted many years to the treatment of the various complaints treated of, and with too little breath to puff,' and too little presumption to impose,' he has offered to the world at the merely nominal price of 25 cents, the fruits of some 20 years most successful practice."—Herald.

"No teacher or parent should be without the knowledge imparted in this invaluable work. It would save years of pain, mortification and sorrow to the youth under their charge."—People's Advocate.

A Presbyterian clergyman in Ohio, in writing of "Hunter's Medical Manual," says: "Thousands upon thousands of our youth, by evil example and influence of the passions, have been led into the habit of self pollution without realizing the sin and fearful consequences upon themselves and their posterity. The constitutions of thousands who are raising families have been enfeebled if not broken down, and they do not know the cause or the cure. Anything that can be done, so to enlighten and influence the public mind, as to check, and ultimately to remove this Widespread source of human wretchedness, would confer the greatest blessing next to the religion of Jesus Christ, on the present and coming generations. Intemperance (or the use of intoxicating drinks,) though it has slain thousands upon thousands, is not a greater scourge to the human race. Accept my thanks on behalf of the afflicted, and, believe me, your co-worker in the good work you are so actingly engaged in."

One copy, (securely enveloped,) will be forwarded free of postage to any part of the United States for 25 cents, or 6 copies for $1.—Address (post paid) COSDEN & Co., publishers, Box 196, Philadelphia. 478y

KEEP THESE COMMANDMENTS AND THOU !

SHALT YET BE SOMEBODY !

1 Thou shalt have no other place to buy thy Clothing.

2 Thou shalt not choose to thyself any other Clothier. Thou shalt not bow down to them nor listen to their fair speeches, for Cardwell is a reliable Clothier, capable and willing to dress his customers to the third and fourth Generation.

3 Thou needs't not search for Cardwells, Clothing Store in vain; it is in the Adirondac Hotel Building," and has the most splendid Sign in the State.

4 Thou shalt keep in rememberance the above location; six days shalt thou labour, and on Saturday night come and buy thy Sunday outfit.

5 Thou shalt honor the judicious adorner of thy person and long may thy days be upon the land to enjoy the fruits of his services.

6 Thou shalt not commit an outrage upon propriety. by purchasing your Clothing, of any wandering Jew that may come hither, nor of any one else that has not courage enough to adhere strictly to one branch of trade.

7 Thou shalt not take unto thyself foreign fashions by adulterously wedding strange garments to thy body thereby converting an American citizen into a foreign ambassador.

8 Thou shalt not rob Cardwell! for he sells so Cheap 'twould be a sin

9 Thou shalt not bear false witness but honestly acknowledge that thou cans't get better suited at Cardwell's for less money than any other place, get thy money's worth and the right change back.

10 Thou shalt not covet thy neighbor's garments, but take counsel of the wise and proceed straightway to Cardwell's and buy for thyself and be satisfied.

THE MARRIAGE STATE;

Shall Happiness and Health, or Misery and Sickness, attend it?

MOST STARTLING CONSIDERATIONS!

Reflections for the Thoughtful.

Strange that countless human beings exist and drag through life as do the beasts of the field, or the insects of the earth, evincing no more thought or reflection than though the noble faculties of mind were not vouchsafed to them.

Many such are husbands and fathers, upon whom are dependent the health, the well-being, and the happiness of a confiding and affectionate wife, with perhaps a family of children.

HOW OFTEN IT HAPPENS THAT THE

WIFE LINGERS FROM YEAR TO YEAR

In that pitiable condition as not even for one day to feel the happy and exhilerating influence incident to the enjoyment of health.

She may not be an invalid confined to her bed, or even to her room; as her pride, ambition and energy induce and nerve her to take personal charge of her household, even when her health will not admit of it; but she is nevertheless perceptibly sinking from day to day, and always ailing.

Thus, day after day, and month after month transpire. Her health daily sinks, till finally even the hope of recovery no longer remains. And thus

THE BLOOMING BRIDE,

But a few years ago in the flush of health and youth, and buoyancy of spirits, rapidly, and apparently inexplicably, becomes a feeble, sickly, debilitated wife, with frame emaciated, nerves unstrung, spirits depressed, countenance bearing the impress of suffering, and an utter physical and mental prostration.

Sometimes this deplorable change may and does arise from organic or constitutional causes. But oftener, by far oftener, to gross and inexcusable ignorance of the simplest and plainest rules of health as connected with the marriage state, the violation of which entails disease, suffering and misery, not only to the wife, but often

Hereditary Complaints upon the Children

"UNTO THE THIRD AND FOURTH GENERATION," Transmitting CONSUMPTION, SCROFULA, HYPOCHONDRIA, INSANITY, GOUT, KING'S EVIL, and other diseases, as a

DREADFUL INHERITANCE

from the Parents.

And must this continue? Shall we be wise in all that concerns the cattle of our fields, our horses, our sheep, our cows, our oxen, the nature and character of the soil we possess, the texture and quality of our goods and merchandise; but in all that concerns ourselves as human beings, with human functions and passions, subject to great derangement, involving our future peace and happiness—in all that concerns the health and welfare of the wife of our affections, and the mother of our children; in all that concerns the mental and physical well being of those children, we should be immersed in the darkest and most

BENIGHTED IGNORANCE,

AS CULPABLE AS INEXCUSABLE!

How long shall this ignorance prevail so productive of its bitter fruits? How long shall the wife and mother be ignorant of the nature, character and causes of the various womb and sexual complaints, embittering her days by suffering—suffering often prolonged to years, eventuating in a complication of diseases utterly and hopelessly incurable? Shall we for ever close our eyes to the results of physiological science by which we may arrive at an understanding of ourselves as men and women, subject to serious life-long enduring diseases, and perpetuating them to our children.

LET EVERY WIFE AND HUSBAND PONDER!

No husband or wife need be ignorant of what concerns them most to know to secure their health and happiness. That knowledge is contained in a little work entitled

CLARK'S Wholesale Confectionary

ESTABLISHMENT,

172 RIVER STREET, TROY, N. Y.

THE Subscriber having in charge the Confectionary Manufactory and Wholesale Establishment, long and favorably known as NEWCOMB'S No. 172 River-street, Troy, respectfully solicits the attention of Merchants, Pedlars and Retailers of Candies, to the quality and variety of Confectionary manufactured and for sale by him.

The Candies made at this place endure the change of weather and retain their flavor and freshness as long, if not longer, than any that can be made.

A list of the different kinds and qualities which are usually made, can be obtained, together with a list of prices, by calling on the subscriber, at the store, No. 172 River-Street. The assortment comprises at least 100 different kinds of Candies, which can be had almost any day, fresh from the shop, and at as reasonable rates as can be bought elsewhere of the same quality.

LOZENGES.

Rolled in Ounce Papers, or by the pound loose, equal in quality and strength to any made in the country.

Sugar Plums, Almonds, &c. of a superior quality.

STEAM REFINED CANDY,

equal in flavor and quality to any ever made. The best of stock always used, and great care taken to exclude all unhealthy substances in the Manufacture of it.

COUNTRY MERCHANTS will find it for their interest to buy of us, as they can make a better selection than they can of the pedlars, and receive it fresh from the shop in good order, and if kept in the original packages until wanted for immediate use, will keep fresh for six months.

CANDY Made Expressly for the Southern Market

☞ A liberal discount will be made to City Wholesale Merchants for orders. Pedlars supplied on liberal terms. Candies carefully packed in boxes of 25, 50 and 100 lbs.—Orders promptly attended to.

LEANDER BABBIT'S TRUSS OFFICE

The latest and most approved Trusses; Female Supporters: Do. with shoulder braces attached; spinal elevators for curvature of the spine and projection of the shoulder blade. Suspensary shoulder braces. This instrument is so constructed that it not only acts the part of shoulder braces, but carries the heft of the ladies' skirts on their shoulders; and, hence remedies the evil consequent to carrying them on the hips and sides. For gentlemen, it not only serves for a shoulder brace, but acts the part of suspenders.

As to the importance and usefulness of the above named instruments, and their beneficial effects, their peculiar mechanism and superiority over other instruments of the same name, I need not say anything. They are so well known by physicians, and the multitude of persons that have had occasion to test them in this northern section of country, that I deem it not important to introduce a long catalogue of certificates; yet I have abundant evidence in my possession to justify me in all I claim or affirm, and deem it a privilege to give references to any who wish to make inquiries.

Office at Keeseville in the building on the corner of Main and Front street, opposite the Bank, up stairs.

Ladies will be waited on at my dwelling by Mrs. Babbit, whose experience in adjusting braces and supporters qualifies her to give perfect satisfaction. 492—3m

SHERIFF'S SALE.

BY virtue of several executions issued out of the Supreme Court of the State of New York, to me directed and delivered against the property of Wm. A. G. Arthur, and Clark P. Ives, I have seized and taken all the right, title, and interest which the said Wm. A. G. Arthur & Clark P. Ives had on the 21 day of June 1853 or which they may since have acquired, of, in, and to the following described parcels of real estate:

1 'All that certain piece or parcel of land, situate, lying and being at the Lower Falls, in said town of Ticonderoga, described as follows, to wit: being the south west part of lot of land known as lot No. 5 in Kellogg's survey, of 40 village lots at the lower falls; beginning at the south west corner of a stone basement where it forms an angle with a wooden building, and runs thence along the wooden building and thro' the lot south 13 degrees west two chains & sixty-six links to the centre of the highway leading to Weedsville, thence along the same north seventy-eight and a half degrees west 69 links to the east line of a lane laid out two rods wide, thence along the same north eleven and a half degrees east two chains and sixty nine links to a stake, thence south seventy five and a half degrees east seventy four links to the place of beginning containing 19-100 of an acre, same more or less."

2 'All that certain lot, piece, or parcel of land, bounded and described as follows to wit: commencing at the highway 8 feet north of John McCormick's tailors shop, thence north along the highway 19 feet, thence westerly in a parallel line with McCormick's shop twenty four feet, thence southerly at right angles nineteen feet, thence easterly in a parallel line with said McCormick's shop twenty-four feet to the place of beginning; with the right to use the space between the grocery shop or building in common with others as a lane; same lot deeded by Wm. E. Calkins to Pat. McVeigh the 9th Septr., 1846, same lot and building now occupied by Marshall & Quin as a grocery."

4 'All that lot of land lying and being in the town of Ticonderoga aforesaid, and is known as lot No. 17 in McIntosh Patent as the same was laid down and distinguished by a map of said patent by Peter C. Bishop, special reference being thereto had, containing 190 acres of land more or less 5 Also all that other piece of land situate in Sumners Vale, town of Ticonderoga, county of Essex, and State of New York, distinguished and bounded on a map of said patent filed in the secretary's office by lot number 135, containing 94 1-4 acres."

6 "All the equal undivided 3 4 part of that certain piece or parcel of land situate and being in Ticonderoga aforesaid, known as the black lead lot in the Sumner vale Patent, known as number 134.

7 " All that certain piece or parcel of land situate, lying and being in the town of Ticonderoga, being part of what is usually called the John Carr lot in the Cockburn Patent in said town, and bounded as follows: beginning at a stake and stones on the East and West road, thence southerly along the line of said lot thirteen rods to a stake and stones, thence easterly to the line of lot number 17, thence northerly to the said east and west road, thence southerly along the middle of said road to the place of beginning, containing one acre and a half of land be the same more or less. 8 Also, all and singular that piece or parcel of land situate in Ticonderoga, and is a part of lot number 11, in McIntosh Patent, bounded as follows: Beginning in the west line of said lot in a road leading from Bly's saw mill westerly at a stake and stones, thence on said road east 5 chains to a stake and stones, thence south 19° 15' east 30 chains to a black ash stake and stones, thence 5 chains to a stake and stones in the west line of said lot, thence north 19° 15' west 30 chains, in the west line of said lot to the place of beginning, containing 15 acres, reserving all mines and minerals. Also, all such reservations as are subject to a deed from Francis Arthur to Thomas Burns.

9 " All the equal undivided one-fourth part of lot No. 134, in the Sumner Vale Patent in the town of Ticonderoga, being the same premises deeded to said Wilson by John Porter, Jr., Dec. 20, 1842.

10 'All that certain piece or parcel of land situate lying and being in Ticonderoga, and bounded as follows; Beginning on the north side of the highway leading from the village at the Lower Falls, to the 4 corners west of A. P. Delano's store at a stake at the south west corner of the village lot owned and occupied by Lucius Thatcher, from thence North along the line of said lot to a stake 16 rods from the place of beginning, thence westerly at right angles to a stake 7 1-2 rods, thence southerly on a parallel line with Thatcher's lot 16 rods to to the highway, thence easterly along said highway to the place of beginning, containing 3-4 acre of land."

All of which said real property I shall expose for sale, at public auction, at the Inn of Jacob Tappen in Moriah, in said county of Essex, on the 28th day of November next, at 12 o'clock at noon. Dated Oct. 15, 1853. 493 7w

202 RIVER & 7 & 9 STATE STREETS,

TROY, NEW YORK,

INVITES the attention of those who wish to purchase

DRY GOODS,

Carpets and Oil-Cloths.

Owing to the large increase of patronage, I have found it necessary from time to time, to make many improvements and additions to my store.

This spring I have united the stores No. 7 and 9, State St., making a spacious and beautiful room, fitted up expressly for the sale of all the various styles of Silks, Shawls, Cloaks & Mantillas.

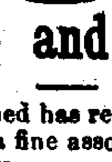
This connects with the main store, No. 202, River St., (the old stand occupied by the subscriber for nearly 30 years,) which is devoted to a general assortment of

STAPLE AND FANCY DRY GOODS,

comprising every variety to meet the wants of all classes of buyers. Besides these, four large rooms over the stores 200, 202 and 204 River St., are occupied as



CARPET WARE-ROOMS,

where I am constantly receiving the newest and most desirable patterns of Velvet, Tapestry, Brussels, Three-ply, Ingrain and Venetian Carpets Also, Oil-Cloths of every quality and width, and every style of Drugetts, Rugs, Mats, Matting, Stair-Rods, &c.

All these departments combined making an extensive and complete Establishment, conducted on such principles, that customers can trade with confidence, and to their own advantage, my sales being always for cash, and the only price asked, being the lowest cash price. G. V. S. QUACKENBUSH.

PURCHASED AND OBTAINED BY GEO. MOORE, Plattsburgh, N. Y.

December 3, 1852. 446tf

Henry's Invigorating Cordial,

PURELY VEGETABLE IN ITS COMPOSITION.

This invaluable Cordial, is extracted from Herbs and Roots, which have been found after years of experience, by the most skillful Physicians, to be possessed of qualities most benificial in the diseases for which it is recommended, and hence whilst it is presented to the public, as an efficious remedy it is also known to be of that character on which reliance may be placed as to its safety. In cases as Impotency, Hoemorrhages, Disordered Sterility, Menstruation, or Suppression of the Menses, Fluror Albus or Whites, or for arising from any cause, such as weakness from sickness, where the patient has been confined to bed for some time, for Females after Confinement, Abortion or Miscarriage, this Cordial cannot be excelled in its salutary effects; or in loss of Muscular Energy, Irritability, Physical Prostration, Seminal Weakness, Palpitation of the Heart, Indigestion, Sluggishness, Decay of the Procreative Functions, Nervousness, &c., where a TONIC Medicine is required, it will be found equal, if not superior to any Compound ever used.

DEBILITY

TO FEMALES

Henry's Invigorating Cordial, is one of the most invaluable Medicines in the many Complaints to which Females are subject. It assists nature to brace the whole system, check excesses, and creates renewed health and happiness. Less suffering, disease and unhappiness among Ladies would exist, where they generally to adopt the use of this Cordial. Ladies who are debilitated by those obstructions which females are liable to are restored by the use of a bottle or two, to bloom and to vigor.

YOUNG MEN.

That solitary practice, so fatal to the existence of man and it is too young who are most apt to become its victims, from an ignorance of the danger to which they subject themselves, causes

NERVOUS DEBILITY.

Weakness of the System, and Premature Decay. Many of you may now be suffering, misled as to the cause or source of disease. To those, then, who by excess have brought on themselves Premature Impotency. Involuntary Seminal Emissions, Weakness and Shrivelling of the Genital Organs, Nervous Affection, or any other consequences of unrestrained indulgence of the sensual passions, occasioning the necessity of renouncing the felicities of lessening both mental and bodily capacity, Hold! Henry's Invigorating Cordial a Medicine that is purely Vegetable, will aid nature to restore those important functions to a healthy state, and will prove of service to you It possesses rare virtues, is a general remover of disease, and strengthener of the system.

AS A TONIC MEDICINE.

it is unsurpassed. We do not place this Cordial on a footing with quack medicines, and, as is customary, append a long list of Recommendations, Certificates, &c., beginning with "Hear what the Preacher says," and such like; it is not necessary, for "Henry's Invigorating Cordial," only needs a trial to prove that it will accomplish all we say.

THE GENUINE "HENRY'S INVIGORATING CORDIAL."

is put up in 8 oz. Pannel Bottles, and is easily recognized by the Manufacturer's signature on the label of each Bottle. (to counterfeit which is forgery) as well as his private Seal on the cork of each Bottle.

☞ Sold for $2 per Bottle; Six for $8; $16 per dozen

Prepared only by S. E. COHEN, No. 3 Franklin Row, Vine Street, below Eighth, Philadelphia, Pa; C. V. Clickener & Co., N. York, Wholesale Agents, TO WHOM ALL ORDERS MUST BE ADDRESSED. For Sale by all respectable Druggists and Merchants throughout the country. 495:1y

MORSE'S

COMPOUND SYRUP OF

Yellow Dock Root.

THIS is a Purely Vegetable Compound, scientifically prepared from the best Roots and Herbs of the Materia Medica, and has gained a universal reputation for the following effects, viz: Regulating and Strengthening the Liver and Digestive Organs, and Cleansing the Stomach and Bowels, and curing all Billious Diseases, Liver Complaints, Dyspepsia, Indigestion, Costiveness, Piles Headache, Fever and Ague, Jaundice Nausea Loss of Appetite, &c., and causing the food to nourish and support every part, PURIFYING THE BLOOD, and thus curing all Humors. Cutaneous Eruptions, Scrofula, Salt Rheum, Erysipelas, Scald Head, Canker, Pimples on the face, Blotches, Ulcers, Tumors, Mercurial Diseases, Cancers, &c. Regulating the secretury Organs, and by enabling them to perform their proper functions, preventing and curing many painful and dangerous diseases; Strengthening and Quieting the nervous system, thus allaying Nervous Irritation, and curing all Diseases of the Nerves, as Hysteria, Neuralgia, Cramps, &c.

It is unrivalled in the cure of all FEMALE COMPLAINTS, as weakness, general debility, Irregularity, Obstructions, Swelling of the Feet, Limbs, Joints, &c., caused by weakness; also, Lung and Throat Complaints, as Colds, Coughs, Asthma, Consumption, &c., also, Dropsy.

Having made use of the Compound Syrup of Yellow Dock Root, prepared by C. Morse and Co., either ourselves or in our families and finding it to be a very salutary and effectual preparation, we do most cheerfully recommend it to the public as a very valuable medicine.

E. Bourne, Esq., Cashier National Bank, Providence, R. I.; A. W. Spencer, Esq., Cashier Lime Rock Bank, do do Rev. William Phillips, Rev. J. B. Richmond, C. S. Jones, editor Providence Gen. Advt., Wm. Field, M. W. G. M., Cyrus Fisher, M. E. H. P. James Hutchinson, G. S. Dea., V J. Bates, Doct Benj. Colby, and one hundred others of the most respectable families of Providence.

This certifies that I have for a number of years been acquainted with the composition and mode of manufacture of Morse's Compound Syrup of Yellow Dock Root. I have also been acquainted with its modus operandi in disease, and can say that in all respects it is admirably calculated to remedy that class of Diseases for which it was designed. It is especially valuable in Indigestion and all its attendant symptoms, it excites to healthy action the Liver, removes Torpor, and inactivity of this organ, and stimulates healthy action in all the system. As a Depurator or purifier of the Blood it has no superior.

Notice of Land Sale.

Essex County, }
Treasurer's Office. }

Notice is hereby given, that in purshance of the powers in me vested by law. I shall, on the first Tuesday of December next, at Ten o'clock in the forenoon, at the Court House, in the town of Elizabethtown, in said county, commence selling at public vendue, so much of the several and respective lots, tracts, pieces or parcels of land in the annexed list described, as shall be necessary to pay all state, county, school, highway and road taxes assessed thereon in the year 1850 or prior thereto, that may then remain due on them respectively, together with the interest, costs and charges, which have arisen or accrued, or that may arise or accrue thereon, and shall accordingly sell, and continue from day to day to sell, until the whole shall be completed.

The purchasers are required to pay the purchase moneys within forty-eight hours after the last day of the sale, and will thereupon receive certificates of their purchase. And after the expiration of two years from said last day of sale, will be entitled to receive conveyances for the lands so purchased by them respectively, unless the same shall have been duly redeemed.

Patrician Beauty.

BY M. A. D.

'Patrician enough!' exclaimed Laurence Colby.

'Yes,' replied Seymour, his friend, and for the nonce, chum. 'Mis Lesby belongs to a noble family, as nobility goes. Her ancestors were all peers in England; her grandfather rose to eminence, and her father is, as you know, Governor of the State.'

'How beautiful she is!' murmured Colby, 'surely there is something in good birth that gives an air, a style to beauty. Did you notice the flashing, yet gentle eye? the delicate outline of the nostril, the pride that gave curve to her lips, the haughtiness—yet mixed with purity and delicacy, of her whole manner? Surely there is something in high birth,' he said again musingly.

Seymour smiled, but did not assent.—Arriving at Colby's hotel, he said carelessly, 'by the way, Laurence, you do not return immediately to the South, I suppose; call on me to-morrow.'

That evening the Germainians gave one of their grand concerts. Laurence attended, and with the vast crowd sat listlessly gazing about him, unmindful of the countless opera glasses levelled at his handsome face. The first gay waltz was over, and just as he was recovering from the rapture of his melody-born dream, he was asked if he could give his seat to a lady. He looked up. One glance was enough. So perverse is human nature, that had the lady been withered, faded or ugly, Laurence might have felt chargrin at losing one of the best seats in the house; but she was fresh, young and beautiful—ah! we must love beauty! Laurence 'was only to happy,' etc.

And so the lovely stranger took his place, and he, on gaining the aisle, found himself elbow to elbow with his friend Seymour.

'Did you bring the lady?' he asked.

'I did, and had good right to;' he answered,—'she is my wife.'

Laurence replied with a look of astonishment. 'Is her beauty patrician enough to please you?' asked Seymour, laughingly.

'Aye! indeed is it. She eclipses Miss Lesby; there is a wonderful superiority in her every look and motion; if there is such a thing as noble blood, it flows through her veins. Where did you find her; how did you get so young and beautiful a wife?'

'Silence!, said Seymour, with mock gravity, 'the baton gives the signal for another waltz—I will tell you all about it to-morrow.'

The following day Laurence was walking arm in arm with his friend. 'None know the history I shall tell you,' said Seymour; 'and I give you the benefit of my story, because I fear you may get into some difficulty with your 'patrician views.' Now, for instance, should Miss Lisby refuse you—'

Laurence cut his speech short by protesting that he should never run the risk—never should marry—didn't mean to give up his liberty for the greatest beauty of the land; to all of which Seymour paid little heed, knowing how utterly impracticable were his views. He, with his fine address agreeable manners, handsome face, talent, education and wealth, never marry—pshaw!

'But about your wife, Seymour, who was she?'

'The daughter of a hod carrier,' replied the other, with the utmost gravity.

Laurence started back. 'It is not possible,' he exclaimed, 'you are jesting.'

'I am not jesting,' replied Seymour, 'it is the sober truth. I tell you her father was a hod carrier in a distant city. One day, some ten years ago, when I was eighteen, I was riding along leisurely torough a romantic village, feasting my eyes on the great beauty of the surrounding landscape, when suddenly as I came to a turn in the road, I heard the sound of distress. Close by the path stood a common looking cottage much decayed though so covered with vines and creepers, that it made a most picteresque appearance. Thence proceeded the cry that alarmed me. I had gained the enterence and was just dismounting, when a little girl of some ten years, sprang from the door way,, and falling on her knees entreated me to come in and save her mother.

Never shall I forget the impression of that moment. She, with her great starry eyes, fastened on my face, her long auburn locks, curling almost to her feet, the touching earnestness of her manner, the childish yet most graceful attitude into which fear had thrown her, all remain indelibly stamped upon my memory.

I instantly raised her, took her trembling hand in mine, and entered the cottage. A middle aged woman lay upon the floor unconscious. In her hand, she held with a strong death-grasp, a letter which had come that morning. I well knew by the fallen jaw and glazed eye, that she was dying. With some difficulty, taking the letter from her hand, I read that her husband had the day before fallen from the upper staging of a house on which he was at work, and now laid dead at the hospital.

Imagine my sorrow for that poor orphan, left thus alone, so young so beautiful. I called her to me and gently told her all.—She fell upon my bosom, and clasping her arms about my neck, mutely claimed both love and protection. I never saw a child so sensible of her great loss, and yet so—what shall I call it? heroic under her affliction.

Had she relatives? I asked.

None that she knew of; she did have an aunt once, but she was very poor, and her mother would never let her go to see her, on account of something wrong.

I took Lucia—that was her name, to the little village inn. There also I had her mother carried—from there buried. I consulted my guardian with regard to her future destiny, and unfolded my plans.

'If you are not so foolish as to marry her after all, it will do very well,' he said.—That was before he had seen her. When her bright innocent face first met his gaze, he raised his shaggy brows, and said, 'egad, he didn't know but he should speak for her himself.'

I had her placed at a good seminary, and as much as possible, superintended her studies myself. Every year she 'grew in beauty.' Every year her noble intellect expanded to maturity, and above all she never lost that simplicity which—I will not use the stale maxim, is the 'greatest charm of woman'—but I will say without which neither man or woman can be truly attractive.'

'And so you married her?'

'And so I married her; do you blame me?'

'No, of course not; but are you certain her father was a hod-carrier?'

'Yes, a very poor, uneducated, but good man; honest as the sun'

'Was he a foreigner?'

'Reduced by circumstances,' laughed Seymous, in reply; 'no, he was no foreigner but a poor American citizen; and I saw by some few papers in cramped writing, that his forefathers were all poor American citizens—not a case of fallen nobility among them. So much for patrician beauty.'

Laurence went home and soug't his pillow, where he dreamed of improbable adventures—falling from the Astor House with a hod of bricks on his shoulder and rescuing beauty in distress.

Ever after that he expatiated but little on his former theme—'patrician beauty.'—[Olive Branch.

Extreme Unction.

A CATHOLIC, over the signature of 'Puzzle,' in a communication to the Baltimore Clipper, asserts that the Roman Church is the true Church because, among others things, it alone anoints the sick. The Editor of the Christian Advocate and Journal thus disposes of the subject:

But he alleges that no other Church but his own continues to obey the direction of the apostle James with respect to sick persons, and therefore his is the only Church of Christ. He affects to quote from the apostle, as follows, chapter v 14: 'Is any man sick among you? let him bring in the priests of the Church, and let them pray over him, anointing him with oil in the name of the Lord," &c. In the common version the passage reads thus: 'is any sick among you? let him call for the elders of the Church, and let them pray over him, anointing him with oil in the name of the Lord.' But 'Puzzle' has carefully concealed in an et cetera an important part of what the apostle says in this connection. It would have been fatal to his argument to have quoted it in full, for the apostle adds: 'And the prayer of faith shall save the sick, and the Lord shall raise him up; and if he hath committed sins, they shall be forgiven him.'

Now, in the first place, we have to remark that the term or appellation 'priest,' as quoted by 'Puzzle,' is not found in the original Greek; nor can he produce a single instance in the New Testament in which the name priest is applied to a preacher of the gospel, or any other person, clerical or lay, in the Christian Church. The priesthood was abolished when our great High Priest offered himself on the cross as a full and final sacrafice for the sins of mankind. Under the law, priests were not authorized teachers of religion. The duty assigned them was to offer sacrifices; and when this function ceased, upon the introduction of another and better covenant, the whole order was abolished. The types terminated with the coming of the Antitype. The Christian Church has no priests. There are other Churches who call their ministers priests besides the Church of Rome, but they allage that they use it as a synonymn for presbyter or elder. But great corruption has grown out of the name. 'A priest,' says Paul, 'must have somewhat to offer;' and the priests taught the people to call the Lord's Supper a sacrifice, a vicarious offering, which finally led to the idolatry of the mass.

But it remains to inquire why the Protestant Churches do not still follow the direction of St. James in respect to the sick? We answer, because it was clearly a direction which would only apply while the Church retained the miraculous gifts with which it was at first so richly endowed, and especially the gift of healing. We see the direction is accompanied by a promise that the prayer of faith offered by the elders should heal the sick; for nothing less can be intended by the sick person being raised up. Now, the gift of healing passed from the Church with the converts, to whom the apostles communicated it; for none of these had power to communicate miraculous gifts to others; at least, there is no example of it in the New Testament. When, therefore the gift of healing was lost to the Church, miraculous power having accomplished that for which it was intended, the Church, ceased to observe the direction of the apostle, and to perpetuate a form which had no longer either power or significance.

But does the Roman Catholic Church continue to observe this apostolic direction in the sense in which the apostle gave it? He directed it to be done for the healing of the sick. That Church does not pretend that extreme unction cures the sick, but only that they are prepared for death by it. She still teaches that it purifies from all sin, because no one can contradict the pretention from any thing visible during the process; but let her claim that it heals the sick, as St. James promised, and the falsehood of the assertion would be apparent daily.

We argue, therefore, that if to perpetuate the observance of the apostolic direction in respect to the sick, in the sense in which he intended it—which was that they might be 'raised up'—be an essential characteristic of the Church of Christ, the Roman Catholic Church has no more pretention to it than the Protestant Churches; for she does not use extreme unction to heal, or raise up, but in extremis—at the point of death, and as a preparation for it.

The New Year 1854.

On the first of January next, 'GLEASON'S PICTORIAL" will commence its sixth volume, and will appear vastly improved in all respects, with a superb new heading, new type and dress throughout, and will be printed upon the finest paper. As the proprietor of the 'Pictorial' has purchased the entire good will of Barnum's New York 'Illustrated News,' and has merged that journal in the 'Pictorial,' the public will reap the advantage of concentration of the strength of the two papers upon one, both in the artistic and literary departments.—The same brilliant host of contributors and artists will be engaged on 'Gleason's Pictorial' as heretofore, and a large addition is also made to the corps, both in talent an number. The most liberal arrangements have been completed, and such as will enable the proprietor to produce by far the finest illustrated journal yet published, and much superior to the present issue of the paper. The columns of the 'Pictorial' will constantly be beautified by all that can please and instruct in art and nature, and its literary department will fully sustain the high reputation it has so long enjoyed.

The pages of 'Gleason's Pictorial' will contain views of every populous city in the known world, of all buildings of note in the eastern or western hemisphere, of all the principal ships and steamers of the navy and merchant service, with fine and accurate portraits of every noted character in the world, both male and female. Sketches of beautiful scenery, taken from life, will also be given, with numerous specimens from the animal kingdom, the birds of the air, and the fish of the sea, and will present its mechanical execution an elegant specimen of art. It will contain fifteen hundred and sixty-four square inches, giving a great amount of reading matter and illustrations—and forming a mammoth weekly paper of sixteen octavo pages.

The Home Journal For 1854.

In consequence of the great and continually increasing demand for this elegantly printed, widely circulated and universally popular Family Newspaper, we have heretofore been unable to furnish the back numbers to only a very limited extent. To avoid this disappointment in future, we shall, on the first of January next, print such an increased edition as will enable us to supply new subscribers from that date. Besides the original productions of the Editors—the Foreign and Domestic Correspondence of a large list of contributors—the spice of the European Magazines—the selections of the most interesting publications of the day—the brief novels—the piquant stories—the sparkling wit and amusing anecdote—the news and gossip of the Parisian papers—the personal sketches of public characters—the stirring scenes of the world we live in—the chronicle of the news for ladies—the fashions and fashionable gossip—the facts and outlines of news—the pick of English informations—the wit, humor and pathos of the times—the essays on life, literature, society and morals, and the usual variety of careful choosings from the wilderness of English periodical literature, criticism, poetry, etc,—several new and attractive features of remarkable interest will enrich and give value to the new series of the work.

TERMS—For one copy, $2; for three copies, $5; or one copy for three years, $5—always in advance.

AN HEIRESS.—The Wooton (Va.) Herald says that orignally the sum of $36,000,000 in the estate of the Earl of Lancaster in England, was claimed at law by one of the Houses of York. The suit was protracted from the lower to the higher courts, from fifty to a hundred years, and was finally decided at the Exchequer, the Queen's Bench, in favor of the House of Lancaster. After this decision, advertisements were scattered abroad over the world for the heirs of the Lancaster estate and the mother of Mrs. Clawson, wife of Rev. Samuel Clawson, of Virginia, is one of the heirs. Attorneys are employed by the heirs to secure their interests, and it is supposed that the whole affair will be settled up during this winter, when the heirs will receive their portions. The above sum of thirty six millions has been at interest for more than sixty years, which interest will pay the costs of law, and leave the original clear fat!

A Day-Dream.

Coleridge is remarkable for the suggestive character of his compositions. He not only conveys his own beautiful and profound thoughts to the reader, but makes the reader think for himself and create new thoughts of his own. This is remarkably seen in the following:

My eyes makes pictures when ther'e shut—
I see a fountain large and fair,
A willow and a ruin'd hut,
And thee, and me, and Mary there,
O Mary! make thy gentle lap our pillow;
Bend o'er us like a bower, my beautiful green willow!

A wild rose roofs the ruin'd shed,
And that and summer well agree;
And lo! where Mary leans her head,
Two dear names carved upon the tree!
And Mary's tears, they are not tears of sorrow,
Her sister and our friend will both be there to-morrow.

'Twas day! But now, few, large and bright,
The stars are round the crescent moon!
And now it is a dark, warm night,
The balmiest of the month of June.
A glow-worm fallen, and on the marge remounting
Shines, and its shadow shines fit stares for our sweet fountain!

O, ever, ever be thou blessed!
For dearly, Nora! love I thee!
This brooding warmth across my breast,
This depth of tranquil bliss—ah, me!
Fount, tree, and shed are gone, I know not whether,
But in one quiet room we three are still together.

The shadows dance upon the wall,
By the still dancing fire flames made;
And now they slumber, moveless all!
And now they melt to one deep shade!
But not from me shall this mild darkness steal then;
I dream thee with mine eyes, and at my heart I feel thee.

Thine eyelash on my cheek doth play;
'Tis Mary's hand upon my brow!
But let me check this tender lay,
Which none may hear but she and thou!
Like the still hive at quiet midnight humming,
Murmur it to yourselves, ye two beloved women!

Thanksgiving Day.

Eighteen States are to dine together tomorrow. The invitations have been out for a month. The Dinner is given in honor of CONNETICUT, the oldest invited guest, who sits down to the Anniversary feast for the hundred and fifty fifth time. The table will be three thousand miles long—so there is sure to be room. NEW HAMPSHIRE has agreed to preside, at the upper end, in a huge granite chair. The Clergy of the Union will say grace, two hours beforehand. Thirty-six thousand church bells have been arranged to chime the music. The viands will be various, to suit all tastes, from ice at the upper end, to Wines and Fruits at the lower. But the majority of the guests will probably make their dinner of Roast Turkey and Pumpkin Pie, out of compliment to old CONNETICUT, the founder of the Festival.

It must be a pleasant sight for her to see the whole Family gathered around her table, with UNCLE SAM, about half way down, in the midst of them. The old fellow is pretty well in years now, (seventy-eight last July,) but still hale and hearty, thanks to an excellent Constitution. VIRGINIA, his eldest daughter, (a well meaning person, though with a deal of family pride, and very much given to talking about her son 'George,' for which, however, nobody can blame her,) will have a seat at his right hand. TEXAS, a rough and ready sort of backwoodsman, has a place at the other end of the table, (and will probably contrive to sit very close to LOUISIANA, one of the youngest and prettiest of the old gentleman's nieces). NEW YORK will be there as long as he can spare time, but business on 'Change will probably call him away by the express train, before dinner is over. MAINE and SOUTH CAROLINA were too impatient to wait, and so they have been already accommodated at a side table. CALIFORNIA (a stout little fellow, of three years, who, his elder sister vow, is worth his weight in gold,) is too young to come.

Of course there have been idle stories in circulation about this family, as there are about all families, which this Gathering will do much to dispel. Some, for instance, have asserted that they were head over ears in debt, and so near bankrupt that they could not afford sugar in their tea. Uncle Sam will chuckle at them well, when he pulls out a surplus purse of $2,000,000, which he proposes to exhibit. Others again have privately hinted that MISSISSIPPI has applied for a divorce, and that she is going to run away with a worthless adventurer. But her presence, at the dinner, smiling and contented, will pretty effectually stop that gossip. Others again pretend that there is a deadly quarrel between NEW YORK, VIRGINIA, MASSACHUSETTS and two or three others. But you will see that they will be shaking hands over the dinner table before sun-down.

The Old Folks will take great pleasure in talking over the days when they were young; and all thirteen of them lived together—down on the sea shore. The Young Ones will, of course, be full of a thousand visionary schemes by which they think they are going to make a great noise in the world, by and by. But at any rate, they will all be the better for the old tales that will be told, the old jokes that will be made, and the old songs that will be sung, until late in the evening, when Hope and Memory, (two old servants of this family have done more to keep it together than any amount of Compromise could) will light them all up to bed, and supply them with the material for their Thanksgiving Dreams. —Albany Journal.

——ANOTHER BRITISH OUTRAGE is announced. A day or two since, says a contemporary,—our blood boils as we write it—several smacks were taken by a British naval officer in Boston harbor; and what is worse than all the smacks were taken from a young lady. Where's President Pierce?

Glorious Old Kings.

We are at last in receipt of partial official returns—which we publish elsewhere—from Kings county—the home of Senator VANDERBILT, and of eight thousand other good and sound democrats. Judge BRONSON'S calculation of one Free-soiler to seven Nationals, is almost verified to the letter. Kings county gives the National State ticket a majority nearly as large as the three heaviest Free-soil counties combined—Oneida, Herkimer, and St. Lawrence—give the other way. Is the Atlas surprised? Is it satisfied with the verdict the people of Kings have given upon the issue which it chose in its madness, to make with Senator VANDERBILT, and the three democratic members from that county in the last Legislature—Messrs. O'BRIEN, HUTCHINS and SEARING?—[Argus.

The county of Kings gave 6,500 majority for the National Democratic State Ticket. This result triumphantly vindicates Senator VANDERBILT, who incurred the ribald abuse of the Atlas for having fearlessly discharged his duty to the CANALS. It must be peculiarly gratifying to the feelings of a faithful but maligned Representative, to find himself thus nobly sustained by his immediate constituents.

Judge VANDERBILT, appreciating the importance to the State, of completing the Enlargement of the Erie Canal, and recognising the binding force of a solemn "Pledge" of the Democratic State Officers, entered boldly upon the discharge of that duty. The first steps subjected him to denunciation, and through the two Sessions of the Legislature he encountered constant assault and ridicule. But, proof against both, he calmly pursued the 'even tenor of his way' until his efforts were crowned with success. And his courage and fidelity have been rewarded by a majority unprecedented in the annals of his county.

Had the State Administration possessed the wisdom to adopt the Joint Resolution of Senator COOLEY, at the commencement of the Session of the Legislature, looking to the completion of the Canals, the Democratic Party would not now have been divided and overthrown. But the counsels of the Atlas prevailed. A storm ensued. To lighten the ship its officers were thrown overboard; but even that failed to appease the People. With 'new men the Atlas Party is overwhelmed.—Albany Journal.

Georgia.

The Hon. Charles J. McDonald will probably be the new Senator in Congress from the State of Georgia. He received the nomination of the caucus of Democratic members of the Legislature on Wednesday evening, and the election was appointed to take place on Friday. Mr. McDonald was a prominent leader of the Secessionist in 1850, and President of the Nashville Convention. His principal competitor for the nomination of Senator was Ex-Governor Howell Cobb, a leading Unionist. The first vote in caucus was, for McDonald 61, Cobb 31, Iverson 27; and Mr. McDonald was nominated on the seventh ballot.

A movement was made in each House of the Legislature on Thursday, to pass resolutions censuring the Administration for its interference in the politics of New York. The House of Representatives refused to print the resolutions by a vote of 60 to 60. The Senate refused to lay the resolutions on the table by a vote of 48 to 45, and then ordered them to be printed, yeas, 53, nays 42. We annex a copy:—

'Resolved, &c. That, while we approve the sentiments and doctrines promulgated in the Inaugural Address of President Pierce, we can only regard his attempts to produce harmony in the National Democratic party by inviting known Free-Soilers to participate in the administration of the Government as a compromise of principles, as an amnesty to factions that have for years been arrayed against the Union and the Constitution.

'2d. That these sentiments of devotion to the Union and the Constiution carried President Pierce into power, and that all efforts by his Administration to force the recognition of Free-Soilers as sound and true men, by placing them in offices of honor and profit, are in direct opposition to that great National sentiment and an outrage upon the popular judgment.

'3d. That the appointment of men to important offices who were prominent actors in the Free Soil movement at Buffalo in 1848, is an insult to the people of the South and to the sound and true men of the North.

'4th. That we heartily sympathize with the Hon. DANIEL S. DICKINSON, of New York, and his noble associates in their efforts to purge the National Democratic party of its free soil elements, and that we hereby tender them our heartfelt gratitude for their patriotic devotion to the Union and the Constitution.

'5th. That it is inexpedient and unjust for Congress to appropriate money from the public treasury to aid in constructing the great Railroad now in contemplation from the Mississippi to the Pacific, or to grant the public lands for alike purpose—they being the property of all the States, old as well as new."

European Affairs.

It seems that war has at length actually commenced between Russia & Turkey. The Turks undoubtedly considers it more honorable to fight for the integrity of his territory and be defeated, than to submit tamely to a wanton invasion, and he is right.—The sympathies of the whole civilized world are with him. As to the customs, laws, and government of the two countries, there is little to choose, but in the present quarrel, the Turks are in the right, and they must succeed. As to the extent and duration of the war, speculation is as rife, as it was as to the probabilities of a war a few weeks ago. Some think the whole of Europe and Asia must inevitably become involved, and that those countries will be drowned in blood, while others affect to believe that there will be a little skirmishing only, and that then diplomacy will step in and settle the matter. We are too far from the seat of war to guess even as to the speculations, but really, these last seem to us very much like the man who is said to have climbed a tree during the flood, and when the water had reached his chin exclaimed, 'not much of a shower after all.'

The effect of a European war upon this country is also the subject of sage discussion. On this also the 'doctors disagree.' Some think it will increase importations, while others contend that it will increase exportations. We express no oppinion, but wait the developement with anxiety and hope.

Female Editors.

There are many now, and they are on the increase. Some of them display most decided ability. Of the latter is Mrs. Harriet N. Prewett, of "The Yazoo City Weekly Whig"—Yazoo City, Mi. In the number before us is a list of deaths during the prevalence of the yellow fever, from Sept 1 to Nov. 8th, 1853, amounting to 153. In a long Editorial she most beautifully alludes to many of the dead, and thus refers to her own sad experience:—

"We sit now by a table that was for years used by Mr. Prewett.—The portfolio in which we write this, was his and used by him six years when he edited the Natchez Courier, and still contains scraps of his editorials. He has long been at rest in the Yazoo City graveyard. The pen with which we write this, was one we gave to our first born, noble boy, on his tenth birth-day, and with which he penned all the letters he ever wrote us. He too is gone—he upon whom we looked for future support and defence, when coming years shall take from us the strength and ability to provide for ourself—within the last two months the strong, spirited Guy, has been laid like a little babe to sleep by his fathers, with a white rose upon his breast. It is all right though, because God has done it—and tho' it is hard to be resigned to His will, we try to imitate the trusting faith of the Shumanite when Gahazi asked her "Is it well with thee, is it well with thy husband, is it well with thy child?" and say "it is well."

"O, suffering sad humanity!
O, ye afflicted ones who lie
Steeped to the lips in misery,
Longing, yet afraid to die,
Patient, yet sorely tried!
I pledge you in this cup of grief,
Where floats the fennels bitter leaf!
The alarm—the struggle—the relief—
Then sleep we side by side."

Mrs. Prewett is also a most decided and glorious whig, as will be seen by the following from one of her Editorials, headed Gen. Pierce knows "no North, no South, no East, no West":

"He knew no North, when passing by Gen. Foote, the Union champion of the South, he embraced his factious rival, Col. Davis, and assigned him the Department of War. He knew no North, South, East nor West, when he, the glorious descendant of a glorious revolutionary ancestry, kicked Robert Morris out of office, an honest, capable man, and the grandson of that Robert Morris who signed the Declaration of Independence,—merely because he was a Whig,—and neither his own worth nor the sterling patriotism of his revolutionary ancestor was of any avail in the estimation of the "glorious patriot" Franklin Pierce. He knew nothing of the splendors that clustered around the revolutionary history of the North, when he removed from office the accomplished and faithful Mr. Newcomb, the grandson of General Warren, who sealed his devotion to his country by the sacrifice of his life at Bunker Hill.

But he did know something of the West when he raked up that offcast of his party, the perjured freesoiler, Wm. J. Brown, and in defiance of the claims of common decency appointed him to office.

He had no regard for the points of the [illegible] when in all sections he passed over [illegible] champions of the Union and the Constitution; but he exhibited a wonderful knowledge of all sections as he went nosing up his Van Buren and disunion favorites."

We should add that Mrs. Prewett was educated under the care Mrs. Emma Willard at the Troy Female Seminary.

Miss Annette Bishop.

This lady is already known to many of our readers as a highly gifted young artist, and as the authoress of several sweet Poems which have appeared, from time to time, in the Shekinah, and other Spiritual Periodicals. Having left her 'mountain home,' where her genius was first displayed, for a temporary residence in our city, she proposes to practice, during the insuing winter, her art of Miniature Painting, in which she exhibits a natural inspiration and artistic skill which must excite the admiration of those who worship Beauty in its outward forms. Miss Bishop would, ere this, have attracted more general attention but for those delicate sensibilities which prompt her to retire instinctively from public observation.

We have specimens of miniatures at this office, which we shall be pleased to exhibit to our friends, and to any who may have occasion to employ this beautiful art.—Those who desire to call on Miss Bishop will find her at her room, No. 93 West Sixteenth Street.—[Spiritual Telegraph.

We suppose this to be Miss Bishop of Elizabethtown, the accomplished and talented daughter of Lucius Bishop Esq.—The compliment is well merited, but we cannot refrain from expressing our regret at her connection with 'Spiritual Periodicals.' Her miniatures have been exhibited at the Agricultural Fair of Essex County and excited the admiration and wonder of the beholders.

☞ The Hardshells had a great demonstration at Metropoliton Hall in N. Y. on the evening preceding Thanksgiving.—The Mayor presided, assisted by Vice President and Secretaries. The enthusiasm was great and the gathering immense. Speeches were made by Ex-Senator Stockton, Hon. F. B. Cutting, C. W. Carrigan, of Pa., and others. Mr. Stockton in the course of his remarks said that he believed Mr. Guthrie to be an honorable gentleman, but that he had been misled by the spoils cabinet. He made a vigorous speech which was well received. Mr. Cutting and Carrigan were both plain spoken in the duty of Democrats.

☞ JOHN MITCHELL the Irish Patriot arrived in New York, by the Prometheus, on Tuesday last. His reception was very enthusiastic.

Albany Northern Railroad.

This road is now completed and is in good running order. It extends from the city of Albany to Eagle Bridge, a distance of about thirty miles. It there connects with the road running to Rutland. From Rutland, a line passes on to Burlington, Rouses Point, Ogdensburgh and Montreal, and another to Boston.

At Waterford Junction a connection is made with the Rensselaer and Saratoga Railroad, so that passengers and freight can be carried to Mechanicsville, Ballston Saratoga and Whitehall, there connecting with the boats that run upon Lake Champlain, and giving us intercourse with the towns and villages on the west side of the Lake, in the counties of Warren, Essex & Clinton.

In Essex and Clinton there is an inexhaustible supply of iron ore and wood to work it, and the lumber has not yet been all rafted down from the Saranac. These counties, in many portions containing good soil, but as yet little improved, with good water power, are destined to increase in wealth, agriculture and manufactures.

The trade upon the St. Lawrence, now large, is still increasing. Canada, but thinly populated, but with a large area of soil with immense forests, is being settled by the industrious, energetic, business loving and business-seeking American Anglo Saxons. Its commerce with us is fast increasing, and it is but just to surmise that a large portion of it will find its way through the valley of the Hudson and to the capital of the Empire State.

From these, together with the business to be derived from the wealthy and fertile County of Washington and from that part of Western Vermont which lies west of the Green Mountains, this road expects, and has reason to expect, a large amount of business. It will have also a large local business from Troy, West Troy, Cohoes and Waterford.

The road will be run in connection with the road from Eagle Bridge and Rutland, forming in fact one road under one direction.

That between the large towns and villages lying between Albany and Rutland there will be a large local business, no one can for a moment doubt. That it will command a fair proportion of through business it is but fair to suppose. A road will undoubtedly be built from Albany to N. York on the west side of the river. Whether such a road will be of advantage to the city or not, it will undoubtedly be of great benefit to the Northern Road. It will form a complete chain from the Metropolis to the St. Lawrence. The freight of the North could be delivered at New York at the very place it was wanted; ice and snow and cold would never prevent its transportation across the river at all hours and times.

The road will bring our merchants into intimate relations with a large extent of country increasing in wealth, whose products and business have hitherto sought other markets. Albany will become a market for its farmers, their produce will here be exchanged for goods, and their surplus, money and capital will come here for investment. Whether the road pay its stockholders or not, Albany will reap great advantage by its construction. It will be a local road and Albany will be one of the terminii.

It is but proper to add that we learn that the road is not now able to transport all the freight that is offered to it.—Albany Express!

The connection at Eagle Bridge is with the road through Salem, Washington Co., to Rutland, Vt; and Thos H. Canfield is Sup't of the entire line from Rutland to Albany. We hope the brightest anticipations of the Albanians will be realized.—Ed. Rep.

A race came off, near Bath, on Friday, between 'Sleepy John,' an Elmira horse, and the 'Rathbone horse.' The Elmira horse was the winner. Obe Stephens, Member of the Assembly elect, in the Third District of Steuben County, rode the 'Rathbone horse,' and lost fifty dollars in betting on it!—What a commentary! A Member of the Assembly of the Empire State riding at a horse race!—Think of it!—Elmira Republican.

Our first recollections of 'the turf,' are associated with Obe's beautiful countenance. Probably no man living has a greater passion for good, fast horses than Obe Stephens. Ever since our recollection he has been called a 'crack rider,' from the forty rod scrub to nine mile heats. He is a great way from being a fool, but is a good judge of human nature, as well as horseflesh. He is death on the Maine Law.—All the way the friends of that measure can get rid of him, is to find out when the bill is coming up for a third reading—get up a horse race, challenge Obe to bet, and we will wager the cigars he will be at the race course instead of the House, when the final vote is taken. We hope, however, that Albany will not be cursed, the present winter, with men of any worse heart than Obe Stephens. If it is not, there will be a better house than has convened there since our recollection.—Republican Era.

Past Cure.

The Glens Falls Republican, hunker, thus alludes to the division in the ranks of its party:

We have known of quarrels and divorces, which have been healed and resulted in a happy and lasting re-union; but a second divoree is of too determined a character to ever admit of peace within four walls. No, the result is to wide—the sore admits of no salve.

New Hair Restorative.—Wm. Fletcher, of Peru, has invented a new recipe for restoring and coloring the hair. It is prepared after long and patient study into the diseases and nature of the hair and skin, and from conversations with him on the subject we are of the opinion that it is the best ever produced. It has also been tested by several with entire success.

Rutland & Washington Railroad

We are happy to learn from a reliable source that the statements, made in the Troy Whig and other papers concerning the above Road, are without foundation. We are informed that all attachments against the property of the road have been released, and that there has been no talk of an assignment at any time.

The company have but a small floating debt, and have in reserve Mortgage Bonds sufficient to cancel the whole indebtedness.

FUN AHEAD!—a Washington correspondent writes:—

Some of the national democratic members now here express their determination of taking the earliest opportunity to introduce such a resolution in the House, as will compel gentlemen to declare their opinion of Messrs. Marcy and Guthrie in endeavoring to coerce the notional democrats of New York into the Van Buren traces, and threats of their organ that unless the great principle recognize in the distribution offices, that the Baltimore platform was a coalation structure, was endorsed, t'would be open enmity to the administration.

HOUSE'S TELEGRAPH LINE.—The posts for House's Printing Telegraph have been set from Montreal nearly to Keeseville, under the Superintendence of P. C. Dodge. These posts are of superior timber, nicely set and peeled, with cast iron caps to prevent injury to the glass, around which the wires are wound.

We understand that the work of extending this line to connect with the Whitehall line, is rapidly progressing, and will probably be completed for use by the month of January next.—Clinton Co. Whig.

—The strict honesty of Bob Simpglass deserves to be regarded as an example to his brethren of the Happy-good fellow Society. The other night having walked over Cambridge bridge in a zig-zag course, curious and wonderful, he hove up against the toll house, and giving the toll-gatherer two cents, he exclaimed,—

'Here ie's my contribution to the support of the bridge.'

'Yes, and there is one cent over,' said the tender.

'One cent is the regular toll—ic—ic—aint it?'

'Yes, sir.'

'Well, then, I owe you two any way—for if I have not walked every plank in the bridge twice over, then—ic—I'm a barber pole. So, keep the charge, old fellér.'

He reeled away, and the admiring toll-gatherer lost sight of him in the darkness. —Boston Paper.

"LEFT HIS CRUTCHES IN MRS. HAYES' SHOP,"

An old man came limping in Mrs. Hayes' medicine store, No. 175 Fulton street.—He asked for a bottle of Radway's Ready Relief. His limbs were so stiff, so weak, and so painful that the distressed old man could go no further without bathing his crippled legs. In a few minutes he felt new life thrilling through his whole body; first, his legs felt a genial glow of warmth, then the stiffness disappeared—next, he felt the muscles and tendons becoming strong—and so vigorous did he feel, that, after a few minutes rubbing with the R. R. R., he arose, stood upon his feet, and walked away rejoicing at the sudden effects of Radway's Ready Relief, leaving the faithful crutches in Mrs. Hayes' store, as a pleasing memento to her of the exceedingly happy efficacy of Radway's Ready Relief.

People troubled with Rheumatism, or Gout, Sick Headache, or Pains of any kind the moment you apply Radaway's Ready Relief you will experience a happy change.

For Chronic Complaints, Scrofula, Syphilis, Tumors, Ulcers, Cancers, Fever Sores Consumption, Night Sweats, Salt Rheum, Radway's Renovating Resolvent, will make a favorable change on the third day.

Also by the same, on the 30th ult., Mr. H. W. Bordwell, of Auburn, California, to Miss Helen M. Prescott, of Keeseville.

Died.

At Kalamazoo, Mich. August 24, 1853, Shakspeare Sherman, aged 18 years, only son of Alfered and Mary Sherman.

(The deceased was a bright and promising youth, the pride, and hope of his parents. Residing as they do far from early friends, and among comparative strangers, this loss seems doubly great, and irreparable. Their friends can only send their sincerest sympathies, and pointing them upward, bid them await a re-union where Death and seperation are unknown.)

Promptness.

IT certainly must be highly gratifying to all persons who wish to get Property Insured against Loss by Fire, to know that they can effect an Insurance in a Company that is prompt, able, and willing to pay all losses insured by them. Persons insuring in the Indemnity Insurance Company, Broadalbin, New York, will (in the writer's opinion,) find such a company; and that their gentlemanly agent, J. G. McNutt, Esq., is on hand to Insure in this Company, and is as ready to pay where a loss is sustained as he is willing to insure. For instance, the Town House in Lewis was insured by him on the 28th day of May, 1853, was burned up on the 14th of September following, and on the 16th October he honored a draft for the amount of the insurance.

Fairfield Academy.

THE NEXT TERM OF THIS INSTITUtion will commence on Monday, December 12th, 1853.

The Male Department will be under charge of Seneca Wieting, A. M. as Principal, and Miss I. W. Carey as Preceptress in the Female Department, assisted by others eminent in their Profession. It is one of the oldest and best established Academies in the State, having been in operation nearly 60 years and now enjoys a large and steadily increasing patronage.

The Trustees are confident in the opinion that with the able teachers employed, the splendid Astronomical, Philosophical and Chemical Apparatus, Mineralogical Cabinets, large library, &c., belonging to the Academy, that no New Institution can present equal advantages to the students. Student in straightened circumstances will find it for their advantage to attend this school. Many are enabled to do so at a cost of about $14 per term of 14 weeks. Students in this Academy are free from the many temptations which beset youth in large places—intoxicating liquors are not sold in the place, and no conduct inconsistent with the strictest rules of morality and virtue is allowed. Great advantages are offered to those wishing Instruction in Instrumental Music. Mr. Louis Gauther, the Prof. in this Department, has no superior in the country. Students from a distance will leave the Railroad at Little Falls or Herkimer, thence by daily stage (eight miles) to Fairfield.

FRAUD!

ALL who want AXES of the real COLLINS & Co. make should be particular to notice the stamps, as there are various counterfeits and imitations stamped Collins and labelled much like ours, which are fraudulently sold in some parts of the United States as our manufacture. They are made in different parts of the country by various axe-makers, and are generally of very inferior quality. The genuine Collins axes which have acquired such an extensive reputation, are invariably stamped "COLLINS & CO. HARTFORD," and each axe has a printed label with my signature.—It is now more than TWENTY-FIVE YEARS since we commenced the business with the stamps "Collins & Co. Hartford," and I do not know of any other axe-maker by the name of Collins in the United States.

Dr. Hunter's Medical Manual and Hand Book for the Afflicted—

Containing an outline of the origin, progress, treatment and cure of every form of disease, contracted by promiscuous sexual intercourse, by self abuse or by sexual excess, with advice for their prevention, written in a familiar style, avoiding all medical technicalities, and everything that would offend the ear of decency, from the result of some twenty years successful practice, exclusively devoted to the cure of diseases of a delicate or private nature.

To which is added, receipts for the cure of the above diseases, and a treatise on the causes, symptoms and cure of the Fever and Ague.

Testimony of the Prof of Obstetrics in Penn. College, Philadelphia.—"Dr. Hunter's Medical Manual."—The author of this work unlike the majority of these works who advertise to cure the diseases of which it treats, is a graduate of one of the best Colleges in the United States. It affords me pleasure to recommend him to the unfortunate, or to the victim of malpractice, as a successful and experienced practitioner, in whose honor and integrity they may place the greatest confidence.

JOSEPH LONGSHORE M. D.

From A Woodward M. D., of Penn. University, Philadelphia—It gives me pleasure to add my testimony to the professional ability of the author of the "Medical Manual." Numerous cases of diseases of the Genital Organs, some of them of long standing have come under my notice, in which his skill has been manifest in restoring to perfect health, in some instances where the patient has been considered beyond medical aid. In the treatment of Seminal weaknees, or disarrangement of the functions produced by Self-abuse, or Excess of venery, I do not know his superior in the profession. I have been acquainted with the Author some thirty years, and deem it no more than justice to him as well as a kindness to the unfortunate victim of early indiscretion, to recommend him as one, in whose professional skill and integrity they may safely confide themselves. ALFRED WOODWARD, M.D.

"This is, without exception, the most comprehensive and intelligible work published on the class of diseases of which it treats. Avoiding all technical terms, it addresses itself to the reason of its readers. It is free from all objectionable matter and no parent, however fastidious, can object to placing it in the hands of his sons. The author has devoted many years to the treatment of the various complaints treated of, and with too little breath to puff, and too little presumption to impose, he has offered to the world at the merely nominal price of 25 cents, the fruits of some 20 years most successful practice."—Herald.

"No teacher or parent should be without the knowledge imparted in this invaluable work. It would save years of pain, mortification and sorrow to the youth under their charge."—People's Advocate.

A Presbyterian clergyman in Ohio, in writing of "Hunter's Medical Manual," says: "Thousands upon thousands of our youth, by evil example and influence of the passions, have been led into the habit of self pollution without realizing the sin and fearful consequences upon themselves and their posterity. The constitutions of thousands who are raising families have been enfeebled, if not broken down, and they do not know the cause or the cure. Anything that can be done so to enlighten and influence the public mind as to check, and ultimately to remove this widespread source of human wretchedness, would confer the greatest blessing next to the religion of Jesus Christ on the present and coming generations. Intemperance (or the use of intoxicating drinks) though it has slain thousands upon thousands, is not a greater scourge to the human race. Accept my thanks on behalf of the afflicted, and, believe me your co-worker in the good work you are so actively engaged in."

One copy, (securely enveloped,) will be forwarded free of postage to any part of the United States for 25 cents, or 6 copies for $1.—Address (post paid) COMBIN & Co., publishers, Box 136, Philadelphia.

"KEEP THESE COMMANDMENTS AND THOU !

SHALT YET BE SOMEBODY !

1 Thou shalt have no other place to buy thy Clothing.

2 Thou shalt not choose to thyself any other Clothier. Thou shalt not bow down to them nor listen to their fair speeches, for Cardwell is a reliable Clothier, capable and willing to dress his customers to the third and fourth Generation.

3 Thou needs't not search for Cardwells, Clothing Store in vain; it is in the Adirondac Hotel Building," and has the most splendid Sign in the State.

4 Thou shalt keep in romomberance the above location; six days shalt thou labour, and on Saturday night come and buy thy Sunday outfit.

5 Thou shalt honor the judicious adorner of thy person and long may thy days be upon the land to enjoy the fruits of his services.

6 Thou shalt not commit an outrage upon propriety. by purchasing your Clothing, of any wandering Jew that may come hither, nor of any one else that has not courage enough to adhere strictly to one branch of trade.

7 Thou shalt not take unto thyself foreign fashions by adulterously wedding strange garments to thy body thereby converting an American citizen into a foreign ambassador.

8 Thou shalt not rob Cardwell! for he sells so Cheap 'twould be a sin

9 Thou shalt not bear false witness but honestly acknowledge that thou cans't get better suited at Cardwell's for less money than any other place, get thy money's worth and the right change back.

10 Thou shalt not covet thy neighbor's garments, but take counsel of the wise and proceed straightway to Cardwell's and buy for thyself and be satisfied.

KEESEVILLE ACADEMY,

Clinton County, New York.

THIS INSTITUTION is located in one of the finest sections of the State.

It is five miles from Port Kent, on Lake Champlain. The lake affords a cheap, easy and pleasant communication with Plattsburgh, Burlington and Whitehall. The noted are about two miles below the village.

The building is comparatively new, well arranged, supplied with a

and is intended to accommodate 150 students. The advantages to be enjoyed will be of the highest order. The course of instruction will be thorough, and sufficiently extensive to meet the wants of every class of pupils.

Particular attention will be given to those who may wish to fit themselves for teaching or a collegiate course.

There are four Terms in a year, of 11 weeks each. The next Term will commence Novr. 17th, 1853.

THE MARRIAGE STATE;

Shall Happiness and Health, or Misery and Sickness, attend it?

MOST STARTLING CONSIDERATIONS!

Reflections for the Thoughtful.

Strange that countless human beings exist and drag through life as do the beasts of the field, or the insects of the earth, evincing no more thought or reflection than though the noble faculties of mind were not vouchsafed to them.

Many such are husbands and fathers, upon whom are dependent the health, the well-being, and the happiness of a confiding and affectionate wife, with perhaps a family of children.

HOW OFTEN IT HAPPENS THAT THE

WIFE LINGERS FROM YEAR TO YEAR

In that pitiable condition as not even for one day to feel the happy and exhilerating influence incident to the enjoyment of health.

She may not be an invalid confined to her bed, or even to her room; as her pride, ambition and energy induce and nerve her to take personal charge of her household, even when her health will not admit of it; but she is nevertheless perceptibly sinking from day to day, and always ailing.

Thus, day after day, and month after month transpire. Her health daily sinks, till finally even the hope of recovery no longer remains. And thus

THE BLOOMING BRIDE,

But a few years ago in the flush of health and youth, and buoyancy of spirits, rapidly, and apparently inexplicably, becomes a feeble, sickly, debilitated wife, with frame emaciated, nerves unstrung, spirits depressed, countenance bearing the impress of suffering, and an utter physical and mental prostration.

Sometimes this deplorable change may and does arise from organic or constitutional causes. But oftener, by far oftener, to gross and inexcusable ignorance of the simplest and plainest rules of health as connected with the marriage state, the violation of which entails disease, suffering and misery, not only to the wife, but often

Transmitting CONSUMPTION, SCROFULA, HYPOCHONDRIA, INSANITY, GOUT, KING'S EVIL, and other diseases,

as a

from the Parents.

And must this continue? Shall we be wise in all that concerns the cattle of our fields, our horses, our sheep, our cows, our oxen, the nature and character of the soil we possess, the texture and quality of our goods and merchandise; but in all that concerns ourselves as human beings, with human functions and passions, subject to great derangement, involving our future peace and happiness—in all that concerns the health and welfare of the wife of our affections, and the mother of our children; in all that concerns the mental and physical well being of those children, we should be immersed in the darkest and most

BENIGHTED IGNORANCE,

AS CULPABLE AS INEXCUSABLE!

How long shall this ignorance prevail so productive of its bitter fruits? How long shall the wife and mother be ignorant of the nature, character and causes of the various womb and sexual complaints, embittering her days by suffering—suffering often prolonged to years, eventuating in a complication of diseases utterly and hopelessly incurable? Shall we for ever close our eyes to the results of physiological science by which we may arrive at an understanding of ourselves as men and women, subject to serious life-long enduring diseases, and perpetuating them to our children.

LET EVERY WIFE AND HUSBAND PONDER!

No husband or wife need be ignorant of what concerns them most to know to secure their health and happiness. That knowledge is contained in a little work entitled

LEANDER BABBIT'S TRUSS OFFICE

The latest and most approved Trusses; Female Supporters; Do. with shoulder braces attached; spinal elevators for curvature of the spine and projection of the shoulder blade. Suspensary shoulder braces. This instrument is so constructed that it not only acts the par of shoulder braces, but carries the heft of the ladies' skirts on their shoulders; and, hence remedies the evil consequent to carrying them on the hips and sides. For gentlemen, it not only serves for a shoulder brace, but acts the part of suspenders.

As to the importance and usefulness of the above named instruments, and their beneficial effects, their peculiar mechanism and superiority over other instruments of the same name, I need not say anything. They are so well known by physicians, and the multitude of persons that have had occasion to test them in this northern section of country, that I deem it not important to introduce a long catalogue of certificates; yet I have abundant evidence in my possession to justify me in all I claim or affirm, and deem it a privilege to give references to any who wish to make inquiries.

SHERIFF'S SALE.

BY virtue of several executions issued out of the Supreme Court of the State of New York, to me directed and delivered against the property of Wm. A. G. Arthur, and Clark P. Ives, I have seized and taken all the right, title, and interest which the said Wm. A. G. Arthur & Clark P. Ives had on the 21 day of June 1853 or which they may since have acquired, of, in, and to the following described parcels of real estate:

1 'All that certain piece or parcel of land, situate, lying and being at the Lower Falls, in said town of Ticonderoga, described as follows, to wit: being the south west part of lot of land known as lot No. 5 in Kellogg's survey, of 40 village lots at the lower falls; beginning at the south west corner of a stone basement where it forms an angle with a wooden building, and runs thence along the wooden building and thro' the lot south 13 degrees west two chains & sixty-six links to the centre of the highway leading to Weedsville, thence along the same north seventy-eight and a half degrees west 69 links to the east line of a lane laid out two rods wide, thence along the same north eleven and a half degrees east two chains and sixty nine links to a stake, thence south seventy five and a half degrees east seventy four links to the place of beginning containing 19-100 of an acre, same more or less."

2 'All that certain lot, piece, or parcel of land, bounded and described as follows to wit: commencing at the highway 8 feet north of John McCormick's tailors shop, thence north along the highway 19 feet, thence westerly in a parallel line with McCormick's shop twenty four feet, thence southerly at right angles nineteen feet, thence easterly in a parallel line with said McCormick's shop twenty-four feet to the place of beginning; with the right to use the space between the grocery shop or building in common with others as a lane; same lot deeded by Wm. E. Calkins to Pat. McVeigh the 9th Septr., 1846, same lot and building now occupied by Marshall & Quin as a grocery."

3 'All that certain piece or parcel of land situate, lying and being in the town of Ticonderoga, beginning at a stake in the line between the land formerly owned and occupied by James Jones and Wm. Canfield, near a rock maple tree blazed, thence n'h 8° 45' west 14 chains 83 links to a stake, thence north 76° and 30' east 27 chains 96 links to a stake and stones, thence south 8° 45' west 25 chains 50 links, thence north 79° west 26 chains and fifty links to place of beginning, containing 53 acres of land be the same more or less,"

4 'All that lot of land lying and being in the town of Ticonderoga aforesaid, and is known as lot No. 17 in McIntosh Patent as the same was laid down and distinguished by a map of said patent by Peter C. Bishop, special reference being thereto had, containing 190 acres of land more or less 5 Also all that other piece of land situate in Sumners Vale, town of Ticonderoga, county of Essex, and State of New York, distinguished and bounded on a map of said patent filed in the secretary's office by lot number 135, containing 94 1-4 acres."

6 "All the equal undivided 3-4 part of that certain piece or parcel of land situate and being in Ticonderoga aforesaid, known as the black lead lot in the Sumner vale Patent, known as number 134.

7 " All that certain piece or parcel of land situate, lying and being in the town of Ticonderoga, being part of what is usually called the John Carr lot in the Cockburn Patent in said town, and bounded as follows: beginning at a stake and stones on the East and West road, thence southerly along the line of said lot thirteen rods to a stake and stones, thence easterly to the line of lot number 17, thence northerly to the said east and west road, thence southerly along the middle of said road to the place of beginning, containing one acre and a half of land be the same more or less. 8 Also, all and singular that piece or parcel of land situate in Ticonderoga, and is a part of lot number 11, in McIntosh Patent, bounded as follows: Beginning in the west line of said lot in a road leading from Bly's saw mill westerly at a stake and stones, thence on said road east 5 chains to a stake and stones, thence south 19° 15' east 30 chains to a black ash stake and stones, thence 5 chains to a stake and stones in the west line of said lot, thence north 19° 15' west 30 chains in the west line of said lot to the place of beginning, containing 15 acres, reserving all mines and minerals. Also, all such reservations as are subject to a deed from Francis Arthur to Thomas Burns.

9 " All the equal undivided one fourth part of lot No. 134, in the Sumner Vale Patent in the town of Ticonderoga, being the same premises deeded to said Wilson by John Porter, Jr., Dec. 20, 1842.

10 'All that certain piece or parcel of land situate lying and being in Ticonderoga, and bounded as follows; Beginning on the north side of the highway leading from the village at the Lower Falls, to the 4 corners west of A. P. Delano's store at a stake at the south west corner of the village lot owned and occupied by Lucius Thatcher, from thence North along the line of said lot to a stake 16 rods from the place of beginning, thence westerly at right angles to a stake 7 1-2 rods, thence southerly on a parallel line with Thatcher's lot 16 rods to to the highway, thence easterly along said highway to the place of beginning, containing 3-4 acre of land."

202 RIVER & 7 & 9 STATE STREETS,

TROY, NEW YORK,

INVITES the attention of those who wish to purchase

DRY GOODS,

Carpets and Oil-Cloths.

Owing to the large increase of patronage, I have found it necessary from time to time, to make many improvements and additions to my store.

This spring I have united the stores No. 7 and 9, State St., making a spacious and beautiful room, fitted up expressly for the sale of all the various styles of

Silks, Shawls, Cloaks & Mantillas.

This connects with the main store, No. 202, River St., (the old stand occupied by the subscriber for nearly 30 years,) which is devoted to a general assortment of

STAPLE AND FANCY DRY GOODS,

comprising every variety to meet the wants of all classes of buyers. Besides these, four large rooms over the stores 200, 202 and 204 River St., are occupied as

CARPET WARE-ROOMS,

where I am constantly receiving the newest and most desirable patterns of Velvet, Tapestry, Brussels, Three-ply, Ingrain and Venetian Carpets. Also, Oil-Cloths of every quality and width, and every style of Drugetts, Rugs, Mats, Matting, Stair-Rods, &c.

All these departments combined making an extensive and complete Establishment, conducted on such principles, that customers can trade with confidence, and to their own advantage, my sales being always for cash, and the only price asked, being the lowest cash price. G. V. S. QUACKENBUSH.

Henry's Invigorating Cordial,

PURELY VEGETABLE IN ITS COMPOSITION.

This invaluable Cordial, is extracted from Herbs and Roots, which have been found after years of experience, by the most skillful Physicians, to be possessed of qualities most beneficial in the diseases for which it is recommended, and hence whilst it is presented to the public, as an efficious remedy it is also known to be of that character on which reliance may be placed as to its safety. In cases of Impotency, Hoemorrhages, Disordered Sterility, Menstruation, or Suppression of the Menses, Fluror Albus or Whites, or for arising from any cause, such as weakness from sickness, where the patent has been confined to bed for some time, for Females after Confinement, Abortion or Miscarriage, this Cordial cannot be excelled in its salutary effects; or in loss of Muscular Energy, Irritability, Physical Prostration, Seminal Weakness, Palpitation of the Heart, Indigestion, Sluggishness, Decay of the Procreative Functions, Nervousness, &c., where a TONIC Medicine is required, it will be found equal, if not supperior to any Compound ever used.

DEBILITY

TO FEMALES.

Henry's Invigorating Cordial, is one of the most invaluable Medicines in the many Complaints to which Females are subject. It assists nature to brace the whole system, check excesses, and creates renewed health and happiness. Less suffering, disease and unhappiness among Ladies would exist, where they generally to adopt the use of this Cordial. Ladies who are debilitated by those obstructions which females are liable to are restored by the use of a bottle or two, to bloom and to vigor.

YOUNG MEN.

That solitary practice, so fatal to the existence of man and it is too young who are most apt to become its victims, from an ignorance of the danger to which they subject themselves, causes

NERVIOUS DEBILITY.

Weakness of the System, and Premature Decay. Many of you may now be suffering, misled as to the cause or source of disease. To those, then, who by excess have brought on themselves Premature Impotency. Involuntary Seminal Emmisions, Weakness and shrivelling of the Gonital Organs, Nervous Affection, or any other consequences of unrestrained indulgence of the sensual passions, occasioning the necessity of renouncing the felicities of lessening both mental and bodily capacity, Hold! Henry's Invigorating Corcial, a Medicine that is purely Vegetable, will aid nature to restore those important functions to a healthy state, and will prove of service to you. It possesses rare virtues, is a general remover of disease, and strengthener of the system.

AS A TONIC MEDICINE,

it is unsurpassed. We do not place this Cordial on a footing with quack medicines, and, as is customary, append a long list of Recommendations, Certificates, &c., beginning with "Hear what the Preacher says," and such like; it is not necessary, for "Henry's Invigorating Cordial," only needs a trial to prove that it will accomplish all we say.

THE GENUINE "HENRY'S INVIGORATING CORDIAL."

is put up in 8 oz. Pannel Bottles, and is easily recognized by the Manufacturer's signature on the label of each Bottle. (to counterfeit which is forgery) as well as his private Seal on the cork of each Bottle.

☞ Sold for $2 per Bottle; Six for $8; $16 per dozen

MORSE'S

COMPOUND SYRUP OF

Yellow Dock Root.

THIS is a Purely Vegetable Compound, scientifically prepared from the best Roots and Herbs of the Materia Medica, and has gained a universal reputation for the following effects, viz: Regulating and Strengthening the Liver and Digestive Organs, and Cleansing the Stomach and Bowels, and curing all Billious Diseases, Liver complaints, Dyspepsia, Indigestion, Costiveness, Piles Headache, Fever and Ague, Jaundice Nausea Loss of Appetite, &c., and causing the food to nourish and support every part, PURIFYING THE BLOOD, and thus curing all Humors. Cutaneous Eruptions. Scrofula. Salt Rheum, Erysipelas, Scald Head, Canker, Pimples on the face. Blotches. Ulcers, Tumors, Mercurial Diseases, Cancers, &c. Regulating the secretory Organs, and by enabling them to perform their proper functions, preventing and curing many painful and dangerous diseases; Strengthening and Quieting the nervous system, thus allaying Nervous Irritation, and curing all Diseases of the Nerves, as Hysteria, Neuralgia, Cramps. &c.

It is unrivalled in the cure of all FEMALE COMPLAINTS, as weakness, general debility, Irregularity, Obstructions, Swelling of the Feet, Limbs, Joints, &c., caused by weakness; also, Lung and Throat Complaints, as Colds, Coughs, Asthma, Consumption, &c., also, Dropsy.

Having made use of the Compound Syrup of Yellow Dock Root, prepared by C. Morse and Co., either ourselves or in our families and finding it to be a very salutary and effectual preparation, we do most cheerfully recommend it to the public as a very valuable medicine.

E. Bourne, Esq., Cashier National Bank, Providence, R. I.; A. W. Spencer, Esq., Cashier Lime Rock Bank, do do Rev. William Phillips, Rev. J. B. Richmond, C. S. Jones, editor Providence Gen. Advt., Wm. Field, M. W. G. M. Cyrus Fisher, M. E. H. P. James Hutchinson, G. S. Dea., V. J. Bates, Doct Benj. Colby, and one hundred others of the most respectable families of Providence.

This certifies that I have for a number of years been acquainted with the composition and mode of manufacture of Morse's Compound Syrup of Yellow Dock Root. I have also been acquainted with its modus operandi in disease, and can say that in all respects it is admirably calculated to remedy that class of Diseases for which it was designed. It is especially valuable in Indigestion and all its attendant symptoms, it excites to healthy action the Liver, removes Torpor, and inactivity of this organ, and stimulates healthy action in all the system. As a Depurator or purifier of the Blood it has no superior.

VOLUME XIV. NO. 30. KEESEVILLE, N. Y., DECEMBER, 10, 1853. WHOLE NUMBER 501

Notice of Land Sale.

Essex County,
Treasurer's Office.

Notice is hereby given, that in pursuance of the powers in me vested by law, I shall, on the first Tuesday of December next, at Ten o'clock in the forenoon, at the Court House, in the town of Elizabethtown, in said county, commence selling at public vendue, so much of the several and respective lots, tracts, pieces or parcels of land in the annexed list described, as shall be necessary to pay all state, county, school, highway and road taxes assessed thereon in the year 1850 or prior thereto, that may then remain due on them respectively, together with the interest, costs and charges, which have arisen or accrued, or that may arise or accrue thereon, and shall accordingly sell, and continue from day to day to sell, until the whole shall be completed.

The purchasers are required to pay the purchase moneys within forty-eight hours after the last day of the sale, and will thereupon receive certificates of their purchase. And after the expiration of two years from said last day of sale, will be entitled to receive conveyances for the lands so purchased by them respectively, unless the same shall have been duly redeemed.

Dated at Elizabethtown, this 1st day of September, 1853.

Laws of New York.

[Every Law, unless a different time shall be prescribed therein, shall commence and take effect throughout the State, on and not before the twentieth day after the day of its final passage, as certified by the Secretary of State. Sec. 12, title 4, chap. 7, part 1, Revised Statutes.]

[Every Law so published in the State Paper, may be read in evidence from the paper in which it shall be contained, in all courts of justice in this State, and in all proceedings before any officer, body or board, in which it shall be thought necessary to refer thereto, until three months after the close of the session in which it became a law. Sec. 8, title 7, chap 1, Revised Statutes, and laws of 1845, chap. 280.]

Chapter 135.

AN ACT To authorise the formation of corporations for Ferry purposes, Passed April 9, 1853.

The People of the State of New York, represented in Senate and Assembly, do enact as follows;

§ 1. Any three or more persons desirous of forming a company for the purpose of conducting and managing a ferry may make, sign and acknowledge before some officer authorised to take the acknowledgment of deeds, the certificate described in the second section of this act, and cause the same or a copy thereof executed and acknowledged in like manner, to be filed in the clerk's office of the county or counties in which such ferry shall be or is intended to be established, and in the office of the secretary of state, and thereupon the person signing such certificate, and such other as may become stockholders of the said company, shall be constituted and shall be a body corporate and politic, by the same and for the term expressed in such certificate, and shall possess the powers enumerated in section one of title three, chapter eighteen and part one of the revised statutes.

§ 3. The affairs of such company shall be managed by a board of directors, not less than three, nor more than fifteen in number, who shall be citizens of the United States, and a majority of whom shall be citizens of this state. Those named in the certificate shall be directors for the first year, and the like number of directors shall be chosen annually thereafter by the stockholders at such time and place as shall be fixed by the by-laws of such company.

§ 4. Notice of the time and place of holding such election shall be given to the stockholders personally or by leaving a written or printed notice at their respective dwellings or places of business, or by publication once in each week, for three successive weeks, in one or more of the newspapers published in the county or counties in which such ferry shall be established if any such papers are there published and if not, in a newspaper published in an adjoining county; and the election shall be made by such of the stockholders as shall attend for that purpose, either in purpose or by proxy; all elections shall be by ballot, and each stockholder shall be entitled to as many votes as he owns shares of stock in the said company, and the persons receiving the greatest number of votes shall be directors, and when any vacancy shall happen in the board of directors by death, resignation or otherwise, it shall be filled for the remainder of the year, in such manner as may be provided for by the by-laws of the said company.

§ 5 In case it shall happen at any time that an election of directors shall not be made on the day designated by the by-laws of the said company when it ought to have been made, the company for that reason shall not be dissolved, but it shall be lawful, on any other day, to hold an election for directors in such manner as shall be provided for by the by-laws of the company, and all acts of the directors shall be valid and binding until their successors shall be elected.

§ 6. There shall be a president of the company, who shall be designated from the number of the directors, and also such subordinate officers as the company by its by-laws may name, who may be appointed, and be required to give such security for the faithful performance of the duties of their office as the company by its by-laws may require.

§ 7. Stockholders only shall be eligible to the office of director; and if a director shall cease to be a stockholder, his office shall be deemed to be vacant.

§ 8. Each share of stock shall entitle the holder to one vote on all questions submitted to the stockholders for action.

§ 9. The directors may call in the subscriptions to the stock at such times and in such installments as they may deem proper; and in case any stockholder shall refuse or neglect to make payment according to such call, the directors may require him to make such payment within twenty days thereafter, by serving a notice to that effect upon him personally, or by leaving a copy thereof at his residence or place of business, or by publishing the same in the manner prescribed by the fourth section of this act, upon pain of forfeiting his stock and all previous payments thereon, and in case the payment shall not be made as thus required, such stock, and all the previous payments thereon, shall be forfeited to the company.

§ 10. The stock of such company shall be deemed personal estate, and shall be transferable in such manner as shall be prescribed by the by-laws of the company.

§ 11. A copy of any certificate of incorporation, filed in pursuance of this act, certified by the county clerk or his deputy to be a true copy thereof, and of the whole of such certificate, shall be received in all courts and places as presumptive evidence of the due incorporation of the said company.

§ 12. No company formed under this act shall be authorized to commence its business until at least one-half of its capital shall have been actually paid in, nor until affidavits of such payment, sworn to by a majority of the directors, shall have been filed in each of the offices in which the certificate of incorporation is required to be filed by the first section of this act.

§ 13, Any company incorporated under this act shall have power to take by grant, from any authority entitled by the laws of this state to make such grant, or by assignment; the franchise or right to establish and maintain ferries, and to hold and exercise the said franchise or right, and to carry on the business appertaining thereto; but this act shall not be construed to confer any such franchise or right, to impair establish, admit or deny any of the rights of the mayor, aldermen and commonalty of the city of New York, or any other municipal corporation, or of the owner or owners of any legally existing ferry or the vested rights of any other corporation whatever.

§ 14 The president and majority of the directors within thirty days after the payments of the last instalments of the capital stock so fixed and limited by the company shall make a certificate, stating the amount of the capital stock so fixed and paid in, which certificate, shall be signed and sworn to by the president and a majority of the directors, and they shall within the said thirty days file the same in, each of the offices in which the certificate of incorporation is require to be filed by the first section of this act. The stockholders of any company organised under the provisions of this act shall be jointly and severally individually liable for all debts that may be due and owing to all their laborers servants and apprentices for services performed for said company, and they shall in addition to the liabilities hereinabove imposed be severally individually liable to the creditors of the company in which they are stockholders to an amount equal to the amount of stock held by them respectively for all debts and contracts made by such company, until the amount of capital stock fixed and limited by such company, shall have been paid in and a certificate thereof shall have been made and recorded as prescribed in this section, and the capital stock so fixed and limited shall all be paid in, one half thereof within one year, and the other half thereof within two years from the incorporation of said company, or such corporation shall be dissolved.

§ 15. The capital stock of any such company may be increased from time to time, until it reaches the limit specified in the certificate of incorporation, by a vote of the stockholders represented not less than a majority of the whole stock of the company, at any annual meeting, or special meeting called for the purpose, and not otherwise; and when any such increase shall have been thus determined upon, a certificate thereof, signed by a majority of the directors, shall, within ten days thereafter, be filed in each of the offices in which the original certificate of incorporation shall have been filed.

§ 16. The directors of any such company shall, at the annual meeting of the stockholders, and at every special meeting where directors are to be elected, submit to the stockholders a report, showing the amount of the capital stock of the company actually paid in, the property and effects of the company on hand, the debts due from the company, and the names and places of residence of the stockholders as nearly as the same can be ascertained, and shall also, within ten days thereafter, cause such report, with an affidavit sworn to by a majority of them, to be filed in the offices in which the original certificate of incorporation shall have been filed.

§ 17. If any certificate or report made by the directors of any such company, in pursuance of the provisions of this act, shall be false in any material representation, all the directors who shall have signed the same, knowing it to be false, shall be jointly and severally liable for all the debts of the company contracted while they were directors thereof.

Ancient Song of the Copenhagen Watchmen.

[Translated by Mr. Robert Stevenson Ellis, and published in "The Traveller's Hand Book of Copenhagen and its Environs." The song still holds its place in the customs of the town. Its author was Thomas Kingo, Bishop of Fyen, in the 17th century, son of a poor Damask weaver. A Psalm book of his composition remains in use at Christiana in Norway.]

EIGHT O'CLOCK.

When Day departs, and Darkness reigns on earth;
The scene reminds us of the gloomy grave!
Then let the light, O Lord, before us shine
While to the silent tomb our steps we bend,
And grant a blessed Immortality!

NINE O'CLOCK.

The day glides by, and sable night appears—
For Jesus sake, O God, our sins forgive!
Preserve the Royal Family;
And guard the people which this land contains
From danger of the Enemy!

TEN O'CLOCK.

Master, maid, and boy, would you the hour know?
It is the time that you to rest should go—
Trust in the Lord with faith—and careful be
Of fire and light; for Ten o'clock has struck.

ELEVEN O'CLOCK.

Almighty God protects both great and small;
His holy angels guard us like a wall;
The Lord Himself our city watches o'er,
And keeps our bodies and our souls from harm.

TWELVE O'CLOCK.

At th' hour of midnight was our Saviour born—
Great blessing to a world which else were lost!
Then, with unfeigned lips, in prayer and praise
Commend yourselves to God,—Past twelve o'clock!

ONE O'CLOCK.

O Jesus Christ, we pray Thee, send us help
To bear our Cross with patience in the world,
For thou art God alone!
And thou, O Comforter, thine hand stretch forth:
Then will the burthen light and easy be!
The clock has struck One!

TWO O'CLOCK.

O gracious Lord, whose love for us was such
That Thou shouldst deign in darkness to be born:
All glory's due to Thee!
Come, Holy Ghost, and pour into our hearts
Thy heav'nly light, that, we may see Thee now,
And in Eternity!

THREE O'CLOCK.

Black Night departs, & Day begins to dawn—
Keep them far off, O God, who wish us harm!
The clock has stricken Three!
Father, Thine aid we seek!—and of Thy grace
Give us abundantly!

FOUR O'CLOCK.

Eternal God! who wouldst the Keeper be
Of us who dwell below—
To Thee, surrounded by the Heavenly Host,
Honor and praise are due!
For this good night give thanks unto the Lord!
Remember "Four!"—we're summoned from our guard.

FIVE O'CLOCK.

Jesus, Thou Morning Star! we now resign
To Thy protection, cheerfully, our King;
Be Thou his Sun and Shield!
And thou, bright Orb of Day, begin my course,
And, rising from the Mercy seat of God,
Thy radiant lustre yield!

Story of the Gunpowder Plot.

Mr. Dickins has given a very graphic account of the affair. The exposes of the plot and the consequent salvation of King James I, of England, was for a long time celebrated in Great Britain and the American Colonies, by the Protestant Episcopal Church—indeed by all classes who dissented from the Church of Rome.

In the calender of the Church of England, the fifth of November is duly noticed as a holy day, at the public offices; and, the common prayer book contains a form of prayer with thanksgiving, to be read yearly on the fifth of November for the happy deliverence of King James I., It is customary for boys in England, as it was in this city, and is still in some parts of England, to make an effigy of Guy Fawkes, which they carry about singing,

Remember, Remember,
The fifth of November;
Gunpowder, treason and plot!
We know no reason.
Why gunpowder treason
Sho' ever be forgot.
Halloa, boys! huzza!
A stick and a stake
For King William's sake;
A stick and a stump
For Guy Fawke's rump,
Hallea, boys! huzza!

These old cremonials are not yet forgotten in England; nor are they abandoned in Rhode Island, Massachusetts, Connecticut and Vermont. A few years ago we witnessed their observence in the colony of Massachusetts, where they were manifested with unusual feeling and gusto.—N. Y. Atlas.

Story of the Gunpowder Plot.

His object was, when the king, lords and commons should be assembled at the next opening of Parliment, to blow them up, one and all, with a great mine of gunpowder.—The first person to whom he confided this horrible idea, was Thomas Winter, a Worcestershire gentleman, who had served in the army abroad, and had been secretly employed in Catholic projects. While Winter was yet undecided, and when he had gone over to the Netherlands, to learn from the Spanish Ambassador there whether there was any hope of Catholics being relieved through the intercession of the King of Spain with his Dowship, he found at Ostend, a tall, dark, daring man, whom he had known when they were both soldiers abroad, and whose name was Guido—or Guy—Fawkes. Resolved to join the plot he proposed it to this man, knowing him to be the same for any desperate deed, and they came back to England together.—Here, they admitted two other conspirators Thomas Percy, related to the Earl of Northumberland, and John Wright, his brother-in-law. All three met together in a solitary house in the open fields, which were then near Clement's Inn, now a closely blocked up part of London; and when they had all taken a great oath of secrecy, Catsby told the rest what his plan was. They then went up stairs into a garret and received the sacrement from Father Gerard a Jesuit, who is said not to have known actually of the Gunpowder plot, but who, I think, must have had his suspicions that there was something desperate afoot.

Percy was a Gentleman Pensioner, and as he had occaisonal duties to perform about the Court, then kept at Whitehall, there would be nothing suspicious in his living at Westminister. So, having looked well about him, and having found a house to let, the back of which joined the Parliment House, he hired it of a person named Ferris, for the purpose of undermining the wall. Having got possession of the house, the conspirators hired another on the Lambeth side of the Thames, which they used as a storehouse for wood, gunpowder and other combustible matters. These were to be removed at night, (and afterwards were removed,) bit by bit, to the house at Westminister; and, that there might be some trusty person to keep watch over the Lambeth stores, they admitted another conspirator, by the name of Robert Kay, a very poor Catholic gentleman.

All these arrangements had been made some months, and it was a dark, wintry December night, when the conspirators, who had been in the meantime dispersed to avoid observation, met in the house at Westminister, and began to dig. They had laid in a good stock of eatables, to avoid going in and out, and they dug and dug with great ardor. But, the wall being tremendiously thick, and the work very severe, they took in Christopher Wright a young brother of John Wright that they might have a pair of hands to help. And Christopher Wright fell to like a fresh man, and they dug and dug, by day and by night, and Fawkes stood sentinel all the time. And if any man's heart seemed to fail him at all Fawkes said, "Gentlemen, we have abundance of powder and shot here, and there is no fear of our being taken alive, even if discovered." The same Fawkes who, in his capacity of sentinel, was always prowling about, soon picked up the intelligence that the King had prorogued the Parliment again from the seventh of February, the day first fixed upon, until the third of October. When the conspirators knew this, they agreed to seperate until after the Christmas holidays, and to take no notice of each other in the meanwhile, and never to write letters to one another, on any account. So the house in Westminister was shut up again, and I suppose the neighbors thought that those strange looking men who lived in it so gloomily, and were out so seldom, had gone away to have a merry Christmas somewhere. It was the begining of February, 1705, when Catesby met his fellow conspirators again at this Westminister house. He had now admitted three more, John Grant, a Warwickshire gentleman of a melancholy temper, who lived in a doleful house near Stratford, upon-Avon, with a frowning wall all around it, and a deep moat: Robert Winter, eldest brother of Thomas; and Catesby's own servant, Thomas Bates, who, Catesby thought had some suspicion of what his master was about—These three had all suffered more or less, for their religion in Elizabeth's time. And now they all began to dig again, and they dug and dug, by day and by night. They found it dismal work alone there, under ground, with such a fearful secret on their minds, and so many murders before them. They were filled with wild fancies. Sometimes they thought they heard a bell tolling deep down in the earth under the Parliment House; sometimes they heard low voices muttering about the Gunpowder Plot; and once in the morning, they really did hear a great rumbling noise over their heads, as they dug and sweated in their mine. Every man stopped and looked aghast at his neighbor, wondering what had happened, when that bold prowler, Fawkes who had been out to look, came in and told them that it was only a dealer in coals who had occupied a cellar under the Parliment House, removing his stock in trade to some other place. Upon this, the conspirators, who with all their digging and digging, had not yet dug through the tremendiously thick wall, changed their plan, hired that cellar, which was directly under the House of Lords, put six and thirty barrels of gunpowder in it, and covered them over with faggots and coals. Then they all dispersed until September, when the following new conspirators were admitted; Sir Edward Baynham, of Gloustershire; Sir Edward Digby, of Rutlandshire; Ambrose Rockwood, of Suffolk; and Francis Treshman, of Northamptonshire. Most of these were rich, and were able to assist the plot; some with money and some with horses, upon which the conspirators were to ride through the country and rouse the Catholics, after the Parliment should be blown into the air.

Parliment being again prorogued from the third of October to the fifth of November, and the conspirators being uneasy lest their designs should be found out, Thomas Winter said he would go up into the House of Lords on the day of prorogation and see how matters looked. Nothing could be better. The unconscious Commissioners were walking about, and talking to one another, just over the six and thirty barrels of gunpowder. He came back and told the rest so, and they went on with their preparations. They hired a ship and kept it ready in the Thames, in which Fawkes was to sail for Flanders after firing with a slow match the train that was to explode the powder.—A number of Catholic gentlemen not in the secret were invited, on pretence of a hunting party, to meet Sir Edward Digby at Dunchurch on the fatal day, that they might be ready to act together. And now all was ready.

But now, the great weakness and danger which had been all along at the bottom of this wicked plot began to show itself. As the 5th of November drew near, most of the conspirators remembering that they had friends and relations who would be in the House of Lords that day, felt some natural relenting and a wish to warn them to keep away. They were not much comforted by Catesby declaring that, in such a cause, he would blow up his own son. Lord Mounteagle, Tresham's brother-in-law, was certain to be in the House, and when Tresham found that he could not prevail upon the rest to devise any means of sparing their friends, he wrote a mysterious letter to that lord and left it at his lodgings in the dusk, urging him to keep away from the opening of Parliment, 'since God and man had concurred to punish the wickedness of the times.' It contained words 'that the Parliament should see who hurt them,' and it added, 'the danger is past, as soon as you have burnt the letter.'

The ministers and courtiers made out that his Lordship, by a direct miracle from Heaven found out what this letter meant. The truth, is, that they were not long (as few men would be) in finding it out for themselves, and that it was decided to let the conspirators alone, until the very day before the opening of Parliment. The conspirators had their fears, is certain; for Tresham himself sailed before them all, although even he did not take to flight, there is no reason to suppose that he had warned other persons besides Lord Mounteagle.—However they were all firm, and Fawkes, who was a man of iron, went down every day and night to keep watch in the cellar as usual. He was there about two hours in the afternoon of the fourth, when the Lord Chamberlain and Lord Mounteagle threw open the door and looked in.

'Who are you, friend?' said they.

'Why,' said Fawkes, 'I am Mr. Percy's servant, and am looking after his store of fuel here.'

'Your master has laid in a pretty good store,' they returned, and then shut the door, and went away.

Fawkes, upon this, posted off to the other conspirators to tell them all was quiet, and then went back and shut himself up in the dark black cellar, where he heard the bell go 12 o'clock, and usher in the Fifth of November. About 2 hours afterwards he slowly opened the door, and came out to look about him, in his old prawling way. He was instantly seized and bound, by a party of soldiers under Sir Thomas Knevett. He had a watch upon him, some touchwood, some tinder and some slow matches; and there was a dark lantern with a candle in it, lighted behind the door.—He had his boots and spurs on—to ride to the ship, I suppose—and it was well for the soldiers that they took him so suddenly, for if they had left him but a moment's time to light a match, he would certainly have tossed it in among the powder, and blown himself and them to perdition.

They took him to the king's bedchamber first of all; and there the king (causing him to be held very tight, and keeping a good way of) asked him how he could have the heart to intend to destroy so many innocent people?

'Because,' said Guy Fawkes, 'desperate diseases need desperate remedies.'

To a little Scotch favorite, with a face like a terrier, who asked him (with no particular wisdom) why he had collected so much gunpowder, he replied—

'Because I meant to blow Scotchmen back to Scotland and it would take a good deal of powder to do that.

Next day he was carried to the Tower, but would make no confession. Ever after being horibly tortured, he confessed nothing that the Government did not already know, though he must have been in a fearful state—as his signature, still preserved, in contrast with his natural hand writing before he was put upon the dreadful rack, most frightfully shows. Bates a very different man, soon saw the Jesuits had had to do with the plot; and probably, under the torture would have soon said anything.—Treshman, taken and put in the Tower, too, and made confessions and unmade them and died of an illness that was heavy upon him. Rockwood, who had stationed relays of his own horses all the way to Dunchurch, did not mount to escape until the middle of the day, when the news of the plot was all over London. On the road, he came up with the two Wrights, Catesby and Percy; and they all galloped together into Northampshire; thence to Dunchurch, where they found the proposed party assembled. Finding, however, that there had been a plot, and that it had been discovered, the party dissappeared in the course of the night, and left them alone with Sir Everard Digby. Away they all rode again through Warwickshire and Worcestershire, to a house called Holbeach, on the borders of Staffordshire. They tried to raise the Catholics, on their way, but were indignantly driven off by them. All this time they were hotly pursued by the sheriff of Worcester, and a fast increasing concourse of riders. At last, resolving to defend themselves at Holbeeb, they shut themselves up in the house, and put some wet powder before them to dry. But it blew up—Catesby was singed and blackened and almost killed, and some of the others were sadly hurt. Still, knowing that they must die they resolved to die there, and with only their swords in their hands appeared at the windows to be shot at by the sheriff and his assistants. Catesby said to Thomas Winter, after Thomas had been hit in the right arm, which dropped powerless by his side, 'Stand by me Tom and we will die together'—which they did, both being shot through the body by two bullets from one gun. John Wright, and Christopher Wright, and Percy were also shot. Rockwood and Digby were taken; the former with a broken arm and a wound in his body too.

It was the fifteenth of January, before the trial of Guy Fawkes, and such of the other conspirators, as were left alive, came on. They were all found guilty, hanged, drawn and quartered; some in St. Paul's Churchyard, on top of Ludgate Hill; and some before the Parliment House. A Jesuit priest, named Garent, to whom the bloody design was said to have been communicated, was taken and tried, and two of his servants, as well as a poor priest who was taken with him, were tortured, but was surrounded in the Tower by tamperers and traitors, and so made unfairly to convict himself out of his own mouth. He said upon the trial, that he had done all he could to prevent the deed, and that he could not make public what had been told him in confession—though I am afraid he knew of the plot in other ways. He was found guilty and executed, after a manly defence, and the Catholic Church made a saint of him; some rich and powerful persons, who had nothing to do with the project, were fined and imprisoned for it by the Star Chamber. The Catholics, in general, who had recoiled with horror from the idea of the infernal contrivance, were unjustly put under more severe laws than before, and this was the end of the Gunpowder Plot

OUR PAPER.—With the exception of the proceedings of the board of Supervisors we believe we have now completed the publication of long advertisements. While many have been interested in these as business matters, many others have anxiously desired their conclusion. To these latter we hope now to be able to devote our attention, and trust for the rest of the winter to have a sociable time. We have on hand a large number of communications, which our friends may look for next week.

News of the Week.

Congress, met on Monday and organized by the election of the old officers of the House throughout, from Speaker to Door keeper. The Hunker Democrats maintain tained an animous position of in action.—But one from New York attended the preliminary caucus. Mr. Stanton of Tenn. offered a series of Hunker Resolutions which were ruled out of order by a western Barn burner ! The Softs claim the organization of the House as an Administration triumph but it is wo'l understood that the passive position of the Hunkers is only the quiet of the Volcano which precedes an eruption.

The Message, has been received. and we shall give a synopsis of it next week—We should do so this week, but that it is not worth the inconvenience it would put us to. We obtained a copy Tuesday nigh about eleven o'clock and read it carefully before we went to sleep; but when wo had concluded it we were vexed to think we had made the effort.

It was evidently written with a view to have it pass for a candid, frank, straight forward document, but a careful perusal hows that it most studiously veils the real sentiments of the President from the public mind. It is also twice as long as it ought to have been. Its perusal can only be compared to picking over a dish of cracked walnuts a second time—the meats being few and crumbs at that.

FROM EUROPE, we learn that there have been important movements of troops, but no more battles. The successes of the Turks re confirmed.

The Sultan officially announces that he will himself take the field at the head of his armies in the Spring.

The course that Great Britain will take is kept a secret.

Direct French correspondence says that Napoleon is amassing his troops between Strasburgh and Marseilles, so that he can send off, in less than five days, if necessary, 100,000 men for Foreign service.

The report that the Turks had crossed the Danube at all points, except Kalafat—which they still retain, and have strongly fortified—is confirmed from Hermanstadt. They retired without battle.

Some grand movement is in contemplation which the passage of the Danube has in the meantime, saved to mask.

France has formally announced to Austria, that if she give refuge to armed Russians retreating from the Turks, France will regard it as a declaration of war.

THE HUMBOLDT, went ashore off Halifax on Monday night. She was bound from Havre to New York. The vessel a wreck—passengers saved.

VT. LEGISLATURE.—This body adjourned on the 7th. No election of U. S. Senator. The Maine Law was not repealed.—Whig Judges and Supreme Court Reporter were elected. Barber and his squad of barnburners have gone into oblivion, despised and contemned by all parties in that State. Barber was a candidate for nearly everything in the gift of the Legislature, but got nothing save merited disgrace from which he can never recover. He is the laughing stock of fools, and rogues alike.

Railroad War at Erie.

ERIE, Dec. 7—7 A M.

The Railroad Company commenced opening the guage at the State Line this morning, and the cannon has just been fired to call out the citizens to tear down the bridges, &c.

SECOND DISPATCH.

ERIE, Dec. 7—12 M.

The excitement is increasing. A mob of about 700 rowdies is at the bridge, tearing up the track and cutting down the bridge.

A TELEGRAPH was received in Albany on Wednesday morning, saying that Gov. Hunt was lying at the point of death, at his home in Lockport, and that unless there was a decided improvement during that day, he could not live. We have not heard the result. It created intense feeling in Albany.

NAVIGATION.—Except the Saltus, Capt. Baxter, running between Burlington, Port Kent and Plattsburgh, the boats on Lake Champlain have all gone into winter quarters.

"Extreme Unction," which appeared in our paper two weeks ago was published by request.

Local Correspondence.

Editor Republican:

Dear Sir: I write to inform you of a most melancholly occurrence and loss of life.

A young man by the name of John Gleason who had been for a short time engaged in an ore bed in this town, was returning home from a neighbors house about 9 o'clock on Thursday night last, in company with one or two comrades. Owing to the extreme darkness of the night they got astray from the usual path, and after wandering about in search of the road they fell into one of the ore pits that had been abandoned and was full of water. The distance they fell to the water was about 6 feet.—The pit was about 100 feet in depth and had been abandoned some years. Gleason's comrade succeeded in getting on to a log and then rescued himself by ascending the work to the mouth of the pit. The alarm was then given, but the depth of the pit and the darkness of the night baffled all efforts to rescue the drowning man. Mr. Gleason was a young man who had just emigrated from Ireland—to make himself a home among strangers, and was here without connections or kindred. An inquest was held on the body by Coroner Everest, and a verdict rendered "that the said John Gleason in returning in the dark from a neighbors house, accidentally fell into an ore pit, then full of water and was there drowned."

The case of Gleason commanded the spontaneous sympathy of his generous countrymen in the vicinity, who nobly stepped forward and contributed to give him a respectable burial. His funeral was attended on Saturday, by a large concourse of citizens. The procession marched from the ore beds to the lake, a distance of about 8 miles, where he was interred. Over one hundred Irish citizens accompanied the remains that distance on foot. They made a noble and manly appearance, and did honor to the worthiest impulses of our common humanity.

"Let not ambition mock their useful toil
Their homely joys, and destiny obscure,
Nor grandeur hear with a disdainful smile,
The short, but simple annals of the poor."

BY virtue of several executions issued out of the Supreme Court of the State of New York, to me directed and delivered, against the goods and chattels, lands and tenements, real estate and chattels real, of Henry Haile, and of Henry Haile and Charles Haile, I have seized and taken all the right, title and interest, which the said Henry Haile or the said Henry Haile and Charles Haile had on the the 14th day of January, 1852, or which they, or either of them, may since have acquired, of, in, and to all and singular the following described real estate, to wit:—

Lot No. 2.—Hague tract, in the town of Schroon, in the County of Essex, being same lot sold to Bradley by Joseph Weed and wife, June 1st, 1847. Also, Lot No. 13, in Robert Grant's Patent, in the town of Crownpoint, containing 76 1-10 acres of land, excepting one half acre thereof deeded by Henry Haile and wife to Solomon S. Flint, April 1st, 1851. Also, all that part of Lot No. 14, in Grant's Patent, in Crownpoint, lying east of Putnam's Creek, containing 13 90-100 acres of land.—Also, a small strip of land lying on the north-east side of the road leading from Samuel Russell's to the White Meeting-house, being on Robert Grant's Patent in Crownpoint, occupied in 1845 by Stephen Spaulding containing one half acre. Also, all the South equal half of Lot No, 20, Grant's Patent, in Crownpoint, containing 20 acres. Also, Lot No. 84, in the Pliny Moore Patent, in the town of Crownpoint.

Also, all that certain piece or parcel of land, lying and being in the town of Crownpoint, in the County of Essex and State of New York, and is bounded and described as follows: Beginning in the south line of the road about 2 feet easterly from an apple-tree, and 19 links westerly from a locust tree, both supposed to stand in the north line of said road; then running north 17°, east about 9 rods, until it intersects the south line of the Allen Campbell, then easterly following said south patent line 28 rods to the North line of the road, thence westerly following said North line of said road about 30 rods to the place of beginning, containing by estimation one acre of land. Which said real estate I shall expose for sale at Public Vendue, at the Hotel kept by Jacob Tappen, in Moriah, in said County of Essex, on the 25th day of January next, at Ten o'clock in the forenoon.

Promptness.

IT certainly must be highly gratifying to all persons who wish to get Property Insured against Loss by Fire, to know that they can effect an Insurance in a Company that is prompt, able, and willing to pay all losses insured by them. Persons insuring in the Indemnity Insurance Company, Brondalbin, New York, will (in the writer's opinion,) find such a company; and that their gentlemanly agent, J. G. McNutt, Esq., is on hand to Insure in this Company, and is as ready to pay when a loss is sustained as he is willing to insure. For instance, the Town House in Lewis was insured by him on the 28th day of May, 1853, was burned up on the 14th of September following, and on the 16th October he honored a draft for the amount of the insurance.

Fairfield Academy.

THE NEXT TERM OF THIS INSTITUTION will commence on Monday, December 12th, 1853.

The Male Department will be under charge of Seneca Wieting, A. M. as Principal, and Miss I. W. Carey as Preceptress in the Female Department, assisted by others eminent in their Profession. It is one of the oldest and best established Academies in the State having been in operation nearly 60 years and now enjoys a large and steadily increasing patronage.

The Trustees are confident in the opinion that with the able teachers employed, the splendid Astronomical, Philosophical and Chemical Apparatus, Mineralogical Cabinets, large library, &c., belonging to the Academy, that no New Institution can present equal advantages to the students. Student in straightened circumstances will find it for their advantage to attend this school. Many are enabled to do so at a cost of about $14 per term of 14 weeks. Students in this Academy are free from the many temptations which beset youth in large places—intoxicating liquors are not sold in the place, and no conduct inconsistent with the strictest rules of morality and virtue is allowed. Great advantages are offered to those wishing Instruction in Instrumental Music. Mr. Louis Gauther, the Prof. in this Department, has no superior in the country. Students from a distance will leave the Railroad at Little Falls or Herkimer, thence by daily stage (eight miles) to Fairfield.

FRAUD!

ALL who want AXES of the real COLLINS & Co. make should be particular to notice the stamps, as there are various counterfeits and imitations stamped Collins and labelled much like ours, which are fraudulently sold in some parts of the United States as our manufacture. They are made in different parts of the country by various axe-makers, and are generally of very inferior quality. The genuine Collins axes which have acquired such extensive reputation are invariably stamped "COLLINS & CO. HARTFORD," and each axe has a printed label with my signature.—It is now more than TWENTY-FIVE YEARS since we commenced the business with the stamps "Collins & Co. Hartford," and I do not know of any other axe-maker by the name of Collins in the United States.

KEEP THESE COMMANDMENTS AND THOU!

SHALT YET BE SOMEBODY!

1 Thou shalt have no other place to buy thy Clothing.

2 Thou shalt not choose to thyself any other Clothier. Thou shalt not bow down to them nor listen to their fair speeches, for Cardwell is a reliable Clothier, capable and willing to dress his customers to the third and fourth Generation.

3 Thou need'st not search for Cardwells, Clothing Store in vain; it is in the Adirondac Hotel Building," and has the most splendid Sign in the State.

4 Thou shalt keep in rememberance the above location; six days shalt thou labour, and on Saturday night come and buy thy Sunday outfit.

5 Thou shalt honor the judicious adorner of thy person and long may thy days be upon the land to enjoy the fruits of his services.

6 Thou shalt not commit an outrage upon propriety. by purchasing your Clothing, of any wandering Jew that may come hither, nor of any one else that has not courage enough to adhere strictly to ono branch of trade.

7 Thou shalt not take unto thyself foreign fashions by adulterously wedding strange garments to thy body thereby converting an American citizen into a foreign ambassador.

8 Thou shalt not rob Cardwell! for he sells so Cheap 'twould be a sin

9 Thou shalt not bear false witness but honestly acknowledge that thou cans't get better suited at Cardwell's for less money than any other place, get thy money's worth and the right change back.

10 Thou shalt not covet thy neighbor's garments, but take counsel of the wise an pro ceed straightway to Cardwell's and buy for thyself and be satisfied.

THE MARRIAGE STATE;

Shall Happiness and Health, or Misery and Sickness, attend it?

MOST STARTLING CONSIDERATIONS!

Reflections for the Thoughtful.

Strange that countless human beings exist and drag through life as do the beasts of the field, or the insects of the earth, evincing no more thought or reflection than though the noble faculties of mind were not vouchsafed to them.

Many such are husbands and fathers, upon whom are dependent the health, the well-being, and the happiness of a confiding and affectionate wife, with perhaps a family of children.

HOW OFTEN IT HAPPENS THAT THE

WIFE LINGERS FROM YEAR TO YEAR

In that pitiable condition as not even for one day to feel the happy and exhilerating influence incident to the enjoyment of health.

She may not be an invalid confined to her bed, or even to her room; as her pride, ambition and energy induce and nerve her to take personal charge of her household, even when her health will not admit of it; but she is nevertheless perceptibly sinking from day to day, and always ailing.

Thus, day after day, and month after month transpire. Her health daily sinks, till finally even the hope of recovery no longer remains. And thus

THE BLOOMING BRIDE,

But a few years ago in the flush of health and youth, and buoyancy of spirits, rapidly, and apparently inexplicably, becomes a feeble, sickly, debilitated wife, with frame emaciated, nerves unstrung, spirits depressed, countenance bearing the impress of suffering, and an utter physical and mental prostration.

Sometimes this deplorable change may and does arise from organic or constitutional causes. But oftener, by far oftener, to gross and inexcusable ignorance of the simplest and plainest rules of health as connected with the marriage state, the violation of which entails disease, suffering and misery, not only to the wife, but often

"UNTO THE THIRD AND FOURTH GENERATION," Transmitting CONSUMPTION, SCROFULA, HYPOCHONDRIA, INSANITY, GOUT, KING'S EVIL, and other diseases, as a

DREADFUL INHERITANCE

from the Parents.

And must this continue? Shall we be wise in all that concerns the cattle of our fields, our horses, our sheep, our cows, our oxen, the nature and character of the soil we possess, the texture and quality of our goods and merchandise; but in all that concerns ourselves as human beings, with human functions and passions, subject to great derangement, involving our future peace and happiness—in all that concerns the health and welfare of the wife of our affections, and the mother of our children; in all that concerns the mental and physical well being of those children, we should be immersed in the darkest and most

BENIGHTED IGNORANCE,

AS CULPABLE AS INEXCUSABLE!

How long shall this ignorance prevail so productive of its bitter fruits? How long shall the wife and mother be ignorant of the nature, character and causes of the various womb and sexual complaints, embittering her days by suffering—suffering often prolonged to years, eventuating in a complication of diseases utterly and hopelessly incurable? Shall we for ever close our eyes to the results of physiological science by which we may arrive at an understanding of ourselves as men and women, subject to serious life-long enduring diseases, and perpetuating them to our children.

LET EVERY WIFE AND HUSBAND PONDER!

No husband or wife need be ignorant of what concerns them most to know to secure their health and happiness. That knowledge is contained in a little work entitled

CLARK'S Wholesale Confectionary ESTABLISHMENT,

172 RIVER STREET, TROY, N. Y.

THE Subscriber having in charge the Confectionery Manufactory and Wholesale Establishment, long and favorably known as NEWCOMB'S No. 172 River-street, Troy, respectfully solicits the attention of Merchants, Pedlers and Retailers of Candies, to the quality and variety of Confectionary manufactured and for sale by him.

The Candies made at this place endure the change of weather and retain their flavor and freshness as long, if not longer, than any that can be made.

A list of the different kinds and qualities which are usually made, can be obtained, together with a list of prices, by calling on the subscriber, at the store, No. 172 River-Street. The assortment comprises at least 100 different kinds of Candies, which can be had almost any day, fresh from the shop, and at as reasonable rates as can be bought elsewhere of the same quality.

LOZENGES.

Rolled in Ounce Papers, or by the pound loose, equal in quality and strength to any made in the country.

Sugar Plums, Almonds, &c. of a superior quality.

STEAM REFINED CANDY,

equal in flavor and quality to any ever made. The best of stock always used, and great care taken to exclude all unhealthy substance in the Manufacture of it.

COUNTRY MERCHANTS will find it for their interest to buy of us, as they can make a better selection than they can of the pedlars, and receive it fresh from the shop in good order, and if kept in the original packages until wanted for immediate use, will keep fresh for six months.

CANDY made Expressly for the Southern Market

☞ A liberal discount will be made to City Wholesale Merchants for orders. Pedlars supplied on liberal terms. Candies carefully packed in boxes of 25, 50 and 100 lbs.—Orders promptly attended to.

LEANDER BABBIT'S TRUSS OFFICE

The latest and most approved Trusses; Female Supporters; Do. with shoulder braces attached; spinal elevators for curvature of the spine and projection of the shoulder blade. Suspensary shoulder braces. This instrument is so constructed that it not only acts the part of shoulder braces, but carries the heft of the ladies' skirts on their shoulders; and, hence remedies the evil consequent to carrying them on the hips and sides. For gentlemen, it not only serves for a shoulder brace, but acts the part of suspenders.

As to the importance and usefulness of the above named instruments, and their beneficial effects, their peculiar mechanism and superiority over other instruments of the same name, I need not say anything. They are so well known by physicians and the multitude of persons that have had occasion to use them in this northern section of country, that I deem it not important to introduce a long catalogue of certificates; yet I have abundant evidence in my possession to justify me in all I claim or affirm, and deem it a privilege to give references to any who wish to make inquiries.

Office at Keeseville in the building on the corner of Main and Front street, opposite the Bank, up stairs

Ladies will be waited on at my dwelling by Mrs. Babbit, whose experience in adjusting braces and supporters qualifies her to give perfect satisfaction. 492—3m

SHERIFF'S SALE.

BY virtue of several executions issued out of the Supreme Court of the State of New York, to me directed and delivered against the property of Wm. A. G. Arthur, and Clark P. Ives, I have seized and taken all the right, title, and interest which the said Wm. A. G. Arthur & Clark P. Ives had on the 21 day of June 1853 or which they may since have acquired, of, in, and to the following described parcels of real estate:

1 'All that certain piece or parcel of land, situate, lying and being at the Lower Falls, in said town of Ticonderoga, described as follows, to wit: being the south west part of lot of land known as lot No. 5, in Kellogg's survey, of 40 village lots at the lower falls; beginning at the south west corner of a stone basement where it forms an angle with a wooden building, and runs thence along the wooden building and thro' the lot south 13 degrees west two chains & sixty-six links to the centre of the highway leading to Weedsville, thence along the same north seventy-eight and a half degrees west 69 links to the east line of a lane laid out two rods wide, thence along the same north eleven and a half degrees east two chains and sixty nine links to a stake, thence south seventy five and a half degrees east seventy four links to the place of beginning containing 19-100 of an acre, same more or less."

2 'All that certain lot, piece, or parcel of land, bounded and described as follows to wit: commencing at the highway 8 feet north of John McCormick's tailors shop, thence north along the highway 19 feet, thence westerly in a parallel line with McCormick's shop twenty four feet, thence southerly at right angles nineteen feet, thence easterly in a parallel line with said McCormick's shop twenty four feet to the place of beginning; with the right to use the space between the grocery shop or building in common with others as a lane; same lot deeded by Wm. E. Calkins to Pat. McVeigh the 9th Septr., 1846, same lot and building now occupied by Marshall & Quin as a grocery."

3 'All that certain piece or parcel of land situate, lying and being in the town of Ticonderoga, beginning at a stake in the line between the land formerly owned and occupied by James Jones and Wm. Canfield, near a rock maple tree blazed, thence n'h 8° 45' west 14 chains 83 links to a stake, thence north 76° and 30' east 27 chains 96 links to a stake and stones, thence south 8° 45' west 25 chains 50 links, thence north 79° west 26 chains and fifty links to place of beginning, containing 53 acres of land be the same more or less,"

4 'All that lot of land lying and being in the town of Ticonderoga aforesaid, and is known as lot No. 17 in McIntosh Patent as the same was laid down and distinguished by a map of said patent by Peter C. Bishop, special reference being thereto had, containing 190 acres of land more or less 5 Also all that other piece of land situate in Sumners Vale, town of Ticonderoga, county of Essex, and State of New York, distinguished and bounded on a map of said patent filed in the secretary's office by lot number 135, containing 94 1-4 acres."

6 "All the equal undivided 3 4 part of that certain piece or parcel of land situate and being in Ticonderoga aforesaid, known as the black lead lot, in the Sumner vale Patent, known as number 134.

7 " All that certain piece or parcel of land situate, lying and being in the town of Ticonderoga, being part of what is usually called the John Carr lot in the Cockburn Patent in said town, and bounded as follows: beginning at a stake and stones on the East and West road, thence southerly along the line of said lot thirteen rods to a stake and stones, thence easterly to the line of lot number 17, thence northerly to the said east and west road, thence southerly along the middle of said road to the place of beginning, containing one acre and a half of land be the same more or less. 8 Also, all and singular that piece or parcel of land situate in Ticonderoga, and is a part of lot number 11, in McIntosh Patent, bounded as follows: Beginning in the west line of said lot in a road leading from Bly's saw mill westerly at a stake and stones, thence on said road east 5 chains to a stake and stones, thence south 19° 15' east 30 chains to a black ash stake and stones, thence 5 chains to a stake and stones in the west line of said lot, thence north 19° 15' west 30 chains in the west line of said lot to the place of beginning, containing 15 acres, reserving all mines and minerals. Also, all such reservations as are subject to a deed from Francis Arthur to Thomas Burns.

9 " All the equal undivided one fourth part of lot No. 134, in the Sumner Vale Patent in the town of Ticonderoga, being the same premises deeded to said Wilson by John Porter, Jr., Dec. 20, 1842.

10 'All that certain piece or parcel of land situate lying and being in Ticonderoga, and bounded as follows; Beginning on the north side of the highway leading from the village at the Lower Falls, to the 4 corners west of A. P. Delano's store at a stake at the south-west corner of the village lot owned and occupied by Lucius Thatcher, from thence North along the line of said lot to a stake 16 rods, from the place of beginning, thence westerly at right angles to a stake 7 1-2 rods, thence southerly on a parallel line with Thatcher's lot 16 rods to to the highway, thence easterly along said highway to the place of beginning, containing 3-4 acre of land."

All of which said real property I shall expose for sale, at public auction, at the Inn of Jacob Tappen in Moriah, in said county of Essex, on the 28th day of November next, at 12 o'clock at noon. Dated Oct. 15, 1853. 493 7w

Henry's Invigorating Cordial,

PURELY VEGETABLE IN ITS COMPOSITION.

This invaluable Cordial is extracted from Herbs and Roots, which have been found after years of experience, by the most skillful Physicians, to be possessed of qualities most beneficial in the diseases for which it is recommended, and hence whilst it is presented to the public as an efficacious remedy, it is also known to be of that character on which reliance may be placed as to its safety. In cases of Impotency, Hemorrhages, Disordered Sterility, Menstruation, or Suppression of the Menses, Fluror Albus or Whites, or for arising from any cause, such as weakness from sickness, where the patient has been confined to bed for some time, for Females after Confinement, Abortion or Miscarriage, this Cordial cannot be excelled in its salutary effects; or in loss of Muscular Energy, Irritability, Physical Prostration, Seminal Weakness, Palpitation of the Heart, Indigestion, sluggishness, Decay of the Procreative Functions, Nervousness, &c., where a TONIC Medicine is required, it will be found equal, if not supperior to any Compound ever used.

DEBILITY

TO FEMALES.

Henry's Invigorating Cordial, is one of the most invaluable Medicines in the many Complaints to which Females are subject. It assists nature to brace the whole system, check excesses, and creates renewed health and happiness. Less suffering, disease and unhappiness among Ladies would exist, where they generally to adopt the use of this Cordial. Ladies who are debilitated by those obstructions which females are liable to, are restored by the use of a bottle or two, to bloom and to vigor.

YOUNG MEN.

That solitary practice, so fatal to the existence of man and it is too young who are most apt to become its victims, from an ignorance of the danger to which they subject themselves, causes

NERVIOUS DEBILITY.

Weakness of the System, and Premature Decay. Many of you may now be suffering, misled as to the cause or source of disease. To those, then, who by excess have brought on themselves Premature Impotency. Involuntary Seminal Emissions, Weakness and shrivelling of the Genital Organs, Nervous Affection, or any other consequences of unrestrained indulgence of the sensual passions, occasioning the necessity of renouncing the felicities of lessening both mental and bodily capacity, Hold! Henry's Invigorating Cordial a Medicine that is purely Vegetable, will aid nature to restore those important functions to a healthy state, and I will prove of service to you. It possesses rare virtues, is a general remover of disease, and strengthener of the system.

AS A TONIC MEDICINE,

it is unsurpassed. We do not place this Cordial on a footing with quack medicines, and, as is customary, append a long list of Recommendations Certificates, &c., beginning with "Hear what the Preacher says," and such like; it is not necessary, for "Henry's Invigorating Cordial," only needs a trial to prove that it will accomplish all we say.

THE GENUINE "HENRY'S INVIGORATING CORDIAL."

is put up in 8 oz. Pannel Bottles, and is easily recognized by the Manufacturer's signature on the label of each Bottle, (to counterfeit which is forgery) as well as his private Seal on the cork of each Bottle.

☞ Sold for $2 per Bottle; Six for $8; $16 per dozen Prepared only by S. E. COHEN, No. 3 Frank in Row. Vine Street below Eighth, Philadelphia. Pa; C. V. Clickener & Co., N. York, Wholesale Agents, TO WHOM ALL ORDERS MUST BE ADDRESSED For Sale by all respectable Druggists and Merchants throughout the country. 495:1y

COMPOUND SYRUP OF

Yellow Dock Root.

THIS is a Purely Vegetable Compound, scientifically prepared from the best Roots and Herbs of the Materia Medica, and has gained a universal reputation for the following effects, viz: Regulating and Strengthening the Liver and Digestive Organs, and Cleansing the Stomach and Bowels, and curing all Billious Diseases, Liver Complaints, Dyspepsia, Indigestion, Costiveness, Piles Headache, Fever and Ague, Jaundice Nausea Loss of Appetite, &c., and causing the food to nourish and support every part, PURIFYING THE BLOOD, and thus curing all Humors, Cutaneous Eruptions, Scrofula Salt Rheum, Erysipelas, Scald Head, Canker, Pimples on the face, Blotches, Ulcers, Tumors, Mercurial Diseases, Cancers, &c. Regulating the secretory Organs, and by enabling them to perform their proper functions, preventing and curing many painful and dangerous diseases; Strengthening and Quieting the nervous system, thus allaying Nervous Irritation, and curing all Diseases of the Nerves, as Hysteria, Neuralgia, Cramps, &c.

It is unrivalled in the cure of all FEMALE COMPLAINTS, as weakness, general debility, Irregularity, Obstructions, Swelling of the Feet, Limbs, Joints, &c., caused by weakness; also, Lung and Throat Complaints, as Colds, Coughs, Asthma, Consumption, &c., also, Dropsy.

Having made use of the Compound Syrup of Yellow Dock Root, prepared by C. Morse and C., either ourselves or in our families and finding it to be a very salutary and effectual preparation, we do most cheerfully recommend it to the public as a very valuable medicine.

E Bourne, Esq., Cashier National Bank, Providence, R. I.; A. W. Spencer, Esq., Cashier Lime Rock Bank, do do Rev. William Phillips, Rev. J. B. Richmond, C. S. Jones, editor Providence Gen. Advt., Wm. Field, M. W. G. M. Cyrus Fisher, M. E. H. P. James Hutchinson, G. S. Dea., V. J. Bates, Doct. Benj. Colby, and one hundred others of the most respectable families of Providence.

This certifies that I have for a number of years been acquainted with the composition and mode of manufacture of Morse's Compound Syrup of Yellow Dock Root. I have also been acquainted with its modus operandi in disease, and can say that in all respects it is admirably calculated to remedy that class of Diseases for which it was designed. It is especially valuable in indigestion and all its attendant symptoms, it excites to healthy action the Liver, removes Torpor, and inactivity of this organ, and stimulates healthy action in all the system. As a Depurator or purifier of the Blood it has no superior.

KEESEVILLE ACADEMY,

Clinton County, New York.

THIS INSTITUTION is located in one of the finest sections of the State.

It is five miles from Port Kent, on Lake Champlain. The lake affords a cheap, easy and pleasant communication with Plattsburgh, Burlington and Whitehall. The noted are about two miles below the village.

The building is comparatively new, well arranged, supplied with a

and is intended to accommodate 150 students. The advantages to be enjoyed will be of the highest order. The course of instruction will be thorough, and sufficiently extensive to meet the wants of every class of pupils.

Particular attention will be given to those who may wish to fit themselves for teaching or a collegiate course.

There are four Terms in a year, of 11 weeks each. The next Term will commence Novr. 17th, 1853.

THE BROKEN WINDOWS:

—OR—

The 'Cross' and the 'Sorry' Mother.

BY MRS. CAROLINE A. SOULE.

"What for mercy's sake has happened now?" exclaimed Mrs. Layton, vehemently, as she was startled from her doze on the sofa by the shivering of a window and the scattering of the broken pane. 'I'll warrant those little harum scarums of mine are at the bottom of this. They were born to plague me, I really believe. There's never a day passes but they are in some kind of trouble;" and rousing herself she picked up the book, whose pages had mesmerized her thoughts and eyelids, and, with a step and air that told plainly she was sadly out of humor, hastened to the casement. On her way she stumbled, and a ball bounded before her.

'Just as I expected! They never had a plaything yet but they were sure to do mischief with it the first thing. But I'll punish them for this, the little torments! I can't see for the life of me what comfort there is in having children. If they are in the room with me, they tease me with their noise, and if they are out of my sight, they're sure to be head and heels in trouble. I shall be glad when they're grown up and out of the way;" and she closed her amiable and affectionate soliloquy by giving the bell a hasty pull, and throwing herself with an impatient gesture into her rocking chair.

'Where are the boys, and who broke the window?' said she, in an angry tone, to the domestic who appeared.

'In the kitchen, ma'am, waping hard; for, indade, ma'am, they niver maned to break it; I saw it meself, ma'am, and I ashure ye, it was all the sheerest accident, and they be very sorry, ma'am—'

'Send them here, instantly," was the lady's interruption, in no mild tone either, to the attempt of the warm-hearted Irish girl to 'plade the cause of the little innocents,' 'and send for a glazier, too, and bring up a brush, and dustpan and sweep up the bits of glass.'

With a sad heart, Mary obeyed the commands of her irritated mistress,

'Is she cross, and will she whip us?' exclaimed the two little boys—the one five, the other seven years of age. 'Say 'no' do, that's a good Mary! Did you tell her we didn't mean to, and was so sorry?'

'Yes, yes, my darlints; but ye must go to her, and mind ye, go quietly, too, my masters, and be sure to kiss her swately, and promise niver to be so carless agin,' and wiping the sorrow stains from their cheeks, brushing their hair and smoothing their tumbled sacks, she sent them 'above.'

Hand in hand, as though they fancied there was safety in each other's proximity, the little offenders ascended the staircase, and with slow and noiseless footsteps paced the hall but halted at the parlor door. Fear whitened each little face, and shook each little penitent heart.

'You go first,' whispered Henry to the younger one, 'She'll forgive you, I guess, cause you are so small and don't know any better, and then you can coax her to forgive me.'

'No, no, I darsn't, 'cause I can't never speak right when I ought to,' responded Frank, a shiver running over his delicate limbs. 'You go first you're the biggest, and you ought to.'

How long they would have tarried there, disputing in their childish way, and striving to wear a brave heart, we can hardly guess, had not their mother hastily unclosed the door.

'So you've come at last, have you you, naughty boys!' exclaimed she, with anything but maternal sweetness hovering about her lips. 'You've come to get a good whipping, have you! I guess you'll remember next time to throw your ball somewhere else than into the parlor window. Naughty boys,' and she dragged the tearful, speechless creatures into the room.

'A whole dollar to pay out now for your careless trick. What do you think will become of us all if you go on so, breaking windows every day. We'll have to go to the poor house, and you'll be beggar children, with nobody to love you. Naughty boys!' And she went to a closet, and took from thence a 'rod of correction.

'O don't, don't whip us, dear, dear mother,' screamed both the children, as she drew near them. 'We didn't mean to; we'll never do so again; we wont; we never broke one before; O don't, don't,' and they struggled vainly in her angry grasp. Heavily came down the weapon upon the shrinking shoulders, stingingly it swept across the quivering palms, while shrieks of "It hurts, O, it does hurt so," were mingled with sobs so piteous that the servants below pressed their ears to keep out the echoes.

'There, now, I guess you'll behave after this, you naughty boys,' exclaimed she, as out of breath, and hot and flurried, she sank in her chair. 'And now take yourselves off to bed, and that as quick as you can, too, and don't let me hear any noise up there, either, or I'll come to you again. If you can't mind without whipping, it's high time you were whipped till you do mind. Come, why don't you start?'

'Have we got to go to bed without any supper?' moaned, rather than asked, little Frank. 'I am so hungry I shall die afore morning.'

'I'll risk your dying. Yes, you've got to go to bed without supper. I must take what the supper would have cost and pay for the window. Other expenses I must be at, and you must suffer for your naughtiness. Now go, and don't let me hear another word from you.'

The children started, but on the threshold they paused, turned round, and stood irresolute, as longing, yet fearing, to ask a favor.

'What do you want now?' said the mother, in a tone that was still shrill and discordant.

'We want you to kiss us,' faltered their white and trembling lips. 'And we want you to forgive us, 'cause we never meant to, and we was sorry all the time.'

'Kiss you!—do you think you deserve to be kissed? No, I shan't kiss you to-night. I can't give my kisses to such naughty children. Go to bed and pray to God to forgive you and make you good, that you may be a comfort to your mother, and not wear her life out with your bad conduct,' and she, impatiently, pointed to the door.

'Well, I go,' said the elder one, with an angry twist of his sore shoulders; and he shut the door after him with a good deal more noise than was necessary; 'and, perhaps, I'll pray, to; but I wont pray to God to forgive me, for I haint been naughty at all' but I'll pray to Him to give me a mother that don't whip, and that'll love us and kiss us.' And with hearts crushed and torn, the little ones sought their chamber and strove to undress. A weary time they had of it, for their fingers were sore and swollen, and their eyes so blinded they could hardly see button-holes, and much less the strings to their gaiters.

'I'll have to go to bed with my clothes on,' moaned, little Frank, as pulling the wrong way he drew his lacings into a hard knot. 'O dear, I wish Mary would come,' and he burst out anew.

'She darsn't, 'cause mother wont let her,' said Henry, as, giving an impatient jerk to his jacket he drew it off with a sad rent, though, and the loss of a couple of buttons. 'Here I'll help you off with your things,' and, taking out his penknife, he severed, with little ceremony, the Gordian tie, and with a twich here, and a pull there, succeeded, at length, in stripping his gentler brother.

'We haint said our prayers,' said Frank, as Henry leaped into the bed.

'Well, I aint agoing to say'em either," responded the other in an angry tone. 'It's no use trying to pray when you feel so ugly—the minister said so, the other day; besides my hands and shoulders ache so, I can't think about anything but that old whip. She did whip us awful hard, didn't she?'

'Yes. O, it did hurt, though, and it hurts now; but I guess I'll just pray to God to make her love us, and never whip us when we don't mean to be naughty.'

"T'wont do no good to pray that, Frank; 'cause when she's so cross she don't think about God, or nobody else.'

'Well, old granny used to say, 'if it don't do no good it wont do no hurt to pray, and it'll always make you feel gooder than it did before." And so the little child though every nerve within was quivering yet with pain, and though he was tired and hungry, just in the frame of body and mind when he needed to be folded to a mother's heart and kissed and lulled with the holy music of her evening hymn, knelt down and, folded his red, smarting hands and prayed to the Good Father, not only to make him and his little brother good boys, but to make their mother love them and never whip them again when they did'nt mean to be naughty. If ever the recording angel was tempted to blot out a mother's sin, it must have been when that prayer was heard in Heaven.

There was a holy, beautiful look on the face of the suffering child as he raised it to his brother's. His old granny's words were true, he felt 'gooder' than he did before that knee was bent, before that petition was lisped. But he could not make his brother feel so. Dark, revengeful feelings were boiling in that young heart, and they bubbled, over soon in expressions like these:

'I think it was real mean in mother to whip us when we didn't mean to do nothing bad. What, if we did break a window; Father has got plenty of money to pay for it, and if he haint there is no use in making such a fuss about a dollar. I wish we'd broke two, we might just as well. It's her own fault, too; if she'd let us play in the parlor with our blocks it wouldn't have happened. She needn't have half killed us if she did think she must whip us. I wish I was a big man, I'd clear out somewhere and never come back. I wonder if everybody's mother is so awful cross. O dear!' but hear his voice melted into sobs again, now wild and convulsive, stirring the whole frame, then deep and passionate, choking the throat, and again so low and mournful that they seemed but the audible pulses of a breaking heart. But healthy childhood has ever a true and gentle comforter for all its woes, and the little boys in an hour's time, were fast asleep their veined eyelids fearfully swollen though, and their fair brows and rosy cheeks sadly stained with the effects of their little fingers to wipe off the scorching tears.

'The careless little things,' grumbled Mrs Layton, as going through their chamber an hour after midnight, on her return from a brilliant party, she tumbled over their scattered clothes "I verily believe the more I whip them the worse they grow. How glad I shall be, when they are old enough to take care of themselves and keep out of my way.' And the 'cross' mother, without a single prayer for the beautiful gifts God had vouchsafed her, boldly, without one kiss upon the fragrant lips of those precious babes, without even a glance towards the little couch which had given rest to the limbs she had so cruelly tortured, hurried to her own room and her bed. 'O! said her heart—I am outdoor.

What is the matter?' exclaimed Mrs. Brown, in a half frightened tone, as she was roused from a light doze in her chair, by the shivering of a window and the scattering of a broken pane. 'Who could have done that; who could have been so careless? I hope, I trust it was not my little boys, and yet it would be nothing strange if it were them, for they are but children, frolicsome, light, hearted children, and I can't expect them always to do right. I am sorry, though, that it has happened, very, very sorry.' And picking up the sewing, which excessive fatigue alone had caused her involuntarily to drop, and drawing her hand across her weary eyelids, as though she would fain efface the drowsiness which still lingered there, she hastened to the the casement, hoping to find it in such a condition that her own skill could repair the fracture. But, alas! all in vain were her efforts to fit the tiny bits—China cement nor painter's putty could mend that shattered thing; it was a hopeless ruin.

'I shall have to give it up,' moaned she, in a sad voice, as she failed in her third trial. 'I shall have to give it up and get a new pane set. I am sorry, too, for I can ill afford the money now, and I am so tired—it does not seem as though I could sit up to-night to earn it. Yet there's no use in fretting over it. It's done and I must make the best of it. If it would only teach the little ones to be more careful hereafter, I wouldn't mind it so much after all. Poor things, it's only a little while you'll be children, and it would be hard, indeed, if your mother couldn't bear with your thoughtless acts for a few short years. O, if they are but spared to me! How could I live without them.' And then her voice was hushed, but her lips moved, and the waiting angel bore a touching prayer to Heaven.

There was a calm and beautiful expression in her countenance as she turned from the window. Love had triumphed over that petulant spirit which hovers ever so closely above the mother's cares and patience. 'God's kindliest angel' had lain its white fingers on her worried heart and 'it complained no more.' Getting her brush and pan she swept up the scattered glass, watching, with a mother's anxious eye, lest she should miss some tiny particle, and thus endanger the safety of their little feet, whom poverty compelled to go nearly all the time without stockings or shoes;

She did not go out to seek the children; she did not even call them. She had read their young hearts too many times to fear for them in the present crisis. She knew that though they might hesiate for a time it would not be long ere truth would lead them,—it might be with streaming eyes and a sobbing voice, yet lead them to her side. So she resumed, quietly, her accustomed seat, and her worn thimble, and commenced again that 'stich, stich, stich,' which earned for her, and her fatherless babes, their scanty living.

An hour passed on. Then the gate swung to, and the patter of little bare feet was heard on the steps.

'They are coming,' murmured she, a pleasant smile weaving beautiful lines across her pale, sad face, and the light of her eye glowing with diviner lustre. 'They are coming; I knew they would. Poor little things, I pity them; they will be so sorry,' and she waited eagerly to hear the latch raised.

Some moments passed ere it was touched; then it rattled but the door was not pushed open. A low, sad sound, as of sobs and broken words, mingled in the same note, stole upon the ear of the patient watcher. The tears gushed to her eyes.

'Poor little things,' breathed she again 'You do love me dearly, indeed, or you wouldn't feel so sorry. If we wasn't so poor I shouldn't mind it a bit, for it was an accident, I know.' And again that mother's heart of hers excused them both, and again the waiting angel bore a pleading prayer.

The latch rattled a second time, but the door was left unmoved. In a voice that was tremulous with emotion, but sweet as the song of a bird at sunlight, she called:

'Henry, Frank! Is it you, my little boys? Come in, if it is; mother wants to see you.'

Ere the last words had died on her quivering lips, the door was swung open and the children bounded into her opened arms, burying their faces in her bosom, and nestling close to her throbbing heart. Not a word was spoken, but as they felt themselves wound up so closely in her dear embrace, their tears wiped off so soothingly, and their hot brows cooled by such loving kisses, they knew and felt they were forgiven. Not a word was spoken, but as she felt their slender arms about her neck and waist, saw their swollen eyes and stained cheeks, and marked the suffering look they wore, she knew and felt that the pulse of love beat high in their young breasts.

She was worn and wearied, yet for a half hour she sat and held them on her knees, rocking them with a gentle, lulling motion, and, after the first gush of feeling was over, singing to them snatches of holy hymns, between each of which she paused, half unconsciously, to press their lips and breathe over them words of love and prayer.

The striking of the clock aroused her from her blessed trance, for oblivious had she been in body and mind to all her cares and sorrows and fatigue; and blest, indeed, is the inspiring confidence that her little ones were true to her and to themselves, and best of all, that she was true to them.

'It is supper time,' said she sweetly, 'so happy here in the old I had not noticed. It was so ill get me the wood to-night?' both of us,' exclaimed the bounded out to the shed and returned in a trice, each begging to build the fire.

'Let Henry build the fire and fill the kettle, and I'll draw out the table, and Frank may set it.'

For a moment the children hesitated and looked wistfully into each other's eyes. Poor little ones! Knowing their mother's poverty they had resolved ere they came in not to eat any supper, that she might not feel so severely the penalty of their thoughtless act, but now their keen appetites of childhood combated with fearful activity the good resolution. They drew near each other, and Henry whispered:

'Shall we tell her?'

'Yes, I guess so; but I'm awful hungry, aint you?'

'Yes, but so much the better; it wouldn't be any punishment, you know, if we went without when we wasn't hungry. I guess I'll tell her. It'll show her better how sorry we are.'

Then, with a most musical tremble in his voice he spoke up:

'You needn't put up only the leaf, mother, to-night, 'cause we don't want any supper.'

'What's the matter?' asked she, striving to be calm; 'don't you feel hungry?'

There was silence for a moment. Then running to her they bowed themselves at her knee, while their little hearts were turned inside out. They told her how that at school that day all the boys but them had balls to play with, and how bad they felt because they hadn't any, and how their playmates told them to go home and ask their mother to buy them some, and how they told each other they wouldn't say a word about it to her, for she had enough to buy without getting balls; that as they were comming home from school, they found some smooth, round stones, and they thought they'd do first-rate, and were so glad that they got most crazy, and forgot how many times she had told them never to throw anything towards the house, and that they were so scared when they heard the window break that they ran off into the woods, wondering what they should do.

'We don't mean,' said Frank, with a beautiful earnestness, 'we don't mean what we should do so that you needn't find it out; but we didn't no what we should do to make it up to you!'

'We knew you'd be so sorry,' said Henry, 'and we knew you'd have to work so hard to pay for it, that we were most grieved to death. But, after a while, we thought if we didn't eat any supper, and didn't eat verry hearty to morrow, 'twould make it up; and as soon as we said that we came right off here to tell you. But we did feel so bad when we got to the door and thought how sorry you'd be. But, mother, we'll try and remember never to do so again!'

'I hope you will remember it, my children said she, tenderly, but earnestly, 'for twenty-five cents is a great deal for me to lose. It's all I've earned to day. We must be very careful of our money or we shall get behindhand, and I can hardly tell what will become of us then. But I don't want you to go to bed without your supper to-night, for I am going to have a good one and I sholdn't enjoy it alone. Old Uncle John called here to-day and made me a present of a slice of his nice ham and a dozen eggs. Wont that be nice?'

'I guess it will,' rejoined the little boys. 'Ham and eggs! wont it be good?' and merrily pattered their little bare feet out doors and down cellar, and into the pantry, and wherever mother sent them; and when supper was ready two brighter eyed, rosier cheeked, happier faced children could not be found in the whole township. Nor ever did a happier mother ask a blessing on a meal than she who presided at that board, so humble that ham and eggs were a rare luxury.

When the happy meal was over, and the tea things washed and replaced again, as was her wont, she drew them to her side, and after telling them some stories, which they never tired of hearing, about their sainted father, she read to them from their Sunday school book a pretty story, and then an appropriate selection from the Scriptures, and went with them to their little chamber and assisted them to undress. Very careful were the little ones that night to see that their clothes were hung up in the most precise order, and very quietly came they and knelt beside her to repeat their evening prayer. Fervently did she press them to her bosom when it was over, and sweeter kisses never passed between the lips of a mother and her darlings than were given to and fro on that happy night.

'What a good mother she is,' exclaimed Frank, as the door closed upon her.

'I guess she is,' said Henry. 'She is the best mother I ever knew in all the world. She's always sorry when we do anything naughty, but she aint never cross nor ugly. I don't believe she knows how to be cross.'

'Well, I am glad,' responded the little brother, with emphasis. 'Wouldn't it be awful, though, to have a cross mother and a dead father! How I wish he'd lived—then she wouldn't have had to work so.'

'Mother says we musn't say so, because God wouldn't have taken him if it hadn't been right. But I shall be glad when we're grown up, big, so that we can take care of her. She's got to live with me in the summer, Frank, because I'm going to be a farmer, and the country will be the very best place for her in warm weather.'

'Well she may; but she shall be with me in the winter-time, 'cause I'm going to keep a big store in the city and have lots of money. O, wont she live nice and easy then! How I wish I was big. I'm such a little fellow, I'm 'fraid it'll take so long before I get to be a man that she'll get sick and die.'

'O, I guess not,' was the hopeful answer. 'At any rate, we'll be good every day while we're little, and then, if she don't live, why she'll have a good story to tell father about his little boys that he used to love so dearly. And we mustn't never, NEVER throw anything towards the house again—must we?'

'No, we mustn't, sure; but if we do we'll tell her of it—wont we; 'cause she'll never be cross, but only so sorry.'

Many a beautiful air-castle then did the little ones build, and in each there was a chamber for mother, with plenty of gold and plenty of love. And when, at last, slumber sealed their eyelids, it left them locked in each other's arms, with an expression on each lip that would have well become the angel dead.

Their mother had not spared the rod and spoiled her babes; but she had bent it over them with such a holy hand that it had budded in her grasp, and left upon their young hearts, not sore and crimson wounds, but the impress of green leaves and the dew of flowers.

'The dear little creatures,' exclaimed she, in a thrilling tone, as she entered their chamber an hour after midnight, 'the more I love them the better they grow. How sorry I shall be when they are no longer all my own.'

Then she knelt down beside their humble bed and tendered many earnest thanks to God, for the beautiful gifts vouchsafed her household. Sweet and holy kisses she pressed afterward upon their lips, and the little ones smiled in their slumber and dreamed that an angel was bending over them. Then, with an aching brow and wearied limbs, the mother sought her couch and forgot herself in sleep. God read her heart—I wish I could.

A SCENE AT THE NEW YORK CRYSTAL PALACE.—As we were sitting in the picture gallery of the Crystal Palace, taking memoranda of its contents, a tall ill dressed Vermonter, attracted probably by the benignity of our visage, addressed us:

'Stranger, what mought they charge to let a feller in this 'ere show?'

'Why do you ask; you paid at the entrance, did you not?'

'Y-a-a-a-s! I didn't pay nothin'; ef yew see anythin' green 'bout me, jest yew write, will yew?'

'How did you gain admittance, then?'

'Wa-a all, yew see I traded with a boy out there for a Herald, and gin him an extry cent to holler 'fire!'; and when the man with the brass thing on his coat looked around, I kind of dodged in behind him.'

Of course we expressed our indignation, and were about to leave him when he seized our button hole, saying quickly:

'Say, Mister; don't be riled, guess they'll never miss it. Yew talk so all-fired honest, guess yew must be a news-paper feller: been takin' notes ain't you? I've hearn 'bout this short hand.'

We assented; and he resumed:

'Mought yewr name be Greely, Mister? because I seed a nigger wench looked jest like a fewgitive nigger; and, ef she is, its a bully chance for you to spread—won't cost nothin', nuther.'

We denied that imputation, when he continued. 'I allers like newspaper chaps 'cause they're so clever. Been in the fine arts myself; taught school three winters—eighteen dollars a month and board 'round.'

We next stopped to view the fine specimens of perfumery, among which were busts made of solid soap. 'Hullo' said Yankee nosing the goods, 'guess these is made of grave-stun, ain't they?'

'No, they are made of soap.'

Before we could prevent him he had pinched it to satisfy himself. 'Wa-a-al,' guess it is, it feels soporiferous, any way; smells rale apocryphal tew, don't it? jest like o'd Mr. Slocum's potheeary shop tew hum.

A few steps brought us to the statuary, where a number of persons were silently gazing at Powers' statute of the Greek Slave.

'Mister,' said he, after a moment's inspection, pointing to the chains upon her wrists, 'what's that critter hoppled for?'

The bystanders roared; and, we endeavored to explain to him the nature of the subject; and, to prevent him from handling it as he was bent upon doing, pointed to the placard requesting visitors 'not to touch the articles.'

Don't touch the articles! repeated he, 'Why she ain't got the first darned article on her!'

We left.—N. Y. Journal of Commerce.

A CANADIAN DONE BROWN.—A gentleman who arrived in the city yesterday morning from Toronto, made the acquaintance of a genteel shark, who proposed to show him the sights. He accompanied him up to the reservoir, where they were joined by another very respectable looking man, who fell into conversation, and exhibited a small contrivance which he was going to Washington with to get a pattent for. The Toronto man's friend examined it and opened it, while the owner was amusing himself at some distance off. He took from it a small piece of paper and gave it to the Toronto man. The little contrivance was handed back to the owner, with the remark that you suppose there is something inside. The owner of the box proposed to bet $500 that there was a piece of paper inside. The Toronto man's friend proposed to put up a check for $1100 against his $500. This he refused. Suffice it to say that the Toronto man was persuaded to let his newly found acquaintance have $500 on the check. The contrivance was opened, and of course the paper was there. The parties seperated, and the green one from Toronto, on arriving at Stanwix Hall, found that he had been swindled.—Served him right. Why didn't he take the daily papers?—Albany Knickerbocker.

Important Southern Movement.

[From the Raleigh (N. C.) Register Nov. 19.]

We ask attention to the following able circular which was issued by the Executive committee of the Southern Centeral Agricultural Society. We publish it with the hope that it may be opportune in arrousing the attention of our planters and farmers to the third meeting of the Agricultural association of the slave holding States, which will commence its session in Columbia, South Carolina, on the last day of this month. This circular clearly sets forth the main purposes of the Association, which held a preliminary meeting in Macon, Georgia, about twelve months since. The second meeting took place in Montgomery, Alabama, in May last, when a constitution was adopted, and lectures and addresses were delivered upon several agricultural subjects.

Under its constitution, every citizen taking an interest in agricultural matters may become a member of the association at pleasure. The admission fee is $5. It is required that the association hold its sessions semi annually, and in succession in the States represented in it. At the meeting about to take place at Columbia, provision will be made for lectures on geology, botany and etomology, in their relations to agriculture.

The spring meeting will probably be held in Louisiania or Mississippi—that of the fall in North Carolinia; as the policy seems to be to strike alternately north and south from Georgia, where the movement origiuated.

SOUTHERN AGRICULTURAL CONGRESS.

The Southern Centeral Agricultural Society of Georgia, taking into consideration the great advantages which may reasonably be expected to flow from periodical meetings of persons representing the planting interests of the slaveholding States, invite the cultivators of the soil, in every section and district of the same, to send delegates to Macon on the 20th day of October next, for the purpose of an Agricultural Congress of the slaveholding States, at such time and place as may be deemed most acceptable to the States to be represented in it.

The reasons which have prompted this appeal to our fellow-laborers engaged in the fulfilment of the sublime command of God to man, which involves at once his obedience and his happiness, may readily present themselves to those we address. We will, therefore, mainly speak of some of the purposes and objects which it is expected would claim the attention of the proposed Congress, and which we deem of sufficient moment to enlist the patriotism, intelligence and talents of those to whom we appeal.

Our proposition embraces a representative association of those engaged in a common pursuit, for the purpose of advancing that pursuit, and harmonizing a great interest which supplies five-eights of the exports of the United States—to give to that interest a community of feeling, sentiment and thought—and to impart to it a weight, dignity, and stability commensorate with its importance to the State, to the United States, and to the world.

Probably nothing is more characteristic of the age in which we live, than the prevalence of voluntary associations in all the ramifications of society. Everywhere we see organized and apparently actively alive associations for religious, moral, literary, professional, scientific, and charitable purposes. If the want of intercommunion among those engaged in a common pursuit be in proportion to their seperation by space from each other, certainly few classes of society may be said to stand more in need of associations than the cultivators of the soil in the slaveholding States. If the amount of industry, skill and science involved in the advancement of agricultural knowledge be considered, strong inducements for voluntary associations are presented to us And if we are mindful of the calumnies which some of our political brethereu of the North have been so long propagatiug against us, both at home and abroad, we are sternly admonished to come together to strengthen our defences and fortify our assailable points; to establish amongst ourselves a public oppinion just to ourselves, and strong enough to harmonize all our social elements, and save us from the evils of an ignorance of the benificent workings of our system, in which alone consists our danger.

If, returning good for evil, we are prompted to increase and multiply our staple productions for the use of our enemies, to whom they are as necessary as they have been fertilizing; or if, following the example, we look alone to their fructifying influences upon ourselves; or if, taking a wider view, we behold the commerce of the world in no inconsiderable degree dependent upon the products of our slave labor, on which reposes to no small extent the peaceful character of our age, and through which civilization is extended, and Christianity propagated—we are impelled by numerous and exalted considerations to organize such associations among ourselves as will best enable us to meet the requirements of our position, and fulfil the destiny which is in store for us.

In the peculiarities of our staple productions, their necessity to the demand of commerce and to the progress of civilization, and in the isolation to which a pharisaical world would subject us on account of the peculiar character of the labor by which we produce these indispensible staples, we find the strongest arguments to unite us in maintaining and vindicating that labor against the aspersions of those who condemn it from malice or ignorance, and consume its products from instinct.

If reliance may be placed on the history of the past, agriculture has no royal road to success. Man has now, as in early times, to earn his bread by the sweat of his brow. There is certainly no pursuit which invokes the aid of more of the sciences, and renders tributary more of the departments of knowledge acquired by the toilsome investigations of nature. Whilst progress, in the acquisition of that knowledge, has been steady, and of late years with a constantly accelerated step, it will not be denied that [illegible] and perhaps much that progress. If she has been sometimes distrustful of the applicability of recent discoveries to her purposes, she has, at others accepted the proffered and with a perceptiveness not justified by the result. It is through the agency of agricultural associations over a broad surface, supplying the means, intelligence, and skill, that we are to derive a knowledge enabling us to discriminate between the true and the false in the teachings of science. Wherever such association have acquired the confidence of the public by the character and elements of their organization agriculture has advanced and the earth has yielded a greater increase. It is for such an organization that we now appeal to the cultivators of the soil in the slaveholding States.

The chief objects of such an occasion, it is presumed, would be:—

To improve our own agriculture, yielding peculiar productions, through the agency of a normal labor, requiring a distinct economy, and dependent on a climate of its own

To develope the resources and unite and combine the energies of the slaveholding States, so as to increase their wealth, power and dignity as members of this confederacy.

To establish and fortify a public opinion within our borders in antagonism to that without, in relation to ourselves and our institutions—the emanations of our own intelligence, power and energies—a national sentiment—a great truth, established by the experience of the past founded on a sound morality, a broad humanity, and that Christianity which especially inculcates a sincere humility and a boundless charity.

To enforce the growing sentiment that those which are to come after us and inherit our institutions, and the dangers which threaten them, shall be reared at home and educated in a full knowledge of their rights duties and responsibiii ies, and to establish fully in the public mind the two fold value of a higher and a higher standard of education, which will impose such application on the part of the pupils, and demand such qualifications on that of the teachers, as will establish industrous habits in the former, and enable the latter to instill and confirm in them a taste in after life for what has been learned in youth, thus supplying the two most efficient agencies to prompt a career of usefullness and honor, industry and cultivated and refined tastes, and making our seats of learning effulgent centres of piety, science, literature and refinement; illuminating and harmonizing all interests, and blending all classes, the pride and glory of the country.

To enlist and foster those scientific pursuits which reveal to us the elements and character of our souls—instruct us in the presence of those magazines of fertilizers which nature has with so bounciful and considerate a hand provided for the use of the industrious and enterprising—and search out the histories and habits of the insect tribes which destroy (it is believed) annually a fifth of our crops, and supply us with a knowledge of them which may enable us to guard against their future ravages.

To promote the mechanic arts directly and indirectly auxiliary to agriculture—and by a generous confidence and liberal patronage, raise those engaged in them to a social position, always the just reward of intelligence, industry and good conduct.

To direct, as far as may be done, public sentiment against the barriers which have been artfully raised to cut off our commercial intercourse with distant countries, save through such outlets as are supplied by northern marts, exacting tribute upon what we produce and consume.

To exert an influence in establishing a system of common school instruction which will make Christians as well as scholars of our children—which, in arming the rising generations with the instruments of knowledge, will instruct them also in their proper uses—impressing upon them, from first to last, that (especially under our form of government) private worth constitutes the aggregate of public good—and that no one can disregard his duties to those around him, without positive injury to himself.

To cultivate the aptitudes of the negroe race for civilization and consequently Christianity, so that, by the time that slavery shall have fulfilled its benificent mission in these States, a system may be authorized by the social condition of that race here, to relieve it from its present servitude without sinking it to the condition, moral, mental, and physical, into which the free negroes of the Northern States and West Indies have been hopelessly precipitated by imposing upon them the duties and penalties of civilization before they have cast off the features of their African barbarism.

These constitute the main purposes for which we appeal to the individual and aggregate interests of the slaveholding States to meet us in an Agricultural Congress.—In that, let us assemble and confer and consult, as in a great family re-union—having a common object and actuated by a common patriotism.

It is believed that such an association as is here recommended to our brethren of the slaveholding States, with local societies, with like objects, would achieve the most valuable victories over our stubborn soil, and the still more stubborn ignorance of our opponents beyond the pale of our institutions. It may be that this latter expectation will not be realized, and that they who have heretofore closed their eyes to all the testimony which we have freely and earnestly offered to them, will still keep their minds also closed against all future efforts which may be made to vindicate ourselves against the grossest misrepresentations of us and our institutions, with which the public opinion, at home and abroad, has been supplied in the greatest profusion.

Should this apprehension be unfortunately realised, the conclusion will be forced upon us, that there have been other purposes to serve, in the deliberate and calculating policy pursued, of endeavoring to render us the heathen people of modern times, in the belief of all Christendom, than merely to rebuke an imputed error, or correct a vicious morality which is ascribed to us—and we shall be confirmed in the belief, already taking some root, that the monopoly of our trade in at least an element in the calculation of the results of the tropical fruits grow well on our southern borders. Our country is abundantly watered by the noblest rivers. Bays, inlets and harbors indent our coasts. Our mountain ranges with their rich table lands, abound in coal, metals and marbles. We have the best climate for every season of the year, and now the enterprise of our State governments and numerous private corporations, are carrying the railroad with accelerated progress in all directions, uniting our east with our west, combining our north with our south; all these afford capacity, facility and dispatch to reward the cultivator of the soil, on whose labors repose the prosperity—the very life blood of every other pursuit. These, all these, invoke us to consult together, to devise and concert measures best calculated to elevate us and aggrandize our power, and to combine our energies and vindicate ourselves our institutions and our country—and make it what God has decreed it shall be—great, powerful and beneficient to the purposes of civilization and Christianity, and consequently to the great cause of humanity. Should we, heedless of the bounties of Providence to us, and unmindful of our high responsibilities, with coward hearts, shrink from the stern duties which they impose, and prove ourselves unworthy of so eminent a destiny, may not He, who has made nothing in vain, inquire of us—Why cumber ye the earth?

NEW YORK, Nov. 25th, 1853.

COL. TARBELL,

DEAR SIR:—Being in town on business, and of necessity as well as inclination, had to lay by business yesterday to attend Thanksgiving. Wishing to improve my time, I proposed to a friend that we take a turn around town to see the 'sights,' and perhaps the 'elephant.'

Our first move was down Centre street to the Tombs, where we flattered ourselves we should gain admittance, for the purpose of seeing some of the representatives of crime. We were disappointed in our expectations—it being Thanksgiving no permits were granted. Being refused admittance, we were about going away, when we saw one of the sights—one of the (I may say,) 'awfullest' sights I ever beheld—the most disgraceful, to say the least. A carman drove up, with a fair-looking woman beastly drunk; thrown on the cart like a dead hog. Of all the sights, a drunken woman is the most loathsome.

From the Tombs we directed our steps toward that notorious sink of iniquity, the 'Five Points.' On passing along Little Water street, casting our eye over the right, (expecting to see, as I saw some eight years ago, a host of vile prostitutes,) a respectable looking gentleman asked us if we would not step in. We hesitated a moment, but upon his assuring that this block of buildings was now occupied as the Five Points House of Industry, we stepped in and were introduced to Rev. S. M. Pease, missionary and founder of the Institution. Mr. Pease directed Mr. W. S. Post, one of his assistants, to take us thro' the buildings. Of the many strange and interesting things he told us, I have time to relate but a few. One yarn he got off, had he not been a minister of the gospel, I should have pointed 'over the left.' He said, out of the seven buildings they now occupied, upon cleaning them out, they chopped up, hoed up, shoveled up and sent off, forty one one-horse cart loads of dirt! And to convince us, called our attention to the floor and stairs, which were completely chopped and hacked up. All of these tenements were appropriated for the foulest purposes; I forbear a description. The only means of making a breach in these haunts of vice, was to enforce the law against them as nuisances. It was done, and two houses were immediately emptied of their loathsome tenants. We were told that one of these houses formerly contained 150 girls. Since then five more have been added to the number of proscribed houses. In this Institution we found about 175 inmates; 75 of the number women. About 300 children attend the school. The expenses of the school the past year was $1,000. The amount expended this year to educate, the worse than orphan, clothe the naked, and feed the hungry, is about $32,000. We were told, notwithstanding they were doing all they could, there were within a stone's throw over 2000 children schooled in the lowest depths of degredation. In one little nook, called cowbag, where you would hardly think a dozen families could be accommodated, reside, or wallow, 1200 human beings find a home

It is surprising that we should continue to do so much for Foreign Missions, and neglect the heathen in our midst. Did I say heathen? They are incomparably worse. Shall we slumber and see thousands of children schooled in vice in all its forms, and sent abroad to poison the atmosphere, fill our prisons and poor-houses? Aside from our sympathies does it not speal to our pockets?

We left the Five Points House of Industry, and went over to the Five Points Mission of the Ladies' Home Missionary Society. We were introduced to Rev. B. M. Adams, Missionary. Here, as well as at the House of Industry, they were preparing to give the children a Thanksgiving supper. The Missionary building on the site of the Old Brewery is fully occupied. In it there is a neat Parsonage where the missionary family reside; a fine chapel; large school rooms; a bathing-room, which I should think very necessary from the looks of the children in the streets; two clothing rooms; and over all fifty light rooms, in which to accommodate tenants who are thus brought under the influence of the mission. We accepted an invitation to be present at the supper to come off at 5 p. m. At 5 we went to the supper; the house was so crowded that it was with difficulty that we got in; but we were well paid, for our trouble. It was an interesting sight to see four or five hundred of those once loathsome children at a table, loaded with baked turkens, ducks, pies, and pyramids fruits in great variety, ice creams, children looked clean, and they casion required. They seemed to be under good subjection.

To the members of the Ladie's Home Missionary Society, is due the credit of demolishing the crime-stained walls of the Old Brewery—the subterraneous passages and secret divisions which so long enabled the burglar and the murderer, if once within its darkened alleys, to elude even the most experienced member of the police—and erecting on its site an elegant five story brick structure, dedicated to the worship of God, the education of the ignorant, and to the restoration and comfort of the sick and the fallen. I think it was very proper to give these children a chance to celebrate a Thanksgiving day; for, I am sure, no class of human beings have greater reason to be thankful than they. The men at Washington Market contributed to the amount of about three hundred and fifty dollars worth of turkies, meats, fish, oysters, &c. I hope the good work begun, may go on until the Five Points will compare favorably, in point of respectability, with the best parts of the city.

Yours, respectfully,
D. W. B.

TROY POST OFFICE.—Foster Bosworth, charged with forgeries and various offences, and a 'soft' withal, has resigned and the editor of the Budget appointed in his stead. We enquired of a Troy democrat the other day, who by the way is a 'soft' also, whether the selection was satisfactory to the democracy of Troy. In reply he said, 'satisfactory? Humph! Whitman was imported from Massachusetts a year or two ago to edit the Budget; at the late election he hung fire on the State nominations till Marcy passing through Albany to attend the funeral of his son, sent for Whitman to go to Albany to see him, when he run up the soft ticket; he has acquired only a shirt-washing residence any way, and this promotion over the heads of life long democrats is his reward. Satisfactory?—Humph!" Another democrat informed us that he had just been requested to sign a call for an indignation meeting, but that he refused until he was sure that an overwhelming gathering could be called out and then he was in for it. Thus are democrats of a life time made to play second fiddle to adventurers and upstarts whose politics are to be hired out for pay.

'Shirt washing residence.' Pretty good. That touches a case not far from Keeseville.

A good whig—the right kind of talk.—A Washington county friend sends us the following 'aid and comfort:'

PUTNAM, Nov. 23, 1853.

COL TARBELL,

DEAR SIR;—Inclosed I send you one dollar, being your advance terms. I believe it right for each to support their own county papers. This I do, yet I like the spirit of your paper and wish you success. "Go ahead,"

Truly Yours,

Where such choice spirits abound the 'county paper' and the whig cause are triumphant. Putnam is a whig town and will be so long as W. G. Corbett, Col. Patterson and others are above ground. Putnam and her whole souled whigs forever!

CAPT. RHYNDERS.—This notorious leader of the 'Rhynder's gang," or, 'Empire club,'—this celebrated rowdy, and leader of slung-shot fighters, has received the appointment of secret mail Agent, with a salary of $1500, a year for overawing the late dem. State convention with his 'free men and witnesses.' By the way, Rhynders is said to be a small, slim, and slender looking man, well-dressed, and can play the gentleman as sociably as he can knock the breath out of a man with a slung shot His appointment is of a piece with the selection of Post Masters at Troy, Keeseville, and other places. As old "chums" they can sing;

The Telegraph.—Mr. C Smead one of the firm, & Messrs P. C. Dodge & F. S. K. Russell, agents, have been in town during the week, and we are happy to state that their line, and its interests are progressing rapidly, and favorably. And there is no reason why they should not. The company is composed of honorable and respectable gentlemen, and they invite scrutiny, and when satisfied they put [illegible] of the people along the line. This is Synopsis of the President's Message.

About half a column is taken up with 'hifalutin' nonsense more appropriate to the 4th of July than the opening of Congress. Having done this he proceeds to comply with the requirements of the constitution. The Message displays no ability. It is weak. It is studiously dubious on most points. We can afford a place for a synopsis only. The following is from the Albany Evening Journal.

—PRESIDENT PIERCE'S first Message to Congress is an improvement upon his Inaugural Address so far as regards its tone and scope. It is more dignified and statesmanlike. Respecting our Foreign Relations it is more temperate and just; and respecting our Domestic Affairs it is less narrow and retrogressive. Yet its specific recommendations are such, that unless we are mistaken, it will be much more difficult to harmonize his Party upon "the principles of the Message," than upon 'the principles of the Inaugural.'

Our difficulties with England about the Fisheries, with France about Commerce, with Mexico about the Mesilla Valley, with Nicaragua about the Transit route, with Spain about Diplomatic intercourse in Cuba, with Peru about the Chincha Island affair, and with Brazil about the navigation of the Amazon, are all recapitulated; but nothing is communicated that has not been already made public. This part of the Message can be summed up by saying that treaties are in process of negotation with each of these powers, and that favorable results of them are confidently hoped for.

Hopes are also expressed that we shall get admission into the ports of China and Japan.

What has been done in the Koszta case, is deservedly commended.

The public Revenue for the year ending last June ammounted to about $61,000,000; the public expenses to $43,000,0000.—This, with the surplus already in the Treasury, leaves a balance of upwards of $35,000,000 of receipts over expenditures.

Twelve millions of the public Debt have been liquidated, leaving still unpaid $56,586,708.

To diminish the surplus revenue the President recommends a reduction of duties on "articles entering into manufacturers, and not largely produced in this country." But what those articles are, he does not specify.

Last spring the President thought our foreign relations in some respects looked ominous, but pronounced the Army and Navy in an efficient condition. This winter things have assumed a peaceful aspect, but he advises that the Navy be increased and the Army strengthened!

The Post-Office Department does not pay its expenses, by some two millions.—This is attributed to the large prices paid to railroad companies for carrying the mails.

A revision of the Pension Laws, to prevent frauds, is recommended.

Fifty-three millions of dollars have been realized from sales of the public lands. As has been already shown, we have more money and land than we know what to do with. And yet the Message is unwilling to essentially change the present system, either by granting the lands to emigrants or to works of internal improvement.

Congress is advised to take good care of the District of Columbia—to supply its inhabitants with gas, with asylums, and with water—but not with freedom.

It is very properly recommended that the Smithsonian Institute be organized, the Patent Laws improved and the jurisdiction of the Federal Courts equalized throughout the States.

Upon Improvements of Rivers and Harbors the Message is less explicit than could have been wished. But the general purport of its remarks is strongly against their construction, by Government. It says substantially:—Let the people who live near the Rivers and Harbors, take care of them. This is old fashioned Democratic doctrine; but to be consistent the Message should have said:—Let the peop'e who live in the District build their own Capitols, dig their own wells, and look after their own Patent Offices.

If any one thinks he can make out from the Message, whether the President does or does not believe the Pacific Railroad ought to be built by Government—we respectfully advise him to try.

Where questions are at all hazy, the President stoutly avers that he will 'stand by the Constitution.' We have heard of religious disputants, who, when asked to define their sect, replied that they 'believed in the Scriptures.' Unexceptionable, but not exactly satisfactory.

But there is less uncertainty when it comes to the Compromise. The President, like the Union, 'acquiesces,' but does not profess to 'approve.' The 'dangers to the Union,' the 'finality of the settlement,' and the 'resistance of agitation,' that flourished so luxuriantly last spring, are scattered to the winds like dead leaves, in this December blast. Of this we do not feel called upon to complain, but there are some who will.

A brief and suitable allusion is made to the memory of Vice President KING.

The 'limited powers of the Federal Government,' the 'sovereign rights of the States,' and the 'strict construction of the Constitution,' are alluded to in language that will be read with great satisfaction by the Administration's newly discovered 'Secession' friends in Georgia and Mi-sissippi.

Having reached this point, the Message abandons the direct, business like manner which characterizes the previous parts of it, and addresses itself, in terms of the utmost admiration for 'our gallant forefathers,' 'the flag of our country,' and 'the magnificent future' of the 'great arm of Freedom'—to Bunkum. To Bunkum, therefore we leave it.

At the last session of the Pennsylvania Legislature the following announcement of the arrival of his colleague was made by a member. Mr. Speaker—My kollecks come and I dink ho ought to be schwore."—Ex.

ANGEL'S WHISPERINGS.—One of the most touching little incidents has just come to our knowledge that we ever remember to have heard, or read. It seems peculiarly so to us, coming as it does, from near and cherished friends. It is at once touching, and transforming While it melts with its tender sweetness, it carries the mind away on the swiftest wings of the imagination. First to childhood, when in a fond mother's, or trusted sister's arms the lisping child is taught its trust in Guardian Angels, and then to that Happy Home beyond the skies whose beauties are best left to the eye of Faith. The incident as narrated by the mother is this; Little Alice was two years and eleven months old when she was taken alarmingly ill. The best medical aid was at once ordered, and every effort that human ingenuity and affection could devise were resorted to in vain. Little Alice must die. After lingering several days past all hopes, and when near her end she brightened up and with a sweet smile, said, "Good bye Ma, Good bye Pa. Oh, I want to go, Good bye Ma. Good bye Pa," and breathed her last. Who shall say Little Alice had not a pleasing view of her new Home? Who shall say she was not wafted thence by Guardian Angels?

OUR NEW PRINTING TELEGRAPH.—We learn that the poles are all set as far as Keeseville, and large gangs of laborers are now employed south, on the line to Whitehall.—Much energy is used by Mr. P. C. Dodge, the contractor (under Messrs. Thompson & Co.,) for the early completion of the work, and in seeing that the line is constructed in a firm, substantial, and workmanlike manner, which we understand has thus far been done, in every particular. We have heard several gentlemen say, that, as far as the line has been built, (under the superintendence of Mr. Dodge,) it was the best they ever saw. We also heard the superintendent of the Canada Grand Trunk Telegraph Company remark, that it was "the best line in North America." This certainly, is very complimentary to Mr. D., while it must be equally gratifying to Messrs. Thompson & Smead to know that their line is so highly praised, and the compliment so justly merited.

This line from Whitehall to Troy is also rapidly going ahead; and we learn, that Messrs. T. & Co., are building it in every way to correspond with their end of the route.—When the whole work is completed, we trust that we shall not only have one of the best, and most reliable lines in America, but that it will be the best paying stock of any Telegraph Company in the United States or the Canadas. We hope our citizens will feel interested enough in this matter, to do what is right towards carrying out this magnificent enterprise.—[Plattsburgh Rep.

We have every assurance that we are now to have a really valuable and permanent Telegraph. What is said by Col. Stone to the people of Plattsburgh we say to those of Keeseville.

"I am Going Mamma."

"I am going, mamma," said a dying boy,
As he clasped his mother's hand;
"I am going where the angels dwell, Away to the spirit land."

"The angels are waiting for me, mamma,
Bright visions of glory, I see;
The portals of Heaven are opened mamma,
The angels are whispering to me.

"I know you will miss me, mamma.
In the garden, the parlor and hall:
And in fancy beside the old fountain
You will hear my merry foot-fall.

"I know you will miss me, mamma,
When the roses and violets bloom;
When low sweet music comes stealing
Through the hall to the old dining-room.

"I will greet you again, mamma,
When we meet around God's throne;
The angels are waiting for me, mamma,
Good bye—I am going home."

The Erie R. R. War.

This quasi war, announced in our last was commenced by the people of Erie against the Rail Road Co. because the latter was about to widen the track through that place to correspond with other portions of the road. This would very likely obviate a change of cars, and perhaps carry passengers through without stopping to eat and drink and be fleeced of their change. The tearing up of the track was urged on by proprietors of Hotels, eating houses, &c. &c.

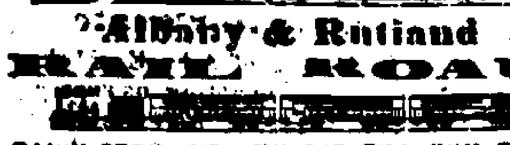
FRAUD!



ALL who want AXES of the real COLLINS & Co. make should be particular to notice the stamps, as there are various counterfeits and imitations stamped Collins and labelled much like ours, which are fraudulently sold in some parts of the United States as our manufacture. They are made in different parts of the country by various axe makers, and are generally of very inferior quality. The genuine Collins axes, which have acquired such an extensive reputation, are invariably stamped COLLINS & CO. HARTFORD, and each axe has a printed label with my signature.—It is now more than TWENTY-FIVE YEARS since we commenced the business with the stamp of the Collins & Co. firm of Hartford, and do not know of any other axe-maker by the name of Collins in the United States.

Dr. Hunter's Medical Manual and Hand Book for the Afflicted—

Containing an outline of the origin, progress, treatment and cure of every form of disease, contracted by promiscuous sexual intercourse, by self abuse or by sexual excess, with advice for their prevention, written in a familiar style, avoiding all medical technicalities, and everything that would offend the ear of decency, from the result of some twenty years successful practice, exclusively devoted to the cure of diseases of a delicate or private nature.

To which is added, receipts for the cure of the above diseases, and a treatise on the causes, symptoms and cure of the Fever and Ague.

Testimony of the Prof. of Obstetrics in Penn. College, Philadelphia—"Dr. Hunter's Medical Manual."—The author of this work unlike the majority of those works who advertise to cure the diseases of which it treats, is a graduate of one of the best Colleges in the United States. It affords me pleasure to recommend him to the unfortunate, or to the victim of malpractice, as a successful and experienced practitioner, in whose honor and integrity they may place the greatest confidence.

JOSEPH LONGSHORE, M. D.

From A. Woodward M. D., of Penn. University, Philadelphia—It gives me pleasure to add my testimony to the professional ability of the author of the "Medical Manual." Numerous cases of diseases of the Genital Organs some of them of long standing have come under my notice, in which his skill has been manifest in restoring to perfect health, in some instances where the patient has been considered beyond medical aid. In the treatment of Seminal weakness, or disarrangement of the functions produced by Self-abuse, or Excess of venery, I do not know his superior in the profession. I have been acquainted with the Author some thirty years, and deem it no more than justice to him as well as a kindness to the unfortunate victim of early indiscretion, to recommend him as one, in whose professional skill and integrity they may safely confide themselves. ALFRED WOODWARD, M. D.

"This is, without exception, the most comprehensive and intelligible work published on the class of diseases of which it treats. Avoiding all technical terms, it addresses itself to the reason of its readers. It is free from all objectionable matter and no parent, however fastidious, can object to placing it in the hands of his sons. The author has devoted many years to the treatment of the various complaints treated of, and with too little breath to puff,' and 'too little presumption to impose,' he has offered to the world at the merely nominal price of 25 cents, the fruits of some 20 years most successful practice."—Herald.

"No teacher or parent should be without the knowledge imparted in this invaluable work. It would save years of pain, mortification and sorrow to the youth under their charge."—People's Advocate.

A Presbyterian clergyman in Ohio, in writing of "Hunter's Medical Manual," says: "Thousands upon thousands of our youth, by evil example and influence of the passions, have been led into the habit of self-pollution without realizing the sin and fearful consequences upon themselves and their posterity. The constitutions of thousands who are raising families have been enfeebled, if not broken down, and the do not know the cause or the cure. Anything that can be done so to enlighten and influence the public mind as to check, and ultimately to remove this wide-spread source of human wretchedness, would confer the greatest blessing next to the religion of Jesus Christ, on the present and coming generations. Intemperance (or the use of intoxicating drinks,) though it has slain thousands upon thousands, is not a greater scourge to the human race. Accept my thanks on behalf of the afflicted, and, believe me, your co-worker in the good work you are so actively engaged in."

THE MARRIAGE STATE;

Shall Happiness and Health, or Misery and Sickness, attend it?

MOST STARTLING CONSIDERATIONS!

Reflections for the Thoughtful.

Strange that countless human beings exist and drag through life as do the beasts of the field, or the insects of the earth, evincing no more thought or reflection than though the noble faculties of mind were not vouchsafed to them.

Many such are husbands and fathers, upon whom are dependent the health, the well-being, and the happiness of a confiding and affectionate wife, with perhaps a family of children.

HOW OFTEN IT HAPPENS THAT THE

WIFE LINGERS FROM YEAR TO YEAR

In that pitiable condition as not even for one day to feel the happy and exhilerating influence incident to the enjoyment of health.

She may not be an invalid confined to her bed, or even to her room; as her pride, ambition and energy induce and nerve her to take personal charge of her household, even when her health will not admit of it; but she is nevertheless perceptibly sinking from day to day, and always ailing.

Thus, day after day, and month after month transpire. Her health daily sinks, till finally even the hope of recovery no longer remains. And thus

THE BLOOMING BRIDE,

But a few years ago in the flush of health and youth, and buoyancy of spirits, rapidly, and apparently inexplicably, becomes a feeble, sickly, debilitated wife, with frame emaciated, nerves unstrung, spirits depressed, countenance bearing the impress of suffering, and an utter physical and mental prostration.

Sometimes this deplorable change may and does arise from organic or constitutional causes. But oftener, by far oftener, to gross and inexcusable ignorance of the simplest and plainest rules of health as connected with the marriage state, the violation of which entails disease, suffering and misery, not only to the wife, but often

Transmitting CONSUMPTION, SCROFULA, HYPOCHONDRIA, INSANITY, GOUT, KING'S EVIL, and other diseases,

as a

from the Parents.

And must this continue? Shall we be wise in all that concerns the cattle of our fields, our horses, our sheep, our cows, our oxen, the nature and character of the soil we possess, the texture and quality of our goods and merchandise; but in all that concerns ourselves as human beings, with human functions and passions, subject to great derangement, involving our future peace and happiness—in all that concerns the health and welfare of the wife of our affections, and the mother of our children; in all that concerns the mental and physical well being of those children, we should be immersed in the darkest and most

BENIGHTED IGNORANCE,

AS CULPABLE AS INEXCUSABLE!

How long shall this ignorance prevail so productive of its bitter fruits? How long shall the wife and mother be ignorant of the nature, character and causes of the various womb and sexual complaints, embittering her days by suffering—suffering often prolonged to years, eventuating in a complication of diseases utterly and hopelessly incurable? Shall we for ever close our eyes to the results of physiological science by which we may arrive at an understanding of ourselves as men and women, subject to serious life-long enduring diseases, and perpetuating them to our children.

LET EVERY WIFE AND HUSBAND PONDER!

No husband or wife need be ignorant of what concerns them most to know to secure their health and happiness. That knowledge is contained in a little work entitled

CLARK'S Wholesale Confectionary ESTABLISHMENT,

172 RIVER STREET, TROY, N. Y.

THE Subscriber having in charge the Confectionary Manufactory and Wholesale Establishment, long and favorably known as NEWCOMB'S No. 172 River-street, Troy, respectfully solicits the attention of Merchants, Pedlars and Retailers of Candies, to the quality and variety of Confectionary manufactured and for sale by him.

The Candies made at this place endure the change of weather and retain their flavor and freshness as long, if not longer, than any that can be made.

A list of the different kinds and qualities which are usually made, can be obtained, together with a list of prices, by calling on the subscriber, at the Store, No. 172 River-street. The assortment comprises at least 100 different kinds of Candies, which can be had almost any day, fresh from the shop, and at as reasonable rates as can be bought elsewhere of the same quality.

LOZENGES,

Rolled in Ounce Papers, or by the pound loose, equal in quality and strength to any made in the country.

Sugar Plums, Almonds, &c. of a superior quality.

STEAM REFINED CANDY,

equal in flavor and quality to any ever made. The best of stock always used, and great care taken to exclude all unhealthy substances in the Manufacture of it.

COUNTRY MERCHANTS will find it for their interest to buy of us, as they can make a better selection than they can of the pedlars, and receive it fresh from the shop in good order, and if kept in the original packages until wanted for immediate use, will keep fresh for six months.

CANDY Made Expressly for the Southern Market

☞ A liberal discount will be made to City Wholesale Merchants for orders. Pedlers supplied on liberal terms. Candies carefully packed in boxes of 25, 50 and 100 lbs.—Orders promptly attended to.

The latest and most approved Trusses; Female Supporters; Do. with shoulder braces attached; spinal elevators for curvature of the spine and projection of the shoulder blade. Suspensory shoulder braces. This instrument is so constructed that it not only acts the part of shoulder braces, but carries the heft of the ladies' skirts on their shoulders; and, hence remedies the evil consequent to carrying them on the hips and sides. For gentlemen it not only serves for a shoulder brace, but acts the part of suspenders.

As to the importance and usefulness of the above named instruments and their beneficial effects, their peculiar mechanism and superiority over other instruments of the same name, I need not say anything. They are so well known by physicians, and the multitude of persons that have had occasion to treat them in this northern section of country, that I deem it not important to introduce a long catalogue of certificates; yet I have abundant evidence in my possession to justify me in all I claim or affirm, and deem it a privilege to give references to any who wish to make inquiries.

SHERIFF'S SALE.

BY virtue of several executions issued out of the Supreme Court of the State of New York, to me directed and delivered, against the goods and chattels, lands and tenements, real estate and chattels real, of Henry Haile, and of Henry Haile and Charles Haile, I have seized and taken all the right, title and interest, which the said Henry Haile or the said Henry Haile and Charles Haile had on the the 14th day of January, 1852, or which they, or either of them, may since have acquired, of, in, and to all and singular the following described real estate, to wit:—

Lot No. 2.—Hague tract, in the town of Schroon, in the County of Essex, being same lot sold to Bradley by Joseph Weed and wife, June 1st. 1837. Also, Lot No. 13, in Robert Grant's Patent, in the town of Crownpoint, containing 76 1-10 acres of land, excepting one half acre thereof deeded by Henry Haile and wife to Solomon S. Flint, April 1st, 1851. Also, all that part of Lot No. 14, in Grant's Patent, in Crownpoint, lying east of Putnam's Creek, containing 13 90-100 acres of land.—Also, a small strip of land lying on the north-east side of the road leading from Samuel Russell's to the White Meeting-house, being on Robert Grant's Patent in Crownpoint, occupied in 1845 by Stephen Spaulding containing one half acre. Also, all the South equal half of Lot No. 20, Grant's Patent, in Crownpoint, containing 20 acres. Also, Lot No. 34, in the Pliny Moore Patent, in the town of Crownpoint.

Also, all that certain piece or parcel of land, lying and being in the town of Crownpoint, in the County of Essex and State of New York, and is bounded and described as follows: Beginning in the south line of the road about 2 feet easterly from an apple-tree, and 19 links westerly from a locust tree, both supposed to stand in the north line of said road; then running north 17°, east about 9 rods, until it intersects the south line of the Allen Campbell, then easterly following said south patent line 28 rods to the North line of the road, thence westerly following said North line of said road about 30 rods to the place of beginning, containing by estimation one acre of land, Which said real estate I shall expose for sale at Public Vendue, at the Hotel kept by Jacob Tappen, in Moriah, in said County of Essex, on the 25th day of January next, at Ten o'clock in the forenoon.

DEBILITY

arising from any cause, such as weakness from sickness, where the patient has been confined to bed for some time, for Females after Confinement, Abortion or Miscarriage, this Cordial cannot be excelled in its salutary effects; or in loss of Muscular Energy, Irritability, Physical Prostration, Seminal Weakness, Palpitation of the Heart, Indigestion, Sluggishness, Decay of the Procreative Functions, Nervousness, &c., where a TONIC Medicine is required, it will be found equal, if not superior to any Compound ever used.

TO FEMALES.

Henry's Invigorating Cordial, is one of the most invaluable Medicines in the many Complaints to which Females are subject. It assists nature to brace the whole system, check excesses, and creates renewed health and happiness. Less suffering, disease and unhappiness among Ladies would exist, where they generally to adopt the use of this Cordial. Ladies who are debilitated by those obstructions which females are liable to are restored by the use of a bottle or two to bloom and to vigor.

YOUNG MEN.

That solitary practice, so fatal to the existence of man and it is too young who are most apt to become its victims, from an ignorance of the danger to which they subject themselves, causes

NERVOUS DEBILITY.

Weakness of the System, and Premature Decay. Many of you may now be suffering, misled as to the cause or source of disease. To those, then, who by excess have brought on themselves Premature impotency, Involuntary Seminal Emissions, Weakness and Shrivelling of the Genital Organs, Nervous Affection, or any other consequence of unrestrained indulgence of the sensual passions, occasioning the necessity of renouncing the felicities of lessening both mental and bodily capacity, Hold! Henry's Invigorating Cordial a Medicine that is purely Vegetable, will aid nature to restore those important functions to a healthy state, and will prove of service to you. It possesses rare virtues, is a general remover of disease, and strengthener of the system.

AS A TONIC MEDICINE.

It is unsurpassed. We do not place this Cordial on a footing with quack medicines, and, as is customary, append a long list of Recommendations Certificates, &c., beginning with "Hear what the Preacher says," and such like; it is not necessary, for Henry's Invigorating Cordial, only needs a trial to prove that it will accomplish all we say.

THE GENUINE "HENRY'S INVIGORATING CORDIAL,"

is put up in 8 oz. Panel Bottles, and is easily recognized by the Manufacturer's signature on the label of each Bottle (to counterfeit which is forgery) as well as his private Seal on the cork of each Bottle.

MARGRET'S TEST:

—OR—

CHARITY ITS OWN REWARD.

BY HORATIO ALGER, JR.

'If ever I marry,' said Margaret Bailey to her cousin Olivia, 'it will be a man who does not live entirely for himself, but who, out of the benevolence of a charitable heart, will not pass unheeded the cry of the widow and orphan who call on him for relief.'

'You speak warmly, Margaret.'

'Because I feel it. I have always thought that a charitable man would make a good husband.'

'But how would you be able to judge of this? You are an heiress, and of course have many suitors. Do you not believe that any one of them would be willing to do a charitable mood for a while, if they supposed that upon this issue depended the hand of the wealthy heiress?'

'Perhaps you are right,' said Margaret, thoughtfully; 'but,' added she suddenly, an idea has just come into my head, by which I think the embarrassment can be avoided.'

'What is that?' asked Olivia curiously.

'Let me confess, in the first place, that among all who are generally considered suitors for my hand, perhaps fortune would be the more appropriate word, there are none whom I would think of as a husband except Herbert Lee and Henry Ainsworth. The former, you know, is wealthy, the latter a clerk dependent on his income, which I should judge was not large. Now I have a mind to subject these two to a test.'

'A good idea, how will you manage it?'

'You know there is a poor family in Allen Street—the one of whom we heard to-day, consisting of a widowed mother, who is sick, and three young children. Now I am going, anonymously, of course, to recommend them to the charitable officers of both Herbert Lee and Henry Ainsworth, and we will see the result. They will not recognize your handwriting: therefore I want you to take pen and paper and write a note at my dictation.'

Olivia procured writing materials, and cousin dictated as follows:

'DEAR SIR.—Though a stranger to you, I take the liberty of calling your attention to the case of a poor family now living in a single room at Allen Street, who in consequence of the illness of the mother, who has hitherto supported them by plain sewing, are reduced to extreme want. A little aid at this time would be to them like the visit of an angel from heaven. Will you extend it? At least call upon them, and you will be convinced that this is but a simple statement of the truth.

CHARITY.'

The note was copied, and dispatched through the post office to the address of both gentlemen.

Perhaps three days afterwards Herbert Lee called at Margaret's residence. Margaret adroitly led the conversation to objects of charity and charitable institutions.

'Ah,' said Lee, 'that reminds me of an odd circumstance. I received a letter the other day, recommending to my notice a poor family in Allen Street. It was signed Charity, and very earnestly advised me to go and see them.'

'And did you go?' asked Margaret, quickly.

'Not I!' was the laughing reply. 'I havn't time to waste in hunting up all the destitute families in the city. I should have my hands full.'

'But the family may be suffering for want.'

'If they are, Charity would be in better business in relieving them himself than in sending letters of advice to others.'

'Would Herbert Lee have laughed so merrily if he had known the effect of his want of feeling on her whom he was most anxious to please?

'I think, after all,' said Margaret, when Herbert had withdrawn, 'that I must go and see Mrs. Green myself. If Henry Ainsworth is no more charitable than Herbert, she will fare hard.'

The ladies arrayed themselves for a walk. A few minutes brought them to the residence of the poor widow of whom they were in search.

To their suprise, they found, on being admitted, that a cheerful fire was glowing in the stove, while a pleasant smell of dinner filled the apartment. On a table by the side of the window, were some medicines. The hearth was brushed up, and the room, though scantily furnished, presented a neat and comfortable appearance.

Margaret looked around in surprise.

'I was led to believe,' said she, 'that you were in great want.'

'So we were,' said Mrs. Green; 'but, thanks to the generosity of a noble young gentleman, who stepped forward to our relief, we are no longer so.'

'Indeed, who has thus befriended you?'

'His name is Ainsworth. He sent for a doctor for me, and at his own cost purchased food and coals, so that, by the blessing of God, I hope soon to recover my health, and then all will go right once more.'

After a little more conversation, Margaret and her cousin withdrew, leaving with Mrs. Green some money for her present necessities.

That evening Herbert Lee offered his hand to Margaret Bailey, and, to his surprise, no less than his dispensature, was rejected.

A week afterwards Henry Ainsworth made his appearance. He showed unusual thoughtfulness, and, after a little conversation in regard to business matters, which was seriously done, and the [illegible]

He looked at her earnestly a moment, and then replied, 'I will indeed tell you the subject of my thoughts, and ask you to forgive me afterwards. It is, I know an act of presumption for a poor clerk to speak of love—of marriage to a wealthy heiress, but I cannot keep it secret longer—I love you, Margaret, with truth and sincerity. Do you pardon me?'

'No,' said Margaret promptly, 'for you have said nothing that requires it. And if you indeed think me worthy of taking, you may have me and welcome.'

'Do I hear aright?' was the delighted reply. 'How have I deserved such good fortune?'

'Listen, and I will tell you. I have resolved never to marry one unless I was convinced that he was charitable. Last week you received an anonymous letter recommending a poor family to your charitable notice. I find you have visited them and relieved their necessities. I feel that I can safely trust my happiness in your hands, since you have so nobly stood the test.'

'Truly,' said Henry Ainsworth, as his eyes lighted up with gratitude, 'charity is its own exceeding great reward.'

☞ CITY AND COUNTRY WALKS.—How great the contrast! Yet it can be fully appreciated only by those familiar with both. To such, the country is all happiness, virtue, bliss. There wealth and intelligence are more generally diffused. Inordinate wealth and abject poverty are rare. Few are without the necessaries of life, or the means of their acquisition: and of this class they are so few as to be relieved by their more fortunate neighbors. Then, in the country there are the beautiful landscapes, the magnificent hills, the sparkling rivulets, the pure air, the bright sun, the flocks and herds, the happy people—these, like health however, are duly prized only when lost. In the city, the sun is seldom seen through the smoke that hangs like a pall over its dusty and dirty walls. Here are palaces, such as gold only can build; but they too often cover untold misery and vice. And beside those palaces, under their very windows, are the abodes of poverty, wretchedness and debauchery, such as defy the imagination to depict. Looking upward, the view is obscured by a murky atmosphere; on either hand are dingy or princely walls that bound the vision within the narrow [illegible] narrow streets, silks, jewels, rags and dirt, are so commingled, and the mind so bewildered with confused impressions of wealth and poverty, happiness and misery, virtue and crime, that the emotions are anything but pleasurable. We have read and heard of the various vices practiced by many, both male and female, for pay. We have observed the raggatherers and the puny songpeddlers, but we have recently seen two means of 'keeping soul and body together,' that impressed us more than ever with the extreme of poverty to be found in the city. Walking down that great world's thoroughfare in New York city, called Broadway, during the recent cold, wet weather, when the streets and side-walks were beds of mortar, there were little, ragged, dirty, pale, sickly, and evidently half starved girls of ten or twelve years of age, sweeping the mud from the cross-walks, and holding out their cold and emaciated hands for a penny. Some kindly dropped the well earned reward, but many passed coldly and haughtily on, as though they feared a contagious disease, or deemed those miserable children fit only to sweep the filth from the walks for them for the honor, and then to die. On a recent walk in Albany, we beheld a forlorn-looking child sifting the few coals to be found in the ashes thrown into the street. We needed not to be told that that was a child of misery and destitution, and that she was thus toiling for fuel to keep a poor, sick mother from freezing. These, however, if we can believe what we are told by the most reliable witnesses, are far from being the saddest spectacles of our cities. Nay, that these are comparatively rich to hundreds & thousands that perish annually from cold and want. At a future time we shall follow some of these pitiful objects to their cellars and garrets, and tell our readers what we see there. Ah, we love the country; and the more [illegible] terviews with the city. Yes, yes, we love the country devotedly, passionately. Many sigh for the splendor and fashion of the city, but they are young, and strangers to the facts to which we have alluded. Observation will cure these yearnings, and teach such the blessings of country life. We would that these allusions might warm the hearts and open the purses of our readers during the approaching Holidays and the coming winter. The city does not lack philanthropists and charitable institutions but they cannot reach a tithe of the destitution that prevails in their midst. Private charity must also reach forth its hand to do what it can, remembering that 'it is more blessed to give than to receive.'

Abstracts of Cabinet Reports.

REPORT OF THE SECRETARY OF THE TREASURY.—Some of the leading facts which it presents, may be thus stated:

The receipts of the last fiscal year, ending 30th June last, were—from customs $58, 931,865; lands $1,667,085; miscellaneous, $738,624. Total, $61,337,574. Expenditures $54,026,818. Excess of receipts, 7,310,756. Which, added to the balance on hand at the beginning of the year, makes a ballance on hand at the end of the year, June 30, 1853, of $21,942,892.

During the first quarter (ending 30th September,) of the present fiscal year, the receipts from customs were $19,618,820; from lands, $1,489,562; miscellaneous, $147,995. Total, 21,356, 379. Expenditures the same period, $15, 051,484. Balance in the Treasury 30th September last, $28,217,888.

A large encroachment has been made, during the year, upon the public debt, which has been reduced to $56,336,157; 52. The amount of debt redeemed and purchased from 4th March last, to 3d December inst, is $12,722, 779,75. The Hon. Secretary states that the conditions and prospects of the country justify the application of $15,000,000 more towards the purchase of the remaining portion of the debt. The premiums paid by Uncle Sam, have varied from 8 1-2 to 21 per cent, according to the periods which the stock had to run.

Imports and Exports.—The value of imports during the fiscal year ending June 30, 1853, is $267,978,647, and of Exports $230,452,250. Excess of Imports $37,526,317.—This is the largest excess of imports that has occurred in any year since 1836. But says the Secretary, 'a fair estimate for profits on our Exports and the freight of our vessels, would cast the balance of this account in our favor, without estimating the money brought in by emigrants, of which no account is taken.'

The Tariff.—It is proposed to remove the duties entirely from certain articles of Import, which now yield a revenue of $8,000,000.—Also to arrange the articles which will continue to pay duty into two classes, the one class to pay 100 per cent duty, and the other class 25 per cent. It is calculated that these modifications of the Tariff (to go into effect 1st January, 1855,) will reduce the revenue to about $45,000,000 from Customs, below which it is proposed not to go until the public debt is [illegible] to be thrown into the free list, are the raw articles used in our manufactories.—Also salt,—on which the average revenue for the last five years has amounted to only $222,284, while the annual fishing bounties, for which the salt duty is made a pretext, amount to $289,413. With the duty on salt it is proposed to repeal also the fishing bounties.

The total tonnage of the United States now amounts to 4,407,010 tons, being an increase upon the last year, of 238,600 tons.

THE MINT.—The entire coinage at the U. S. Mint from its origin to 31st October last, was $370,008,192,50. The gold coinage from 1st January last to October, was $46,198,945,60; and the silver coinage 67,906,225. Within four years, 135,872,995,73 has been added to the gold and silver coin of the country, over and above what has been brought by immigrants. A branch Mint has been contracted for at San Francisco, and will be in working order by the 1st of February next. It will be capable of coining 30,000,000 per annum. It is officially stated that the property in Wall st., adjoining the Custom House, and lately occupied by the Bank of the State and the Bank of Commerce, has been leased by the Government for an Assay Office at $53,000 per annum for two years, with the privilege of purchasing within two years at $530,000, with interest from the date of the lease, the payments made for rent to be deducted from the amount.

THE NAVY.—After a review of naval operations for the past year, it devotes several paragraphs to the Naval Academy at Annapolis, which he highly commends—reviews the condition of the Navy Yards and Docks—and then proceeds to recommend an increase of the Navy, as necessary to the maintenance of our proper and elevated rank among the great powers of the world, the protection of our wide-spread and growing commerce, and the defence of our thousands of miles of coast. He proposes to add to our present force two first class sailing frigates and, seven first class steam frigates capable of mounting 50 guns each. He also recommends a re-organization of the Navy—the adoption of a retired list, on reduced pay, for the faithful who have become infirm—the discharge of the inefficient, who have no claim upon the bounty of the government for services rendered—promotion regulated by capacity, merit, and not by mere seniority of commission—pay, to some extent, controlled by the service. The Hon. Secretary urges with much ability the adoption of these changes, as well as the increase of the Navy above mentioned, and we have great hopes that his recommendations will be substantially adopted. Without them, our Navy cannot be what it ought to be. I cannot live upon the past, but must gird itself for new achievments when the exigencies of the country shall require them.

The Hon Secretary proposes such a modification of our system in regard to seamen as will encourage more permanent enlistments—identify seamen more thoroughly with the Navy, and elevate their character [illegible] wards as well as punish[illegible] regulations appropriate [illegible] specifics and advocates. [illegible] for the support of the Navy [illegible] ding June 30th, 1855, and for all objects coming within the control of the Navy Department, amount to $11,731,515, including $3 379,344 for special objects, such as transportation of the mails by steamships, &c.

AN ABSTRACT OF THE REPORT OF THE SECRETARY OF WAR.—This document states the authorized strength of the U. S. Army to be 13,821 men and officers; but the actual strength, according to the latest returns, is only 10,417, of which number 8,878 are employed in the frontier departments, or are now on their way to them.—He says, further, that the measures taken for the protection of our frontiers have been actively and constantly employed; that Indian depredations have been comparatively infrequent, and, except in California and Oregon, have not attained more than a local importance. New posts are to be established in the Indian country west of the Mississippi, in more favorable positions, to enable the Department to dispense with a number of the smaller and less important posts. A greater force is also to be employed for the protection of the emigrants crossing the plains. A majority of the cases of Indian depredations in Texas which have come to the knowledge of the Department, have been by Indians from Mexican territory. Maj. General Smith, aided by an experienced corps of engineers, is selecting sites for permanent fortifications on the Rio Grande, one of which will be opposite El Paso and another at the Camanche crossing. It is the intention of the Deparment that, as soon as possible, a considerable force shall be sent to the Pacific coast, and one of the Brigadier Generals of the Army ordered to the command. Nine companies of artillery are posted in Florida to aid the effort now in progress there to effect the removal of the Indians. Coercive measures are to be used if found necessary. Two of the regiments of artillery are to be arranged on the Canadian frontier and the Atlantic and Gulf coasts, a third on Rio Grande boundary, and a fourth on the Pacific coasts.—Of the cavalry regiments, one will be required in Texas, one in New Mexico, and the remaining are for the Western frontier. A fourth regiment of cavalry is asked of Congress by the Secretary. Three regiments of infantry are required in Texas besides two on the frontier west of the Mississippi, one in New Mexico and one in the Indian country of the Pacific.

It is the purpose of the Department to post the troops in large bodies at commanding positions, instead of dispersing them among numerous small posts. In consequence of the difficulty of keeping the ranks full, the Secretary proposes:—1st, an increase of the present pay of the common soldier; 2nd, an additional increase for each successive period of five years, so long as he shall remain in the army; 3rd, provisions for the promotion to the lowest grades of commissioned officers of such non commissioned officers of the army as may be found qualified for, and by their character and services entitled to, such advancement. Also, that every soldier, who having been honorably discharged from the service of the United States, shall, within one month thereafter, re enlist, shall be entitled to two dollars per month in addition to the ordinary pay of his grade for the first period of five years after the expiration of his first enlistment, and a further sum of one dollar per month for each successive period of five years so long as he shall remain continuously in the Army.—The Secretary argues elaborately in favor of the increase of the Army, showing the actual necessity forsuch a measure. He recommends that the minimum organization of all companies be fixed, as in the mounted riflemen, at 64 privates, and that there be added to the present military establishment [illegible] regiments of dragoons and [illegible] regiments of riflemen, which would give a minimum organization of 15,528 officers and men, which may be expanded, if the limit fixed by the law of June 7th, 1850, be continued, to 17,414, and on a war establishment, of 128 privates per company, to 27,813, thus providing for a state of war an effective increase of from 10,000 to 12,000 men without creation of new regiments. General Scott recommends, also, that another company of sappers and miners be added to the engineer corps.

REPORT OF THE SECRETARY OF THE INTERIOR.—The Secretary thinks the Land System is nearly correct in principle and that in its details it needs but little modification. During the year, 9,819 411 acres have been surveyed, 10,363,891 acres brought into market, and 1 083,495 acres sold. The number of land warrants issued to the 30th of September was 266,013, of which there were then outstanding 66,917. The entire area of the public domain is estimated at 1,484,000,000 of acres.—The portion in the States was purchased at the rate of 14,41 cents per acre, amounting to $67,999,700. Add the Reservation valued at $4,250,000 and adding the cost of selling lands sold previous to June last the entire cost, excluding surveying, amounts to $68,934 015. The whole amount accruing from sales up to June 30, 1853, was $143 4-3,478, being $53,299,455 more than the cost of the whole. It is estimated that the amount which will have been realized for them, to the sum of $311,191,369.

The policy of bringing the lands into market at the earliest possible day is strongly recommended.

The Secretary invites the attention of the disposition of the mineral lands of California, the [illegible] sions of the Pension Office, [illegible] the same [illegible] Patents

REPORT OF THE GENERAL LAND OFFICE.—The following figures exhibit the operations of this department for the year:

	Acres.
During the year ending 30th September, 1853, there were surveyed	9,819,411
Brought into market,	10,363,891
In the fiscal year ending 30th June 1843, there were sold	1,083,495
Located with Military Warrants,	6,143,360
Located with other certificates,	9,426
Making a total of	7,235,281
In addition to these there were reported under Swamp Land Grant	16,684,263
And for Internal Improvements, Railroads, &c.	1,427,457
Making an aggregate of	25,346,992

The great increase in sales and locations of land for the last fiscal year, and in the third quarter of the current calendar year, has occurred in those States where Railroads have been projected, and grants made for them, or where such works are in contemplation; or by the proposed construction of the Sault Ste. Marie Canal.

Boys and Girls.

Hints to Little Folks.

When your parents tell you to do anything, do not whimper and say you 'don't want to,' or 'you will in a minute,' but do it immediately and cheerfully; for when your dear parents are laid in the grave, the recollection of your disobedience will reproach you.

When your parents dress you nicely on Sabbath and bid you go to Sabbath-school, do not run away and play, for one day a mother's voice will chide you from the cold gloom of the tomb.

Don't fret and murmur when you are sent to school, but look around you at the many little boys and girls who are forced to beg or work for a living, and believe that you possess peculiar advantages, and that they must be improved.

When your parents reprove you, do not reply with impudence or in anger, but know that it is your good, and some day the gentle hand that now seeks to guide your little steps aright will be still beneath the valley's sod.

If you are told to keep out of the streets, or to relinquish the company of an associate, do not think it hard, but believe that you possess no more stability than thousands who have been led away, and that in an evil hour you may forsake the path of rectitude, and be hurled away in the stream of destruction.

Avoid bad habits. Do not think it manly to drink, smoke or chew. That is a mistaken idea; they only indicate bad family government, or a fickle, unstable disposition.

Be kind to one another. There is nothing that reproaches one so bitterly as an unkind word in a moment of passion.—When your little sister lies cold in death, the little causes of displeasure which you have given her will cluster around your heart and wring many a bitter tear. In your journey through life, there will be nothing so grateful to your thoughts as the pleasing conviction of your obedience to your parents while they lived. Oh! obey them, then, little friends, while they are with you; think that you can never do enough for them. We have been an orphan for nearly twelve years, and we have often thought that if our parents could once more be restored to us, they would never again be pained with our little faults. Oh, trifle not with a mother's heart; there is a stream of affection within a mother's breast that, however ill you use her, however often you may cause her bitter tears to flow, will ever continue to nourish and protect the wayward fancy, and recall every wish to step aside from a mother's influence.

Agriculture.

Cut Feed

The question is often asked, whether much good is gained by cutting up hay, straw, &c., to feed neat stock. Something depends on the circumstances.

If your hay is of the first quality, your cattle will eat the whole without cutting, and save you the labor. But if your fodder is mostly poor, or if it has been injured in making, you will do well to cut it short and mix something with it to make it more palatable.

We have had the coarse fodder cut fine and sprinkled with water, and by adding a little meal and mixing the whole together, our cattle have been wintered with as little expense than on merchantable hay. Cows in milk live well on it, and it seems to be the best way of disposing of hay that is not very good.

Straw also may be disposed of in this way. We make it a saving, as we do by bushing up meal, that is not fat enough for eating without an addition of butter, or something that will improve the most.

Husks and corn stocks when well saved have much virtue in them, and most of it goes into the manure heap, unless particular attention is paid to fodder. Cattle find it difficult to bite off the stems, tho' they place their foot on a part of them, while they pull with their teeth and their gums.

Some farmers cut them up fine for their cattle, and say they would do it even if the stems would be worth nothing for fat-der, because of the trouble they make in overhauling the manure.

When all the coarse fodder is cut short, there will be no long manure, a shovel will enter a heap, and when spread a harrow will bury it sufficiently deep.

TURNING FARMER.—A PRESENT TO BE PROUD OF.—During our absence recently, a friend from a distant town made us a visit, and brought us as a present nine hens. 1 male and two female Shanghais, 1 pair Bolton Greys, and the balance mixed breeds. If any Editor can beat that we will give him his choice from our flock next summer. Although a novice in poultry raising, we have been delighted in taking care of them, and making their acquaintance. We find each one a study—with a temperament, habits, and countenance of its own. The male Shanghai is a combination of the dandy and a green horn. He reminds us of those dandies with shawls, yet he is totally unsophisticated. He is not six months old, and yet can eat corn from a barrel set on end. Of course he is overgrown, and has scarcely got the use of his legs, so that he is laughably awkward. He has one habit, however, in common with dandies—like them he uses a double tined fork and puts his nose close to his dish when he eats. There is this difference between the two—the Shanghai, if he lives, will do something for the benefit of mankind, while the dandy will not. There is a remarkable similarity in language, also; and we think after a little study, a grammar might be got up adapted to both. We go for the Shanghais, however, and mean no disrespect to them by this comparison.

The female Shanghais are quiet and docile, and one of them is the prettiest fowl we ever looked at. The Bolton Grey rooster is a splendid fellow, and as proud as Lucifer, and courageous as he is gay. He is not half a year old yet, but he is the leader of our little flock. The great, lubberly Shanghai is big enough to swallow him at a single meal, yet skulks away from him from very fear. A neighbor's rooster, old, and used to fighting, came into our yard the other day, when without so much as a notice to leave, little Grey walked up and pitched into him. The result was as might have been expected. Poor little Grey soon lay bleeding and exhausted at the feet of his more powerful neighbor.—We then drove off the latter, and thought Grey would not again be so presumptuous, but he had scarcely got breath when he rushed again to the fight. As he is rather a coxcomb we suffered a little of his vanity to be taken out of him, and then shut him up. He essayed to enter into conversation on the adventure, but as we did not converse in his language it was soon closed.—We inferred that he was mortified, but at the same time resolved to be revenged when he got older. We verily believe he wanted to lay his head against us, and weep for shame, mortification, and anger. We were about suggesting to him to send for a political Editor not a hundred miles from Keeseville, who being a great linguist and otherwise not unlike, they might sympathize together. But he seemed to exclaim, "spare me this," and we desisted. To his credit be it said, he has behaved himself like a gentleman ever since, tho' he will strut and crow.

Of the whole flock, one little yellow and white hen, has attracted our attention most. She is a little duck of a hen, quiet, sociable, tame,—just like some little chubby, clever, benevolent, talkative women. Never does any harm, would be a peace maker if she had strength of character sufficient, never out of humor, industrious, tidy, and a word of kindness for all. Our little hen is not only just like some women, but she looks like them. We have not named her yet, but we shall by and by. She is truly a real love of a hen, rather soft to be sure, but there are many worse hens than see is. She is one of those kind that will lay where she is put, and will set when you want her to. She is not enterprising, not of the "strong-minded," "Women's rights" kind, but withal a dapper little hen who loves home, and never wanders out of sight of the barn door. She's a model hen. The rest don't seem possessed of any marked peculiarities, like a large portion of mankind. We must now buy us a book, and see what we can learn about Poultry. The Ignorant, or False.

It has been asserted by the Softs in this county that the difference between the vote for Senator and that for the State ticket can be accounted for only on the hypothesis, that nearly 200 whigs who voted for Richards, whig Senator, voted the Hard State ticket. We undertake to say that not ten whigs in the county voted that ticket, and we think not over five. A reference to the official canvass will show this statement to be incorrect, nay, false, or made in ignorance. The whig vote is throughout from 1595 to 1608, a variation of only 13 votes. The dem. Judicial vote was 1280, the Co. vote 1328, and the combined vote on both dem. State tickets was 1328, with variations of not more than a vote or two, State Treasurer excepted. Ex Senator Rogers received only 1167 votes, or 161 votes less than the dem. Co. ticket. Senator Richards rec'd 1773 votes, or 165 votes more than the highest whig. Thus is the statement false beyond a doubt. We are not surprised at the "results" of the "labors" of an Editor who resorts to such weak inventions.

A SAGACIOUS HOUND.—A party from our village went out on a hunting excursion the other day. A large fat doe was soon started, and as usual made for a Pond, which at this season is covered with ice.—When she was fairly on the ice the dog suddenly ceased barking and left the track, passing quite around the pond to where the deer would cross, and stood waiting the latter's approach without a cry, or a whine. When she was within about 15 rods of the shore the old dog made a rush and before she could turn on the slippery footing the old dog had grappled her, and held her till the hunters arrived. A sagacious and valuable dog that. He never fails when put out, and our village sportsmen leave home on a hunting excursion after breakfast with the certainty of bringing back a deer for supper. ☞With ordinary industry they will be able to supply themselves with fresh meat this winter notwithstanding the high price of provisions and the scarcity of money!

"☞HORACE WATERS, the great Piano Forte Dealer, and Music Publisher, of 333 Broadway, New York, has sent us the following sheets of popular Music, published by him: "Poughkeepsie Polka"; "The Dying Words of Little Katy; or, will he come"; "The Katy-Did Song; or, Katy Did's Answer to Little Katy."

MR. WATERS is about to present to his numerous customers, all over the Union, one dollar's worth of sheet Music, as a New Year's Gift, besides a splendid lithograph wrapper. As Mr. Waters says he will consider as customers all who purchase of him one dollar's worth of Music, between now and Jan. 1, 1854, we advise our musical friends to send on to him without delay.—They will receive both the Music they purchase, and their New Year's Gift, postage free.

BRAZIL NUTS.—This nut is to be had at all the saloons and stores, and the boys are fond of them; but how many can tell how they grow without first turning to a Fruit culturer, or a Natural History? Considerable merriment has been caused in our village by compelling some of our most learned folks to 'give it up.'—Some guessed 'a dried winter squash,' some 'Pomegranites,' &c., &c.

About 20 of these nuts grow inside a shell about the size of a 6 lb. cannon shot; this again is enclosed in a shuck like that of a walnut. The shell is dark, rough, and hard, requiring a heavy stroke of a hammer to break it. R. H. Peabody Esq. brought half a dozen from N. Y. as a curiosity, which he distributed among his friends, and one to the Editor, for which he has our thanks. It holds a prominent place in our cabinet.

NEW METHOD OF BEGGING.—The following is a bona fide advertisement, taken from the 'Wants' column of the N. Y. Herald:—

'Any kind person having an old cooking stove of no use to them, to give away, will confer a great favor upon a young couple, who are entirely without one, and no means to purchase one, this inclement weather.—A line addressed to Nesstas, Herald Office will meet with attention.'

A hopeful 'young couple,' truly. We have 'an old cooking stove of no use' to us, and that wont pay the trouble of cartage to the tin shop for old iron. If that 'young couple' who are entirely without one, and no means to purchase one this inclement weather,' will come and take it away it will 'confer' as 'great a favor' upon us as 'upon a young couple.' Anything else in our line?

☞In the high anti-masonic times in New York, a member of the Legislature changed his boarding place during the session. Being asked by Silas Wright the reason, he replied; "Oh, I have got tired of this eternal talk about anti-masonry; the house that I left was full of anti-masons and I heard nothing but the Murder of Morgan, and the danger of secret societies and the wickedness of masonry. I couldn't stand it any longer, and so I sloped."—'But,' said Mr. Wright, 'I don't see as you have gained anything any how; at this house there are quite as many of the same political stripe, and certainly much stronger men; here are Spencer and Seward and Granger and a dozen others, who talk anti-masonry quite as much as those whom you have left.' 'Oh, yes,' said the malcontent member, but those fellows over yonder believe it!'

☞The Clinton Prison has not been the most profitable of our institutions, although it has not been without its use. A great deal of money has been wasted on unprofitable experiments, or upon experiments unskilfully made by incompetent men. The prisoners have generally been made to work hard, but their work has not always been judiciously directed. Recently, it has been deemed wise to let out the labor of the convicts by contract, as at the other prisons. The first letting has just 'come off,' and the Messrs. KINGSLAND, of Keeseville, were the successful bidders. The prisoners are to be employed, in the prison yard, in raising and separating iron ore; and we have no doubt both the State and the Contractors will be benefitted by the change.—Albany Journal.

Coleman's Troy House, Troy, N. Y.—We have but recently made the acquaintance of Mr. Coleman, and take the first opportunity to acknowledge our favorable impressions. In Mr. Coleman and in his clerk, Mr. H. C. Bentley, the travelling public find gentlemen, whose kindnesses & civilities never tire. As a popular Landlord, and a fashionable house, 'Coleman's Troy House' is too well known to be noticed at length.

The Canada Grand Trunk Telegraph.—We were happy, a few days since, in making the acquaintance of Mr. JAMES R. BOYD, the gentlemanly and able superintendent of this extensive and important Telegraph Company. Mr. Boyd was on his return from New York, where he had been on business connected with that line; and he had with him, and exhibited to us, several specimens of a new 'sub-marine wire'—the largest of which was not more than half an inch in diameter, and within this small space was contained six copper wires about the size of a knitting needle. These small wires are perfectly insulated, and so closely packed with gutta percha as to keep them entirely separate from each other. Around the gutta percha and the six wires, there was some kind of composition which we should judge was about an eighth of an inch thick, so as to protect the sub-marine wires and make them more durable. But what seems to us most remarkable and incomprehensible is this—that six separate and distinct telegraph lines, can use these six small wires at the same time, and they too all within an eight of an inch of each other.

We learned from Mr. B., that these specimens were manufactured in Scotland, and cost much less than the sub-marine they are now using in crossing the Ottawa.

We feel interested in the success of the 'Grand Trunk,' as well as in our own Printing Line—as both are to connect at Montreal.

Mr. P. C. DODGE also informs us that Messrs. SNOW & DWIGHT (like THOMPSON & SMEAD, of our printing line,) are excellent business men, and whatever they undertake, will 'go-ahead.' They have already nearly completed one of the longest lines in the world, under one company. All our citizens, as well as ourselves are interested in this new enterprise, and we shall endeavor to keep them well 'posted' on the subject, as the work progresses.—Plattsburgh Rep.

Facts to Consider.

DUTIES OF NORTHERN MEN, WHEN SOUTHERN MEN TURN TRAITORS TO THEM.—We published some few days since the following paragraph which the "Evening Post" here, and the "New York Times" here, made a great noise about:

Some Southern Democratic journals christen the Whig (State) Ticket just elected, 'the Seward ticket,' and call Mr. Leavenworth, the Secretary of State, as 'a Jerry rescuer,' ect. Well, what of it, if so? What else do the Southern Democracy deserve? Do they think, we, Northern men, are going to be more loyal to the Constitution, more true to the Southern compact in it, than they are themselves? Do they think we are going to throw off Seward, when they reject Dickinson, and take Van Buren up? If so, they very much mistake. We may continue, we give fair notice, to catch Whig, 'runaway niggers' that come this way—because the Southern Whigs are true to us—but we catch no their politics out. If Jefferson Davis, or Mr. Guthrie, or Mr. Dobbin, has a slave that runs off this way, that slave need not go on the 'underground railroad' to Canada—but in broad day on the Hudson—with a million of people looking him in the face.—[N. Y. Express, 18th inst.

The New Orleans Bulletin, in the heart of the largest Slave holding region of the United States thus comments:

The Expsess is entirely right. It proposes to do exactly what is just and proper, besides giving expression to a very natural feeling. Since the fusion of Secessionists and Abolitionists, we do not think any Northern Whig called upon to help to arrest runaway 'Democratic niggers.'

A year or two ago, Jeff. Davis & Co., were striving to dissolve the Union, because of the adoption of the compromise measures. At the same time, John Van Buren & Co. were advocating literally, the same thing, owing to the same cause. Now, they are all as harmonious as brothers, work kindly in the same harness, and vie with each other in expressions of respect and admiration, to say nothing of the handsome manner in which they have divided 'the spoils' between themselves.

RULED OUT OF ORDER.—Naturally enough, Mr. Olds, a well known Ohio Free Soil Democrat, and as chairman of the Democratic Congressional Caucus, ruled out of order Mr. Frederick Stanton's Compromise Resolutions!—but what was naturally enough, Tennessee Alabama, and Virginia, looked on approvingly.

The 'Albany Argus,' in reference to the 'Union's' ruling the same principles out of order, when President Pearce, makes his appointments, says:

No administration basing itself upon an acquiescence in the compromise measures only, can bear rule in this country with popularity and success. The democracy requires an absolute approval of them. An acquiescence may be discontinued to-morrow; an approval is a solemn endorsement which will be a pledge for the future. Let not the Union mistake or pervert the popular verdict rendered in 1852, and which this State has found it necessary to review in 1853,—the one was a solemnly adjudged decision in favor of Gen. Pierce, the champion of the men of the north who had stood by the constitutional rights of the south; the other was the equally solemn expression of disapproval of the cabinet which had attempted to reverse that decision.'

That the 'Argus' is not a Journal which speaks 'without authority' is seen in the 100,000 votes its friends rolled up, impromptu, in the last State Election.

WINTER.—We have had light falls of snow and a little sleighing for light loads, and though we have occasionally had a 'cold snap,' the weather on the whole has been remarkably mild and fine. Indeed, of late years, fall and spring have been blending and annihilating winter. A few years ago we used to have winters that were terrific, but of late these months are a series of old fashioned Aprils. Why is this?

Auld Lang Syne.

For several years when we lived at Moriah and Fort Henry, the annual return of Christmas brought to our door the hearty and honest countenance of a good Irish, Catholic friend, Jack Hawks, with a nice fat turkey. We miss him sadly, and the season never returns without bringing Jack and his annual present to our mind. We would give something for a good hearty shake of his faithful hand, and his cordial greeting. They would be of more worth than rubies, or gold. How wealth, station, fame, ambition, but above all how the formalities of fashionable intercourse, sink into insignificance beside honest worth, a true heart, a faithful friend; tho' dressed in the garb of coarse fabrics, 'a man's a man for a' that.' Here's to thee Jack—if your hands are rough, the grasp is honest, if your garments are coarse, they cover a true heart within; toil on Jack, in simplicity and faith, and when the coming years cluster thick and heavy, be comforted, for Kings would give their Thrones and all their riches to exchange positions with you, and be assured that you have one friend, who can testify when you have gone that you fill the grave of an honest man. Here's to thee Jack—and thine.

Congress is fairly under way, and the Administration is on the high road to destruction. In the formation of committees, there was a studied insult to Whigs and Hunkers. The ablest of both the latter are placed at the foot of unimportant committees, and below fools and rogues through out, because the latter happened to be with the Administration. They do not seem to remember that there is a day of retribution in the future, and no farther off than '56, when whigs and hunkers will sweep the country from Maine to California.

Christmas Times.

'Twas the night before Christmas, when all through the house,
Not a creature was stirring, not even a mouse.
The stockings were hung by the chimney with care,
In the hope that St. Nicholas soon would be there.
The children were nestled all snug in their beds,
While visions of sugar plums danced in their heads;
And mamma in her kerchief and I in my cap,
Had just settled our brains for a long winter's nap;
When out on the lawn there rose such a clatter,
I sprang from my bed to see what was the matter.
Away to the window I flew like a flash,
Tore open the shutters, and threw up the sash.
The moon on the breast of the new fallen snow,
Give the lustre of mid-day to the objects below,
When, what to my wondering eyes should appear,
But a miniature sleigh, and eight tiny reindeer,
With a little, old driver, so lively and quick,
I knew in a moment it must be St. Nick.
More rapid than eagles his coursers they came
And he whistled, and shouted, and called them by name,
"Now, Dasher! now, Dancer! now, Prancer, now, Vixen!
On, Comet! on, Cupid! on, Dunder, and Blixen!
To the top of the porch! to the top of the wall!
Now dash away! dash away! dash away all!"
As dry leaves before the wild hurricane fly,
When they meet with an obstacle mount to the sky.
So up to the house-top the coursers they flew,
With the sleigh full of toys—and St. Nicholas too.
And then, in a twinkling, I heard on the roof,
The prancing and pawing of each little hoof.
As I drew in my head, and was turning around
Down the chimney St. Nicholas came with a bound.
He was dressed all in fur, from his head to his foot,
And his clothes were all tarnished with ashes and soot.
A bundle of toys was flung on his back,
And he looked like a pedlar just opening his pack;
His eyes, how they twinkled! his dimples how merry,
His cheeks were like roses, his nose like a cherry;
His droll little mouth was drawn up like a bow,
And the beard of his chin was as white as the snow;
The stump of a pipe he held tight in his teeth,
And the smoke it encircled his head like a wreath,
He had a broad face and a little round belly,
That shook when he laughed, like a bowl full of jelly.
He was chubby and plump, a right jolly old elf,
And I laughed, when I saw him, in spite of myself.
A wink of his eye and a twist of his head,
Soon gave me to know I had nothing to dread;
He spoke not a word, but went straight to his work,
And filled all his stockings; then turned with a jerk,
And laying his finger aside of his nose,
And giving a nod, up the chimney he rose;
He sprang to his sleigh, to his team gave a whistle,
And away they all flew like the down of a thistle;
But I heard him exclaim, ere he drove out of sight,
"Merry Christmas to all, and to all a good night."

Keeseville, December 22, 1853.

Died, in the city of Brooklyn, N. Y. Dec. 14, 1853 after a long and painful illness, Mary K., wife of the late Rodman Brown, aged 57 years.

(Communicated.)

The subject of the above notice, during her protracted sickness, was called upon to go through many severe trials. Her sufferings of body being constantly racked with the most acute pains, were of the most excruciating kind, yet, no murmur of complaint against the Providence of God in thus afflicting her, escaped her lips. Her strong faith in her Redeemer was sufficient for these things; and as she walked thro' the Dark Valley of the Shadow of Death her language was, "Thy Rod and thy staff, O, God they comfort and support me." Her happy spirit now and wih forever join in the songs of the ransomed of heaven.

SHERIFF'S SALE.

BY virtue of several executions, issued out of the Supreme Court of the State of New York, to me directed and delivered against the property of Wm. A. G. Arthur, and Clark P. Ives, I have seized and taken all the right, title, and interest which the said Wm. A. G. Arthur & Clark P. Ives had on the 21 day of June 1853 or which they may since have acquired, of, in, and to the following described parcels of real estate:

1 "All that certain piece or parcel of land, situate, lying and being at the Lower Falls, in said town of Ticonderoga, described as follows, to wit: being the south west part of lot of land known as lot No. 5 in Kellogg's survey, of 40 village lots at the lower falls; beginning at the south west corner of a stone basement where it forms an angle with a wooden building, and runs thence along the wooden building and thro' the lot south 13 degrees west two chains & sixty-six links to the centre of the highway leading to Woodsville; thence, along the same north seventy-eight and a half degrees west 69 links to the east line of a lane laid out two rods wide, thence along the same north eleven and a half degrees east two chains and sixty nine links to a stake; thence south seventy five and a half degrees east seventy four links to the place of beginning containing 19-100 of an acre, same more or less."

2 "All that certain lot, piece, or parcel of land, bounded and described as follows to wit; commencing at the highway 8 feet north of John McCormick's tailors shop, thence north along the highway 19 feet, thence westerly in a parallel line with McCormick's shop twenty four feet, thence southerly at right angles nineteen feet, thence easterly, in a parallel line with said McCormick's shop twenty four feet, to the place of beginning; with the right to use the space between the grocery shop or building in common with others as a lane; same lot deeded by Wm. E. Calkins to Pat. McVeigh the 9th Septr., 1846, same lot and building now occupied by Marshall & Quin as a grocery."

3 "All that certain piece or parcel of land situate, lying and being in the town of Ticonderoga, beginning at a stake in the line between the land formerly owned and occupied by James Jones and Wm. Canfield near a rock maple tree blazed, thence n'h 88° 45' west 14 chains 83 links to a stake, thence north 76° and 30' east 27 chains 96 links to a stake and stones, thence south 8° 45' west 25 chains 50 links, thence north 79° west 25 chains and fifty links to place of beginning, containing 53 acres of land be the same more or less."

4 "All that lot of land lying and being in the town of Ticonderoga aforesaid, and is known as lot No. 17 in McIntosh Patent as the same was laid down and distinguished by a map of said patent by Peter C Bishop, special reference being thereto had, containing 190 acres of land more or less 5 Also all that other piece of land situate in Summers Vale, town of Ticonderoga, county of Essex, and State of New York, distinguished and bounded on a map of said patent filed in the secretary's office by lot number 135, containing 94 1-4 acres."

6 "All the equal undivided 3-4 part of that certain piece or parcel of land situate and being in Ticonderoga aforesaid, known as the black lead lot in the Sumner Vale Patent, known as number 132.

7 "All that certain piece or parcel of land situate, lying and being in the town of Ticonderoga, being part of what is usually called the John Carr lot in the Cockburn Patent in said town, and bounded as follows: beginning at a stake and stones on the East and West road, thence southerly along the line of said lot thirteen rods to a stake and stones, thence easterly to the line of lot number 17, thence northerly to the said east and west road, thence southerly along the middle of said road to the place of beginning, containing one acre and a half of land be the same more or less 8 Also, all and singular that piece or parcel of land situate in Ticonderoga, and is a part of lot number 11, in McIntosh Patent, bounded as follows: Beginning in the west line of said lot in a road leading from Bly's saw mill westerly at a stake and stones, thence on said road east 5 chains to a stake and stones, thence south 19° 15' east 30 chains to a black ash stake and stones, thence 5 chains to a stake and stones in the west line of said lot, thence north 19° 15' west 30 chains in the west line of said lot to the place of beginning, containing 15 acres, reserving all mines and minerals. Also, all such reservations as are subject to a deed from Francis Arthur to Thomas Burns.

9 "All the equal undivided one fourth part of lot No. 134, in the Sumner Vale Patent in the town of Ticonderoga, being the same premises deeded to said Wilson by John Porter, Jr., Dec. 20, 1842.

10 "All that certain piece or parcel of land situate lying and being in Ticonderoga, and bounded as follows: Beginning on the north side of the highway leading from the village at the Lower Falls, to the 4 corners west of A. P. Delano's store at a stake at the south west corner of the village lot owned and occupied by Lucius Thatcher, from thence North along the line of said lot to a stake, 16 rods from the place of beginning, thence westerly at right angles to a stake 7 1-2 rods, thence southerly on a parallel line with Thatcher's lot 16 rods to to the highway, thence easterly along said highway to the place of beginning, containing 3-4 acre of land."

All of which said real property I shall expose for sale, at public auction, at the Inn of Jacob Tappen in Moriah, in said county of Essex, on the 26th day of November next, at 12 o'clock at noon. Dated Oct. 15, 1853. 493 7w

FRAUD.

ALL who want Axes of the real COLLINS & Co. make, should be particular to notice the stamps, as there are various counterfeits and imitations stamped Collins and labelled much like ours, which are fraudulently sold in some parts of the United States as our manufacture. They are made in different parts of the country by various axe-makers, and are generally of very inferior quality. The genuine Collins axes, which have acquired such an extensive reputation are invariably stamped "COLLINS & CO. HARTFORD," and each axe has a printed label with my signature. It is now more than TWENTY-FIVE YEARS since we commenced the business with the stamp of "Collins & Co. Hartford," and I do not know of any other axe maker by the name of Collins in the United States.

"Man Know Thyself."

An Invaluable Book for 25 Cents.

"EVERY FAMILY SHOULD HAVE A COPY."

20,000 Copies sold in less than 3 months. A new edition, revised and improved just issued.

Dr. Hunter's Medical Manual and Hand Book for the Afflicted—

Containing an outline of the origin, progress, treatment and cure of every form of disease contracted by promiscuous sexual intercourse, by self abuse or by sexual excess, with advice for their prevention, written in a familiar style, avoiding all medical technicalities, and everything that would offend the ear of decency, from the result of some twenty years successful practice, exclusively devoted to the cure of diseases of a delicate or private nature.

To which is added, receipts for the cure of the above diseases, and a treatise on the causes, symptoms and cure of the Fever and Ague.

Testimony of the Prof of Obstetrics in Penn. College, Philadelphia—"Dr. Hunter's Medical Manual."—The author of this work, unlike the majority of those works who advertise to cure the diseases of which it treats, is a graduate of one of the best Colleges in the United States. It affords me pleasure to recommend him to the unfortunate, or to the victim of malpractice, as a successful and experienced practitioner, in whose honor and integrity they may place the greatest confidence.

JOSEPH LONGSHORE, M. D.

From A Woodward M. D., of Penn. University, Philadelphia—It gives me pleasure to add my testimony to the professional ability of the author of the "Medical Manual." Numerous cases of diseases of the Genital Organs some of them of long standing have come under my notice, in which his skill has been manifest in restoring to perfect health, in some instances where the patient has been considered beyond medical aid. In the treatment of Seminal weakness, or disarrangement of the functions produced by Self-abuse, or Excess of venery, I do not know his superior in the profession. I have been acquainted with the Author some thirty years, and deem it no more than justice to him as well as a kindness to the unfortunate victim of early indiscretion, to recommend him as one, in whose professional skill and integrity they may safely confide themselves. ALFRED WOODWARD, M.D.

"This is, without exception, the most comprehensive and intelligible work published on the class of diseases of which it treats. Avoiding all technical terms, it addresses itself to the reason of its readers. It is free from all objectionable matter, and no parent, however fastidious, can object to placing it in the hands of his sons. The author has devoted many years to the treatment of the various complaints treated of, and with too little breath to puff,' and 'too little presumption to impose,' he has offered to the world at the merely nominal price of 25 cents, the fruits of some 20 years most successful practice."—Herald.

"No teacher or parent should be without the knowledge imparted in this invaluable work. It would save years of pain, mortification and sorrow to the youth under their charge."—People's Advocate.

A Presbyterian clergyman in Ohio, in writing of "Hunter's Medical Manual," says: "Thousands upon thousands of our youth, by evil example and influence of the passions, have been led into the habit of self-pollution without realizing the sin and fearful consequences upon themselves and their posterity. The constitutions of thousands who are raising families have been enfeebled, if not broken down, and they do not know the cause or the cure. Anything that can be done so to enlighten and influence the public mind as to check, and ultimately to remove this wide-spread source of human wretchedness, would confer the greatest blessing next to the religion of Jesus Christ, on the present and coming generations. Intemperance (or the use of intoxicating drinks,) though it has slain thousands upon thousands, is not a greater scourge to the human race. Accept my thanks on behalf of the afflicted, and, believe me your co-worker in the good work you are so actively engaged in."

One copy, (securely enveloped,) will be forwarded free of postage to any part of the United States for 25 cents, or 6 copies for $1.—

THE MARRIAGE STATE;

Shall Happiness and Health, or Misery and Sickness, attend it?

MOST STARTLING CONSIDERATIONS!

Reflections for the Thoughtful.

Strange that countless human beings exist and drag through life as do the beasts of the field, or the insects of the earth, evincing no more thought or reflection than though the noble faculties of mind were not vouchsafed to them.

Many such are husbands and fathers, upon whom are dependent the health, the well-being, and the happiness of a confiding and affectionate wife, with perhaps a family of children.

HOW OFTEN IT HAPPENS THAT THE

WIFE LINGERS FROM YEAR TO YEAR

In that pitiable condition as not even for one day to feel the happy and exhilerating influence incident to the enjoyment of health.

She may not be an invalid confined to her bed, or even to her room; as her pride, ambition and energy induce and nerve her to take personal charge of her household, even when her health will not admit of it; but she is nevertheless perceptibly sinking from day to day, and always ailing.

Thus, day after day, and month after month transpire. Her health daily sinks, till finally even the hope of recovery no longer remains. And thus

THE BLOOMING BRIDE,

But a few years ago in the flush of health and youth, and buoyancy of spirits, rapidly and apparently inexplicably, becomes a feeble, sickly, debilitated wife, with frame emaciated, nerves unstrung, spirits depressed, countenance bearing the impress of suffering, and an utter physical and mental prostration.

Sometimes this deplorable change may and does arise from organic or constitutional causes. But oftener, by far oftener, to gross and inexcusable ignorance of the simplest and plainest rules of health as connected with the marriage state, the violation of which entails disease, suffering and misery, not only to the wife, but often

"UNTO THE THIRD AND FOURTH GENERATION,"

Transmitting CONSUMPTION, SCROFULA, HYPOCHONDRIA, INSANITY, GOUT, KING'S EVIL, and other diseases, as a

DREADFUL INHERITANCE

from the Parents.

And must this continue? Shall we be wise in all that concerns the cattle of our fields, our horses, our sheep, our sows, our oxen, the nature and character of the soil we possess, the texture and quality of our goods and merchandise; but in all that concerns ourselves as human beings, with human functions and passions, subject to great derangement, involving our future peace and happiness—in all that concerns the health and welfare of the wife of our affections, and the mother of our children; in all that concerns the mental and physical well being of those children, we should be immersed in the darkest and most

BENIGHTED IGNORANCE,

AS CULPABLE AS INEXCUSABLE!

How long shall this ignorance prevail so productive of its bitter fruits? How long shall the wife and mother be ignorant of the nature, character and causes of the various womb and sexual complaints, embittering her days by suffering—suffering often prolonged to years, eventuating in a complication of diseases utterly and hopelessly incurable? Shall we for ever close our eyes to the results of physiological science by which we may arrive at an understanding of ourselves as men and women, subject to serious life-long enduring diseases, and perpetuating them to our children.

LET EVERY WIFE AND HUSBAND PONDER!

No husband or wife need be ignorant of what concerns them most to know to secure their health and happiness. That knowledge is contained in a little work entitled

LEANDER BABBIT'S
TRUSS OFFICE

The latest and most approved Trusses; Female Supporters; Do. with shoulder braces attached; spinal elevators for curvature of the spine on projection of the shoulder blade. Suspensory shoulder braces. This instrument so constructed that it not only acts the part of shoulder braces, but carries the heft of the ladies' skirts on their shoulders; and, hence relieves the evil consequences in carrying them on the hips and sides. For gentlemen it not only serves for a shoulder brace, but acts the part of suspenders.

As to the importance and usefulness of the above named instruments and their beneficial effects, their peculiar mechanism and superiority over other instruments of the same name, I need not say anything. They are so well known by physicians, and the multitude of persons that have had occasion to use them in this northern section of country, that I deem it not important to introduce a long catalogue of certificates; yet I have abundant evidence in my possession to justify me in all I claim or affirm, and deem it a privilege to give references to any who wish to make inquiries.

SHERIFF'S SALE.

BY virtue of several executions issued out of the Supreme Court of the State of New York, to me directed and delivered, against the goods and chattels, lands and tenements, real estate and chattels real, of Henry Haile, and of Henry Haile and Charles Haile, I have seized and taken all the right, title and interest, which the said Henry Haile or the said Henry Haile and Charles Haile had on the the 14th day of January, 1852, or which they, or either of them, may since have acquired, of, in, and to all and singular the following described real estate, to wit:—

Lot No. 2.—Hague tract, in the town of Schroon, in the County of Essex, being same lot sold to Bradley by Joseph Weed and wife, June 1st, 1837. Also, Lot No. 13, in Robert Grant's Patent, in the town of Crownpoint, containing 76 1-16 acres of land, excepting one half acre thereof deeded by Henry Haile and wife to Solomon S. Flint, April 1st, 1851. Also, all that part of Lot No. 14, in Grant's Patent, in Crownpoint, lying east of Putnam's Creek, containing 13 90-100 acres of land.—Also, a small strip of land lying on the north-east side of the road leading from Samuel Russell's to the White Meeting-house, being on Robert Grant's Patent in Crownpoint, occupied in 1845 by Stephen Spaulding, containing one half acre. Also, all the South equal half of Lot No. 20, Grant's Patent, in Crownpoint, containing 20 acres. Also, Lot No. 34, in the Pliny Moore Patent, in the town of Crownpoint.

Also, all that certain piece or parcel of land, lying and being in the town of Crownpoint, in the County of Essex and State of New York, and is bounded and described as follows: Beginning in the south line of the road about 2 feet easterly from an apple-tree, and 19 links westerly from a locust tree, both supposed to stand in the north line of said road; then running north 17°, east about 9 rods, until it intersects the south line of the Allen Campbell, then easterly following said south patent line 28 rods to the North line of the road, thence westerly following said North line of said road about 30 rods to the place of beginning, containing by estimation one acre of land. Which said real estate I shall expose for sale at Public Vendue, at the Hotel kept by Jacob Tappen, in Moriah, in said County of Essex, on the 25th day of January next, at Ten o'clock in the forenoon.

Promptness.

IT certainly must be highly gratifying to all persons who wish to get Property Insured against Loss by Fire, to know that they can effect an Insurance in a Company that is prompt, able, and willing to pay all losses insured by them. Persons insuring in the Indemnity Insurance Company, Breadalbin, New York, will (in the writer's opinion,) find such a company; and that their gentlemanly agent, J. G. McNutt, Esq., is on hand to Insure in this Company, and is as ready to pay where a loss is sustained as he is willing to insure. For instance, the Town House in Lewis was insured by him on the 28th day of May, 1853, was burned up on the 14th of September following, and on the 16th October he honored a draft for the amount of the insurance

KEEPING CHRISTMAS.

BY MISS P. HAMILTON.

WELL, Lizzy, how shall we keep Christmas, this year?' said Sam Jenkins to his wife. 'Shall we go out to Cousin George's again?—we had a good time there last year—or shall we go to Walter's—or what?'

'Or stay at come?' said Lizzy.

What! stay at home and do nothing? I should feel mean!'

'I'm ashamed to go to George's and Walter's so much,' said Lizzy,' we never ask them here.'

'Well, let's ask them now, then, and we'll have a Christmas dinner.'

'Well,' was the slow and grudging answer, 'I suppose we can, though I hate to; it's a great deal of trouble.'

'Yes, and a great deal of fun, too!' said Sam. 'Never mind the trouble, I guess we'll go into it. We'll see what we can do as well as the rest of them'

Lizzy said no more, but she was much less elated by the prospect before her than her husband. The next day, the day before Christmas, Sam inquired, 'Well, Lizzy, what shall I get you for to morrow's dinner? What'll you have?'

'Let's see,' she answered, 'I shall want considerable, for there's five of George's folks, if they all come, and six of Walter's. We must have a turkey, of course, and a pair of chickens, a sirloin of beef, and you may get me a half gallon of oysters. Let's see again—we shall want all kinds of vegetables, and we are about out. You'd better get a new lot, and some celery and cauliflowers; some cranberries, too. I must have some squashes for pies, and tell the butcher to send some mince-meat.—That makes me think I must have a new box of raisins.'

'Do stop there, Lizzy. I can't remember half you've told me now. Anybody would think to hear you that there wasn't anything to eat in the house, and that we never had anything to eat for ourselves"

'Be sure and send me home the things in season,' the wife continued, 'there's a great deal to be done. O, wait a minute! I guess you must let me have some money. I shall have to buy a new table-cloth—my long one has given out; and I must get a dozen tumblers, too. I should like a new castor, if you can get it for me,' she added, as he was handing out the money.

'We'll see,' said Sam; and he buttoned up his coat saying to himself,' I don't know about this Christmas keeping.' But he was a light hearted fellow, and added, 'Never mind; it don't come but once a year, as they say.'

When he came home to dinner, he did not find his wife in the sitting-room; and a hubbub, indeed, there was among the children, and scarcely a piece of furniture but what was turned into a plaything. To-morrow was Chsistmas, and they had commenced their Christmas keeping. It was no place for Sam; for he did not like to scold the children, nor did he like their noise and confusion. So he popped his head into the kitchen; there was his wife half covered with a great brown apron, her sleeves up to her elbows, her hands deep in the dough; and such an array of pans, plates, trays, and all manner of cooking utensils and cooking materials! Such a hot range, too, and such hissing and stewing! His wife looked up—certainly not in so winning a way as she sometimes had done—and greeted him with an 'O, dear, don't come here, Sam!'

'No I wont, Lizzy; don't be afraid! But where shall I go?'

'Why, where you always go.'

'Why, I always go where you are. But you don't want me to now, and I don't know as I want to either.'

'Go away, at any rate, you tease, or you shan't have any dinner, to-morrow.'

'I begin to be afraid I shan't get any to-day,' said Sam; 'but never mind, it's Christmas—or going to be,' and he shut the door.

Christmas morning came, clear and bright, and promising, as many another Christmas has been; and weren't they up betimes at Sam Jenkins's? But a poor beginning there, notwithstanding. Bridget had gone to keep Christmas eve, and wasn't home by daylight, as she had promised to be. Sam had to take her place in the fire building, and sundry other like occupations; and what was worse, had to hear his wife's scolding about Bridget, while the breakfast was being made ready. He heartily wished Bridget would come and take it herself—she was so much more used to it.

Breakfast half over, Bridget appeared, sleepy and stupefied enough, but her mistress soon waked her up. Then began such sweeping, and dusting, and cleaning, from one end of the house to the other. 'I didn't know people cleaned house Christians, before,' said Sam. 'I think I'll be off, I wonder if anybody's stirring?—outside, I mean, of course.'

'Wait, Sam!' called out Lizzie, 'you didn't get me half the things I want! I must have some almonds, and other nuts—but a variety. Some Malaga grapes, too; and, if you can, find sweet ones, some oranges I forgot to order cake for tea—I suppose they'll stay to tea, and spend the evening.'

'I hope so; the evening is always the best part of Christmas.' Hopeful Sam! The morning certainly wasn't the best part.

'What about the cake, Lizzy?'

'Can't you buy me some at the confectioner's? I want a variety.'

'Why, I can, but I'm afraid I shan't suit, I never like to meddle with women's matters.'

'Wait a minute,' called out the wife again. 'I'm coming down; I want to whisper to you.'

She went down and whispered that she had so many things to think of the day before, that she had forgotten to buy any Christmas presents for the children. They had been so disappointed to find their stockings empty that morning, that she wanted him to get something pretty to please them. A sled would be good for Sammy, now that the ground was frozen, he would enjoy it so much; and he might get some doll's for the little girls theirs were pretty nearly used up—he must must get nice ones, with eyes that would open and shut. Then she supposed he would have to get something for Georgo's and Walter's children, or they'd think it was stingy—get a little something for each.

'Well,' said Sam, rousing himself to meet the case, 'I'll do as well as I can. Anything more?'

'I don't think of anything now.'

'Well, good by, and a merry Christmas to you—I forgot it before.'

'Come home early.'

'Certainly,' said Sam, closing the door.

But he had not been long on his round from shop to shop in search of a good sled—he was a judge of sleds, and his heir and namesake must have a good one—and of dolls with eyes that would open and shut, before he began to be afraid he should not be at home 'early.' When he did return, tired with his shopping, and afraid that his purchases would not give satisfaction, he found his wife in a great flurry.

'Why didn't you come before?' she exclaimed. 'It's almost dinner time, things aint half ready, and Bridget is so cross and slow. The children aint dressed, nor I either, and what shall I do? I expect the people here every minute'

'What shall I do for you?' said Sam, unloading his pockets. 'I'm ready.'

'Dress the children, if you can.'

At sight of the parcels, such a rush as the children made—such scrambling and pulling! 'Be quiet do!' 'You'll break them;' 'That's not for you!' and other similar reproofs had no effect upon them. 'It's my Christmas present!' 'It's my Christmas present!' was heard above every thing else. It was a heavy tax on Sam's abilities to quiet them sufficiently to commence the operations of making their toilet.

'Lizzy's 'if you can' was well put in,' he said, 'for I can't. What else have you got to do?' he asked, 'for I don't know much about this business.'

'Can you finish setting the table for me?'

'I can set the chairs up,' said Sam. 'I guess that's about all I could do right.'

'You never did know how to do anything?' said Lizzy, in a snapping tone. 'I'll never bring up a boy like you!'

'I don't know as I ever heard her speak so before,' thought Sam. 'But never mind; it's Christmas! She'll brighten up when the company comes.'

The company came, big and little, a goodly number. Then came dinner, and the children were so crazy and unmanageable, and so many of the dishes were damaged in the cooking, or badly served by Bridget, that it was all Lizzy could do to retain her self-possession and entertain her guests. Sam did not care that a part of the dishes were spoiled there were enough left that were good; but the children annoyed him, and he felt so much sympathy for Lizzy, that his Christmas dinner was the poorest in the whole year. He hoped some of the people enjoyed it, however.

There was the afternoon, always rather a dull time for visiting; but by help of gossip and a walk it was gone through with. The tea is always a more pleasant and social meal than the pretending dinner; and during it, Sam began to feel like himself, and to rejoice in Christmas. But this was soon over. After tea the company hurried home, the children were tired and sleepy, and they had promised 'mo her' aunty' that they wouldn't stay late. 'Good-by!' and 'Such a pleasint, Christmas!' were said, and Sam and Lizzy were left to themselves.

'This hasn't been much of a Christmas,' said Sam. 'Do you think so?'

'No, I don't!' was the answer, with an emphasis. 'I am so tired! So much trouble, and for what, pray?'

'Never mind,' said Sam. 'We'll have a pleasant evening yet. We'll go round to Charles Weston's. I met him this morning, and he asked me to drop in with you; there's a family gathering there.'

Lizzy hurried the children off to bed, donned her cloak and hood, ready to go, and called Bridget to give her a charge concerning the house and children.

'I'm not going to be in, ma'am,' said Bridget.

'Why not?' said Mrs. Jenkins.

'I'm going out,' said Bridget.

'I can't spare you,' said Mrs. Jenkins; 'and you were out last night.'

'I always have Christmas night. I never had to work all day Christmas before, ma'am, and I don't think I will again.'

'Well, I can't spare you, to-night, Bridget, I'm going out myself,'

'I'm sorry, ma'am, but I must go,' said Bridget.

'If you go, you can't come back again,' said the mistress, quite decidedly.

'Very well,' said the maid, quite as decidedly; 'I shall go!' And she went.

There was no alternative but for Mrs. Jenkins to lay aside her cloak and hood, and remain at home herself—a little disappointed, and not a little vexed. Sam, like a good fellow, as he was, staid at home, too, and tried to console his wife, and talk and laugh her into good humor. But it was hard work; and he could not help thinking he had spent a great many pleasanter evenings with her when he was glad, instead of sorry, that they were alone, and when it wasn't Christmas.

'It's over,' he said, to himself, as he went to bed, 'and I'm glad it isn't Christmas to-morrow.'

But however poor a day we may think Christmas, when it is over, the day after Christmas is certainly a worse one. Nobody sleeps well after the Christmas dinner; and then the terrible next morning headache, dyspepsia, crossness, depression, 'blue spirits and white, black spirits, and gray' all about you! The next morning is commonly a ballance for the merriest Christmas ever spent.

Sam thought so, when he was waked at a late hour by his wife with 'Do get up It's almost nine o'clock, and so stinging cold, and not a fire in the house, and Ive no help!'

He turned over, rubbed his eyes, and at last made out to start, grumbling, as he did so, 'Dear me! what made Bridget act so? This keeping Christmas—what a fuss it makes!'

When he saw what a cross woman his pleasant Lizzy had become, and how selfish and fretful the children were with their new playthings, he thought, 'I would'n't care if there never was another Christmas!'

And the first time he had occasion to draw out his purse, and saw how nearly empty it was, he added, 'It's well for me that Christmas don't come but once a year!'

JAY, Nov. 25, 1853.

MR. EDITOR:—I send you for publication, if you think proper, a poetic production from the pen of a lady who has for nearly six years been the inmate of an Insane Hospital. A sketch of the history of her family will be needed in order to a right understanding of some allusions in the piece. She is the mother of six surviving children. In giving birth to her sixth she became mentally deranged, disowned her child, and was soon after removed from the city of Philadelphia, to the home of the maniac, as she expresses it, and where she has since removed, with the exception of a few months with her friends, previous to, and at the period of the death of her husband, which occurred in Feb. 1851. Her children are now remarkably separated, no two of whom reside in the same State; while N Y., Ill., Miss., Md., Pa. and Mass., have each one. The effusions of her pen have, perhaps, less claim to poetical merit, than for the pathos and tenderness of sentiment which they breathe, and as illustrative of the fact, that gifts and talent may outlive the reign of reason.

Respectfully, A. M.

My Bridal cometh in sadness and gloom,
For he whom I wedded is now in the tomb.
The cold grave enshrouds him, the worm on her food,
Revels and banquets, yet, the Lord is still good.

My Bridal day cometh, on a lone widowed bed,
I calmly laid down a poor aching head;
Now my spirit rejoices to know I shall rise,
To meet him I wedded, in the bright upper skies.

My Bridal day cometh: the Savior who knows.
Every thought of his children, will gave me repose;
I shall sleep by his side ere the summer winds blow,
And around me the violet and forget me not grow.

My Bridal day cometh; though after this skin,
Worms feed on the body, yet the soul now within,
Is immortal as Jesus; and renewed by his grace,
Will behold him in glory, yea, face to face

My Bridal day cometh; when its sun last arose,
I stood by his pillow surrounded by foes.
The fever, the hectic, the cough and the chill.
All came to my bosom with tidings of ill.

My Bridal day cometh; The Saviour on high
As he witness'd his burial; recorded each sigh;
When the wife from her husband in agony torn,
To the home of the maniac in frenzy was borne.

My Bridal day cometh; my birth day is o'er.
Its gifts and its tokens remind me the more
Of the children God gave me to comfort my mind,
And never had parent more genrous and kind.

My Bridal day cometh—my first born, I remember,
Your birth day occurr'd towards the last of November,
It followed your father's twenty-third, twenty-fourth.
He was raised in N. England, but left the cold north.

By Bridal day cometh: my darling twin sons
I reed'd presents from you of candies and buns.
Of letters, envelopes of books too in store,
Heavens blessings attend you, what can I ask more?

My Bridal day cometh:—my daughter, * will you,
To your younger brother be still kind and true!
You are children of prayer, be gentle and good.
Mamma loves you all and would send if she could.

Grace, mercy, and peace from the Father above
And Joy everlasting, and infinite love,

Friendship is like a debt of honor, the moment it is talked of, it loses its real name, and assumes the more ungrateful form of obligations. From hence we find that those who regularly undertake to cultivate friendship, find ingratitude generally repays their endeavors.—[Goldsmith.

Letters from the Backwoods.

——, Dec. 2, 1853.

It is pleasant to feel that we have friends who will sit by our side and listen interestedly to our gossiping stories or rambling speculations and bestow upon us in return good measure out of fuller store houses of incident and thought.

My friend, the Republican, is one of these coming to me as it does, from beyond the curtain which has fallen between myself and the world without and since I am not so much a misanthropist as to rejoice in my seclusion because I am hidden by it from the presence of the pride and contempt the selfishness and ambition that grieve and torture the sensitive and benevolent, it is a real pleasure. "To see" through these "loopholes of retreat," the stir of the great Babel' and not feel the crowd"—

The afternoon was cloudy, after a stormy morning, when we took seats in a 'skiff' for a ride of thirteen miles—'more or less,' the first six over a pleasant lake containing fifty-two Islands—then three miles through a river, dark, gloomy and forbiding as the Styx itself, then across another lake which completes the distance. Midway in the river is a 'carrying place,' where, except at high water, passengers are obliged to land and walk six or eight rods, while the boat is being paddled up or down the rapids. Our party reached this place at dark, landed in a chilling rain, followed our leader over the wet, rocky path and embarked safely on the other side. Our progress for the next mile and a half was extremely slow, now aground, now passing heavily through shallow water, while above the creaking of the oars in the row-locks and their regular plashing was heard distinctly the portentious roar of the wind spending its fury upon the upper lake.

This was reached at last but found so much frozen as to be impassable until the wind or some large boat should break up the ice or open a chanel through it.

Darker and darker still when we reached the carrying place for the second time—the rain was still falling, cold and drenching—a quantity of merchandize was being unshipped at the lower landing, men were scolding in English and French, children crying and females standing unprotected by an umbrella even, upon the river's bank or in the mire of the landing—for others were like ourselves forced to return, while the boatmen, hurrying down the rapids, contended which should first get in and take their passengers. 'Stand out of the way, men, and let the ladies pass' said our friend, and we were handed on board of a 'scow' and from thence into our skiff and were afloat again. Still it was made possible to eke something of fun out of our pitiful flight, and if, as we approached once more the shore and the settlement, we sung,

"Pilgrims and wanderers, Hither we come,"

it was I am sure with intense appreciation. Twelve o'clock,

"That hour o' night's black arch the key-stone," found us arrived at the hospitable mansion from which we set out upon our abortive expedition, very well satisfied with the state of things considering how much worse it might have been. The next day another and successful effort was made to reach our winter quarters, and here we are, forgetting nothing of the past while seeking to make the present glad.

Life in the backwoods! I had heard and read and talked of it before I came hither, yet was unprepared for it at last.

If the wolves howl in the night and I glance fearfully at the window, there is a sort of satisfaction, on observing that it is only six-lighted, and surely no wolf would make an onset through such an aperture. If our domestic ties a quantity of small cedar boughs upon one end of a stick, and, calling it a broom, essays to sweep therewith and really accomplishes what she undertakes—who shall say that her practical adaptation to circumstances is not more profitable than the especulative wisdom of one who could not have supplied the deficiency. If the crevices between the logs which compose our walls are filled with moss, I can say that it is certainly preferable to having them unfilled, for I have had experience of both conditions. If, ever as I write, the driving snow sifts upon me through roof and walls until hair and dress are powdered, I watch it as it falls and think—variety is the spice of life!'

We are deep in the wilderness—engirdled by forests whose youth was over before the memory of our fathers' sires—by mountains that have as now, looked down upon the lakes smiling at their feet while centuries have grown old and passed away.

Traces of Indian life are founed here not unfrequently, part of a deep stone dish founed several feet below the surface—chips of flint and trees now grown old which were girdled when young, and, retaining their vitality sent out new branches below the wounded part give token that we walk in the footsteps of a race that have gone hence. Tradition yet points out the place where an Indian chieftain was wont to set, gazing upon the beautiful sheet of water just below him—perchance rippling in the soft moonlight of sweet, pensive evening and greeting the shore with its musical kiss—what a feast for the poet—soul of nature's earnest, loving child

But—my friend R———, I will not enquire after your patience—adieu.

Abstract of Cabinet Reports—Concluded.

THE POSTMASTER GENERAL'S REPORT.—Among the facts it presents are the following:—

Number of Post Masters in the United States, 23,320. Of these, 255, being of the higher class, receive their appointments from the President, 1,898 new Post Offices were established during the past year, and 479 were discontinued... 3,000 Post Masters, in addition to those for the new offices, were appointed within the same period, to fill vacancies caused by death, (225,) resignation, (850,) removal (2,321) and other cases. There are now 6,992 mail routes, reaching 217,743 miles, superintended by 5,583 contractors. On these routes, the mails are carried annually, 61,892,542 miles, at a cost of $4,495-967, being two miles over 7 cents per mile. Of these 61,892,542 miles of annual transportation, 12,986,705 miles are required to be performed or railroads, at a cost of $1,601,321, being about twelve cents three mills per mile; 6,685,065 miles in steamboats, at a cost of $632,368, being about nine cents four mills per mile; 21,330,326 miles in coaches, at a cost of $1,206,958, being about five cents six mills per mile; and 20,830,446 miles in modes not specified, at a cost of $1,055,313, being about five cents per mile.

The expenditures of the Department during the last fiscal year were $9.982,-758. The gross revenue from all sources was $5,940,724.

It appears from the foregoing statement that the gross revenue of the year, ending June 30th, 1853 falls short of the expenditures by the sum of $2,042,031.

$1 571,000, of this deficiency is supplied by the balance on the Auditor's books on July 1, 1852, and by the appropriations to supply deficiencies, amounting to upward of $1 000,000, leaving $546,000 to be provided by Congress for the service of the year ending June 30, 1853.

Thus we find the Cheap Postage System creating an actual deficit in the Revenue of the Department, of nearly $3,000 000. The last Cheap Postage Act gives Post Masters, in certain cases, an extra commission of 20 per cent. which costs about half a million a year. The European Mail service has cost immensely more than the receipt amount to, and the California Mail service costs two-third more tha it pays.—Postages on newspapers under last reduction, have fallen off $100,000.

The annual transportation in California was 585,806 miles, at a cost of $143,214.

The annual transpertation in Oregon at the close of the fiscal year was 108,274 miles, at an annual cost of $45,522, or about 42 cents per mile.

The Report states that difficulty has always existed in determining the prices to be paid to Railroad Companies for carrying the mails, and in view of the exorbitant demands which have been made recommends that Congress shall, after giving the companies an opportunity to be heard fix the sums which they shall respectively receive. In respect to mail accommodations and time schedules, various Railroad companies are stated to have exhibited an uncompliant spirit.

The cost of the Pacific mail service greatly exceeds the revenue. On account of its exigencies the Report recommends the appointment of an Assistant Postmaster General, who shall receive a salary equal to those received by officers of a similar grade in California.

In consequence of the Congressional appropriation of $50,000 for special mail agents, eighteen have been appointed and distributed among the different States. It is recommended that the number be increased.

The commissions allowed to deputy Postmasters have proved insufficient. Some of this class of officers have been brought in debt for expenses absolutely necessary to be incurred in the public service. It is recommended that the Postmaster General be authorized, when requisite, to allow to Postmasters at distributing offices such sum as will be necessary to defray reasonable expenses, in addition to the commissions now allowed by law.

Complaint is made that great abuses have been practiced upon the Department, by the passage of printed letters through the mails at a postage of one cent, and also recommends that some plan be adopted for checking frauds in Post Office accounts.

The amount of postage stamps sold during the year ending June 30, 1852, was $1,316,163 39, and the sales during the year ending June 30, 1852 amounted to $1,629,252 12, leaving in the hands of Postmasters unsold $198,605 71; stamped envelopes were issued to the amount of $295,292 60. It is estimated that the expenses of the current fiscal year will amount to $9'716.601. The means of the Department for that period are estimated at $7,558,859 70.

The cost of the service for mail steamship line and for transportation across the Isthmus for the last fiscal year amounted to $1,965,857 33. The net revenue derived from the same lines was $613,232 16.

The number of letters conveyed between the United States and Europe during the year was; By the Cunard line, 2,774,423; do Collins, 1,018,345: do Bremen, 412,-117; do Havre, 406,126. Total, 4,611,-011.

The number of newspapers by the Cunard line was 1,034,163: do Collins, 305,-915; do Breman, in closed mails, 2,613; do Havre, in closed mails, 4,587; do several United States lines, in Prussian closed mail, 33,155. Total, 1,381,863.

The postage on the letters sent during the year from Great Britain to the United States by Cunard steamers was $325,200, $3; by the Collins steamers, performing ust half the number of trips, it was but 106,065 49.

Other facts show a much greater patronage to the Cunard than to the American steamers, which is attributed to British partiality.

An arrangement has been made with Great Britain, by which the United States avails itself of the facilities of communication secured by existing postal treaties between Great Britain and the several governments on the west coast of South America, the mails being transported by a line of British steam packets playing between Panama and Valdivia, touching at the prominent intermediate ports.

The rate of postage on Magazines has been reduced to one cent an ounce to all foreign countries, except Great Britain.—Efforts are being made to induce that Government to reduce its charges for the transmission of the French mails, with fair prospect of success.

Satisfactory negotiations for Postal Arrangements have either been concluded or are pending with France, Prussia and Bremen. The States of Southern Germany will be admitted to a participation in the advantages of the postal arrangement with Prussia upon equitable terms.

The contract conditionally entered into by his predecessor, for the conveyance of a mail to California via Vera Cruz and Acapulco, has been disapproved by the Postmaster General, and nothing further has been heard from the company. It is stated that the Nicaragua Company propose to carry a semi monthly mail between San Francisco and New York for $300,000 per annum. It is suggested that if Congress intends to withdraw from the Collins Line the appropriation which they now receive, the Postmaster General might be authorized to pay to every steamer running between the United States and England a fixed sum for each trip, the trips not to exceed a given number each week, and thus throw the carriage of the mails open to individual enterprise and competition.—The document closes with a recommendation, that moneys be appropriated to enable the department to buy or erect suitable buildings for post-offices in the large cities of the Union.

POTSDAM, December 20th, 1852.

EDITOR REPUBLICAN:

DEAR SIR:—I can scarcely expect to pen anything that will prove of interest to your readers, as this region of country is almost entirely without excitement, or remarkable incidents; indeed, its most remarkable excitements and incidents are of a political nature, which, owing to the length of time that must elapse before another 'election-day,' are anything but entertaining at this time. The weather has been remarkably warm and pleasant for the season, with little or no snow until the 17th inst., when we had sufficient to make excellent sleighing, and our streets are now alive with dashing sleighs, filled with merry, joyous villagers, half frantic with the life and exhileration of the first sleigh ride of the season. Even while I write, the jingling of sweet toned sleigh bells makes me exclaim with King Dick of olden times, "my kingdom for a horse;" but not like his, glistening with steel and maddened with the din of martial sounds. No, let him be mettlesome and fleet as the Laplander's reindeer, and beautiful as only a perfect horse can be—equip him with a vehicle so tiny that he can play with it as a child with a toy—place in the vehicle, of downy robes a plentiful supply, and a companion whose ruddy cheeks can laugh at winter's fiercest blasts, and while I'd skim the frozen plains and feel the vivifying blood course through my veins like 'mad,' I could with without doubt easily conceive that King Richard would have consumated a capital bargain by exchanging his kingdom, held by a very precarious tenure, for a horse, especially if it were 'good sleighing' at the time!

Our lumbermen, who have carried long faces for a time, again look cheerful and go bustling about with all the importance of commanders in chief, marshaling their forces for the winter encampment, where they are to busy themselves in procuring the materials necessary to supply the numerous mills at various points down the rivers. These lumbermen are a jolly, hardy lot of fellows, who seem to enjoy their arduous winter's task, and many a joke is cracked of an evening by the ruddy glow of their shantee fire, after a hard day's work. The season has been peculiarly favorable for all branches of business. The lumberman has received the highest prices for his lumber, stimulating him to renewed enterprise and exertion; the mechanic has scarcely been able supply the demand for his services, at any price his conscience would allow him to charge; and the price which the farmer has received for his produce, with the steady demand, has been amply sufficient to compensate him for his toil, and enable him to increase the comforts and elegancies of life, and thus convince him that his profession is not only the most honorable, but also one of the most lucrative in which a man can engage. Our village has participated in the general prosperity of the county and kept pace with its improvement. During the present summer thirty dwelling houses have been erected, besides numerous stores and manufactories.

The Potsdam and Watertown Railroad is rapidly advancing towards completion and will probably be in operation by Sept. next. A road is now under contract from Ogdensburgh to Rome, and will probably be constructed next season. Northern New York, although long neglected, and taxed to construct improvements in other parts of the State by the Legislature, will soon, by the enterprise of its inhabitants, open its ore beds and forests, and when its resources are fully developed, become one of the most wealthy and important sections of the State. But it is not necessary to describe the condition of any particular locality of our State or county as peculiarly prosperous, in order to impress the idea of our general prosperity upon the people.—We are well aware, as a nation, that our advantages over other nations are almost innumerable. Europe is too near us, and the voice of her oppressed people is too plainly heard from across the ocean for us to become forgetful of our blessings. The difference in the condition of the laboring classes in the two countries is to be attributed to the superiority of our social and governmental system. With us, the prosperity of one section of our country is an index of the condition of all its parts. It is a pleasing thought for a sympathetic and noble mind that delights in the welfare of mankind, viewed in the aggregate—that while he views one of our beautiful villages, filled with the elegancies and luxuries of life, and teeming with an intelligent, industrious and happy population, when by moderate exertion, all may obtain an honorable livelihood, and occupy a respectable position,—he can contemplate at the same time, that the vast extent of our land is dotted with these happy communities; and that from ocean to ocean, from the St. Johns to the Rio Grande, from the mouth to the source of the 'father of waters' and its numerous tributaries, along the great chain of inland seas, by the thundering waterfall,—on the hill, in the valley, here, there—almost everywhere upon our expansive domain are happy homes, happy villages, populous cities, which are but the counterparts of what is immediately before him, and are connected together by one common love of country and liberty, and taken in the aggregate, constitute a great and happy people. Who, that takes such a view of our country can be a disunionist? But I have strayed far from my intention, which was merely to tell you of some of our doings during the past season, and begging the indulgence of your readers for my digression.

I am, very respectfully yours,

VIATOR.

Sharp talk.

The Whigs of the 8th Senatorial district of New Hampshire, met in Convention on the 3d inst., and passed a series of resolutions among which are the following:

Resolved. That the policy of the administration, so far as developed, consists of a minute attention to the toilet of our public servants abroad, and to execute pronunciamentos in regard to the exercise, by the people, of their rights of suffrage.

Resolved. That the attempt by the President of the United States to preserve a balance of power between the Hards and Softs of the Democracy of New York, has resulted in a hard knock from the one and the discovery of a very soft spot in the other.

Resolved That the recent impertinent interference of members of the Cabinet in our State elections, deserves, as it has received, the indignant rebuke of the people.

The Free Soilers also held a Convention in Rockingham County, and among other resolutions adopted the following.

Resolved. That when Caleb Cushing's life as written by himself for the London Times, shall be bound by the tract society for gratuitous distribution in the waste places of Zion and becomes a choice volume in Sunday School libraries, then, and not till then, shall the President's 'fixed purpose' be gratified, and 'the dangerous element of abolitionism be crushed out' of the free democracy of New Hampshire.

STATISTICS OF I. O. O. F.—The Grand Secretary of the G. L. of U. S. has furnished to the Golden Rule an abstract of the Annual Reports of the Grand and Subordinate Lodges made to the G. L. of U. S. for the ending June 30th, 1853, from which we make the following condensed statement comparing it with similar tables furnished for the year 1852:—

Revenue of Lodges	$1,209 259	$1,164,331
Contributing members	193 040	193,298
Brothers relieved	22 938	26,337
Widowed families relieved	2,375	3,058
Brothers buried	1,563	1 642
Relief of Brothers	$ 351,439	$372,395

The State of New York, with her Grand Lodges, returns $237.000 of revenue, (Southern New York $117,000, and Northern $120,000,) Pennsylvania $173,000; number of contributing members in New York, 30.998, (Northern New York 23,266, Southern 16,732;) Pennsylvania 44,122. The amount paid for the relief of Brothers by Pennsylvania was $73,108, by New York $92,371, (by S. New York $45,138, by N. New York $47,163.)

There were at the date of the report 33 State Grand Lodges, and eight Subordinate Lodges under the jurisdiction of the G. L. of U. S.—Alb. Reg.

THE 'FREE LIST.'—The principle involved in Secretary GUTHRIE'S Free List is a Whig principle. Whig Statesmen, when advocating the claims of Home Labor, have always insisted that articles which enter into manufactures, but which are not of native growth, should be admitted on a nominal duty or free altogether. But this idea conflicted with the principle of Free Trade, and it has never been sanctioned by those who adhered to that principle.

Secretary GUTHRIE, however we are glad to see, ventures to advocate the idea, and makes sundry very judicious recommendations. It would give our manufacturers a very great advantage to be permitted to import, free of duty, all the articles of foreign growth or production, which they use. If this principle is adopted, together with specific duties—which we regret to observe does not find favor with the Secretary—the whole country would be content to deem the rates of duty now imposed a sufficient Protection for all practical purposes. —Albany Journal.

☞ Calico is a great promoter of laziness. If young men wish to accomplish anything of moment, either with head or hand, they must keep clear of the institution entirely. A pair of sweet lips, a pink waist, and pressure or two of delicate hands, will as much unhinge a man as three fevers, the measles, a large sized whooping cough, a pair of lock-jaws, several hydrophobias, and the doctor's bill.—Saratoga Republican.

A telegraph despath from Washington was published a few days since, informing us that—

'Senator SEWARD gave a splendid entertainment last evening, at which were present most of the Southern Senators as invited guests. Much cordiality and good feeling prevailed throughout," &c.

It is stated that Mrs. Miller, a daughter of Gerrit Smith, excites a great deal of curiosity in Washington, by appearing in full Bloomer costume

A HAPPY NEW YEAR!—In view of all the pleasures, all the sorrows, all the trials, perplexities, and temptations of the past, we do from the bottom of our heart, wish all our readers and friends, A HAPPY NEW YEAR.

The Meeting of the Legislature, and the Speaker.

The Legislature assembles next Tuesday. Considerable discussion has been going on in the papers in regard to claims and qualifications of Mr. Pruyn of Albany and Mr. Littlejohn of Otsego, for the Speakership. We regret to see that the line of Erie Canal and New York city thus far monopolize all the State officers and their appointments from big to little. Northern New York has not been alluded to, and if ever thought of, only to be considered of no account. In 1852 Essex county was the only 'bright particular spot' in the State. She is a star that never sets. She honors the drafts of the party to the tune of 7 or 800 majority at sight, and never falters.—She has never received any attention only to know how to increase her majority.

We beg leave to say that Judge Burnet, possesses peculiar qualifications for Speaker, dignity, suavity, a strong, clear mind, quick to comprehend, and as quick to decide, with an amount of learning, and common sense, not excelled in the State. The present opportunity is a fine one for the party to reciprocate the faithful services of the whigs of old Essex. A true desire to do justice to all sections and all interests of the State; to obviate the strife already set on foot; to allay jealousies, and set out at the opening with a determination to harmonise all difficulties, will dictate the retirement, or abandonment of the candidates referred to, and the unanimous selection of Judge Burnet.

The honors and emoluments of the party have been monopolised on the line of the Erie Canal, and the Hudson River long enough, and if persisted in the people in the Siberian Regions will take steps to be heard from.

NOT A GROUNDLESS RUMOR.—The Rat-Herald says: "We do not ask you to believe it, but it is not a groundless rumor that they argued, threatened, and raved furiously against Gov. Robinson, because he would not veto the amendments to the liquor law."

The Pierce democracy are everywhere making themselves ridiculous, and despised, and no where more so than in Vt. They partially carried the State on the Liquor question, and then did not dare to "face the music." The House passed a Repeal, but only because the majority knew it would be arrested in the Senate. Even the amendments they expected would be defeated by the Governor's veto. Barber and his vagabond crew, professing free-soil, sold out to the Old Liners and got nothing in return. Barber was a candidate for everything in vain. This has scattered Barnburnerism, or Free-soilism, to the four winds in Vt., and it can never be re-united, not even in the gathering together of the dry bones of the valley. Honest and sincere men, whether Adamantine or Abolition, are above par, but the Pierce, Van Buren, Free Soil, Barnburner, Secession, spoils, truck and dicker, slungshot, and rowdy democracy are a "skunk cabbage" party that wont sell any longer at any price—it wont pay running expenses, and must go into the hands of assignees at an early day.

Banks and Democracy.

The late democratic Legislature of Vt. increased the Banking capital of that State $875,000, by special acts, while there was on the Statute book a General Banking law unrepealed. This will do pretty well for a party professing, and proclaiming on the house-tops utter hostility to such institutions, as monopolies. If the democracy could control Legislation in that state they would increase banking capital to such an extent as to produce a crisis, and then turn round and charge the blame upon whigs as they did in this State. What a democracy!

Courage, Young Men, Courage.

The following is the concluding paragraph of a speech of the Irish Patriot, John Mitchell. It contains words of cheer to young men. It is the language of a soul that can never by subdued. Such a spirit will rise above every misfortune—nothing can destroy it, nothing can defeat its will. Read it young man, and never as long as you live, allow a murmur of discontent to escape your lips, never despair under any circumstances, 'never give up,' never yield to the 'blues'—courage—courage, and your triumph is sure.—[Ed. Rep.

As for me, I have not come here to whine about my own sufferings. In the worst and blackest of my own dungeons my enemies never extorted from me one word of submission. They have indirectly let us know that if we showed contrition we might be liberated They asked for contrition, they got in reply loud disdain and defiance. What I have said to-night is no more than what I said in the criminal's dock before the false judge—no more than what I have printed again and again in the public newspapers of Van Diemand's Land. Thank Heaven my head has been always high—my heart has been always free, and I wore fetters lightly as wreaths of roses.—when my enemies sought to kill me by long and rigorous confinement in an unwholesome den, what, think you, sustained me and kept life in me?—rage and scorn, and firm reliance on God's justice. and the immortal thirst of vengeance, I thank my enemies now that they refused to release me—I am glad they waited for contrition—I am proud that I was liberated not by their Queen's pardon, but by the disloyal aid of some of her Majesty's subjects in Australia, and by the daring and energy of my brave confederates and brother rebel who sits at this table. Enough, then, of the past. I fling it behind me from this night, and looking forward, forward. I have commenced in your State, my novitiate in order to become an American citizen. Before Heaven I declare that I will be a true and thorough American, as my naturalized countrymen generally are. But I believe Americans will not hold it disloyalty to her, if we Irish Americans look anxiously out for an opportunity, and if we one day dash at the opportunity, to wipe off the dishonor of the old mother-land, and to dry her tears and staunch her wounds, and make her a participator in the noble republican freedom that your fathers have shown all the world the way to win.

European News.

The news by the Hermann again puts a warlike aspect upon European affairs.—Austria and France, instead of joining with England to restore peace, are now threatened with hostilities upon their own account. The determination of the Turkish Government to prevent the use of one of their own provinces for the purposes of Austria, is natural and justifiable. Further encroachments upon the integrity of their dominions would severely menace their existence. For a somewhat similar reason Louis Napoleon seems resolved to "crush out" Legitimatism in France—an undertaking that few in this country at least, would regret to see successful.—Albany Journal.

Louis Napoleon charges the King of Belgium with being concerned in the schemes which led to the fusion of the Bourbons, and threatens to march an army into Belgium upon the the first political movement of the coalesced Bourbons.

The recent rapid and unprovoked movements of the Duke of Brabant are supposed to refer to this event.

The cabinet of Brussels is in a great fright.

The Ottoman government has officially declared that it will not sanction privateering or grant letters of marque.

Baron Bruck informed the Porte that Austria would support the neutrality of Servia. The Sultan replied, through Reschid Pacha, that he had resolved to compel the Prince of Servia to renounce his neutrality, and that he had given orders to that effect.

The Austrian government was making preparations for an open and active interference in the affairs of the Servians.

Later and more Exciting.—The greatest Naval Battle since Navarino has been fought with terrific loss of life, and TOTAL DESTRUCTION OF TWENTY-ONE SHIPS OF WAR!

The particulars are these.

On the 30th of November, the entire Russian fleet from Sebastapol, under Admiral Machinoff, numbering twenty-four sail, appeared off the Turkish harbor of Sinnope, where Vice-Admiral Omar Bey lay with 14 Turkish sail.

The battle immediately commenced.

The Turks fought like devils, and would not surrender.

With most desperate bravery they fought till one ship after another of their 14 were sunk, blown up or burnt.

Seven Turkish frigates, two corvettes, one steamer and three transports, with several thousand men, have totally perished; and Omar Bey, the Turkish Vice Admiral, is taken prisoner. Each of the Turkish ships had, besides crews, 800 troops on board on their way to Circassia, also a quantity of money to pay troops. All lost.

The Turks burned or sunk seven Russian ships, viz: 5 steamers and 2 line of battle ships.

The battle lasted one hour.

The remainder of the Russian fleet was so shattered that they could not reach Sebastapol.

All Europe is in great excitement at this disaster to the brave Turks, and the opinion is that an European war can no longer be avoided with honor.

The Tribune is of the opinion that so far from leading to a general War, the result of this battle will enable the Czar of Russia to be magnanimous and consent to a renewal of negotiations for peace. In our opinion, if the peace of Europe is preserved it will be next to a miracle.

One acre in twenty is lost in fences in this country.

General News.

Santa Anna is to be declared [illegible] with the title of Antonio I. [illegible] the imposing address of "His [illegible] Highness."

Another great fire occurred in N. Y. city last Tuesday. $2,000,000 of property were destroyed, including shipping in the harbor, among which was the Great Republic, the largest ship in the world, costing 300,000 dollars.

CAUGHT.—A lad calling himself John Van Buren, and who said he hailed from Troy, was arrested in Cambridge, Washington Co., yesterday, for stealing divers pairs of gloves and mittens from a store in that village. He was locked up.—Exchange.

The lad John Van Buren is "locked up" for stealing divers pairs of gloves and mittens from a store, while the man John Van Buren, tho' he has spread a moral miasma over nine tenths of the States, tho a loafer on a large scale, a toper, a debauchee, a political trickster, a seditious demagogue, and employer of slung-shot rowdies to control political conventions at the risk of life and limb, is at large. Well, that is not equal and exact Justice.

DON'T MISUNDERSTAND.—When we speak of Barnburners, Free Soilers, Buffalo Platforms, and the like, we don't by any means allude to the Abolitionists proper. We have considerable respect for honest men, and include under this head, Whigs, Adamantines, and Abolitionists, as men who are sincere in and act up to their professions.

THE NEW YORK MUSICAL REVIEW AND CHORAL ADVOCATE.—Is the cheapest and best Musical Paper in the world. This Journal (which has heretofore been published monthly) commences its fifth year in January next, and thenceforward it will be published every two weeks—on every other Thursday; thereby giving more than twice as much matter without any increase in price. Each number contains sixteen quarto pages, four of which are new music, consisting of glees, hymn tunes, chants, anthems, dedication and holyday pieces, and, in short, every variety of music adapted to purposes of religious worship, to public occasions, and to the home circle; all of which will be of a practical character and such as can be sung by persons of ordinary musical attainments. In the Editorial department of the REVIEW are engaged (in addition to Mr. Cady, the former editor) gentlemen of the highest talent and ripest musical experience, among whom are, GEORGE F. ROOT, WM. B. BRADBURY, THOMAS HASTINGS, and LOWELL MASON; and its circle of correspondence, home and foreign, is complete. The music alone in a volume would cost over five dollars in the usual form. Beside this, there will be an immense amount of musical news, essays, criticism, instruction, &c. &c., all for only one dollar! Every one feeling a particle of interest in the cause of music will surely subscribe. The REVIEW will also be a regular medium for the announcement of new musical publications by all the leading publishig houses in the Union. The subscription list of this paper is now larger than that of any similar journal in the world, and the new arrangements, rendering it the cheapest as well as (it is hoped) the most valuable musical paper ever published, must largely increase its already unparalleled circulation.

TERMS: One dollar per annum, or six copies for five dollars, always in advance.

SHERIFF'S SALE.

BY virtue of several executions issued out of the Supreme Court of the State of New York, to me directed and delivered against the property of Wm. A. G. Arthur, and Clark P. Ives, I have seized and taken all the right, title, and interest which the said Wm. A. G. Arthur & Clark P. Ives had on the 21 day of June 1853 or which they may since have acquired, of, in, and to the following described parcels of real estate:

1 "All that certain piece or parcel of land, situate, lying and being at the Lower Falls, in said town of Ticonderoga, described as follows, to wit: being the south west part of lot of land known as lot No. 5 in Kellogg's survey, of 40 village lots at the lower falls; beginning at the south west corner of a stone basement where it forms an angle with a wooden building, and runs thence along the wooden building and thro' the lot south 13 degrees west two chains & sixty-six links to the centre of the highway leading to Weedsville, thence along the same north seventy-eight and a half degrees west 69 links to the east line of a lane laid out two rods wide, thence along the same north eleven and a half degrees east two chains and sixty nine links to a stake thence south seventy five and a half degrees east seventy four links to the place of beginning containing 19-100 of an acre, same more or less."

2 "All that certain lot, piece, or parcel of land, bounded and described as follows to wit: commencing at the highway 8 feet north of John McCormick's tailors shop, thence north along the highway 19 feet, thence westerly in a parallel line with McCormick's shop twenty four feet, thence southerly at right angles nineteen feet, thence easterly in a parallel line with said McCormick's shop twenty four feet to the place of beginning; with the right to use the space between the grocery shop or building in common with others as a lane; same lot deeded by Wm. E. Calkins to Pat. McVeigh the 9th Septr., 1816, same lot and building now occupied by Marshall & Quin as a grocery."

3 "All that certain piece or parcel of land situate, lying and being in the town of Ticonderoga, beginning at a stake in the line between the land formerly owned and occupied by James Jones and Wm. FRAUD!

ALL who want AXES of the real COLLINS & Co. make should be particular to notice the stamps, as there are various counterfeits and imitations stamped Collins and labelled much like ours, which are fraudulently sold in some parts of the United States as our manufacture. They are made in different parts of the country by various axe makers, and are generally of very inferior quality. The genuine Collins axes which have acquired such an extensive reputation are invariably stamped "COLLINS & CO. HARTFORD," and each axe has a printed label with my signature.—It is now more than TWENTY-FIVE YEARS since we commenced the business with the stamp of "Collins & Co. Hartford," and I do not know of any other axe-maker by the name of Collins in the United States.

"Man Know Thyself."

An Invaluable Book for 25 Cents.

"EVERY FAMILY SHOULD HAVE A COPY."

20,000 Copies sold in less than 5 months. A new edition, revised and improved, just issued.

Dr. Hunter's Medical Manual and Hand Book for the Afflicted—Containing an outline of the origin, progress, treatment and cure of every form of disease, contracted by promiscuous sexual intercourse, by self abuse or by sexual excess, with advice for their prevention, written in a familiar style, avoiding all medical technicalities, and everything that would offend the ear of decency, from the result of some twenty years successful practice, exclusively devoted to the cure of diseases of a delicate or private nature.

To which is added, receipts for the cure of the above diseases, and a treatise on the causes, symptoms and cure of the Fever and Ague.

Testimony of the Prof. of Obstetrics in Penn. College, Philadelphia.—"Dr. Hunter's Medical Manual"—The author of this work unlike the majority of those works who advertise to cure the diseases of which it treats, is a graduate of one of the best Colleges in the United States. It affords me pleasure to recommend him to the unfortunate, or to the victim of malpractice, as a successful and experienced practitioner, in whose honor and integrity they may place the greatest confidence.

JOSEPH LONGSHORE, M. D.

From A. Woodward M. D., of Penn. University, Philadelphia—It gives me pleasure to add my testimony to the professional ability of the author of the "Medical Manual." Numerous cases of diseases of the Genital Organs some of them of long standing have come under my notice, in which his skill has been manifest in restoring to perfect health, in some instances where the patient has been considered beyond medical aid. In the treatment of Seminal weakness, or disarrangement of the functions produced by Self abuse, or Excess of venery, I do not know his superior in the profession. I have been acquainted with the Author some thirty years, and deem it no more than justice to him as well as a kindness to the unfortunate victim of early indiscretion, to recommend him as one, in whose professional skill and integrity they may safely confide themselves. ALFRED WOODWARD, M. D.

"This is, without exception, the most comprehensive and intelligible work published on the class of diseases of which it treats. Avoiding all technical terms, it addresses itself to the reason of its readers. It is free from all objectionable matter and no parent, however fastidious, can object to placing it in the hands of his sons. The author has devoted many years to the treatment of the various complaints treated of, and with too little breath to puff,' and 'too little presumption to impose,' he has offered to the world at the merely nominal price of 25 cents, the fruits of some 20 years most successful practice."—Herald.

"No teacher or parent should be without the knowledge imparted in this invaluable work. It would save years of pain, mortification and sorrow to the youth under their charge."—People's Advocate.

A Presbyterian clergyman in Ohio, in writing of "Hunter's Medical Manual," says: "Thousands upon thousands of our youth, by evil example and influence of the passions, have been led into the habit of self pollution without realizing the sin and fearful consequences upon themselves and their posterity. The constitutions of thousands who are raising families have been enfeebled if not broken down, and the do not know the cause or the cure. Anything that can be done so to enlighten and influence the public mind as to check, and ultimately to remove this widespread source of human wretchedness, would confer the greatest blessing next to the religion of Jesus Christ, on the present and coming generations. Intemperance (or the use of intoxicating drinks,) though it has slain thousands upon thousands, is not a greater scourge to the human race. Accept my thanks on behalf of the afflicted, and, believe me, your co-worker in the good work you are so actively engaged in."

One copy, (securely enveloped,) will be forwarded free of postage to any part of the United States for 25 cents, or 6 copies for $1.—Address (post paid) COSDEN & Co., publishers, Box 196, Philadelphia. 478y

THE MARRIAGE STATE;

Shall Happiness and Health, or Misery and Sickness, attend it?

MOST STARTLING CONSIDERATIONS!

Reflections for the Thoughtful.

Strange that countless human beings exist and drag through life as do the beasts of the field, or the insects of the earth, evincing no more thought or reflection than though the noble faculties of mind were not vouchsafed to them.

Many such are husbands and fathors, upon whom are dependent the health, the well-being, and the happiness of a confiding and affectionate wife, with perhaps a family of children.

HOW OFTEN IT HAPPENS THAT THE

WIFE LINGERS FROM YEAR TO YEAR

In that pitiable condition as not even for one day to feel the happy and exhilerating influence incident to the enjoyment of health.

She may not be an invalid confined to her bed, or even to her room; as her pride, ambition and energy induce and nerve her to take personal charge of her household, even when her health will not admit of it; but she is nevertheless perceptibly sinking from day to day, and always ailing.

Thus, day after day, and month after month transpire. Her health daily sinks, till finally even the hope of recovery no longer remains. And thus

THE BLOOMING BRIDE,

But a few years ago in the flush of health and youth, and buoyancy of spirits, rapidly, and apparently inexplicably, becomes a feeble, sickly, debilitated wife, with frame emaciated, nerves unstrung, spirits depressed, countenance bearing the impress of suffering, and an utter physical and mental prostration.

Sometimes this deplorable change may and does arise from organic or constitutional causes. But oftener, by far oftener, to gross and inexcusable ignorance of the simplest and plainest rules of health as connected with the marriage state, the violation of which entails disease, suffering and misery, not only to the wife, but often

from the Parents.

And must this continue? Shall we be wise in all that concerns the cattle of our fields, our horses, our sheep, our cows, our oxen, the nature and character of the soil we possess, the texture and quality of our goods and merchandise; but in all that concerns ourselves as human beings, with human functions and passions, subject to great derangement, involving our future peace and happiness—in all that concerns the health and welfare of the wife of our affections, and the mother of our children; in all that concerns the mental and physical well being of those children, we should be immersed in the darkest and most

BENIGHTED IGNORANCE,

AS CULPABLE AS INEXCUSABLE!

How long shall this ignorance prevail so productive of its bitter fruits? How long shall the wife and mother be ignorant of the nature, character and causes of the various womb and sexual complaints, embittering her days by suffering—suffering often prolonged to years, eventuating in a complication of diseases utterly and hopelessly incurable? Shall we forever close our eyes to the results of physiological science by which we may arrive at an understanding of ourselves as men and women, subject to serious life-long enduring diseases, and perpetuating them to our children.

LET EVERY WIFE AND HUSBAND PONDER!

No husband or wife need be ignorant of what concerns them most to know to secure their health and happiness. That knowledge is contained in a little work entitled

THE MARRIED WOMAN'S

PRIVATE MEDICAL COMPANION,

BY DR. A. M. MAURICEAU,

PROFESSOR OF DISEASES OF WOMEN.

One Hundredth Edition. 18mo., pp. 250. Price 50 Cents

[ON FINE PAPER, EXTRA BINDING, $1 00.]

First published in 1847; and it is not

SURPRISING OR WONDERFUL,

Considering that EVERY FEMALE, whether MARRIED OR NOT, can here acquire a full knowledge of the nature, character and causes of her complaints, with the various symptoms, and that nearly should have been sold. It is impracticable to convey fully the various subjects treated of, as they are of a nature strictly intended for the married, or those contemplating marriage.

UPWARDS OF ONE HUNDRED THOUSAND COPIES

Have been SENT BY MAIL within the last few months.

CAUTION TO THE PUBLIC.

BE NOT DEFRAUDED

Buy no book unless Dr. A. M. Mauriceau, 129 Liberty Street, N. Y., is on the title page, and the entry in the Clerk's Office on the back of the title page; and buy only of respectable and honorable dealers, or send by mail, and address to Dr. A. M. Mauriceau, as there are spurious and surreptitious infringements of copyright.

☞ Upon receipt of One Dollar "THE MARRIED WOMAN'S PRIVATE MEDICAL COMPANION" is sent (mailed free) to any part of the United States, the Canadas and British Provinces. CLARK'S Wholesale Confectionary

ESTABLISHMENT,

172 RIVER STREET, TROY, N. Y.

THE Subscriber having in charge the Confectionary Manufactory and Wholesale Establishment, long and favorably known as NEWCOMB'S No. 172 River-street, Troy, respectfully solicits the attention of Merchants, Pedlars and Retailers of Candies, to the quality and variety of Confectionary manufactured and for sale by him.

The Candles made at this place endure the change of weather and retain their flavor and freshness as long, if not longer, than any that can be made.

A list of the different kinds and qualities which are usually made, can be obtained, together with a list of prices, by calling on the subscriber, at the store, No. 172 River-street. The assortment comprises at least 160 different kinds of Candies, which are had almost any day, fresh from the shop, and at as reasonable rates as can be bought elsewhere of the same quality.

LOZENGES,

Rolled in Ounce Papers, or by the pound loose, equal in quality and strength to any made in the country.

Sugar Plums, Almonds, &c. of a superior quality.

STEAM REFINED CANDY,

equal in flavor and quality to any ever made. The best of stock always used, and great care taken to exclude all unhealthy substances in the Manufacture of it.

COUNTRY MERCHANTS will find it for their interest to buy of us, as they can make a better selection than they can of the pedlars, and receive it fresh from the shop in good order, and if kept in the original packages until wanted for immediate use, will keep fresh for six months.

CANDY Made Expressly for the Southern Market.

☞ A liberal discount will be made to City Wholesale dealers for orders. Pedlars supplied on liberal terms. Boxes carefully packed in boxes of 25, 50 and 100 lbs.—orders promptly attended to.

LEANDER BABBIT'S TRUSS OFFICE

The latest and most approved Trusses; Female Supporters; Do. with shoulder braces attached; spinal elevator for curvature of the spine and projection of the shoulder blade. Suspensory shoulder braces. This instrument is so constructed that it not only acts the part of shoulder braces, but carries the heft of the ladies' dress on their shoulders: and, hence remedies the evil consequent on carrying them on the hips and sides. For gentlemen, it not only serves for a shoulder brace, but acts the part of suspenders.

As to the importance and usefulness of the above named instruments and their beneficial effects, their peculiar mechanism and superiority over other instruments of the same name, I need not say anything. They are so well known by physicians, and the multitude of persons that have had occasion to use them in this northern section of country, that I deem it not important to introduce a long catalogue of certificates; yet I have abundant evidence to my possession to justify me in all I claim or affirm, and deem it a privilege to give references to any who wish to make inquiries.

Office at Keeseville in the building on the corner of Main and Front street, opposite the Bank, up stairs.

Ladies will be waited on at my dwelling by Mrs. Babbit, whose experience in adjusting braces and supporters qualifies her to give perfect satisfaction. 482—3m

SHERIFF'S SALE.

BY virtue of several executions issued out of the Supreme Court of the State of New York, to me directed and delivered, against the goods and chattels, lands and tenements, real estate and chattels real, of Henry Haile, and of Henry Haile and Charles Haile, I have seized and taken all the right, title and interest, which the said Henry Haile or the said Henry Haile and Charles Haile had on the the 14th day of January, 1852, or which they, or either of them, may since have acquired, of, in, and to all and singular the following described real estate, to wit:—

Lot No. 2.—Hague tract, in the town of Schroon, in the County of Essex, being same lot sold to Bradley by Joseph Weed and wife, June 1st, 1837. Also, Lot No. 13, in Robert Grant's Patent, in the town of Crownpoint, containing 76 1-16 acres of land, excepting one half acre thereof deeded by Henry Haile and wife to Solomon S. Flint, April 1st, 1851. Also, all that part of Lot No. 14, in Grant's Patent, in Crownpoint, lying east of Putnam's Creek, containing 13 90-100 acres of land.—Also, a small strip of land lying on the north-east side of the road leading from Samuel Russell's to the White Meeting-house, being on Robert Grant's Patent in Crownpoint, occupied in 1845 by Stephen Spaulding containing one half acre. Also, all the South equal half of Lot No. 20, Grant's Patent, in Crownpoint, containing 20 acres. Also, Lot No. 34, in the Pliny Moore Patent, in the town of Crownpoint.

Also, all that certain piece or parcel of land, lying and being in the town of Crownpoint, in the County of Essex and State of New York, and is bounded and described as follows: Beginning in the south line of the road about 2 feet easterly from an apple-tree, and 19 links westerly from a locust tree, both supposed to stand in the north line of said road; then running north 17°, east about 9 rods, until it intersects the south line of the Allen Campbell, then easterly following said south patent line 28 rods to the North line of the road, thence westerly following said North line of said road about 30 rods to the place of beginning, containing by estimation one acre of land. Which said real estate I shall expose for sale at Public Vendue, at the Hotel kept by Jacob Tappen, in Moriah, in said County of Essex, on the 25th day of January next, at Ten o'clock in the forenoon.

Promptness.

IT certainly must be highly gratifying to all persons who wish to get Property Insured against Loss by Fire, to know that they can effect an Insurance in a Company that is prompt, able, and willing to pay all losses insured by them. Persons insuring in the Indemnity Insurance Company, Broadalbin, New York, will (in the writer's opinion,) find such a company; and that their gentlemanly agent, J. G. McNutt, Esq., is on hand to Insure in this Company, and is as ready to pay where a loss is sustained as he is willing to insure. For instance, the Town House in Lewis was insured by him on the 28th day of May, 1853, was burned up on the 14th of September following, and on the 16th October he honored a draft for the amount of the insurance.

Henry's Invigorating Cordial,

PURELY VEGETABLE IN ITS COMPOSITION.

This invaluable Cordial, is extracted from Herbs and Roots, which have been found after years of experience by the most skillful Physicians, to be possessed of qualities most beneficial in the diseases for which it is recommended, and hence whilst it is presented to the public as an efficacious remedy, it is also known to be of that class in which reliance may be placed as to its safety. In cases of Impotency, Hemorrhages, also de-ranged Sterility, Menstruation, or Suppression of the Menses, Fluor Albus or Whites, or for arising from any cause, such as weakness from sickness, where the patient has been confined to bed for some time, for Females after Confinement, Abortion or Miscarriage, this Cordial cannot be excelled in its salutary effects; or in loss of Muscular Energy, Irritability, Physical Prostration, Seminal Weakness, Palpitation of the Heart Indigestion, Sluggishness, Decay of the Procreative Functions, Nervousness, &c., where a TONIC Medicine is required, it will be found equal, if not superior, to any Compound ever used.

DEBILITY

TO FEMALES.

Henry's Invigorating Cordial is one of the most invaluable Medicines in the many Complaints to which Females are subject. It assists nature to brace the whole system, check excesses, and creates renewed health and happiness. Less suffering, disease and unhappiness among Ladies would exist, where they generally to adopt the use of this Cordial. Ladies who are debilitated by those obstructions which females are liable to are restored by the use of a bottle or two, to bloom and to vigor.

YOUNG MEN.

That solitary practice, so fatal to the existence of man and it is too young who are most apt to become its victims, from an ignorance of the danger to which they subject themselves, causes

NERVOUS DEBILITY.

Weakness of the System, and Premature Decay. Many of you may now be suffering, misled as to the cause or source of disease. To those, then, who by excess have brought on themselves Premature Impotency, Involuntary Seminal Emissions, Weakness and Shrivelling of the Genital Organs, Nervous Affection, or any other consequences of unrestrained indulgence of the sensual passions, occasioning the necessity of renouncing the felicities of lessening both mental and bodily capacity, Hold! Henry's Invigorating Cordial a Medicine that is purely Vegetable, will aid nature to restore those important functions to a healthy state, and will prove of service to you. It possesses rare virtues, is a general removed of disease, and strengthener of the system.

AS A TONIC MEDICINE,

it is unsurpassed. We do not place this Cordial on a footing with quack medicines, and, as is customary, append a long list of Recommendations Certificates, &c., beginning with "Hear what the Preacher says," and such like; it is not necessary, for "Henry's Invigorating Cordial," only needs a trial to prove that it will accomplish all we say.

THE GENUINE "HENRY'S INVIGORATING CORDIAL,"

is put up in 8 oz. Panel Bottles, and is easily recognized by the Manufacturer's signature on the label of each Bottle (to counterfeit which is forgery) as well as his private Seal on the cork of each Bottle.

☞ Sold for $2 per Bottle; six for $8; $16 per dozen.

Prepared only by S. E. COHEN, No. 3 Franklin Row, Vine Street below Eighth, Philadelphia, Pa.; C. V. Clickener & Co., N. York, Wholesale Agents, TO WHOM ALL ORDERS MUST BE ADDRESSED. For sale by all respectable Druggists and Merchants throughout the country. 495:1y

This certifies that I have for a number of years been acquainted with the composition and mode of manufacture of Morse's Compound Syrup of Yellow Dock Root. I have also been acquainted with its mode of use in disease, and can say that in all cases it is admirably calculated to remedy the cases of Disease for which it was designed. It is especially valuable in Indigestion and all its attendant symptoms, it excites to healthy action the Liver, removes Torpor, and imparts vitality to this organ, and stimulates healthy action in all the system. As a Depurator or purifier of the Blood it has no superior.

CARRIER'S ADDRESS

TO THE PATRONS OF THE

ESSEX CO. REPUBLICAN,

JANUARY 1, 1854.

Another year has passed away,
As years have done before—
To Fifty-three good bye! we say,
And welcome, Fifty-four!
Though Fifty-three has had its griefs,
Its sorrows now are o'er,
A kind remembrance of its joys,
And, Here's to Fifty-four!

And as at last the time has come
To bid farewell to thee,
We'll speak of some things thou has't seen,
Old Eighteen fifty-three,
And first of Europe's crowded states
Over the sea afar;
Where all the use of peace they make
Is to prepare for war.
And though the olive branch has been Long o'er their heads extended,
They think they've wasted time enough—
Their reign of peace is ended.
Industrial exhibitions they Have had enough I'm sure:
And of Peace Congresses, all that
The nation could endure.
Elihu Burrett told them too
"It was not right that they Should war and fight, and try to take
Each other's lives away."
Yet I'm afraid that he will find
He's sadly been neglected,
And that his very sage advice
Has strangely been rejected.
In melting up their swords and spears
He thinks they are at work,
But if they are they'll cast them in—
To cannon for the Turk.
To day against her tyrant proud
Turkey is struggling well,
By that same river, on whose banks
Poor Hungary struggling fell.
And now if England, and if France
Shall bring their aid too late,
They'll wake up soon again, and find
Europe has lost a state.
If Omer falls, 'twill well become Napoleon to beware;
And England's Indian wealth has charms
For Russia's rugged Bear.
God help poor Turkey in her strife!
Let Yankee hearts exclaim;
For every Freeman owes her much
In Kossuth's honored name.

In France we've seen them hug their chains,
And hasten to bow down
In weak submission, low before
The Purple and the Crown.

In England too we've seen a sight
Which made us well nigh hate her,
The English people worshipping
A woman and a traitor—
A woman who has written what
Is beautiful and new,
And has but this most slight defect,
The story is not true.

But philanthropic Englishmen
Much love to hear a story,
From Yankee renegadoes, which Shall dim our nation's glory.
They love to hear how Southern men
Abuse and beat their Blacks,
Forgetful of their miner's wives
With harness on their backs;
Forgetful of the Factory child
Starving about the door;
Forgetful of their Sailor's rights,
And of their London poor;
Forgetful of the Peasant, who Scarce knows the marriage rite—
They have such pity for the Black
They have none for the White.

We've seen old Ireland send her sons,
Seeking a place of rest,
To far Australia's mines of gold,
And prairies of the West—
Until in spite of England's might,
And Landlords who abuse,
Her Poor are earning wages now,
And wearing leather shoes.

But in America we've seen
A sight full of good cheer,
A mighty people growing at
A million in a year.
God bless our Soldiers, and our Tars
Who o'er the ocean roam!
God bless our people, great and small,
In every Yankee home!
Our soldiers during Fifty three,
Had little else to do,
Than just to hunt some Indian tribe,
And catch a Squaw or two.
And, though we hope that work for them
There will be never more,
We'll not forget to honor them
For what they've done before.
Our gallant Tars we'll ever laud,
Who have this year unfurled
"The Stars and Stripes," and carried them
With honor 'round the world.
Bold Ingraham has well withstood
The Austrian Despot's might,
And taught him that he must respect
A Yankee Freeman's right.
No more need haughty England boast
Dominion of the seas,
When Yankee vessels sail among
Isles of the Japanese:
For gallant Perry has displayed
Our standard, from his mast,
Where never British banner yet
Was to the breezes cast.

Of our whole Union are we proud,
From Maine's cold rugged shore
To where our Californian strand
Hears the Pacific's roar.
But yet, of all the states we love
The Empire state the best;
For she has gleaned the choicest part
From each and all the rest.
The West has farmers, and the East
Boasts her adventurous Whalers;
But old New York has farmers too,
And stalwart Yankee sailors.
Of stores of pearls, and shells, and gold,
Rich California tells;
But our New York has money too,
And various sorts of Shells.

Within her bounds, as once before
Upon old England's soil,
The nations of the earth have met,
To show their fruits of toil.
The painted Savage came to show
His simple bow and spear;
The Chinese, with his ivory work,
His fans and toys, was here.
And Europe sent all that the eye
Of man could wish to see—
Of paintings, statues, rare machines,
And Gobelin Tapestry.
But Yankees blushed not, for they had
The works of Powers to show,
And great machines, that in a day
A "power of work" could do,
Cradles they had of various kinds,
Machines to sew and saw,
And scores of other things, of which
The names we do not knew.

New York is great, in all respects,
Electioneering, preaching;
In Insubordination, and Administration teaching.
Manhattan, twelve score churches has,
Where various sects may meet,
Yet they are so devotional,
The "Parson" takes the street.
Our State has politicians, who
Have every sort of hue;
And some are great philosophers—
One is a prophet too;
And he a famous "short-boy" is,
Who says "He hates defection,"
And lately made a prophecy
About our State Election.
He told his chief, the Whigs and Hards
Would be defeated quite
By Soft-shells; but, it's now supposed
The Prophet wasn't right.
In Keeseville they a P. M. placed
To keep old Essex right,
And thought, with such an organ, they
Would surely win the fight.
But as in this design, the Softs
Were sorely "taken in,"
It is surmised, that out of tune
The organ must have been.

Since English masters are compelled
To pay their workmen more,
Our manufacturers do not need
Such duties as before.
And now through all our iron hills
The cheerful forge-fires gleam,
And merry trip-hammers resound
Along our pleasant stream.
Now all our Merchants are employed
In making active sales,
And workmen just as actively
In making Eagle Nails;
Divines, as I suppose, employed
In doing people good; (brown?)
And Lawyers making money, as
Is fully understood.
Our Ladies look as fair as ever,
Our farmers look as bland,
For all are very fruitful now—
(I mean the farmer's land.)

Perhaps, around the New Year's board
Some empty seat is found,
While he who filled the vacant chair
Is sleeping in the ground,
A long farewell, then, let us bid,
To all the holy dead,
And softly of their memories speak,
And gently o'er them tread.
But let not any gloomy thought
Becloud our merry cheer—
Kind Friends and Patrons, on you all
God [illegible] year!

Civilization in Turkey.

In 1846 a council was formed, by imperial decree, for the management of all questions of public instruction, and the supervision of the new university The state of the primary schools under their charge is of the most satisfactory description. Elementry instruction in Turkey is not only free but obligatory. The law requires every citizen, as soon as their sons and daughters have reached their sixth year, to inscribe their names in the books of one of the public schools, unless he can prove his means of educating them at home. In Constantinople the most recent report shows the existence of 396 free schools, frequented by 32,700 children of both sexes. After five years at one of these schools, the pupil can enter a secondary school, where instruction on all points is also gratuitous. There are now six of these schools, with about a thousand pupils. There is also a high school for young men intended to fill public appointments, a college founded with the same view, a normal school for the education of professors, the imperial college of medicine, a military, a naval and an agricultural school. The Sultan is himself the superintendent of these schools, and visits in person at their examinations.—The pupils are said to be devotedly attached to him. The public libraries of Constantinople contain 80,000 volumes. During the reign of the present Sultan, protection and toleration have been extended to all religions. Christians have been permitted to take their position among the servants of the State, and to share in the administration of public affairs; some have been attached even to important embassies Old abuses in levying taxes have been done away with, monopolies have been abolished. A national bank has been established, and is now in successful operation. Railways are in course of construction. Polygamy is on the decrease, slavery has been suppressed; and in short, the Ottoman Empire promises to live and flourish, if it can be kept from the oppressions of the Russian Bear.

The Law of Love.

It was not mere good nature, but the adoption of the peace principles, which made Wm. Ladd thus gentle hearted. A story which he often told with peculiar relish, will illustrate this moulding of his character.

I had, said he, a fine field of grain growing upon an out farm, at some distance from the homestead. Whenever I rode by, I saw neighbor Pulsifer's sheep in the lot, destroying my hopes of harvest. These sheep were of the gaunt, long-eared kind, active as spaniels; they could spring over the highest fence, and no partition wall could keep them out. I complained to neighbor Pulsifer about them, sent him frequent messages, but all without avail.—Perhaps they would be kept out for a day or two, but the legs of the sheep were long, and my grain rather tempting than the adjoining pasture. I rode by again, the sheep were still there—I became angry, and told my men to set the dogs on them, and if that would not do, I would pay them if they would shoot the sheep.

I rode away much agitated, for I was not so much of a peace man then as I am now, and I felt literally full of fight. All at once a light flashed upon me. I asked myself, would it not be well for you to try in your own conduct the peace principle you are preaching to others? I thought it all over, and settled in my mind as to the best course to be pursued.

The next morning I rode over to see neighbor Pulsifer. I found him chopping wood at his door.

'Good morning, neighbor.'

No answer.

'Good morning,' I repeated.

He gave a kind of a grunt like a hog, without looking up.

'I came,' continued, I 'to see you about the sheep.'

At this he threw down his axe, and exclaimed in a most angry manner—

'Now, aren't you a pretty neighbor, to tell your men to kill my sheep? I heard of it—a rich man like you to shoot a poor man's sheep!'

'I was wrong, neighbor,' said I, 'but it will not do to let your sheep eat up all my grain; so I came up to say that I would take your sheep to my pasture, and put them in with mine, and in the fall you may take them back, and if any one is missing, you may take your pick out of my whole flock.'

Pulsifer looked confounded.—he did not know how to take me. At last he stammered out.

'Now, Squire, are you in earnest?'

'Certainly, I am,' I answered, 'it is better for me to feed your sheep in my pasture on grass, than to feed them here on grain; as I see the fence cannot keep them out.'

After a moment's silence, Pulsifer exclaimed:

'The sheep shan't trouble you again; I will fetter them all; but I'll let you know that when a man talks of shooting, I can shoot too, and when they are kind and neighborly, I can be kind too.'

The sheep never again trespassed on my lot. And, my friends, he would continue, addressing the audience, remember when you talk of injuring your neighbors, they talk of injuring you; and when nations threaten to fight, other nations will be ready too. Love will beget love; a wish to be at peace. You can only overcome evil with good. There is no other way.—Dem Review.

Notice is given in the Poughkeepsie papers that application will be made to the Legislature for a city charter for that village.

Agricultural.

☞ As very few of the readers of the Republican have ever "an introduction" to the Peoples Journal, allow me to say that if any of our Agricultural friends wish to change their location, by sale or exchange, $2 00 we will publish an advertisement of the length included for one month, and its insertion in People's Journal, which will make five publications, and thus give a pretty extensive circulation as to their wants and wishes. We very often search the papers to find advertised what they wish to buy. If they wish to sell, why not make the fact known through the same medium? It certainly looks reasonable that that would be the proper course to pursue

To sell Farms.

ARE there any of our readers who desire to sell their farms country places or property of any description? If so we would call their attention to the probability of finding customers by publishing a small advertisement in this Journal, Among the vast population of the United States there are, beyond all doubt, thousands who woulb be glad to buy farms, did they know where to find them to their liking. Tastes in this respect, are as different as sheeps faces. Some like the state of Maine, and would jump at the chance if a suitable farm offered there. Others shiver when Maine is mentioned, but would rejoice to hear of a good plantation in Texas. Some love to till a rough and stony soil—others require a smooth and level surface Let all those who have property to dispose of remember that an advertisement of five lines will only cost them fifty cents a month. The money may be sent by mail. If you wish to sell, you must let people know it—and to do so, you must advertise. The People's Journal offers an unusual medium for this purpose, by reason of its widely diffused circulation. This number goes into every State and Territory in the Union.

Cooked and Uncooked Food for Fattening.

In our last, we published views of a machine for pulping turnips and other root food for cattle, and stated that some conclusive experiments had been made with this diet, which proved it to be more valuable than cooked food. The experiments alluded to were first published in the Irish Farmer's Gazette, and consisted in feeding one lot of hogs on cooked turnips and barley meal, and another on raw turnips crushed, adding meal, and permitting the mass to ferment before being fed. There were four hogs in each lot. Those fed on cooked turnips weighed, when the experiment commenced, on the 27th November, 1852, 816, lbs. This lot were fed three times a day, and comsumed 280 lbs. daily, steamed and mixed with 12 lbs. of bran and barley meal In thirty-nine days they had gained an average each of 103 lds., or an aggregate of 412 lbs. To produce this gain there were consumed 9,920 lbs, of turnips, and 468 lbs, of bran and barley meal. The other lot of four hogs weighed at the commencement of the experiment. 792 lbs. They too, were fed three times a day, and consumed 140 lds. pulped turnips, fermented and mixed with 12 lbs. of bran and meal. It will be seen that the hogs fed on raw turnips consumed just half the quantity given to the others, while they gained an average each of 110 lbs., and 28 lbs. more than those fed on cooked turnips. In cooking the latter, just a ton of coal was consumed in the thirty-nine days. The pulped turnips, bran, and meal, stood three or four days before feeding. Each tub had an orifice in the bottom for a part of the water in the turnips to run out into troughs, which otherwise was found to check the fermentation. The liquor received in the troughs was fed to young pigs. We agree with the Genessee Farmer, that turnips naturally contain too much water (over 90 per cent.) to fatten hogs economically. A part of the nutritive element in the turnips passes out of the system by the bowels and a part from the thin blood, by the kidneys, dissolved in an excess of urine. A little less of the roots, and more barely, oat, or corn meal, would be cheaper and better feed.

The proposition of feeding stock on uncooked roots, pulped, is well worthy the attention of all farmers, since a saving of a few cents in the fattening of each animal is a gain of many millions of dollars to the agricultural interest. We hope that many of our enterprising, thinking people will examine into the subject, and themselves try experiments. We shall always be pleased to publish their results.—Peoples Journal.

Raising Chesnuts.

THIS is one of the most rapid trees in its growth yet one of the most difficult successfully to transplant. It may be easily grown from the seed, care being taken to prevent the same from becoming in the least dry. The nut should be planted either as soon as it falls from the tree, or it should be packed away over winter in moist sand or earth, and planted, after frost has gone in the spring. If planted in the fall they are likely to be injured by frost—hence spring planting is preferable. Plant 12 inches apart in drills, cover slightly, cultivate well with good manure, and the first season's growth will be about 12 inches. In 5 to 6 years, with proper treatment they will begin to bear, having reached a height of about six feet. Horse chestnuts, pecans, hickory and walnuts, may be raised, in the same manner, the secret of success being not to let the seed nuts become dry previous to planting.

Gov. Seward has the honor of having introduced the Pacific Railway Bill into the Senate. Its details are as follows:

SENATOR SEWARD'S MILITARY AND POSTAL ROAD BILL.—Washington, Dec. 27.—Mr. Seward's Railroad bill provides that a good first class double track Railroad shall be constructed through the Territories of the United States, North of the 40th parallel of North latitude, to the Eastern boundary of California; that public land necessary for the width of the bed of the road shall be ceded to the company, during their existence; that the road may be constructed by any company daly authorized by any one of the Legislatures of the States, the Secretary of War issuing proposals, and electing the one most advantageous to the United States; that the Government shall advance funds, either in money or stock, the company depositing five million dollars either in money or public stocks, for the faithful performance of their contract; the road to be completed in five years from the time of its commencement. The company are to enjoy, to their own use for fifty years the profits and emoluments of the road—but the United States mails, troops, and munitions of war, are to be transported at rates to be determined by the Government and Congress.

☞The London Morning Herald mentions a report that the Princess Mary of Cambridge is to be married to a son of Jerome Boneparte, a nephew to Napoleon and remarks:

'It would, indeed, be a singular instance of the vicissitudes of fortune and the short-sighted speculation of our greatest men, if a Bonapart should be united to a 'fille d' Angleterre.''

☞The Dedication of the new Masonic Hall on Tuesday afternoon, was an affair of great interest, and was witnessed by a large audience of Ladies and gentlemen. M. W. G. M. Newspapes of the 'Olden times."

A village friend has submitted to our care a couple of newspapers printed in the days of Auld Lang Syne. One is entitled the 'Country Porcupine,' and it is a regular Porcupine in its contents. It bears date Philadelphia Dec. 29. and 31, 1798.—It opens with a brief attack upon 'Mat. Carey.' Then follows an article intended to ridicule the case of 'Matthew Lyon, a furious democrat, sent to Philadelphia by the enlightened Republicans of Vermont.' This we shall publish at a future time.—If its readers were like those of the present day they complained of its advertisements, for it is well filled. 'Foreign news' are made prominent by large flaring capitals, as at the present day, but they were then longer on the way. The latest foreign news in the Porcupine of Dec. 29, 1798 were only down to Oct. 9. A change of dates, and the column in the Porcupine might be re-published without detection. A bitter personal discussion appears on the clos and commencement of the century. There is a Proclamation of the Mayor of Philadelphia, forbidding 'the idle practice of shooting out the old year and shooting in the new one,' that would have been appropriate in this place on last New Years night by substituting 'ringing of bells and yelling.' We give below an advertisement that will remind the good people of Glens Falls what their place once was. 'Tall trees from little acorns grow.'

That Valuable Seat known by the name of GLEN'S FALLS.

SITUATE in the town of Northumberland, county of Saratoga and State of New York, on the south side of Hudson's river, five miles west of Fort Edward and nine miles south of Lake George, with grist and saw-mills, and all the other buildings thereon, with upward three hundred acres of land, about one hundred and forty of which are under improvement. As the country around abounds in ore as well as timber, wheat, &c. there may be in addition to these mills, erected forges, furnaces, distilleries and manufactories of every description, having the whole North River to supply them with water, and the convenience of the falls, which are forty five feet high, and called the greatest curiosity of any cataract in the country. There are on the premises a large dwelling house, six fire places on a floor, a large dutch barn, a mill house for the hands attending the mills and a small farm-house. The saw mills have this summer been new modelled, and are superior to any in the state—the gang-mill with fourteen saws, will cut a log of fourteen feet long, in fourteen minutes—from March to December the mills will cut five thousand logs, and to saw nights twice that number—There is a bridge across said Hudson river at those falls; and the Great Roads from Albany and Schenectady to and from Canada, both by the way of Lake George and through Queensburgh and Fort Anne by Skeensborough, are over this bridge and thro' this farm, also the road to and from the new growing countries, Jessup's and Thurman's patents, &c.—The situation of this place is elegant for a gentleman's seat, and equal to any for extensive and profitable business.

Barnburner Love for the Irish.

During the last and preceding elections, the democratic press were filled with protestations of affection for the Catholic Irish. Just at the eve of every election, the Catholic religion and the rights of foreigners are in danger from the concealed hostility of whigs! During the late election, particularly, the attention of the people was arrested by glaring capitals in almost every Barnburner paper, nearly every week. At the same time, questions of real importance were 'dodged.' A bill before the late dem. Legislature, and the School money question was not even alluded to.—This kind of humbuggery has at last been exploded, and these cheats appear in all their naked deformity.

Gov. Marcy writes of the Irish Patriot' and others who have fled from foreign oppression, that they are "adventurers and seditious propagandists." The Albany Atlas calls John Mitchell "a wordy imbecile." These remarks have caused a profound sensation in the political world, and will result in the severance of the Irish vote from the Pierce democracy. ☞We perceive that the democratic papers in this

A struggle is going on at Washington in regard to purchasing the Mount Vernon estate.

Hon. Russell Sage, the whig member of the House of Representatives from Troy, moved a resolution recently for the purchase, but singularly enough, it was opposed by the democratic members from Virginia.

A bill is pending before the House to legislate Secretary Guthrie's assistant out of office. It is regarded as an attack upon the Administration and creates intense interest.

Gov. Seward, in the Senate, gave notice of a Bill for the Pacific Rail Road.

A resolution is pending in the Senate to create Genl. Scott Lt Genl. (It would be rather a degredation than an honor to be bestowed by President Pierce, Ed.) Norris and Williams, Senators from N. H. voted agst. the resolution, showing that Pierce is opposed to it. Polk caused Genl. Scott's arrest at the moment of his triumph in Mexico, and it is well that a Col. under him who could not keep his saddle, should now display his jealousy by opposing the crowning honors to the veteran and Hero. There will be a re-action in the public mind and Scott will be next President.

It is said that over 100 Hards have gone on to Washington to urge the rejection of Redfield by the Senate.

Senator Seward gave an entertainment recently at which several Southern Senators were present. Cordiality and good feeling prevailed.

European Affairs.

In connection with other interesting matters we give the following in regard to Poland, which will also be read with interest.

POLAND—IMPORTANT MOVEMENT.—On the occasion of celebrating recently, in Paris, the Anniversary of the Polish Revolution of 1830, a meeting of Polish Exiles took place by special permission of the police, at the Palace of Prince Adam Czartoryiski. On that occasion the Prince made a speech of a most remarkable character. It was more a manifesto, semi-official from Napoleon himself, and shows that important designs are entertained by the Emperor The Prince condemns the events of 1848 in general, and more particularly the participtaion of the Poles in the 'frantic insurrections, of that period, congratulating the 'bulk of the Polish nation for not having taken any part in them.' He also declares that it is a mistake that Poland desires revolutions,' and goes on admonishing the various parties among the Poles to unite and have full confidence in him as the only man who has 'attempted to renew and strengthen the old traditions of alliance with a country and a government the circumstances of which show a most striking similarity with those which it was the lot of Poland to undergo. Mutual good will and united efforts are the results of these endeavors.' This points directly to a good understanding between Napoleon and Czartoryiski; but the Prince is even more explicit when he says that the 'government which of all is most interested in our success is fully alive to the necessity of unity among us.—Hence it has long honored me with its confidence. Hence, also gentlemen, have I a particular and urgent motive for demanding your confidence and your support.' 'I alone,' he says elsewhere, 'can direct the affairs of the nation 'with hope of success.'—Troy Whig.

Amid the various speculations in regard to European affairs, the following from the N. Y. Tribune, will be read with interest, as that paper may be considered reliable on a matter of this kind,—Ed. Rep.

A Revolution at Paris.

Among the possible complications of European affairs, a new Revolution at Paris has often been suggested in our columns. Such an event would be so propitious to the projects of Russia, by withdrawing France from all present action in the East, that our readers have been kept alive to its possible occurrence. Their attention is now invited to the statements of one of our London correspondents, who affirms that such an outbreak is already arranged by the Legitimists, and that the moderate Republican party will make common cause with them in the undertaking. Such is the hatred which the Republicans bear to Louis Napoleon that they will not hesitate to connive at a Bourbon restoration in order to be delivered from him. We will not dispute that in many respects a Constitutional Monarchy might prove more convenient for Frenchmen and more advantageous for France than the present despotism. It would at least insure them parliamentary government, a certain degree of some day be driven out, but the moment is not well chosen for the process. Just now he is representing the interest of Democracy in general by resisting the aggressions of Russia, and the French Democracy had better wait till that controversy is over before exchanging him for a monarch who will claim to rule the nation by right divine, who will be personally friendly to Nicholas, even if he does not support his ambitious schemes.

We were not aware that we had had a "Prize Fight" so near home till we saw the following in a distant exchange.—Ed. Rep.

ANOTHER "PRIZE FIGHT."—The vicinity of our village was yesterday morning the scene of a disgraceful fight between two men of the names of Dildo and Peters. There were but few who knew anything of the affair, and the fight came off in the woods north of the village, near the railroad, at 9 o'clock precisely. The combatants were accompanied by their seconds and a few spectators. 'One who was there,' gives us the following account of the fight:

First Round—Combatants came up and squared off in good style; Peters made a pass at Dildo, but missed, and Dildo put in a stinger over Peters' eye, knocking him down.

Second Round—Peters came up looking desperate, made a pass hitting Dildo a slight tap on the nose and a stinger over the eye, knocking him down—a knock down each.—Peters' friends claiming 'first blood.'

Third round—After several passes, with about equal advantage, and little execution, Dildo requested to rest a while, which was allowed, both being much exhausted.

Fourth round—Both came up to 'time,' looking fresh. Dildo made a desperate pass, hitting Peters over the eye, knocking his knuckle out of joint. Peters returned the compliment by getting one or two hard taps on Dildo's mug, when Dildo 'owned up' beat. They were both considerably punished about the face.

The fight originated at a drunken row in a grocery the evening previous—a very frequent occurrence of late—which the proper authorities ought to put a stop to, if they would preserve the good name of our village.—Plattsburgh Republican.

Synopsis of the Gov's. Message.

The Message appropriately opens, with an acknowledgement of the many blessings bestowed by a benificent Providence upon our country, and people during the past year. It glances briefly, but eloquently at the early history of the State, the early struggles of her people, the origin and progress of those republican principles which have resulted in the establishment of a government under which the largest liberty, religious, social and political is enjoyed, human rights are guaranteed, and national progress in everything pertaining to civilization, has advanced in a degree unparalled in the history of nations. The State of New York was the scene of some of the most important events of the Revolution, and the propriety of commemorating these events by suitable monuments is suggested.

A separation of the office of Superintendent of Common Schools from that of the Secretary of State, the establishment of a distinct Bureau of Education, and of agricultural and mechanical schools, is recommended.

It is also recommended to establish State scholarships in the colleges for the purpose of educating young men for principals of union and high schools, and that the advantages of the endowment, be conferred upon meritorious pupils in the counties or Assembly districts.

Appropriations to the asylum for the idiotic, and for the establishment of another State Lunatic Asylum in the western part of the State, are strongly recommended.—The asylums for the insane, the deaf and the blind, are earnestly recommended to the favorable consideration of the Legislature.

The subject of the fatality among the emigrants coming to this country, is pressed with earnestness upon the Legislature, in the hope that some system may be devised, to prevent, in future, the horrible waste of human life that has been exhibited during the past year.

The Western and New-York House of Refuge are commended to the favorable consideration of the Legislature. A change in the system of government of the State prisons, so as to place them beyond the control of political action, and the allowing, as a reward of merit, convicts to receive a portion of their earnings, are recommended.

A modification of the criminal laws, so as to allow judges a broader disoretion in regard to the term of imprisonment for crime, is recommended.

Any modification of the laws relative to banks and banking, which shall change the securities for the redemption of the circulating medium, is strongly deprecated.

A modification of the usury laws is recommended.

A commission of scientific and impartial men is recommended to investigate the condition of the New York Harbor, and to report the report the result of their examinations.

The resolution of the last session providing for an amendment of the Constitution, relative to the completion of the canals, are strongly urged upon the Legislature. Their early adoption and submission to the people, is recommended. I do Gov. also earnestly recommends, the measure for the temporary improvement of the Erie and Oswego canals, which he urged upon their attention at the last session. To accomplish this, an appropriation of $500,000 only, will be necessary. Of this, $200,000 will apply towards the enlargement, and $300,000 be of temporary benefit, but would add one-half, at least, to the capacity of the canals. Appropriations to complete the Black River and Genesee Valley canals, are recommended. It is stated that only a small amount is required for the purpose, and that it is due to citizens interested in those works, that they should immediately be brought into use. Appropriations are also recommended to remove obstructions from the northern rivers of the State.

The increased receipts by railroads from freights have led many to suppose that these channels of transportation will in the end divert a large portion of the business of the canals. The Governor does not think so—and even if it should turn out to be true, the "canals will be of great value in controlling the rates of transportation."

On the subject of temperance and a prohibitary law, the Governor does not seem to be altogether unanimous in his own mind, as to what is the better course. He leaves the Legislature to do in the matter about what they think is right, without other advice or recommendation.

A law prohibiting any public officer from continuing expenditures or drawing drafts upon the treasury after appropriations have been exhausted, is strongly recommended. A necessity for such a measure has grown out of the habit of continuing the expenditures on the public works and otherwise, when there are no moneys in the treasury applicable by law to their payment.

The resolutions proposing amendments to the Constitution, on the subject of bribery and corruption at elections, are urged upon the consideration of the Legislature, and their submission to the people at the same time with the Canal resolutions, recommended.

The granting of the public lands to actual settlers is favored by the Governor as best calculated to promote the prosperity and advance the interests of the Union, and he suggests the consideration of the subject to the Legislature.

A large portion of the Message is devoted to the discussion of what the Governor understands as Democratic principles, the rights of the several States, the powers and duties of the General Government, most of which were the Governor on our side, we should recognize as sound Whig doctrine.

There is much sound advice contained in this document on the subject of Economy in the expenditure of the public monies—advice which our Whig State officers will do well to consider, albeit that it comes from a political opponent. On this subject all parties occupy a common platform, and in regard to it there can, among honest men, be no two opinions. The law of 1851 and the lettings that followed damaged the Whig party somewhat, and if it would recuperate all its original strength, it must avoid the repetition of a like folly. Happily, we have among our State officers men who may be counted on as equal to ordeal which in all probability they will have to pass through, and whose integrity will be proof against the seductions of profligacy that cluster around the distribution of a vast aggregate of governmental contracts. A voice from the political graves, into which the lettings of 1851 consigned the participants in that gigantic plunder, will be sounding a pregnant admonition in their ears, and if they fail to heed it, the responsibility will be all their own.—Albany Register.

Whig Senatorial Caucus.

At seven o'clock last evening the Whig Senators met in caucus in the Court of Appeals Room. Mr. Munroe, of Onondaga, was call to the Chair. One motion of Senator Crosby, Senator Putnam, of Erie, was chosen Secretary. The roll was called and 20 Senators answered to their names. Senator Brooks, Barnard and Williams were absent.

On motion of Hon. M. H. Clark, an informal ballot was had for Clerk—Senators Bishop and Pratt, Tellers.

E. Peshine Smith had 2 votes, Henry H. Hull 5, W. H. Bogart 5, Hugh J. Hastings 6, and N. Bowne 1.

Seven formal ballots were then had for Clerk, the last of which resulted as follows;

E. P. Smith	3
H. H. Hull	3
W. H. Bogart	2
H J. Hastings	11

Mr. Hastings was declared duly nominated

The Caucus then proceeded to Ballot for Sergant-at-Arms, and on the 4th Ballot Joseph Gardinghouse, of Ontario, received 11 votes, and was declared nominated.

Mr. H. M. Eaton, of Warren County, was then nominated for Assistant Sergant-at Arms, on the first Ballot.

Ballotings were next had for Doorkeeper and on the 5th ballot Mr. Samuel R. Tuell of Erie, was nominated.

Ballots were then had for Assistant Doorkeeper, and on the 4th ballot Mr. Almon Beecher, of Steuben, was nominated, and then the Caucus adjourned.

Whig Assembly Caucus.

The Whig Members of Assembly met in the Assembly Chamber at 7 o'clock last evening. Hon. Mr. Sessions of Chatauque called the Caucus to order, and on his motion, Theo. C. Peters, of Cenesee, was called to the Chair. On motion, Messrs. Palmer, of Chautauque, and Boardman, of Oneida, were appointed Secretaries; and Messrs. Barrow of New York, and Lozier of Livingston, Tellers.

On motion the Caucus proceeded to an informal ballot for Speaker, with the following result;—

Robert H. Pruyn, of Albany	40 votes.
De Witt C. Littlejohn, of Owego	33 do
Blank	1 do

Mr. Littlejohn; Mr. Chairman, although this was an informal ballot, I move that it be deemed formal, and that Mr. Pruyn be declared unanimously nominated as the Whig candidate for Speaker. [Applause.]

The motion was put and carried unanimously, [Applause.]

The Caucus then proceeded to the nomination of Clerk, with the following result:

Richard U. Sherman, of Oneida	47
Orren Archer, of Wayne	19
Ethan Allen, of New York	8
Scattering	2

Mr. Sherman was thereupon declared unanimously nominated.

On the second ballot, Silas D. Nichols, of Chenango, was elected Sergant-at Arms.

After the first ballot, John Davies, of Oswego, was nominated Door-Keeper.

Byron Ellsworth of Chautauque, 1st assistant Door-Keeper; and John Lewis, of Cattaraugus, 2d assistant Door-Keeper.

The Chair appointed the following gentlemen a committee, on the part of the House, to call future meetings of the Whig members of the Legislature, viz:—Mr. Wood of Onondaga: Mr. Sessions, of Chautauque; Mr. Cook in, of New York; Mr. Burnett, of Essex; and Mr. Thorne, of Washington. The Caucus then adjourned.

Adamantine Caucuses.

The Adamantine Members of Assembly met in the Senate Chamber, last evening, and made the following nominations:—

For Speaker—George D. W. Clinton, of New York.

For Clerk—John S. Nafew, of Albany.

For Sergant at-Arms—Curtis Bannics, of Orleans.

For Door Keeper—Ward Thompson, of Fulton.

For 1st Asst. Door-Keeper—Samuel Spencer of Livingston.

For 2d Asst. Door Keeper—S. G. Hoodman, of St. Lawrence.

The Adamantine Senators nominated Ira P. Barnes, of Chenango, for Clerk.

A series of Adamantine Resolutions—a copy of those offered by Mr. Stanton, in the Congressional Caucus—were adopted.

Another Railroad Accident.

The new Locomotive 'Despatch,' on her trip from Montreal to New York, by way of Whitehall and Troy, ran off the track a little below Keeseville, and by a strange blunder or criminal neglect, was not checked until the whole train had left the track, and was decending the inclined plain of smooth rock, on the north side of Trombleu Mountain, when taking alarm, the breaks were applied, but without effect, and the Conductor and Engineer only saved themselves by seizing the branches of an overhanging evergreen, and were left dangling in the air, while the train, with fearful velocity, leaped the precipice, and, with its numerous passengers and valuable cargo, was instantly ingulfed, and sank below the waters of Lake Champlain, as if to rise no more. The sufferers were mostly from the line of the road and vicinity, but numbers of the most efficient business men from Montreal, Troy and New York, and most of Whitehall were known to be on board. Montreal, however, has suffered far less than Troy or New York, as comparitively few came this way, she being contiguous to the Atlantic by other routes. Several of the Plattsburgh and Montreal Railroad Company were in the party; besides which, Plattsburgh has suffered but little. Navigation not having closed, most of her citizens continue to take boat. The loss of the Whitehall is irreparable.—Keeseville is greatly excited; at present more vexed with dissappointment than grieved with her loss. This will be more sensibly felt when her chargin for having ventured on the first excursion shall have passed away.

The damages to Troy and New York is less in loss of life than of property and business; most of the freight on board was bound for those cities, and this disaster with the want of a safe through line direct, will divert to Boston their legitimate business from the North and West.

Of the cause of this calamity nothing reliable is yet learned. It is surmised by some that the Conductor and Engineer, being Bostonians, and stockholders in the Rutland & Burlington Road, were bribed to defeat the passage through on the west shore of the lake. Some also, are ready to charge the Steamboat interest with having promised to connive at such a defeat. Those, however, who understand the steamboat interest to be identical with the Whitehall and southern railroad interest, entertain no such suspicion.

Before I write again, more truth will be elicited on these points; and probably in relation to a rumor which just now reached me, that some of the submerged cars have reappeared, and Keeseville is all expectant that her citizens may be resusciated, and put upon another route in season to accomplish the object of the exeuntion.

What realities in relation to the enterprise may come to light, I will present in my next, and continue my inquiries after further particulars.

A subject so painful to those who suffer and so deeply affecting the interests of the Empire, must be kept before the people.

CARD.

Rev. G. C. WELLS and LADY would express their gratitude to their friends, who visited them in person and by proxy, on the afternoon and evening of the 29th ult. leaving behind them donations of every variety, to the amount of $228,00.

Among the Donations, were the Sons of Temperance, who appeared in a body and made a formal presentation of a memento of their regard, alike acceptable to us and creditable to the Division.

The juvenile department, made their visit together with their gifts on the day following.

For this most liberal expression of kind regard the donors have our sincere thanks, and best wishes for their temporal and spiritual prosperity.

Bad Cough, Raising Blood, Night Sweats Cured.—Mr. Artemus Rudder, of Niles, Michigan, writes:—

For four months I have been troubled with a very bad cough. I got so bad lately that I have at times raised large quantities of blood, and some pus. This frightened me, for I thought I had the Consumption. Night after night I was bathed in sweat; so that I was, when I came under your treatment, little better than a withered bud. I commenced the use of the Ready Relief, Renovating Resolvent, and Regulators, which I got from Dr. J. Lorimore, of this place. I bathed my chest and throat with Ready Relief, took the the Resolvent three times per day internally, and from one two three Regulators every night. The first night I took the Relief and Resolvent, I slept in peace. I have had no distress from my cough since that night. In two weeks I was completely restored. I have now a good appetite, and am growing quite fat.

Very truly.

In this village, Dec 29th, Moses S. Foster, aged 31 years,

A passing tribute seems befitting, more than the simple announcement of the death of the deceased. Possessed of eminent christian qualities, as well as social, we are left to mourn the early departure of one whose life was one continued series in doing good by action and influence. His disease, though not a lingering one, gave, from the very first, indications of its hopeless nature; and during its progress, though made aware of its insidiousness, while his mind remained unclouded, he never uttered a murmuring word,—but on the contrary, the Christian graces and beauty of his character shone conspicuously forth, and were made manifest to his friends that the hope he entertained, proved as an anchor to the soul—sure and steadfast.

May this dispensation of Providence exert its called for influence over all minds—to the Christian to live as he lived—a Christian—to the impenitent and young, to imitate his virtues—and to prepare, as he did, for the hour of Death. His funeral was largely attended—showing the estimation in which he was held—and the opportunity improved by an impressive discourse from his Pastor. (Communicated.)

MORTGAGE SALE.

DEFAULT having been made in the payment of the monies secured by an indenture of mortgage, executed by Barlow Stevens of Moriah, Essex County, State of New York, of first part, to Ditus C. Shepard, dated Aug 18th, 1848, which said mortgage with a power of sale therein contained, was recorded in Essex County Clerk's office, November 8th, 1848, in book "O" of mortgages, pages 149 and 150. And no suit or proceedings at law having been instituted to recover the debt secured thereby or any part thereof,

"Man Know Thyself."

An Invaluable Book for 25 Cents.

"EVERY FAMILY SHOULD HAVE A COPY."

20,000 Copies sold in less than 5 months. A new edition, revised and improved, just issued.

Dr. Hunter's Medical Manual and Hand Book for the Afflicted—Containing an outline of the origin, progress, treatment and cure of every form of disease, contracted by promiscuous sexual intercourse, by self abuse or by sexual excess, with advice for their prevention, written in a familiar style, avoiding all medical technicalities, and everything that would offend the ear of decency, from the result of some twenty years successful practice, exclusively devoted to the cure of diseases of a delicate or pirvate nature.

To which is added, receipts for the cure of the above diseases, and a treatise on the causes, symptoms and cure of the Fever and Ague.

Testimony of the Prof of Obstetrics in Penn. College, Philadelphia—"Dr. Hunter's Medical Manual."—The author of this work unlike the majority of those works who advertise to cure the diseases of which it treats, is a graduate of one of the best Colleges in the United States. It affords me pleasure to recommend him to the unfortunate, or to the victim of malpractice, as a successful and experienced practitioner, in whose honor and integrity they may place the greatest confidence.

JOSEPH LONGSHORE M. D.

From A Woodward M. D., of Penn. University, Philadelphia—It gives me pleasure to add my testimony to the professional ability of the author of the "Medical Manual." Numerous cases of diseases of the Genital Organs some of them of long standing have come under my notice, in which his skill has been manifest in restoring to perfect health, in some instances where the patient has been considered beyond medical aid. In the treatment of Seminal weakness, or disarrangement of the functions produced by Self-abuse, or Excess of venery, I do not know his superior in the profession. I have been acquainted with the Author some thirty years, and deem it no more than justice to him as well as a kindness to the unfortunate victim of early indiscretion, to recommend him as one, in whose professional skill and integrity they may safely confide themselves. ALFRED WOODWARD, M.D.

"This is, without exception, the most comprehensive and intelligible work published on the class of diseases of which it treats. Avoiding all technical terms, it addresses itself to the reason of its readers. It is free from all objectionable matter and no parent, however fastidious, can object to placing it in the hands of his sons. The author has devoted many years to the treatment of the various complaints treated of, and with too little breath to puff,' and 'too little presumption to impose,' he has offered to the world at the merely nominal price of 25 cents, the fruits of some 20 years most successful practice."—Herald.

"No teacher or parent should be without the knowledge imparted in this invaluable work. It would save years of pain, mortification and sorrow to the youth under their charge."—People's Advocate.

A Presbyterian clergyman in Ohio, in writing of "Hunter's Medical Manual," says: "Thousands upon thousands of our youth, by evil example and influence of the passions, have been led into the habit of self-pollution without realizing the sin and fearful consequence upon themselves and their posterity. The constitutions of thousands who are raising families have been enfeebled, if not broken down, and the do not know the cause or the cure. Anything that can be done so to enlighten and influence the public mind as to check, and ultimately to remove this wide-spread source of human wretchedness, would confer the greatest blessing next to the religion of Jesus Christ, on the present and coming generations. Intemperance (or the use of intoxicating drinks,) though it has slain thousands upon thousands, is not a greater scourge to the human race. Accept my thanks on behalf of the afflicted, and, believe me, your co-worker in the good work you are so actively engaged in."

One copy, (securely enveloped,) will be forwarded free of postage to any part of the United States for 25 cents, or 6 copies for $1.—Address (post paid) COSDEN & Co., publishers, Box 196, Philadelphia. 478y

THE MARRIAGE STATE;

Shall Happiness and Health, or Misery and Sickness, attend it?

MOST STARTLING CONSIDERATIONS!

Reflections for the Thoughtful.

Strange that countless human beings exist and drag through life as do the beasts of the field, or the insects of the earth, evincing no more thought or reflection than though the noble faculties of mind were not vouchsafed to them.

Many such are husbands and fathers, upon whom are dependent the health, the well-being, and the happiness of a confiding and affectionate wife, with perhaps a family of children.

HOW OFTEN IT HAPPENS THAT THE

WIFE LINGERS FROM YEAR TO YEAR

In that pitiable condition as not even for one day to feel the happy and exhilerating influence incident to the enjoyment of health.

She may not be an invalid confined to her bed, or even to her room; as her pride, ambition and energy induce and nerve her to take personal charge of her household, even when her health will not admit of it; but she is nevertheless perceptibly sinking from day to day, and always ailing.

Thus, day after day, and month after month transpire. Her health daily sinks, till finally even the hope of recovery no longer remains. And thus

THE BLOOMING BRIDE,

But a few years ago in the flush of health and youth, and buoyancy of spirits, rapidly, and apparently inexplicably, becomes a feeble, sickly, debilitated wife, with frame emaciated, nerves unstrung, spirits depressed, countenance bearing the impress of suffering, and an utter physical and mental prostration.

Sometimes this deplorable change may and does arise from organic or constitutional causes. But oftener, by far oftener, to gross and inexcusable ignorance of the simplest and plainest rules of health as connected with the marriage state, the violation of which entails disease, suffering and misery, not only to the wife, but often

"UNTO THE THIRD AND FOURTH GENERATION," Transmitting CONSUMPTION, SCROFULA, HYPOCHONDRIA, INSANITY, GOUT, KING'S EVIL, and other diseases, as a DREADFUL INHERITANCE from the Parents.

And must this continue? Shall we be wise in all that concerns the cattle of our fields, our horses, our sheep, our cows, our oxen, the nature and character of the soil we possess, the texture and quality of our goods and merchandise; but in all that concerns ourselves as human beings, with human functions and passions, subject to great derangement, involving our future peace and happiness—in all that concerns the health and welfare of the wife of our affections, and the mother of our children; in all that concerns the mental and physical well being of those children, we should be immersed in the darkest and most

BENIGHTED IGNORANCE,

AS CULPABLE AS INEXCUSABLE!

How long shall this ignorance prevail so productive of its bitter fruits? How long shall the wife and mother be ignorant of the nature, character and causes of the various womb and sexual complaints, embittering her days by suffering—suffering often prolonged to years, eventuating in a complication of diseases utterly and hopelessly incurable? Shall we for ever close our eyes to the results of physiological science by which we may arrive at an understanding of ourselves as men and women, subject to serious life-long enduring diseases, and perpetuating them to our children.

LET EVERY WIFE AND HUSBAND PONDER!

No husband or wife need be ignorant of what concerns them most to know to secure their health and happiness. That knowledge is contained in a little work entitled

THE MARRIED WOMAN'S

PRIVATE MEDICAL COMPANION,

BY DR. A. M. MAURICEAU,

PROFESSOR OF DISEASES OF WOMEN.

One Hundredth Edition. 18mo., pp. 250. Price 50 Cents

LEANDER BABBIT'S TRUSS OFFICE

The latest and most approved Trusses; Female Supporters: Do. with shoulder braces attached; spinal elevators for curvature of the spine and projection of the shoulder blade. Suspensary shoulder braces. This instrument is so constructed that it not only acts the par of shoulder braces, but carries the belt of the ladies' skirts on their shoulders; and, hence remedies the evil consequent to carrying them on the hips and sides. For gentlemen, it not only serves for a shoulder brace, but acts the part of suspenders.

As to the importance and usefulness of the abovenamed instruments and their beneficial effects, their peculiar mechanism and superiority over other instruments of the same name, I need not say anything. They are so well known by physicians, and the multitude of persons that have had occasion to test them in this northern section of country, that I deem it not important to introduce a long catalogue of certificates; yet I have abundant evidence in my possession to justify me in all I claim or affirm, and deem it a privilege to give references to any who wish to make inquiries.

Office at Keeseville in the building on the corner of Main and Front street, opposite the Bank, up stairs.

Ladies will be waited on at my dwelling by Mrs. Babbit, whose experience in adjusting braces and supporters qualifies her to give perfect satisfaction. 482—3m

SHERIFF'S SALE.

BY virtue of several executions issued out of the Supreme Court of the State of New York, to me directed and delivered, against the goods and chattels, lands and tenements, real estate and chattels real, of Henry Haile, and of Henry Haile and Charles Haile, I have seized and taken all the right, title and interest, which the said Henry Haile or the said Henry Haile and Charles Haile had on the the 14th day of January, 1852, or which they, or either of them may since have acquired, of, in, and to all and singular the following described real estate, to wit:—

Lot No. 2.—Hague tract, in the town of Schroon, in the County of Essex, being same lot sold to Bradley by Joseph Weed and wife. June 1st, 1837. Also, Lot No. 13, in Robert Grant's Patent, in the town of Crownpoint, containing 76 1-10 acres of land, excepting one half acre thereof deeded by Henry Haile and wife to Solomon S. Flint, April 1st, 1851. Also, all that part of Lot No. 14, in Grant's Patent, in Crownpoint, lying east of Putnam's Creek, containing 13 90-100 acres of land.—Also, a small strip of land lying on the north-east side of the road leading from Samuel Russell's to the White Meeting-house, being on Robert Grant's Patent in Crownpoint, occupied in 1845 by Stephen Spaulding, containing one half acre. Also, all the South equal half of Lot No, 20, Grant's Patent, in Crownpoint, containing 20 acres. Also, Lot No. 34, in the Pliny Moore Patent, in the town of Crownpoint.

Also, all that certain piece or parcel of land, lying and being in the town of Crownpoint, in the County of Essex and State of New York, and is bounded and described as follows: Beginning in the south line of the road about 2 feet easterly from an apple-tree, and 19 links westerly from a locust tree, both supposed to stand in the north line of said road; then running north 17°, east about 9 rods, until it intersects the south line of the Allen Campbell, then easterly following said south patent line 28 rods to the North line of the road, thence westerly following said North line of said road about 30 rods to the place of beginning, containing by estimation one acre of land. Which said real estate I shall expose for sale at Public Vendue, at the Hotel kept by Jacob Tappen, in Moriah, in said County of Essex, on the 25th day of January next, at Ten o'clock in the forenoon.

TROY, NEW YORK;

INVITES the attention of those who wish to purchase

DRY GOODS,

Carpets and Oil-Cloths.

Owing to the large increase of patronage, I have found it necessary from time to time, to make many improvements and additions to my store.

This spring I have united the stores No. 7 and 9, State St., making a spacious and beautiful room, fitted up expressly for the sale of all the various styles of Silks, Shawls, Cloaks & Mantillas.

This connects with the main store, No. 202, River St., (the old stand occupied by the subscriber for nearly 30 years,) which is devoted to a general assortment of

STAPLE AND FANCY DRY GOODS,

comprising every variety to meet the wants of all classes of buyers. Besides these, four large rooms over the stores 200, 202 and 204 River St., are occupied as

CARPET WARE-ROOMS,

where I am constantly receiving the newest and most desirable patterns of Velvet, Tapestry, Brussels, Three-ply, Ingrain and Venetian Carpets. Also, Oil-Cloths of every quality and width, and every style of Drugetts, Rugs, Mats, Matting, Stair-Rods, &c.

All these departments combined making an extensive and complete Establishment, conducted on such principles, that customers can trade with confidence, and to their own advantage, my sales being always for cash, and the only price asked, being the lowest cash price. G. V. S. QUACKENBUSH.

Henry's Invigorating Cordial,

PURELY VEGETABLE IN ITS COMPOSITION.

This invaluable Cordial, is extracted from Herbs and Roots, which have been found after years of experience by the most skilful Physicians, to be possessed of qualities most beneficial in the diseases for which it is recommended, and hence whilst it is presented to the public, as an efficious remedy it is also known to be of that character on which reliance may be placed as to its safety. In cases as Impotency, Hemmorrhages, Disordered Sterility, Menstruation, or Suppression of the Menses, Fluror Albus or Whites, or for arising from any cause, such as weakness from sickness, where the patient has been confined to bed for some time, for Females after Confinement, Abortion or Miscarriage, this Cordial cannot be excelled in its salutary effects; or in loss of Muscular Energy. Irritability, Physical Prostration, Seminal Weakness, Palpitation of the Heart, Indigestion, Sluggishness, Decay of the Procreative Functions, Nervousness, &c., where a TONIC Medicine is required, it will be found equal, if not supperior to any Compound ever used.

DEBILITY

TO FEMALES.

Henry's Invigorating Cordial, is one of the most invaluable Medicines in the many Complaints to which Females are subject. It assists nature to brace the whole system, check excesses, and creates renewed health and happiness. Less suffering, disease and unhappiness among Ladies would exist, where they generally to adopt the use of this Cordial. Ladies who are debilitated by those obstructions which females are liable to are restored by the use of a bottle or two, to bloom and to vigor.

YOUNG MEN.

That solitary practice, so fat l to the existence of man, and it is the young who are most apt to become its victims, from an ignorance of the danger to which they subject themselves, causes

NERVOUS DEBILITY.

Weakness of the System, and Premature Decay. Many of you may now be suffering, misled as to the cause or source of disease. To those, then, who by excess have brought on themselves Premature Impotency. Involuntary Seminal Emissions, Weakness and shrivelling of the Genital Organs, Nervous Affection, or any other consequences of unrestrained indulgence of the sensual passions, occasioning the necessity of renouncing the felicities of lessening both mental and bodily capacity, Hold! Henry's Invigorating Corotal a Medicine that is purely Vegetable, will aid nature to restore those important functions to a healthy state, and will prove of service to you. It possesses rare virtues, is a general remover of disease, and strengthener of the system.

AS A TONIC MEDICINE,

it is unsurpassed. We do not place this Cordial on a footing with quack medicines, and, as is customary, append a long list of Recommendations. Certificates, &c., beginning with "Hear what the Preacher says," and such like; it is not necessary, for "Henry's Invigorating Cordial," only needs a trial to prove that it will accomplish all we say.

THE GENUINE "HENRY'S INVIGORATING CORDIAL."

is put up in 8 oz. Pannel Bottles, and is easily recognized by the Manufacturer's signature on the label of each Bottle, (to counterfeit which is forgery.) as well as his private Seal on the cork of each Bottle.

MORSE'S

COMPOUND SYRUP OF

Yellow Dock Root.

THIS is a Purely Vegetable Compound, scientifically prepared from the best Roots and Herbs of the Materia Medica, and has gained a universal reputation for the following effects, viz: Regulating and Strengthening the Liver and Digestive Organs, and Cleansing the Stomach and Bowels, and curing all Billious Diseases, Liver Complaints, Dyspepsia, Indigestion, Costiveness, Bites Headache, Fever and Ague, Jaundice Nausea Loss of Appetite, &c., and causing the food to nourish and support every part, PURIFYING THE BLOOD, and thus curing all Humors. Cutaneous Eruptions, Scrofula, Salt Rheum, Erysipelas, Scald Head, Canker, Pimples on the face, Blotches, Ulcers, Tumors, Mercurial Diseases, Cancers, &c. Regulating the Secretory Organs, and by enabling them to perform their proper functions, preventing and curing many painful and dangerous diseases; Strengthening and Quieting the nervous system, thus allaying Nervous Irritation, and curing all Diseases of the Nerves, as Hysteria, Neuralgia, Cramps, &c.

It is unrivalled in the cure of all FEMALE COMPLAINTS, as weakness, general debility, Irregularity, Obstructions, Swelling of the Feet, Limbs, Joints, &c., caused by weakness; also, Lung and Throat Complaints, as Colds, Coughs, Asthma, Consumption, &c., also, Dropsy.

Having made use of the Compound Syrup of Yellow Dock Root, prepared by C. Morse and Co., either ourselves or in our families and finding it to be a very salutary and effectual preparation, we do most cheerfully recommend it to the public as a very valuable medicine.

E. Bourne, Esq., Cashier National Bank, Providence, R. I.; A. W. Spencer, Esq., Cashier Lime Rock Bank, do do Rev. William Phillips, Rev. J. B. Richmond, C. S Jones, editor Providence Gen. Advt., Wm. Field, M. W. G. M. Cyrus Fisher, M. E. H, P. James Hutchinson, G. S. Dea., V. J. Bates, Doct. Benj. Colby, and one hundred others of the most respectable families of Providence.

This certifies that I have for a number of years been acquainted with the composition and mode of manufacture of Morse's Compound Syrup of Yellow Dock Root. I have also been acquainted with its modus operandi in disease, and can say that in all respects it is admirably calculated to remedy that class of Diseases for which it was designed. It is especially valuable in Indigestion and all its attendant symptoms, it excites to healthy action the Liver, removes Torpor, and Inactivity of this organ, and stimulates healthy action in all the system. As a Deporator or purifier of the Blood it has no superior.

Hot Corn.

"HOT CORN! Here is your nice Hot Corn, smoking hot, just from the pot!"—Hour after hour last evening as we sat over the desk, this voice came up in a soft, plaintive voice under our window, which told us of one of the ways of the poor to eke out means of subsistence in this over-burdened, ill fed and worse-lodged home of misery—of so many without means who are constantly crowding into the dirtiest purlieus of this notoriously dirty city, where they are exposed to the daily chances of death from some sudden outbreaking epidemic like that now desolating the same kind of streets in New Orleans, and swallowing up its thousands of victims from the same class of poverty-stricken, uncomfortably-provided-for human beings, who know not how, or have not the power, to flee to the healthy hills or green fields of the country. Here they live—barely live—in holes almost as hot as the hot corn, the cry of which rung in our ears from dark till midnight,

"Hot corn! hot corn! here's your nice hot corn," rose up in a faint, child-like voice, which seemed to have been aroused by the sound of our step as we were about entering the Park, while the city clock told the hour when ghosts go forth upon their mid-night rambles. We started, as though a spirit had given us a rap, for the sound seemed to come out of one of the iron posts which stand as sentinels over the main entrance, forbidding all vehicles to enter, unless the driver takes the trouble to pull and tumble out of the way, one of the aforesaid posts, which is not often done, because one of them often if not always, is out of its place, giving free ingress to the court-yard, or livery-stable grounds of the City Hall, which, in consideration of the growth of a few miserable dusty brown trees and doubtful colored grass patches, we call "the Park."

Looking over the post we discovered the owner of the hot corn cry, in the person of an emaciated little girl about twelve years old, whose dirty frock was nearly the color of the rusty iron, and whose face, hands and feet, naturally white and delicate, were grimmed with dirt until nearly of the same color. There were two white streaks running down from the soft blue eyes, that told of the hot scalding tears that were coursing their way over that naturally beautiful face.

"Some corn, Sir," lisped the little sufferer, as she saw we had stopped to look at her, hardly daring to speak to one who did not address her in rough tones of command, such as "Igive me some corn, you little wolfe's whelp," or a name still more opprobrious both to herself and mother. Seeing we had no look of contempt for her, she said, piteously, "please buy some corn, sir."

"No, my dear, we do not wish any; it is not very healthy in such warm weather as this, and especially so late at night."

'Oh dear, then, what shall I do?'

'Why, go home. It is past mid-night, and such little girls as you ought not to be out in the streets of this bad city at this time of night.'

'I can't go home—and I am so tired and sleepy Oh dear.'

'Cannot go home. Why not?'

'Oh, Sir, my mother will whip me if I go home without selling my corn. Oh, sir, do buy one ear, and then I shall only have two left, and I am sure she might let little Sis and me eat them, for I have not had anything to eat since morning, only one apple the man gave me, and one part of one he threw away. I could have stolen a turnip at the grocery when I went to get—to get something in the pitcher for mother, but I dare not. I did use to steal, but Mr. Pease says it is naughty to steal, and I don't want to be naughty, indeed I don't; and I don't want to be a bad girl, like Lizzy Smith, and she is only two years older than me, if she does dress fine; 'cause Mr. Pease says she will be just like old drunken Kate, one of these days. Oh, dear, now there goes a man, and I did not cry hot corn, what shall I do?'

'Do! There, that is what you shall do,' as we dashed the corn in the gutter. 'Go home; tell your mother you have sold it all, and here is the money.'

'Won't that be a lie, Sir? Mr. Pease says we must not tell lies.'

'No, my dear, that won't be a lie, because I have bought it and thrown it away, instead of eating it.'

'But, Sir, may I eat it then if you don't want it,'

'No, it is not good for you; good bread is better, and here is a sixpence to buy a loaf, and here is another to buy some nice cakes for you. Now that is your money: don't give it to your mother, and don't stay out so late again. Go home earlier and tell your mother you cannot sell all your corn, and you cannot keep awake, and if she is a good mother she won't whip you.'

'Oh, Sir, she is a good mother sometimes But I am sure the grocery man at the corner is not a good man, or he would not sell my mother rum, when he knows—for Mr. Pease told him so—that we poor children were starving. Oh, I wish all the men were good men like him, and then my mother would not drink that nasty liquor and beat and starve us, 'cause there would be nobody to sell her any. And then we should have plenty to eat.'

Away she ran down the streets towards the reeking centre of filth, poverty and misery, the noted Five Points of New York.

As we plodded up Broadway, looking in here and there upon the lateral splendors of metropolitan 'saloons'—we think that is the word for fashionable upper class grog shops—we almost involuntarily cried 'hot corn;' as we saw the hot spirit of that grain under the various guises of 'pure gin'—'old rum'—'pale brandy'—'pure port'—'Heidsieck'—or 'Lager-bier' poured down the hot throats of men—and, ah, yes, of women, too, whose daughters may some day sit at mid-night upon the cold curb-stone crying 'hot corn,' to gain a penny for the purchase of a drink of the fiery dragon they are now inviting to a home in their bosom, whose cry in after years will be, 'Give, give, give,' and still as unsatisfied as the horse leech's daughters.

Again, as we passed on up that street, still busy and thronged at midnight as a country village at mid-day intermission of church service, ever and anon from some side street came up the cry of "hot corn—hot corn!" and ever as we shall through all years to come, we thought of that little girl and her drunken mother, and the 'bad man' at the corner grocery, and that hers was the best, the strongest Maine Law argument which had ever fallen upon our listening ear.

Again, as we turned the corner of Spring street, the glare and splendor of a thousand gas lights, and the glittering cut glass of that, for the first time lighted up, bar-room of the Prescott House, so lauded by the Press for its magnificence, dashed our eyes and almost blinded our senses to a degree of imagination that first class Hotels must have such Five Point denizen making appurtenances, as this glittering room, shamelessly open inviting to the street; when that watch-word cry, like the pibroch's startling peal, came up from the near vicinity, wailing like the lost spirit on the mid-night air—"Hot corn, hot corn—here's your nice smoking hot corn."

'Yes, yes!' I hear you cry—it is a watch-word—a glorious watchword, that bids us do or die—until the smoking hot, fiery furnace-like gates of hell, like this one now yawning before us, shall cease to be licensed by a Christian people, to send delicate little girls at midnight through the streets crying 'hot corn,' to support a drunken mother, whose first glass was taken in a 'fashionable saloon,' or first-class liquor selling hotel.

'Hot corn,' then be the watchword of all who would rather see the grain fed to the drunkard's wife and children, than into the insatiable hot maw of the whiskey still.

Let your resolutions grow hot and strong every time you hear this midnight cry cry, that you will devote, if nothing more,

"Three grains of corn, mother,
Only three grains of corn."

towards the salvation of the thousand equally pitiable objects as the little girl, whose wailing cry has been the inciting cause of the present dish of 'Hot Corn—smoking hot!'

The next night after the interview with that neglected ill-used little girl, the same plaintive cry of 'Hot corn, hot corn, here is nice hot corn,' came up through our open window, on the midnight air, while the rain came dripping down from the over charged clouds in just sufficient quantity to wet the thin single garment of the owner of that sweet young voice, without giving her an acceptable excuse for leaving her post before her hard task was completed.—At length the voice grew faint, and then ceased, and then we knew that exhausted nature slept—that a tender house plant was exposed to the chilling influences of a night rain—that an innocent little girl had the curb stone for a bed and an iron post for a pillow—that by and by she would awaken, not invigorated with refreshing slumber, but poisoned with the sleepy inhaled miasma of the filth reeking gutter at her feet, which may be breathed with impunity awake, but like the malaria of our Southern coast, is death to the sleeper. Not soothed by a dreamy consciousness of hearing a mother's voice, tuning the soft lullaby of but starting like a sentinel upon a savage frontier post, with alarm at having slept; shivering with night air and fear, and finally compelled to go home trembling like a culprit to hear the hard words of a mother—yes a mother—but Oh! what a mother—cursing her for not performing an impossibility, because exhausted nature slept; because her child had not made a profit which would have enabled her more freely to indulge in the soul and body-destroying vice of drunkenness, to which she had fallen from an estate when 'my carriage' was one of the 'household words' which used to greet the young ears of that poor little death stricken neglected street sufferer.

"Hush, my child, lie still and slumber;"

It was past midnight when she awoke, and found herself with a desperate effort just able to reach the bottom of the old rickety stairs which led to her 'home.'—We shall not go up now. In a little while, reader, you shall see where live the city poor.

Tired—worn with the daily toil—for such is the work of an editor who caters for the appetites of his morning readers—we were not present the next night to note the absence of that cry from its accustomed spot; but the next and next, and still on we listened in vain—that voice was not there. True, the same hot-corn cry, came floating upon the evening breeze across the park, or wormed its way from some cracked fiddle voice down the street, up and around the corner; or out of some dark alley with a broken English accent, that sounded almost as much like 'lagerbier' as it did like the commodity the immigrant, struggling to eke out his precarious existence, wished to sell. All over this great poverty-burdened and wicked waste extravagant city, at this season, that cry goes up, nightly proclaiming one of the habits of this late supper eating people.

Yes, we missed that cry. 'Hot corn' was no longer like the music of a stringed instrument to a weary man, for the treble-string was broken, and to us, the harmony spoiled.

What was that voice to us? It was but one of the ten thousand just as miserable, which may be daily heard where human misery has its abode. That voice, as some others have, did not haunt us, but its absence, in spite of all reasoning, made us feel uneasy.

We shall not stop to enquire whether it was a spirit of 'the first third or sixth sphere,' that prompted us as we left our desk one evening, to go down among the abodes of the poor, with a feeling of certainty that we should see or hear something of the lost voice, for that spirit led us on; perhaps the spirit of curiosity; no matter it led and we followed in the route we had seen that little one go before—it was our only one—we knew no name—had no number, nor knew no one that knew her whom we were going to find. Yes, we knew that good Missionary, and she had told us of the good words which he had spoken, but would he know her from the hundred just like her? Perhaps it will cost nothing to inquire. We went down Centre street with a light heart, we turned into Cross street with a step buoyed by hope; we stood at the corner of Little Water street and looked round inquiringly of the spirit and mentally said, 'which way now?' The answer was a far-off scream of despair.—We stood still with an open ear, for the sound of prayer followed by a sweet hymn of praise to God, went up from the site of the Old Brewery, in which we joined thankful that that was no longer the abode of all the worst crimes ever concentrated under one roof. Hark, a step approaches. Our unseen guide whispered, 'ask him.' It were a curious question to ask a stranger in such a strange place, particularly one like him, haggard with over-much care, toil or mental labor. Prematurely old, his days shortened by over work in young years, as his furrowed face and almost phrensied eye hurriedly indicates, as we see the flash of the lamp upon his dark visage, as he approaches with that peculiar American step which impels the body forward at railroad speed. Shall we get out of his way before he runs over us?—What if he is a crazy man? No; the spirit was right—no false raps here. It is that good missionary. That man who has done more to reform that den of crime, the Five Points of New York than all the Municipal Authorities of this Police-hunting, and Prison punishing city where misfortune is deemed a crime, or the unfortunate driven to it, by the way they are treated, instead of being reformed, or strengthened in their resolution to reform by hard words rather than Prison bars. 'Sir,' said Mr. Pease, 'what brings you here at this time of night, for I know there is an object; can I aid you?'

'Perhaps, I don't know—a foolish whim—a little child—one of the miserable, with a drunken mother.'

'Come with me, then. There are many such. I am just going to visit one, who will die before morning—a sweet little girl, born in better days, and dying now—but you shall see, and then we will talk about the one you would seek to save.'

We were soon treading a narrow alley, where pestilence walketh in darkness, and crime, wretched poverty and filthy misery, go hand in hand to destruction.

'Behold,' said our friend, 'the fruits of our city excise. Here is the profit of money spent for license to kill the body and damn the soul.' Proven by the awful curses and loud blows of a drunken husband upon a wife, once an ornament to society, and exemplary member of a Christain Church, that came up out of one of the low cellars, which human beings call by the holy name of home.

The fetid odour of this filthy lane had been made more fetid by the late and almost scalding hot rains, until it seemed to us that such an air was only fit for a charnel house. With the thermometer at 86, at midnight how could men live in such a place, below the surface of the earth.—Has rum rendered them proof against the effect of carbonic acid gas?

We groped our way along to the foot of an outside stair-case, where our conductor paused for a moment, calling our attention to the spot. Here, said Mr. Pease, the little sufferer we are going to see, fainted a few nights ago, and lay all night exposed to the rain, where she was found, and beaten in the morning by her miserable mother, because she had not sold all her corn.

Great and unknown cause hast thou brought us to her door! Our friend stared, but did not comprehend the expression. Be careful, said he, the stairs are very old, and slippery.

Beat her, said we, without regarding what he was saying.

Yes, beat her while she was in a fever of delirium, from which she has never rallied. She has never spoken rationally, since she was taken. Her constant prayer seems to be to see some particular person before she dies.

'Oh, if I could see him once more—there—there—that is him—no, no, he did not speak that way to me—he did not curse and beat me.'

Such is her conversation, and that induced her mother to send for me, but I was not the man. 'Will he come?' she says every time I visit her; for thinking to so soothe and comfort her, I promised to bring him.

We had reached the top of the stairs and stood a moment at the open door, where sin and misery dwelt, where sickness had come, and where death would soon enter.

'Will he come?'

A faint voice came up from a low bed in one corner, seen by the very dim light of a miserable lamp.

That voice. We could not be mistaken. We could not enter. Let us wait a moment in the open air, for there is a shocking sensation coming over us.

'Come in,' said our friend.

'Will he come?'

Two hands were stretched out imploringly toward the Missionary, as the sound of his voice was recognized.

'She is much weaker to-night,' said her mother in quite a lady-like manner, for the sense of her drunken wrong to her dying child had kept her sober, since she had been sick, 'but she is quite delirious, and all the time talking about some man that spoke kindly to her one night, and gave her money to buy bread.'

'Will he come?'

'Yes, yes, through the guidance of the good spirit that guides the world, and leads us by unseen paths, through dark places, he has come.'

The little emaciated form started up in bed, and a pair of beautiful soft blue eyes glanced around the room, peering through the semi-darkness, as if in search of something heard but unseen.

'Katy, darling,' said the mother, 'what is the matter?'

'Where is he, mother? He is here, I heard him speak.'

'Yes, yes, sweet little innocent, he is here,' kneeling by your beside. 'There, lay down, you are very sick.'

'Only once, just once, let me put my arms around your neck and kiss you just as I used to kiss papa. I had a papa, once when we lived in the big house—there, there—Oh, I did want to see you to thank you for the bread and the cakes; I was very hungry, and it did taste so good—and little Sis, she waked up, and she eat and eat, after a while she went to sleep with a piece in her hand, and I went to sleep; haven't I been asleep a good while? I thought I was asleep in the Park, and somebody stole all my corn, and my mother whipt me for it, but I could not help it.—Oh dear I feel sleepy now, I can't talk any more. I am very tired. I cannot see; the candle has gone out. I think I am going to die. I thank you, I wanted to thank you for the bread—I thought you would not come. Good bye—Sissee, good bye, Si-see—you will come—mother—don't drink—any more—Mother—good b—.'

'Tis the last of earth,' said the good man at our side—let us unite in prayer.

Reader, Christian reader, little Katy is in her grave. Prayers for her are unavailing. There are in this city a thousand just such cases. Prayers for them are unavailing. Faith without works won't work reform. A faithful prayerful resolution to work out that reform which will save you from reading the recital of such scenes—such fruits of the rum trade as this before you, will work together for your own and others' good. Go forth and listen. If you hear a little voice crying hot corn, think of poor Katy, and of the host of innocents slain by that remorseless tyrant, rum. Go forth and seek a better spirit to rule over us. Cry aloud, 'will he come?' and the answer will be, 'yes, yes, he is here.'

Rare Case.

At the late fair of the Rutland Vt.) County Agricultural Society, a yearling heifer of large size, was exhibited by Mr. N. H. Winchell of Poultney, which attracted much attention from the fact that she has given four quarts of milk per day for two months past, although she has never had a calf.

Another Railroad Accident.

PART II.

Agreably to promise, I notice further particulars. But as we do not wish to convict the Conductor and Engineer of so fearful a crime, I leave the surmise of bribery as only such, and to be forgotten as soon as may be. The rumor of Keeseville's hopes seems to have been realised in part, and it is now believed she was in the secret as each of her members was found guarded by a secret Life-preserver. They being extricated from their perils at sea, and fairly resuscitated, hastily embarked on another train bound for the same port by way of Ausable Forks and the Adirondac, and drawn by the spirited locomotive Self-will.

But the excess of grade on that route and the greater distance being remembered, it was deemed proper to summon more power to their aid; and, being obedient to the call, a compact and good looking engine presented herself under the name of Self-interest, whose proffered service was readily accepted.

Thus equipped, our little party was soon threading their 'devious and uncertain way' among the Everlasting Hills; and having gained the summit were rapidly descending the serpentine track of Saratoga and Sacketts Harbor Railroad to the Albany junction, were taking that track, they were at length brought to a stand at the Albany depot an hour and ten minutes after a train from the same place of departure by way of Whitehall had passed Troy. Now being disgorged into the street the travellers found themselves in the midst of a throng emerging from a score of cars just in from the Great West, and were thrust to and fro in a perfect jam of ladies and gents, runners and porters, hackmen and loafers, (ere the ferry boat was gained) another train from the Western Vermont, went whistling by on the Greenbush side, and it was only with great exertion, and by scrambling every one for himself, that they reached the opposite shore in time to be hustled into a way-Train from Castleton and Saratoga, by which, after much detention, they reached New York three hours after time, jaded and irritable from continued annoyance, and dispersed to seek repose at so late an hour that none but second-rate lodgings could be obtained.—

But this was not all that Keeseville was doomed to suffer by abandoning the Whitehall route, for, on her return, the 'Self-interest,' true to her name, positively refused to come further than Ausable Forks, as it was demonstrated that only that place and other interior localities could be benefited by such an inland circuitous route instead of the direct one through the Champlain valley; that Keeseville must lose thereby all the business from the valley of the Ausable which would otherwise embark at her own port, or at least pass through her precincts. Now all this is so plain, that we will leave Keeseville to her own reflections presuming that she will see her mistake in supposing that self-interest prompted her to defeat or forsake the direct route for one so inland and circuitous.

Another day I will notice the loss and gain of other localities as they are affected by the route chosen from Montreal to New York. Perhaps also something further may come to light concerning the cause of the disaster and who are most implicated.

PRUDENCE.

R. R. R.—"TIGHTNESS OF THE CHEST," commonly so-called, is instantly relieved by bathing the chest with R. R. Relief.

BAD COLDS. As soon as you find you have a Cough, or Sore Throat, or experience any difficulty in breathing, check the symptoms immediately. If allowed to run on, they will entail more serious difficulties upon you. A dose of Radway's Renovating Resolvent, followed with three or four Regulators, will immediately check and cure a recent cold; and the continued use of the R. R. R. Remedies will speedily cure the most obstinate Coughs. In many cases of confirmed Consumption, it has proved highly efficacious. It acts powerfully upon the lungs, and is a most excellent expectorant. In five minutes it will loosen the phlegm, and give relief to the distressed. In many cases of Asthma, where the patients were almost suffocated, it has in five minutes given entire relief.—In all obstinate cases, each of the R. R. R. Remedies must be used.

The Prohibitionist—Vol. 1, No. 1, Albany, Jany., 1854, Monthly. This is a new temperance paper, published by the Executive Com. of the N. Y. State Temp. Soc'y. Price, 50 cts. a year, 3 copies $1; 7 copies $2; 50 copies $11; 100 copies, $20. The paper will be one of ability and the price is merely nominal.

THE ALBION; or, British Colonial, and Foreign Weekly Gazette, N. Y., $6 a year. Established June 22, 1822. Each number contains an amount of reading equal to a duodecimo volume of 150 pages. At the end of a volume each subscriber receives a superb Steel Plate Engraving, sold at retail for not less than the subscription price of the paper. It is conducted with rare ability, and good taste, embracing in its pages every subject of interest, literature, arts, science, military, music, &c.

Lizzie.—A Sketch.

Lizzy was a half orphan. She was of a happy temperament, generous and patient, and possessed of an inexhaustable fund of cheerful humor; Lizzie's laugh was always merrier than any one's else, her stories more witty, and her repartees came bright and sparkling from the mint of happy thought. She had never known grief until her mother's death, and if, under the pressure of this terrible calamity her spirits sunk to the lowest ebb and she refused to listen to words of hope and consolation, if the smile died upon her lip and the light faded from her eye, if the spring of her mind seemed broken and she was for a time bowed even unto the earth, it was only the necessity of a nature such as hers. The effervescing draught sparkles and foams until its life is spent and then sinks dull, heavy and motionless.

Gradually, however, Lizzie's mind awoke to a consciousness of duty, as the new responsibilities that devolved upon her, pressed themselves upon her consideration, and she felt that however changed life might be to her, still she must live—live for the sake of the dear ones who were left, now grown doubly dear.

And busied with new cares which called for new effort, by degrees something of the old cheerfulness, but softened and subdued shed its light upon her heart and beamed forth in her life. The smile came back again, the dimmed eye recovered its brightness and the voice of song rang out though not so gladly nor so frequently as before.

Then Lizzie was called to new trials every hour of every day—to trials that sobered her and made her more staid and thoughtful, though she herself scarcely realized the change so slow was it, but thought that the joyfullness of the past was potent as ever now.

Temptations to turn aside from the path of duty came frequently for and the allurements of fashion and society were winningly displayed to her—or evil tempers, such as she hated rose in her breast and strove to cast out the good spirit. Ever coming petty grievances, those daily ones which fret away the silver cord which binds the passions to self control were always with her. Was the inborn hopefulness sufficient for these things?—No, Lizzie felt it gradually giving way—felt the slow lifting of her strong anchor not by the whirlwinds strength or the tornado's resistless power, but by the constant strain and pressure. And did temptation bear her down, down, to ineffectual, despairing effort and utter wretchedness?—No! Other light than that which of old shed its luster upon her inner life, beamed on her from afar, and serenely, beautiful as a poet's ideal came to her from the Better Land and abode in the chambers of her soul.

The trials, annoyances and temptations which thickened in her pathway were now but the necessary discipline which should fit her to be uplifted to a home among the angels. The arrows of impatience and ill temper, of slander and contumely aimed at her now were received in a shield of love and answered by a smile of forgiveness, and a richer joy than ever blessed the old times, filled her heart with its calm glory and reflected upon all around her rays of its own loveliness.

She remembered the dark days with deep thankfulness that they might never come again, and leaned firmly for support for the present and the future upon an arm which mortal eye saw not, but which her faith made manifest unto her clothed with majesty and strength.

Lizzie found that affliction and trial thicken and blacken all over what was before the sunniest Heaven, and she learned that the simple buoyancy of feeling resulting from youth and pleasant circumstances in life, is no sure foundation whereon to build a sanguine expectation of future happiness—but she also learned that religion is the only true, all-conquering cheerfulness; and was happy.

"Wanted.—A young man of industry, ability and integrity." &c. &c.

This meets our eye daily in the column of 'Wants' and it is true as the Pentateuch. Wanted? Of course they are—always wanted. The market can never be overstocked; they will always be called for, and never quoted 'dull,' or 'no sale.'—Wanted for thinkers—wanted for workers—in the mart, on the main, in the field and the forest. Tools are lying idle for want of a young man; a pen is waiting to be nibled; a tree to be felled; a plow to be guided a village to be founded; a school to be instructed.

They talk about staples and great staples. Honest, industrious, able young men are the great staple in this world of ours. Young man! you are wanted, but not for a Doctor. No, nor a Lawyer. There are enough of them for this generation, and one or two to spare. Don't study 'a profession,' unless it be the profession of brick laying or farming, or some other of the manual professions. Don't measure tape if you can help it. It's honorable and honest, and all that, but then you can do better. Of all things, don't rob the women. It's their prerogative to handle silks and laces, tape and thread. Put on your hat then, like a man, don an apron, and go out doors. Get a good glow on your cheek, the jewelry of toil upon your brow, and a good set of well-developed muscles. We would go, if we could, but then we were young, longer ago than we like to think, and you know, when one's 'old, he cant.'

Besides, if you become a Doctor, you'll have to wait—'because you haven't experience,' says an old practitioner; 'because you are too young,' say all the women. If you are a Lawyer, and likely to rise, they'll put a weight on your head, a la Swiss, to keep you under, or, if you make a good argument, some old opponent, as gray as a rat, will kick it all over, by some taunt or other, because you were not born in the year one. And so it will go, until you grow tired and soured, and wish you had been a tinker, perhaps 'an immortal' one, or anything but just what you are.

Be a farmer, and your troubles are over, or rather, they don't begin. You own what you stand on, 'from the center of the earth,' as they used to say, 'up to the sky;' you are independent all day, and tired, not weary at night. The more neighbors you have, and the better farmers they are, the more and the better for you.

There's one thing more, young man.—You are wanted. A young woman wants you. Don't forget her. No matter if you are poor. Don't wait to be rich. If you do ten to one if you are fit to be married at all, to anybody that's fit to be married. Marry while you are young, and struggle up together, lest in the years to come, somebody shall advertise 'Young men wanted,' and none to be had.—N. Y. Tribune

Summary of Trans-Atlantic News

Affairs across the ocean grow more and more interesting. No general battles have been fought since our last, but considerable skirmishing has taken place, and with one or two exceptions, the Turks have been successful. At the same time, it would seem that affairs are becoming more and more complicated, and a general European war more and more probable. Among the leading members of the press in this country there seem to be conflicting opinions. The Boston Post says, the Czar is more and more resolute, and in reply to the last Diplomatic Note of the four powers, he sent his fleet to destroy the Turks at Sinope.—The Tribune says, it has all along been a game of brag with the Czar, depending on bullying Turkey and her allies. It seems that he has bullied the allies, but not Turkey. England has pursued a most contemptible and pusillanimous course, promising aid to the brave Turks, but in fact, in the Russian interest. This is not to be wondered at, for Albert and Victoria are, by birth or marriage, related to nearly every reigning family in Europe. The Turkish defeats are ascribed to the embarrassments thrown around their movements by the double-dealing diplomacy of the British Cabinet, and to Austrian treachery in reporting the position of the Turkish fleet to the Russians. It is all important to Great Britain to resist the encroachments of Russia, and while she has been aware of this, family influences have been such as at once to be unjust to Turkey, and dishonorable to herself; in fact, only resisting war, but insisting that Turkey should yield to the degrading demands of Russia. Lord Palmerston, the British Minister for foreign affairs, has been compelled to vacate his place, and no one has been found willing to succeed him. A war feeling is spreading among the people, and popular opinion will compel the British Government to assume a becoming attitude. The Tribune is of the opinion that if that Government had manifested a proper determination in the outset in connection with France, as Napoleon, to his credit, desired, not a gun would have been fired. The same paper also more than intimates that the British government has connived at the defeat of the Turks, so as to curb their zeal and compel them to yield to Russian exactions. But the Courier & Enquirer of Jany. 7. says, England and France are harmoniously and resolutely united, that they promptly so informed the Czar, requiring him to evacuate the Principalities and to settle according to the proposition of the Sultan, that tho Czar at once agreed to accede to these demands, and went so far as to disclaim the acts of his Prime Minister, and that a peaceful settlement of these difficulties is certain and beyond a peradventure. The Tribune of the 9th sees no hope of a peaceful solution—but on the contrary thinks Europe on the eve of universal conflagration.

Kossuth has left London for Constantinople, and it is thought, by special invitation of the Sultan. This is significant.—Refugees are numerous in the Turkish Army, and will render important service.

Russian influence has stirred up Persia to declare war against Turkey. An extensive organization of malcontents from all countries is being formed under the lead of Count Czartoryski, a Pole, now at Paris, in opposition to Russia, in the present struggle, but eventually to place Czartoryski at the head of a new empire to be formed out of Poland, Hungary, and Turkey. Its extent and success is problematical.—Hungary and Italy will, of course, strike for freedom again.

Poland—alas! poor Poland—the national spirit is almost entirely 'crushed out' of her people. A few nobles—refugees—will make super-human efforts to regain their lost rights; but the people—the masses—the peasants—are reduced to such a state of vassalage and ignorance, as to know and care little what their rights are, or to have any aspirations for their ancient glory. Another revolution in Paris is not improbable, under the directions and influence of the Bourbons, and Russia.

Such is a brief reference to leading articles on European affairs. As we read the signs of the times, Europe is about to be upheaved as it never has been before.—God prosper and protect the right!

Pierce's Foreign Ministers.

The Tribune says: "Mr. Soule and his son have commenced filibustering operations in Spain. They have each fought a duel about Madame Soule's dress—the father with a French Marquis, the son with a Spanish Duke. Nobody was hurt in either encounter. This circumstance saves the transactions from utter ridicule Duels touching the decorations of the toilet should not be fought with bullets of lead, though if there must be such, no more proper man can be found to fight them than the American Envoy Extraordinary. We trust he went to the field in his own velvet embroidered coat, with all his other toggery and brought it back safe and sound to its congenial bandbox.

The transaction began with one ball and ended with two. The question suggests itself, if a remark on Mrs. Soule's dress causes two duels, how many ought an observation on Mr. Soule's coat occasion?

The same paper says, Mr. Daniels, formerly Editor of the Richmond Enquirer, now minister to Sardinia, has had a coat made, that for gold lace, and tinsel, and toggery, casts Mr. Soule's in the shade.

Turn to Your Books and Maps.

Now is the time to study the history and geography of Europe and Asia. Turn at once to the map, and by observing how Russia stretches down towards the Mediterranean, it will be seen how much she must covet Constantinople. Then you will cast your eyes over into Asia, and after noting the scene of operations there, and the location of Persia, you will turn back to the Danube, and the Black Sea, to pursue leisurely the study of the theatres of the recent skirmishes, and which are about to be deluged in blood. Turn now to your books and maps, and during the coming winter evenings, study the history and geography of the cities and countries of Europe and Asia, their rise and progress, location, extent, population, climate, productions, military force, surface of the country as affecting military operations, social and political condition of the people, capacities of the reigning powers, &c., &c.

Australia.—There are 'rumors of war' from this distant semi-continent. The men who have been banished there by Great Britain, and over whom the Home Government placed an arbitrary, military government, begin to talk in turn about violated rights. Their complaints will sound familiar to Americans: they complain of burdensome and illegal taxes, imposed without their consent. They are already in rebellion, and the London Times says the colony exists only by sufferance If they resist 'taxation without representation,' and 'light the torch of revolution,' they will receive the cordial sympathy of Americans. Criminals though they were, we believe, as Colonists, they are obedient, and law-abiding. Should they become independent, it is hardly probable that they will very soon establish an aristocracy, as their lineage would too soon end in the prisoner's dock.

The President's House at Washington is now completely finished, and in full order for the reception of visitors. The large lobby, or entrance-hall, has been handsomely carpeted, and the temperature of the whole house rendered agreeable, which was not predicable of it on all occasions formerly. No previous time in its history has the Presidential mansion equalled its present condition for comfort, taste, and style. —[Ex.

It is somewhat singular that improvements of the White House always take place under democratic Presidents, and what is more singular, the carpets alluded to were imported!

Reading for 1854.

In giving a list of our best exchanges last week we overlooked one of the best.—The Saturday Evening Mail—edited by Geo. R. Graham—Philadelphia—$2, a year. It is of the form and about the size of the N. Y. Times, and as a family paper we like its appearance as well as any one we know of.

Some time since we noticed, 'The Little Pilgrim'—Grace Greenwood's little paper, and sent a copy, duly marked around with then pen, to attract attention, but the exchange has not been continued. We hope Grace wont be guilty of any such meanness as that—she would'nt wish us to tell the children that she had spunged a notice and then refused an exchange; 'flash' papers only do that. Or, perhaps its that Mr. Lippincott; we never liked the name.

☞By reference to a card in another column, it will be seen that Alonson Wilder, Esq. of Lewis in this Co. has located in N. Y. city. Mr. W. is well calculated for a Landlord, and we doubt not will be generously sustained by his northern friends and acquaintances who must be numerous, as, thro' his official positions he has been long, and extensively known. If he is not 'wafted on to fortune,' it will not be for any lack of good wishes from the Editor.

Correction.—In the 'Card' of last week, "Among the Donations, were," &c. read "Among the Donors," &c.

☞The "Sons of Temperance" having invited their female friends to witness the recent installation of their officers, and to take a part in the ceremonies; the following has been handed in for publication, as we suppose, by one of those ladies, as the manuscript is in a light and delicate hand. However, we are compelled to say that we know not from whence they come. We found them upon our table, and after the closest enquiry we are unable to obtain the least clue to their origin. The only leading fact we could ascertain, was from our "boys," that on returning from tea they found the office door open, and these lines on the table. They are welcome to our columns, and will be gratefully received by the Sons, we have no doubt. Will not the same pen favor us again?—Ed. Rep.

To the "Sons of Temperance."

"Sons of Temperance" accept
A greeting warm and true;
A noble band,
With heart and hand,
We gladly welcome you.

Love, Purity and Truth, unite
To form a trio, meet
To lay the chains
Where sorrow reigns,
A trophy at your feet.

Your guide shall be the "Star" which shines
Upon your path so clear;
'Mid darkest night
Its living light
Proclaims, the Sun is near.

Fear not, that "Star" shall never set,
But brighter far shall shine,
Till every ray
Shall melt away,
In radiance divine.

Then give your "banner to the breeze,"
Around it, brothers, rally,
Till victory's shout
Shall sound throughout
The camp, from hill to valley.

Doings in Washington.

It turns out that the Washington Union entered into a private arrangement with the Republic to procure the repeal of the contract system and the election of the Union as printer, and to divide the profits. The Republic preformed on its part, but the Union, with the usual barnburner honesty refuses on its part, and so a suit has been brought to compel them to disgorge.

It also turns out that Secretary Guthrie is a Galphin, having obtained a large claim of government through the aid of Peter G. Washington, in consideration of which, he made the latter his assistant.

Slavery Agitation.—The indications are, that this whole question is to be again opened, and if so, the scenes and excitements of the past will bear no comparison with those to come. Senator Douglass opens the ball by proposing to legislate Slavery into Nebraska. Neither the friends nor opponents of slavery seem to be satisfied with the recent 'settlement,' and we think there is a secret feeling of resolute determination & defiance, at work, which will be unyielding, and the watchword of the next agitation will be 'victory or death.'

So, the people might as well prepare to breast the storm, for it will be a wild one—a huricane.

Massachusetts Legislature.

The Legislature of Massachusetts convened at Boston on Wednesday last. In the Senate, Charles Edward Cook, of Boston, (whig) was elected President on the third ballot, and Charles Calhoun (whig) was chosen Clerk. In the House, Otis P. Lord, of Salem, (whig) was elected Speaker.

Maine Legislature.—The Legislature of Maine convened at Augusta on Wednesday. The House was organized by the choice of Noah Smith, Jr., Esq., of Calais (Whig,) for Speaker, and Mr. Perry, of Oxford (Free Soiler,) for Clerk.

The 'Hot Corn' Stories.—We give one of them this week, & we think our readers will be pleased with the selection. As they are aware, this is one of a series, which have been published in the Tribune, and more recently issued in a book that is having an extraordinary run.

Thanks.—We are indebted to Hon. Geo. Richards for a copy of the Gov. Message. Also, to Hon. Geo. A. Simmons for a copy of the Congressional Globe and Appendix—a truly valuable gift, for which we are under deep obligations.

The Legislature.—Committees were announced on Tuesday. Judge Barrett is chairman of the Judiciary and second on that of Roads and Bridges.

We expect to commence the proceed- he Board of Supervisors next week.

The Erie Rail Road War.

They have had really serious difficulties at Eric, Pa. of which we gave a brief notice two or three weeks since. The people have been in arms, mobocracy has been triumphant, human life has been in jeopardy, and all to prevent the R. R. Co. from widening their track to permit through trains, which would obviate a change of cars at that place. The Courts and State authorities have been wickedly negligent in permitting the outrage of the mob to proceed so long without check. Trains have been arrested and invaded, men, women, and children insulted and endangered, business interrupted, passengers retarded, delayed, disappointed, and compelled to be transported in sleighs around the village, exposed for hours to pitiless storms, and for no reason only because the through trains would not compel passengers to stop and spend their money at Erie. The outrages are at last arrested, but it is thought the result will be the ruin of Erie—that she will be abandoned and left desolate—and known only as a place that was. The bungling manner in which the authorities have behaved will appear from the following reported to the Albany Dutchman:—

Dec. 11.—The Dungaree Volunteers just arrived in an ox cart. They take up a position behind the Yaller House, near Smith,s grocery.—The Mayor has just issued a proclamation, calling upon the friends of '98 to stand by the constitution.

Dec. 12.—A note has just been received from the Piserinctum Guards, of Schenectady, promising aid and assistance—one musket and a fifer. The Railroad Company are fortifying their freight wagons.

Dec. 13—Last night was spent in the midst of fear and trembling. An officer of the Abrowang Invincibles got in a dispute with his captain, and blew out his brains with a doubled-barrelled candle. The Railroad Company have added three pitchforks to their defences.

Dec. 14.—The Bullyraggen Cuirassiers have been telegraphed—they promised to come down this evening on the wires. The Mayor is out with another proclamation, calling upon the citizens to 'watch the enemy,' and lock up the watch house. The first blood was spilt this morning—the locomotive Rusher ran over four pigs and a cow. The people are becoming indignant, and talk of raising a company of 'sap heads and miners.'

Dec. 15.—Matters have come to a stand still, the subject having been placed under injunction. The Mayor still defies 'the tyranny of wealth,' and has just issued a third proclamation, informing 'the civilized world' that he intends to die in the last ditch, and cover himself up with a cellar door.

The Great Naval Battle.

Sinope, which has become suddenly so marked a place, as being the scene of the recent naval battle between the Turks and the Russians, is an ancient city, and was in former ages a very important commercial point, and not without a place in political history. It was founded by a colony from Miletus, about seven hundred years before Christ, the exact date of origin being unknown. Its name is supposed to have been taken from that of Sinope, a daughter of Asopus, who was stolen away by Apollo, and carried to the shores of the Euxine Sea, the gods of those times having a very disreputable practice of stealing handsome young ladies from their homes. Miletus was the mother of many colonies, but not one of them was of more consequence than Sinope. The place was selected because of its defensibility on the side of the sea, and the convenience of its harbors, of which there were two, one on each side of the peninsula whereon the city was built. Rapidly rising to wealth, and becoming the most important commercial city on the Euxine, it founded many colonies, the most famous of which was Trapezus, the modern Trebizonde, a name so eminent in the romance of history of the middle ages. It was what we should call a State, as it had much territory dependent on it, which at one time reached as far as the river Halys; and it maintained wars with the Persian satraps of Paphlagonia and Cappadocia. It figures quite conspicuously in Xenophan Anabasis. In after times, it lost its independence, and became part of the dominions of the Kings of Pontus. The great Mithridates was born there, who made it his capital. It was taken by Lucullus in the Mithridatic war, and became part of the Roman dominion, Cæsar himself sending a colony there. Its greatness, however, departed with its independence. It was respectable, but nothing more. In the middle ages it formed a portion of the Greek empire of Trebizonde. It was taken by the Turks a few years after the conquest of Constantinople. The modern name of the place is Sinoub, or Sinub Like Cadiz, it has maintained in modern times no inconsiderable share of its ancient importance as a seat of commerce. Diogones, the most celebrated of the philosophers of the cynic school was a native of Sinope.—Olive Branch.

A Good Commencement.

President Pierce, Queen Victoria, Emperor of Russia, King of Holland, President Santa Anna, Emperor of Austria, Pope of Rome, Emperor of China, King of Denmark, Queen of Spain, King of Belgium, Sultan of Turkey, King of Prussia, King of Sweden, Emperor of France, King of Sardinia, and, in fact, portraits of all the principal rulers of the world, at the present time, may be found in 'Gleason's Pictorial' for the present week, being number one of a new volume. Besides the above, the beautiful weekly contains quite a number of other fine engravings—such as New Year's festivals in Germany, China, Algiers, and the West Indies. Also a group of the New York Police, in their new regulation uniform—chief, captain, privates, etc. A Family Register; Scenes in Turkey; A Turkish Lady at Home; A Turkish Soldier; A Turkish Fruit Vender; A Turkish Policeman, etc. A number of excellent stories, poems, etc., by the best American authors, are also to be found in the above number; and, to crown all, the paper has come out in an entire new dress—being most beautified throughout. Terms of the 'Pictorial,'—one subscriber, one year, $3 00; two subscibers, one year, $5 00; four, $9 00; eight, $16 00. Single copies, at six cents each, may be obtained at any of the periodical depots throughout the country.

Startling News.

Wreck of the Steamer San Francisco—Probable loss of a Regiment of Artillery.

By way of Halifax we have the startling announcement that the new steamship San Francisco, which left this port on the 21st ult. with some 500 soldiers, besides a large number of officers, their families and other passengers, was fallen in with, completely disabled, five days afterwards, in lat. 38° 20', long. 69°. Her decks were swept and boats gone. We are informed that this intelligence has created great excitement in Washington, and that the Secretary of War immediately ordered a merchant steamer to be chartered and sent to the relief of the San Francisco.

The Secretary of the Navy will also order several revenue cutters to proceed in search of the reported wreck; but in reply to the request of Senator Gwin, was forced to make the mortifying acknowledgement that there was not a government steamer in any of the ports fit to be sent on the voyage of mercy. The San Francisco was a new and staunch built vessel, and well officered—circumstances that would strengthen the hope that those on board would eventually reach their homes in safety. She was destined for San Francisco, via the Straits of Magellan, touching at Rio Janeiro, Valparaiso and Acapulco.

She had on board Companies A, B, D, G, H, I, K and L of the Third regiment of United States Artillery. These companies, with the non-commissioned staff and band of the regiment, constituted a force of about five hundred men. Among her passengers were Mr. George Aspinwall, Capt. J. W. T. Gardiner, of the First dragoons, who intended to join his regiment in California, and Lieut. F. K Murray, of the navy, who intended to join the squadron at Rio. also the following list of army officers and their families:—

Colonel William Gates, commanding regiment.
Major and Brevet Lieut. Col. J. M. Washington,
Major Charles S. Merchant.
Surgeon R. S. Satterlee.
Assistant Surgeon H. R. Wirtz.
First Lieut S. L. Fremont, Regimental Quartermaster and Acting Adjutant.
First Lieut. L. Loeser, Acting Assistant Commissary.
Capt. and Brevet Lieut. Colonel M. Burke, commanding Company I,
Capt. and Brevet Major George Taylor, commanding Company A.
Capt. and Brevet Major F. O. Wyse, commanding Company D,
Capt. H. B Judd, commanding detachment of recruits to constitute Companies B, and L,
First Lieut. and Brevet Captain H. B. Field, commanding Company K.
First Lieut. W. A. Winder, commanding Company G
First Lieut. C. S. Winder, commanding Company H.
First Lieut. R. H. Smith.
Second Lieut. J. Van Voast.
Brevet Second Lieut. J. G. Chandler.

Officers' families.—Mrs. Gates and three children, Miss Carter, Mrs. Merchant and two children, Miss Valeria Merchant, Mrs. Chase and son, Mrs. Fremont and three children, Mrs. Loeser, Miss Eaton, Mrs. Taylor, Mrs. Wyse and child, Mrs. Judd.

Dr. Hunter's Medical Manual and Hand Book for the Afflicted—

Containing an outline of the origin, progress. treatment and cure of every form of disease. contracted by promiscuous sexual intercourse. by self abuse or by sexual excess, with advice for their prevention, written in a familiar style. avoiding all medical technicalities, and everything that would offend the ear of decency, from the result of some twenty years successful practice, exhlusively devoted to the cure of diseases of a delicate or pirvate nature

To which is added, receipts for the cure of the above diseases, and a treatise on the causes, symptoms and cure of the Fever and Ague

Testimony of the Prof of Obstetrics in Penn. College, Philadelphia—"Dr. Hunter's Medical Manual."—The author of this work unlike the majority of those works who advertise to cure the diseases of which it treats, is a graduate of one of the best Colleges in the United States. It affords me pleasure to recommend him to the unfortunate, or to the victim of malpractice, as a successful and experienced practitioner, in whose honor and integrity they may place the greatest confidence.

JOSEPH LONGSHORE, M. D.

From A Woodward M. D., of Penn. University, Philadelphia—It gives me pleasure to add my testimony to the professional ability of the author of the "Medical Manual." Numerous cases of diseases of the Genital Organs some of them of long standing have come under my notice, in which his skill has been manifest in restoring to perfect health, in some instances where the patient has been considered beyond medical aid. In the treatment of Seminal weakness, or disarrangement of the functions produced by Self-abuse, or Excess of venery, I do not know his superior in the profession. I have been acquainted with the Author some thirty years. and deem it no more than justice to him as well as a kindness to the unfortunate victim of early indiscretion, to recommend him as one, in whose professional skill and integrity they may safely confide themselves. ALFRED WOODWARD, M D.

"This is, without exception, the most comprehensive and intelligible work published on the class of diseases of which it treats. Avoiding all technical terms, it addresses itself to the reason of its readers. It is free from all objectionable matter and no parent, however fastidious, can object to placing it in the hands of his sons. The author has devoted many years to the treatment of the various complaints treated of, and with too little breath to puff,' and 'too little presumption to impose,' he has offered to the world at the merely nominal price of 25 cents, the fruits of some 20 years most successful practice."—Herald.

"No teacher or parent should be without the knowledge imparted in this invaluable work. It would save years of pain, mortification and sorrow to the youth under their charge."—People's Advocate.

A Presbyterian clergyman in Ohio, in writing of "Hunter's Medical Manual," says: "Thousands upon thousands of our youth, by evil example and influence of the passions, have been led into the habit of self-pollution without realizing the sin and fearful consequences upon themselves and their posterity. The constitutions of thousands who are raising families have been enfeebled if not broken down, and the do not know the cause or the cure. Anything that can be done so to enlighten and influence the public mind as to check, and ultimately to remove this wide-spread source of human wretchedness, would confer the greatest blessing next to the religion of Jesus Christ, on the present and coming generations. Intemperance (or the use of intoxicating drinks,) though it has slain thousands upon thousands, is not a greater scourge to the human race. Accept my thanks on behalf of the afflicted, and, believe me, your co-worker in the good work you are so actively engaged in."

One copy, (securely enveloped,) will be forwarded free of postage to any part of the United States for 25 cents, or 6 copies for $1.—Address (post paid) COSDEN & Co., publishers, Box 196, Philadelphia. 478y

THE MARRIAGE STATE;

Shall Happiness and Health, or Misery and Sickness, attend it?

MOST STARTLING CONSIDERATIONS!

Reflections for the Thoughtful.

Strange that countless human beings exist and drag through life as do the beasts of the field, or the insects of the earth, evincing no more thought or reflection than though the noble faculties of mind were not vouchsafed to them.

Many such are husbands and fathers, upon whom are dependent the health, the well-being, and the happiness of a confiding and affectionate wife, with perhaps a family of children.

HOW OFTEN IT HAPPENS THAT THE

in that pitiable condition as not even for one day to feel the happy and exhilerating influence incident to the enjoyment of health.

She may not be an invalid confined to her bed, or even to her room; as her pride, ambition and energy induce and nerve her to take personal charge of her household, even when her health will not admit of it; but she is nevertheless perceptibly sinking from day to day, and always ailing.

Thus, day after day, and month after month transpire. Her health daily sinks, till finally even the hope of recovery no longer remains. And thus

THE BLOOMING BRIDE,

But a few years ago in the flush of health and youth, and buoyancy of spirits, rapidly, and apparently inexplicably, becomes a feeble, sickly, debilitated wife, with frame emaciated, nerves unstrung, spirits depressed, countenance bearing the impress of suffering, and an utter physical and mental prostration.

Sometimes this deplorable change may and does arise from organic or constitutional causes. But oftener, by far oftener, to gross and inexcusable ignorance of the simplest and plainest rules of health as connected with the marriage state, the violation of which entails disease, suffering and misery, not only to the wife, but often

Hereditary Complaints upon the Children.

"UNTO THE THIRD AND FOURTH GENERATION,"

Transmitting CONSUMPTION, SCROFULA, HYPOCHONDRIA, INSANITY, GOUT, KING'S EVIL, and other diseases,

AS A

from the Parents.

And must this continue? Shall we be wise in all that concerns the cattle of our fields, our horses, our sheep, our cows, our oxen, the nature and character of the soil we possess, the texture and quality of our goods and merchandise; but in all that concerns ourselves as human beings, with human functions and passions, subject to great derangement, involving our future peace and happiness—in all that concerns the health and welfare of the wife of our affections, and the mother of our children; in all that concerns the mental and physical well being of those children, we should be immersed in the darkest and most

BENIGHTED IGNORANCE,

AS CULPABLE AS INEXCUSABLE!

How long shall this ignorance prevail so productive of its bitter fruits? How long shall the wife and mother be ignorant of the nature, character and causes of the various womb and sexual complaints, embittering her days by suffering—suffering often prolonged to years, eventuating in a complication of diseases utterly and hopelessly incurable? Shall we for ever close our eyes to the results of physiological science by which we may arrive at an understanding of ourselves as men and women, subject to serious life-long enduring diseases, and perpetuating them to our children.

LET EVERY WIFE AND HUSBAND PONDER!

No husband or wife need be ignorant of what concerns them most to know to secure their health and happiness. That knowledge is contained in a little work entitled

LEANDER BABBIT'S TRUSS OFFICE

The latest and most approved Trusses; Female supporters; Do. with shoulder braces attached; spinal elevators for curvature of the spine and projection of the shoulder blade. Suspensary shoulder braces. This instrument is so constructed that it not only acts the part of shoulder braces, but carries the heft of the ladies' skirts on their shoulders; and, hence remedies the evil consequent to carrying them on the hips and sides. For gentlemen, it not only serves for a shoulder brace, but acts the part of suspenders.

As to the importance and usefulness of the above named instruments and their beneficial effects, their peculiar mechanism and superiority over other instruments of the same name, I need not say anything. They are so well known by physicians, and the multitude of persons that have had occasion to test them in this northern section of country, that I deem it not important to introduce a long catalogue of certificates; yet I have abundant evidence in my possession to justify me in all I claim or affirm, and deem it a privilege to give references to any who wish to make inquiries.

Office at Keeseville in the building on the corner of Main and Front street, opposite the Bank, up stairs.

Ladies will be waited on at my dwelling by Mrs. Babbit, whose experience in adjusting braces and supporters qualifies her to give perfect satisfaction. 482—3m

SHERIFF'S SALE.

BY virtue of several executions issued out of the Supreme Court of the State of New York, to me directed and delivered, against the goods and chattels, lands and tenements, real estate and chattels real. of Henry Haile, and of Henry Haile and Charles Haile, I have seized and taken all the right, title and interest, which the said Henry Haile or the said Henry Haile and Charles Haile had on the the 14th day of January, 1852, or which they, or either of them, may since have acquired, of, in, and to all and singular the following described real estate, to wit:—

Lot No. 2.—Hague tract, in the town of Schroon, in the County of Essex, being same lot sold to Bradley by Joseph Weed and wife, June 1st, 1837. Also, Lot No. 13, in Robert Grant's Patent, in the town of Crownpoint, containing 76 1-10 acres of land, excepting one half acre thereof deeded by Henry Haile and wife to Solomon S. Flint, April 1st, 1851. Also, all that part of Lot No. 14, in Grant's Patent, in Crownpoint, lying east of Putnam's Creek, containing 13 90-100 acres of land.—Also, a small strip of land lying on the north-east side of the road leading from Samuel Russell's to the White Meeting-house. being on Robert Grant's Patent in Crownpoint, occupied in 1845 by Stephen Spaulding, containing one half acre. Also, all the South equal half of Lot No. 20, Grant's Patent, in Crownpoint, containing 20 acres. Also, Lot No. 34, in the Pliny Moore Patent, in the town of Crownpoint.

Also, all that certain piece or parcel of land, lying and being in the town of Crownpoint, in the County of Essex and State of New York, and is bounded and described as follows: Beginning in the south line of the road about 2 feet easterly from an apple-tree, and 19 links westerly from a locust tree, both supposed to stand in the north line of said road; then running north 17°, east about 9 rods, until it intersects the south line of the Allen Campbell, then easterly following said south patent line 28 rods to the North line of the road, thence westerly following said North line of said road about 30 rods to the place of beginning, containing by estimation one acre of land. Which said real estate I shall expose for sale at Public Vendue, at the Hotel kept by Jacob Tappen. in Moriah, in said County of Essex, on the 25th day of January next, at Ten o'clock in the forenoon.

PURCHASED AND OBTAINED BY

GEO. MOORE, Plattsburgh, N. Y.

December 9, 1853. [illegible]

Henry's Invigorating Cordial,

PURELY VEGETABLE IN ITS COMPOSITION.

This invaluable Cordial, is extracted from Herbs and Roots, which have been found after years of experience, by the most skillful Physicians, to be possessed of qualities most beneficial in the diseases for which it is recommended, and hence whilst it is presented to the public, as an efficacious remedy it is also known to be of that character on which reliance may be placed as to its safety. In cases of Impotency, Hoemorrhages, Disordered Sterility, Menstruation, or Suppression of the Menses, Fluror Albus or Whites, or for arising from any cause, such as weakness from sickness, where the patient has been confined to bed for some time, for Females after Confinement, Abortion or Miscarriage, this Cordial cannot be excelled in its salutary effects; or in loss of Muscular Energy, Irritability, Physical Prostration, Seminal Weakness, Palpitation of the Heart, Indigestion, Sluggishness, Decay of the Procreative Functions, Nervousness, &c., where a tonic Medicine is required, it will be found equal, if not supperior to any Compound ever used.

DEBILITY

TO FEMALES.

Henry's Invigorating Cordial, is one of the most invaluable Medicines in the many Complaints to which Females are subject. It assists nature to brace the whole system, check excesses, and creates renewed health and happiness. Less suffering, disease and unhappiness among Ladies would exist, where they generally to adopt the use of this Cordial. Ladies who are debilitated by those obstructions which females are liable to, are restored by the use of a bottle or two, to bloom and to vigor.

YOUNG MEN.

That solitary practice, so fatal to the existence of man and it is too young who are most apt to become its victims, from an ignorance of the danger to which they subject themselves, causes

NERVIOUS DEBILITY.

Weakness of the System, and Premature Decay. Many of you may now be suffering, misled as to the cause or source of disease. To those, then, who by excess have brought on themselves Premature Impotency, Involuntary Seminal Emissions, Weakness and shrivelling of the Genital Organs, Nervous Affection, or any other consequence of unrestrained indulgence of the sexual passions, occasioning the necessity of renouncing the felicities of lessening both mental and bodily capacity, Hold! Henry's Invigorating Cordial a Medicine that is purely Vegetable, will aid nature to restore those important functions to a healthy state, and will prove of service to you. It possesses rare virtues, is a general remover of disease, and strengthener of the system.

AS A TONIC MEDICINE,

it is unsurpassed. We do not place this Cordial on a footing with quack medicines, and, as is customary, append a long list of Recommendations, Certificates, &c., beginning with "Hear what the Preacher says," and such like; it is not necessary, for "Henry's Invigorating Cordial," only needs a trial to prove that it will accomplish all we say.

THE GENUINE "HENRY'S INVIGORATING CORDIAL."

is put up in 8 oz. Pannel Bottles, and is easily recognized by the Manufacturer's signature on the label of each Bottle. (to counterfeit which is forgery) as well as his private Seal on the cork of each Bottle.

☞ Sold for $2 per Bottle; Six for $8; $16 per dozen

MORSE'S

COMPOUND SYRUP OF

Yellow Dock Root.

THIS is a Purely Vegetable Compound, scientifically prepared from the best Roots and Herbs of the Materia Medica, and has gained a universal reputation for the following effects. viz: Regulating and Streng hening the Liver and Digestive Organs, and Cleansing the Stomach and Bowels, and curing all Billious Diseases, Liver complaints, Dyspepsia, Indigestion, Costiveness, Piles Headache, Fever and Ague, Jaundice Nausea Loss of Appetite, &c., and causing the food to nourish and support every part, PURIFYING THE BLOOD, and thus curing all Humors. Cutaneous Eruptions, Scrofula Salt Rheum, Erysipelas, Scald Head, Canker, Pimples on the face, Blotches, Ulcers, Tumors, Mercurial Diseases, Cancers, &c. Regulating the secretory Organs, and by enabling them to perform their proper functions, preventing and curing many painful and dangerous diseases; Strengthening and Quieting the nervous system, thus allaying Nervous Irritation, and curing all Diseases of the Nerves, as Hysteria, Neuralgia, Cramps, &c.

It is unrivalled in the cure of all FEMALE COMPLAINTS, as weakness, general debility irregularity, Obstructions, Swelling of the Feet, Limbs, Joints, &c., caused by weakness; also, Lung and Throat Complaints, as Colds, Coughs, Asthma Consumption, &c., also, Dropsy.

Having made use of the Compound Syrup of Yellow Dock Root, prepared by C Morse and Co., either ourselves or in our families and finding it to be a very salutary and effectual preparation, we do most cheerfully recommend it to the public as a very valuable medicine.

E Bourne, Esq., Cashier National Bank, Providence, R. I.; A. W. Spencer Esq., Cashier Lime Rock Bank, do do Rev. William Phillips Rev. J. B Richmond, C S Jones editor Providence Gen Advt, Wm. Field, M. W. G. M. Cyrus Fisher, M. E. H. P. James Hutchinson G. S. Dea., V J Bates, Doct Benj. Colby and one hundred others of the most respectable families of Providence.

This certifies that I have for a number of years been acquainted with the composition and mode of manufacture of Morse's Compound Syrup of Yellow Dock Root. I have also been acquainted with its mode of operation in disease, and can say that in all respects it is admirably calculated to remedy that class of Diseases for which it was designed. It is especially valuable in Indigestion and all its attendant symptoms. it excites to healthy action the Liver, removes Torpor, and inactivity of this organ, and stimulates healthy action in all the system. As a Depurator or purifier of the Blood it has no superior

INTERESTING LETTER FROM GEORGE N. SANDERS, U. STATES CONSUL AT LONDON.

LONDON, Dec. 16, 1853.

JAMES GORDON BENNETT, ESQ,

DEAR SIR:—

* * * * * *

The Russo-Austrain telegraphic despatch from Vienna claims a victory, with four thousand Turks killed, on the field of Aksalsik; if true, showing great valor and obstinancy in the Turks. You will also have telegraphic accounts by this steamer, of several important engagements in Asia, all of which go to establish the fact that a long and sanguinary war has in earnest begun.

Schamyl, the daring Circassian chief, acting in concert with Selim Pacha, has taken all the fortressess in his line of march and when last heard from, had actually surrounded Prince Woronzoff at Tofflis — The evening telegraph may bring news of the Prince's capture.

The Persian, sixty thousand strong hold a doubtful, if not a threatening attitude, on the frontier of Turkey, which embarrasses much the movements of the Turkish army. The Affghans, eighty thousand strong, are moving rapidly to co-operate with the Turks. It is believed that the Persians will quietly retire before this warlike nation, or may possibly be led to join the Turks themselves.

Kossuth has, at last been invited to Constantinople, by the Porte. He goes, I believe, in the steamer of next week. Several thousand Hungarian deserters from the Austrian army of observation are already at Widdin. A few weeks more will find all the republican leaders in Europe, in Omer Pacha's camp. They will prove to be powerful allies to the Turks, causing, by their presence, increased desertion from the Russian and Austrian armies, composed largely as they are, of Poles Hungarians and Italians.

In taking a bird's eye view of the subject, it should be borne in mind that the comparative strength which Russia and Turkey can bring into the field in a war, is not to be measured by the comparative proportion of the population of the two empires. Out of the seventy millions of inhabitants over which Russia ostensibly rules, spread over an immense territory of more than one million five hundred thousand square miles—a third of which is too cold to nourish a warlike race—there are millions of men who are but nominally subject to the dominion of the Czar, and who constitute no active element of his army. In the more regulated portions of his dominions serfdom is the normal condition of the masses; and the brutish condition of the people, undermined in strength by the intemperate use of liquor, creates a mortality 2 2 5 times as great as in all the rest of Europe, which is, of course, accompanied by a comparatively larger amount of sickness and bodily defects.

Besides all, the rule of Russia, resting on military despotism, has to be carried on by military power. Where there is no garrison in a province, there is no authority and no reverence; therefore, government must be carried on every where by military power. Every line of its frontier has to be guarded by soldiers; and several conquered provinces, such as Poland, Finland, and Turkey, can only be secured from rebellion and kept in submission by strong garrisons. Neither a common national spirit, nor a common religion, nor affinity of language or race, nor the common interests of political freedom, unites this vast assemblage of populations. It is a heterogeneous aggregate, with inherent tendencies to decay, held together for the while only by the actual pressure of an iron handed rule.

Thus it is that Russia, out of its thirty-five millions of male inhabitants, could never raise an army larger than seven hundred and fifty thousand men, (one out of forty-six) a large portion of it existing, too, only on paper; for it passes imagination, say the best authorities, how the commanders of distant military districts rob the treasury by false returns.

Out of these seven hundred and fifty thousand men, Russia cannot reasonably afford more than two hundred thousand men for a foreign war, and it is only by bringing the war on the Caucasus, which for nearly thirty years, has kept in unavailing service fifty thousand Russian soldiers,) within the scope of a foreign campaign, that her aggressive strength can be raised up to three hundred thousand men — one fourth of whom will always be hors de combat, sick, or at best, convalescent and disabled.

Thus it was that Russia, having despatched three army divisions, (one hundred and twenty thousand men,) to Asia, was obliged, on account of the extensive line of operations, to reserve forty thousand to be kept in the neighborhood of Odessa, so as to serve on the Danube. The forces of Russia in the Principalities, could not, therefore, have been raised above eighty thousand men nominally; from which deduct the sick, (always very numerous among the Russian soldiers,) and the indispensible garrisons and detachments, and General Gortschakoff is by no skill able to concentrate on any point more than forty thousand men. This explains the exceedingly tame behavior of Gortschakoff, in contrast with the haughty bragging of Russia; which proves to be but an empty boast so soon as its prestige fails to prevent its being brought to the test.

In fact, the Czar was compelled to strain every nerve in sending reinforcements — The reserve of forty thousand men (Odessa and Bessarabia,) is moving to the Danube. Its place must be supp'ied from Poland And another army division of forty thousand is also ordered to march from Poland to Moldavia. Include the Caucasian army, and Russia's nominal force, even the utmost she can afford to bring into the campaign, is three hundred thousand men.

However, to effect even this, Poland, which, to be kept down, has always required one hundred thousand men, has to be evacuated. And what means have been left the Czar for this exigency? Nothing but to send his last resources of power his own imperial guards and invalids, to garrison Poland Prince Paskiewich, however, has thought it his duty, it is said, to remonstrate against this measure, declaring that with only the guards and the invalids, he could not answer for Poland. So it remains to be seen if that measure can be carried into execution.

Finally, as you will perceive, this is but a first investment. An army in war has to be constantly supplied with new men to make up the continual inevitible loss.—Well, what means have been left the Czar? A new levy only, which again, in its turn, is only possible by pressing into the ranks boys of fourteen, who will fall like leaves in autumn, under the fatigues of war.

And while no army in the world, is exposed to such a mortality as the Russian, no other is so prone to desertion. It is known that Russian prisoners whom Omer Pacha desired to exchange, entreated to be either kept prisoners, or enlisted in the Turkish army. The Mahomedan population of the Asiatic provinces of Russia, receive the Turks, of course, with open arms. The same will undoubtedly be the case with the former independent Tartars. And the Poles having already got authorization from the Sultan to organize a Polish legion let but the Polish banner appear in the field and thousands of Poles from the Russian ranks will be seen going over to the national colors.

Such is the real state of that Russia which the servile diplomacy of Europe has described as invincible.

However, let us take, for comparison's sake, the three hundred thousand men as the effective force of Russia, (the outside of the most favorable estimate having the shadow of truth,) and compare it with what we know of Turkey, whose condition, the very reverse of Russia, lies open to the world,

The Turks have in Asia actually employed, an army of	80,000 men
These are about to effect a junction with the brave Circassians, (victorious against Russia, for thirty years,) which gives an additional force of	80,000 "
The European Turkish army already in the field is, in Bosnia,	50 000 "
Under Omer Pacha's com'nd	150,000 "
A new levy is going on, not of recruits, but of 'Redifs,' (drilled soldiers, who have served five years,) 25,000 men from every military district, consequently, from the six districts	150,000 "

This is carried on with such energy, that day by day two thousand men were equipped and armed in Constantinople alone, besides the other places of concentration. These items give an aggregate of five hundred and ten thousand men, regulars

But the Turks are a warlike race, which is simply explained by the fact, that while in Russia, no man who is not a soldier is permitted to have arms, in Turkey there is not one single man unarmed. Arms are as indispensible to the Turk's dress as coffee to his dinner.

It is not difficult to comprehend, therefore, that the unjustifiable aggressions of Russia should have raised the excitement of the Ottoman people to the highest pitch. So great, indeed, is the enthusiasm in favor of the war that thousands and thousands of volunteers are daily pouring in. Omer Pacha has already one hundred thousand of these volunteers, irregular cavalry, in his army, besides the two hundred and fifty thousand regulars. And Kurdistan, Arabia, Syria, Tunis, Tripoli, with their thousands of warlike nomads, are already on the move. Advices from Constantinople, from the highest sources, compute the Turkish army in the field and in movement at half a million, with an accelerating increase, which must, by spring, give it an additional five hundred thousand.

The destruction of Omer Pacha's transport fleet in the harbor of Sinope, in Turkey Proper, it was believed, would constitute a case for the interference of the allied fleets now at Constantinople. But it seems they confined their action to the sending of a few steamers to the spot, to report upon the facts—as if the destruction of a Turkish fleet in their own harbor, was not a fact big enough

The truth is, the English government is more thoroughly conservative than any other government in Europe, and it will yield almost every point to patch a peace. Russia understands this, and causes her diplomatists to be constantly presenting new projects of adjustment, in time. The English government especially opposed to the Turk any of the democratic elemen vised the Porte to send for Kossuth—England being nervously anxious for the preservation of the Austrian Empire, and Louis Napoleon just as eager for its dismemberment. Finally, the indecission of the allied powers has caused the Porte to call the republican exiles of every country to Constantinople.

Lord Palmerston's sudden resignation has taken most people by suprise. The Times has a labored article to prove that it was not caused by any disagreement upon the foreign policy of the country. The true cause will not probably leak out for a few days; but it is generally believed that a reconstruction of the cabinet will become necessary. Very respectfully,

GEORGE N SANDERS.

Letter From the Editor.

ELIZABETHTOWN, Jan. 16. 1854.

The Circuit court opened yesterday—Mr. Justice James presiding, assisted in the Oyer and Terminer by Judge McVine, county Judge, and Messrs. Carter and Tobey, Justices of Sessions Mr. James is making a favorable impression, and that is agreeable to whigs of course. He is about forty years of age, and a self-made man—tall, plain in personal appearance, affable, and agreeable in his manners. A whig on the bench is so rare, it seems good to look at Mr. James. There are forty-three causes on the calendar, and numerous motions, some of which are important. There has been a large attendance at court, but the causes and the people are rapidly disappearing. The weather is as beautiful this afternoon as spring.

Last evening Judge Hand invited the court and bar to his house. They had an agreeable visit, and were treated in the most elegant style The effect was undoubtedly happy in making the members of the profession better acquainted, and inducing sociability.

Our attention has been called to an article in the Sandy Hill Herald, upon the union and harmony of the democracy, which is so pointed we enclose it for publication, as it may be news to some of the 'short-boy' editors in Northern New York. Judging from their silence, we conclude they have not yet heard of the assaults of Marcy, the Atlas, and others upon the Irish and other Patriots.

☞Will they ever get the news, or if they do, will they inform "the foreign orators?" We shall see.

From the Sandy-Hill Herald of Tuesday Morning, Jan. 10, 1854.

UNION AND HARMONY.—We have received an invitation to be present at the Annual Celebration of the 8th of January, at Tammany Hall, in the city of New York, at which time it is proposed to make an effort to re unite the Democratic Party in this State. Desirable as such an event may be, there are reasons why we cannot consent to be present on such an occasion The glory of Old Tammany has departed It is but a few months since that distinguished democrats were ruthlessly thrust from this time-honored temple, barely escaping with their lives, for the simple, and only reason, that they still adhered to, and contended for, the principles of their fathers—and when the miscreants who participated in the bloody scene, were released from prison, whither they had been sent to atone for their crimes, they were paraded through the streets of New York, amid the booming of cannon, unfurling of flags, and all the demonstrations which greet a hero returning from the victorious field of conquest—and we recognise in the names attached to this invitation, the men who countenanced this shameless display.

We cannot countenance this attempt to reconcile the difference among democrats, because the leaders in the movement are the very men who demanded the removal of Collector Bronson, because he refused to aid John Van Buren & Co. in their efforts to make the 'democratic party in this state an abolition party.'

We are opposed to a union with men who assassinated Gen. Cass, (but who now shout his praises on the street corners,) and who have twice given the state into the hands of the whigs, because they could not make democrats submit to their dictation—and who would not hesitate to re enact the same scene, for the same reason.

We are opposed to fraternizing with the movers of this scheme, because, for the past few months, we have seen them using every effort in their power to remove men [illegible] because of honor and trust for the avowal that they refused to bow down [illegible]ship the bankrupt firm of John Van [illegible] & Co.

[illegible] opposed to these Tammany Hall peace-makers, because they cry peace! peace! with a scabbardless sword in their hand, ready to cut down any man whose views do not coincide with theirs.

We could not be happy in the Tammany palace, while we could look out and see Redfield, the short-boy sitting at the receipt of Customs, and know that a wiser and better man had been beheaded to secure him the place.

We, individually, can have no concert of action with men who come down from high seats of honor to interfere in matters which concern us personally, and use their influence to divert a few dollars patronage from our paper, because we had the independence to speak as we thought, and to advocate the same doctrines which our paper has advocated for the last thirty years

We can hold no fellowship with these men, because we believe their professions are hollow-hearted—and that they are actuated by sinister motives, without a single honest wish to perpetuate the principles and policy of the democratic party—but plead for a union for the sake of spoils.

We have thus as briefly as possible given our reasons for declining a participation in this nuptial festival There are one hundred thousand democrats in this state who have not bowed the knee to Baal—and when they command, we shall go for h—but never will we so far degrade the columns of the Sandy Hill Herald, which, for thirty years, has enjoyed the confidence of the democracy of this county, as to give place in its columns to a single sentiment in unison with John Van Buren and the turbulent spirits which revolve around him.

ELIZABETATOWN, Jany. 18, 1854.

The celebrated case of Bartlett and others, Trustees of School District No. 1, Jay against Gilmore, collector, so long on the calander, and tried twice or three times before, has at last been disposed of by a verdict for the deft. This may not be the end of the case after all, as several exceptions were taken to decisions of the court. The action was for neglect to collect and pay over money on a tax warrant. Among the questions decided were these: 1. That money paid to a building committee for building a School House, and receipted by the trustees tho' they did not actually receive the money, discharges the collector. 2. That when a trustee bids off property he need not actually pay over the money to the collector, but that his receipt is sufficient. 3. That if a note be given by a tax payer for his tax, and it be paid while the trustee and collector remain in office, this also discharges the collector. 4. That the question in these cases is, 'has the district suffered loss by the neglect of the collector?' Pond and Hand and Trumbull for Plffs. Kellogg and Hale and Ross for Defts.

Last evening a somewhat amusing and instructive case was tried, in which the defts, had an illustration of Franklin's boyhood experience in paying 'too dear for the whistle.' A couple of worthy and industrious young men were induced to buy a Patent Right recommended to them as a power for carrying any and all kinds of machinery, for which they gave their note for $130 in Dec. 1847. A model machine was exhibited, and it appeared to be carried by a weight like a clock. It required to be wound up by a steam engine once in twelve hours! It was said to be blowing two blacksmith bellows in Williston, Vt. and a sawmill in Wisconsin, would saw wood, carry a cider mill, &c., &c. The machine was ludicrously worthless, but the defts, were unable to get in any defence as the plff. claimed to be a bona fide holder of the note, and defts. could not prove the contrary, so they had to submit to a verdict against them, as men ought who will be caught with such a bait. Trumbull and Stetson for Plff. Kellogg and Hale for Defts. If now the vendor of that Patent could be punished for swindling, justice would be satisfied.

Orrin Ormsbee was arraigned by the District Atty. charged with stealing flour, dry goods, plows, chains, and a great variety of articles. After reading the indictment which set forth the charge in several counts, and in somewhat prolix manner as usual, the Prisoner was asked, 'are you guilty or not guilty?' 'Not guilty, sir,—not a word of truth in it—its the d—dst string of lies ever told!!'

As I write, Robert Gracy is on trial, charged with committing a Rape upon the person of Mrs. James McFarland of Crown-point. Gracy is about 25 years of age and Mrs. McFarland about 40 years old. The weather must have been 'out' last night and caught a severe cold as to day it is chilly and drear, with high and piercing winds.

An agricultural meeting was advertised for last evening, but the people seemed to be all drawn to the court House and it fell through. How far the exclusive employment of a central Organ of the Society has been instrumental in this decline we leave to the consideration of the members at large. For the honor of the farmers of the county we regret it, and under a different state of circumstances, should be happy to help revive the flagging interest.

Mr Burr, a son of Jonathan Burr, once a merchant at Lansingburgh, now deceased, is at court, his business not yet made known. He was a wild young man, and having ruined his health, and destroyed his intellect, a committee was appointed to take charge of his estate, which was immense.

He is waited upon here by a young man employed for that purpose at a comfortable salary of $1500 a year.

'When this old hat was new.'

We quoted last week from the 'Country Porcupine' of Dec. 31, 1798. We give below, a curious and interesting record from the same paper. 'Matthew Lyon,' was a 'furious democrat,' and we believe from Vergennes, Vt.: He was a 'martyr' to the cause of democracy, and created a democratic saint, albeit he lacked all the essentials of an honest man and a patriot — Nevertheless, he managed to be prosecuted for libeling government, and acquired considerable notoriety. Whoever, attended the Locofoco mass meeting in Westport in 1842 heard the whole case of this Lyon read from the books and doleful tears shed, and denunciations were muttered by the fierce democracie' against the whigs, as the supposed authors of that wicked persecution, tho' the whig party was not in existence for more than a quarter of a century after. This discrepancy was not perceived, however, and a detailed account of Arnold's treason, and Hull's surrender would have been quite as 'sound democratic doctrine.' But to the record:

Spitting Record.

BE IT REMEMBERED.

THAT, in the year of our Lord, one thousand seven hundered and ninety eight (the close of 'the enlightened eighteenth century), one Matthew Lyon, an Irishmen and a furious Democrat, was sent to Philadelphia, by the enlightened republicans of Vermont, to represent them in the Congress there assembled. That, on the thirteenth day of January, in the enlightened year aforesaid, the said Lyon did, in the Congress Hall, while the House was in actual session, spit the mucous slime from his jaws into the face of Roger Griswold, a member from Connecticut. And further; that the said Lyon, in justifying his said conduct, did (he being then speaking before and to the House) utter these words: 'kicked in the Arse,' meaning thereby the posteriors, or hinder parts, of him the said Lyon.

In consequence of the decent and polite language, so highly honorable to Democracy and to the enlightened century aforesaid, a resolution was offered for expelling the said Spitter from the House.—That an inquiry took place, in which it was proven that he, the said Lyon from Vermont, was during the American war cashiered by General Gates, for deserting his post.

AND BE IT FURTHER REMEMBERED, That Nicholas of Virginia, Williams of North Carolina, Smith of Baltimore, Gallatin of Geneva, Livingston of New York, and several others (all of them of the Democratic party), did actually make and utter speeches in favor of the aforesaid Lyon. That the resolution, after fourteen days spent thereon, was put to the vote, when there appeared fifty two for expulsion and forty four against it; and that, as the constitution requires a majority of two thirds to expel a member, the said Lyon, of course, was not expelled, but kept his seat in the Congress as before.

AND BE IT FURTHER REMEMBERED, That some few days after this decision took place; to wit on the fifteenth day of February, in the year afore-said, the said Roger did, in the said House of Representatives, bestow on the carcass of the said Lyon a rib roasting such as never saluted the hide of Southern slave of Simeon Pancho, or of the famous Rosenante; and which was supported by the said Lyon, with lamb-like patience, though not without some moaning.

And wherein, it is just that the said forty five men who voted in favor of the said Lyon, and by whose means he was kept in the said Congress, should be made known, to their constituents and to the universe, and also, that the memory of their conduct should be perpetuated, and handed down to their children, if, perchance they may have any; to these ends their names, with the States they represent, are hereunder enregistered; to wit:

THE MAILS.—Since the appointment of a Locofoco Post Master at Keeseville, we have had constant complaints of irregularity in the receipt of our paper, but never before that time. Bundles for St. Armand frequently go around by way of Elizabethtown, and when at the latter place at court this week, we were surprised to witness the receipt of our last paper as late as Tuesday morning, when they should have been received last Saturday morning. We know it to have been deposited in the Post Office on Friday evening within ten minutes of seven o'clock, having made up the packages ourself, and were taken over by our foreman We shall look after these cases of delay, and see if the Post Office is to be prostituted to subserviency to the [illegible]

More of the San Francisco Disaster.

Those who escaped from the San Francisco on board the barque Kilby, arrived at New York on Saturday, having been taken off by the Lucy Thompson, sent for that purpose. The following statement of the disaster by Frederic H. Southworth, will be read with deep interest:

On the morning of the 21st of Dec., 1853, this truly splendid steamer anchored at the Quarantine ground, and after receiving on board over 600 souls, mostly troops for California, the next day, (the 22d, at 8 1-2 o'clock,) we proceeded to sea.—The noble ship glided through the waters as if she had long known old ocean, and her engines and machinery, together with her new paddle wheels, worked well, and called forth the admiration of all on board. Her motion was easy, and the gilt phœnix upon her wheel-house seemed to extend its golden head and wings to speak its joy for a new triumph in steam navigation. On the 23d the weather was as pleasant as could be expected in the Gulf Stream at this season of the year, but as the golden sun set behind the clouds along the western sky, indications were given of a coming gale. Soon the gradually rising winds increased to a perfect hurricane, which tossed the steamer like a cork, to and fro; and now the angry waves began to roll high, threatening and dashing over the guards, and occasionally washed a man or some boxes or live stock, into the roaring ocean.

At about 12 o'clock the gale had broken the foremast, and waves as they washed our deck, broke away the guards, leaving no security outside the saloon, on the upper deck, against being carried overboard. To add to our already perilous situation, the air pump rod broke at 4 o'clock on the morning of the 24th. The upper saloon, aft the wheel house, was surrounded by staterooms occupied by officers and a few way passengers for Rio Janeiro and Valparaiso. Besides these occupants, these saloons were crowded with soldiers, who were forced in here by the necessities of the occasion. It was perilous for them to remain on deck, and there was no other place for them, inasmuch as the forward deck cabin and staterooms were filled with soldiers, accompanied by their wives and families.

Col. Burke, the officer of the day, ordered the soldiers into the after cabin; and when all had crowded into it that could find standing room they numbered at least 150. At eight o'clock a mighty swell, such as can only be termed by old ocean when lashed by such a tempest, struck our vessel amidships, completely submerging the wheel houses, and washing them with all their inmates, within an instant, at least half a mile distant, into the foaming sea. Myself and Mr. Rankin were among the number who were washed away, and the only two of this entire company who were successful in regaining the ship. All the rest sunk into the jaws of death, and were rocked into an eternal sleep by the roaring, swelling sea.

As I can only describe the awful situation of these mortals by my own experience, I hope I shall be excused for alluding to myself. I well remember I was lying in my state room, on the after deck, with a traveling companion, Mr. Jas. Stockwell, when there came a shock and sudden crash of breaking timber, and I felt myself rising like a top to the water, with salt brine rushing into my mouth and almost blinding me. When I rose to the surface of the ocean a harrowing sight was before me. I was half a mile from the steamer, and around me was about an acre of floating timber. Immediately by my side came up from the deep Mr. Stockwell, who caught hold of the same stick of timber to which I had clung for safety. The stick began to sink and I seized hold of another piece, and made the best of my way to the wrecked steamer. Two or three huge swells soon tossed me near the ship, and I grasped a rope forward of the wheel-house, to which I clung for refuge, rising and falling with the pitching vessel. While in this situation I saw a man standing on the paddle of the wheel who was plunged into the ocean at every roll of the steamer, and who probably perished. Losing my strength, I dropped past from the rope to which I clung, and, fortunately, a friendly wave threw me against the guard of the vessel, which I seized hold of, and the next plunge carried me still higher on the guard. I was enabled at last to crawl upon the forward deck, and there with my hand broke open a state room window and crept into it half drowned.—While in the water, the sight around me was worse than death itself. When I rose to the surface of the water, I saw about forty struggling for life, and about one half of them had blood streaming from wounds about their heads. Being blinded by what I thought was salt water, I put my hand to my forehead to wipe away the brine, when I was surprised to find I was bleeding myself from a wound on my brow. It is, therefore, conclusive that most of those washed away were at the same time wounded by the crashing timbers. Besides myself, Mr Rankin was the only one saved of the number who were swept into the ocean.

Such was the force of the waves that they broke in a part of the deck, and killed and injured several, besides deluging the passengers in the lower cabins and filling the saloons with water. Capt Gardiner slept on deck, and was not swept away with the others, but at one time found a man by his side, with a splinter thrust through his head, which must have killed him instantaneously.

After I recovered myself I looked around me and the only dry place in the steamer was in the after cabin, where the officers, with their wives and children, were stowed away, having rolled in blankets, as comfortable as circumstances would permit. But, oh! the scene of confusion, no tongue can tell, no pen describe. The storm continued to rage, and we were at the mercy of the waves, without steam or sail. As wave after wave came dashing against us, shriek after shriek came from those who dreaded to look into the grave. Nearly all gave up hopes of safety, and many were patiently waiting to be, summoned before the Almighty Ruler of the storm. Stout hearts [illegible] turned pale, and ver prayed before. It was a scene such as made the blood curdle around the heart, and all pulsation to cease.

The very thoughts of the hours and days of suffering now freeze my blood as it courses thro' my veins. It is worthy of remark, that in the hour of our greatest peril, Commander Watkins, captain Mellus, Lieut. F. R. Murray, and other gallant officers, constantly revived the sinking spirits of all on board by repeated assurances of safety. The heroic men constantly bid the despending to be of good cheer; and Heaven only knows how many hearts, fast growing cold, were kept warm with life's blood by these gallant men.

The Rev. Mr. Cooper, an Episcopalian clergyman, read daily from the Holy book of life, appropriate passages, and offered up prayers for our deliverence. To us those prayers were answered. Those who sank beneath the billows are now at peace with the world. The mighty ocean has taken them to its bosom, and their requiem was sung by the whistling winds of heaven.

During our days of distress, the small engine was kept constantly at work pumping, and by its aid the ship was kept afloat. The San Francisco proved herself strongly built, because no vessel unless made of oak and iron, well put together, could have swam an hour in such a gale.—The bulwarks and guards were not as strong as they might have been, and perhaps to this we owe our lives. Had the guards and after cabin been of iron strength and not yielded to the waves, such was its force that it would have overturned the ship, and not a single soul would have been left to tell the awful tale.

We were rescued from our dismal situation by the barque Kilby. This vessel was loaded with cotton and molasses, bound to Boston from New Orleans. About sixty bales of cotton were thrown overboard to make room for us poor unfortunate beings. The scene of transferring the passengers into the Kilby, from the wreck in such a sea, can more easily be imagined than described. Husbands seperated from their wives, children from their parents, friend from friend, with no assurance of ever meeting more. Oh! it was an awful state, and cold is the heart of him whose pulsation is not quickened, or his eye grow dim with a tear at its rehearsal. The Kilby was compelled to leave the wreck before all had been rescued, it being impossible to lay along side.

☞We would call the attention of our readers to the advertisement of Wm. F. Armstead, in another column. Mr. Armstead's shop is fitted up with great taste, surpassing in beauty any shop we have ever seen at the North. He is (as the citizens of Keeseville well know) an excellent workman, and his skill is fast securing him a good patronage. He only has to shave a man once to get him again. We hope our citizens will remember him when at Burlington.

"EVERY FAMILY SHOULD HAVE A COPY."

Dr. Hunter's Medical Manual and Hand Book for the Afflicted—

Containing an outline of the origin, progress treatment and cure of every form of disease contracted by promiscuous sexual intercourse, by self abuse or by sexual excess, with advice for their prevention, written in a familiar style, avoiding all medical technicalities, and everything that would offend the ear of decency, from the result of some twenty years successful practice, exclusively devoted to the cure of diseases of a delicate or private nature.

To which is added, receipts for the cure of the above diseases, and a treatise on the causes, symptoms and cure of the Fever and Ague.

Testimony of the Prof of Obstetrics in Penn College, Philadelphia—"Dr. Hunter's Medical Manual."—The author of this work unlike the majority of those works who advertise to cure the diseases of which it treats is a graduate of one of the best Colleges in the United States. It affords me pleasure to recommend him to the unfortunate, or to the victim of malpractice, as a successful and experienced practitioner, in whose honor and integrity they may place the greatest confidence.

JOSEPH LONGSHORE, M. D.

From A Woodward M. D., of Penn. University, Philadelphia—It gives me pleasure to add my testimony to the professional ability of the author of the "Medical Manual." Numerous cases of diseases of the Genital Organs some of them of long standing have come under my notice, in which his skill has been manifest in restoring to perfect health, in some instances where the patient has been considered beyond medical aid. In the treatment of Seminal weakness, or disarrangement of the functions produced by Self-abuse, or Excess of venery, I do not know his superior in the profession. I have been acquainted with the Author some thirty years, and deem it no more than justice to him as well as a kindness to the unfortunate victim of early indiscretion to recommend him as one, in whose professional skill and integrity they may safely confide themselves. ALFRED WOODWARD, M D

"This is, without exception, the most comprehensive and intelligible work published on the class of diseases of which it treats. Avoiding all technical terms, it addresses itself to the reason of its readers. It is free from all objectionable matter and no parent, however fastidious, can object to placing it in the hands of his sons. The author has devoted many years to the treatment of the various complaints treated of, and with too little breath to puff,' and 'too little presumption to impose,' he has offered to the world at the merely nominal price of 25 cents, the fruits of some 20 years most successful practice."—Herald.

"No teacher or parent should be without the knowledge imparted in this invaluable work. It would save years of pain, mortification and sorrow to the youth under their charge."—People's Advocate.

A Presbyterian clergyman in Ohio, in writing of "Hunter's Medical Manual," says: "Thousands upon thousands of our youth, by evil example and influence of the passions, have been led into the habit of self pollution without realizing the sin and fearful consequences upon themselves and their posterity. The constitutions of thousands who are raising families have been enfeebled if not broken down, and they do not know the cause or the cure. Anything that can be done so to enlighten and influence the public mind as to check, and ultimately to remove this wide spread source of human wretchedness, would confer the greatest blessing next to the religion of Jesus Christ, on the present and coming generations. Intemperance (or the use of intoxicating drinks,) though it has slain thousands upon thousands, is not a greater scourge to the human race. Accept my thanks on behalf of the afflicted, and, believe me, your co-worker in the good work you are so actively engaged in."

One copy, (securely enveloped,) will be forwarded free of postage to any part of the United States for 25 cents, or 6 copies for $1.—Address (post paid) CONDEN & Co., publishers, [illegible] 126, Philadelphia. 478y

THE MARRIAGE STATE;

Shall Happiness and Health, or Misery and Sickness, attend it?

MOST STARTLING CONSIDERATIONS!

Reflections for the Thoughtful.

Strange that countless human beings exist and drag through life as do the beasts of the field, or the insects of the earth, evincing no more thought or reflection than though the noble faculties of mind were not vouchsafed to them.

Many such are husbands and fathers, upon whom are dependent the health, the well-being, and the happiness of a confiding and affectionate wife, with perhaps a family of children.

HOW OFTEN IT HAPPENS THAT THE

WIFE LINGERS FROM YEAR TO YEAR

In that pitiable condition as not even for one day to feel the happy and exhilerating influence incident to the enjoyment of health.

She may not be an invalid confined to her bed, or even to her room; as her pride, ambition and energy induce and nerve her to take personal charge of her household, even when her health will not admit of it; but she is nevertheless perceptibly sinking from day to day, and always ailing.

Thus, day after day, and month after month transpire. Her health daily sinks, till finally even the hope of recovery no longer remains. And thus

THE BLOOMING BRIDE,

But a few years ago in the flush of health and youth, and buoyancy of spirits, rapidly, and apparently inexplicably, becomes a feeble, sickly, debilitated wife, with frame emaciated, nerves unstrung, spirits depressed, countenance bearing the impress of suffering, and an utter physical and mental prostration.

Sometimes this deplorable change may and does arise from organic or constitutional causes. But oftener, by far oftener, to gross and inexcusable ignorance of the simplest and plainest rules of health as connected with the marriage state, the violation of which entails disease, suffering and misery, not only to the wife, but often

"UNTO THE THIRD AND FOURTH GENERATION,"

Transmitting CONSUMPTION, SCROFULA, HYPOCHONDRIA, INSANITY, GOUT, KING'S EVIL, and other diseases,

as a

from the Parents.

And must this continue? Shall we be wise in all that concerns the cattle of our fields, our horses, our sheep, our cows, our oxen, the nature and character of the soil we possess, the texture and quality of our goods and merchandise; but in all that concerns ourselves as human beings, with human functions and passions, subject to great derangement, involving our future peace and happiness—in all that concerns the health and welfare of the wife of our affections, and the mother of our children; in all that concerns the mental and physical well being of those children, we should be immersed in the darkest and most

BENIGHTED IGNORANCE,

AS CULPABLE AS INEXCUSABLE!

How long shall this ignorance prevail so productive of its bitter fruits? How long shall the wife and mother be ignorant of the nature, character and causes of the various womb and sexual complaints, embittering her days by suffering—suffering often prolonged to years, eventuating in a complication of diseases utterly and hopelessly incurable? Shall we for ever close our eyes to the results of physiological science by which we may arrive at an understanding of ourselves as men and women, subject to serious life-long enduring diseases, and perpetuating them to our children.

LET EVERY WIFE AND HUSBAND PONDER!

No husband or wife need be ignorant of what concerns them most to know to secure their health and happiness. That knowledge is contained in a little work entitled

LEANDER BABBIT'S TRUSS OFFICE

The latest and most approved Trusses; Female supporters; Do. with shoulder braces attached; spinal elevator for curvature of the spine and projection of the shoulder blades. Suspensory shoulder braces. This instrument is so constructed that it not only acts the part of shoulder braces, but can be used as the belt of the ladies' iris on their shoulders; and, hence remedies the evil consequent, to carry things on the hip-and sides. For gentlemen, it not only serves for a shoulder brace, but acts the part of suspenders.

As to the importance and usefulness of the abovenamed instruments and their beneficial effects, their peculiar mechanism and superiority over other instruments of the same name, I need not say anything. They are so well known by physicians, and the multitude of persons that have had occasion to use them in this northern section of country, that I do not deem it important to introduce a long catalogue of certificates; yet I have abundant evidence in my possession to justify me in all I claim or affirm, and deem it a privilege to give references to any who wish to make inquiries.

Office at Keeseville in the building on the corner of Main and Front street, opposite the Bank, up stairs.

Ladies will be waited on at my dwelling by Mrs. Babbit, whose experience in adjusting braces and supporters qualifies her to give perfect satisfaction. 482—3m

SHERIFF'S SALE.

BY virtue of several executions issued out of the Supreme Court of the State of New York, to me directed and delivered, against the goods and chattels, lands and tenements, real estate and chattels real, of Henry Haile, and of Henry Haile and Charles Haile, I have seized and taken all the right, title and interest, which the said Henry Haile or the said Henry Haile and Charles Haile had on the the 14th day of January, 1852, or which they, or either of them, may since have acquired, of, in, and to all and singular the following described real estate, to wit:—

Lot No. 2.—Hague tract, in the town of Schroon, in the County of Essex, being same lot sold to Bradley by Joseph Weed and wife, June 1st, 1837. Also, Lot No. 13, in Robert Grant's Patent, in the town of Crownpoint, containing 76 1-16 acres of land, excepting one half acre thereof deeded by Henry Haile and wife to Solomon S. Flint, April 1st, 1851. Also, all that part of Lot No. 14, in Grant's Patent, in Crownpoint, lying east of Putnam's Creek, containing 13 90-100 acres of land.—Also, a small strip of land lying on the northeast side of the road leading from Samuel Russell's to the White Meeting-house, being on Robert Grant's Patent in Crownpoint, occupied in 1845 by Stephen Spaulding, containing one half acre. Also, all the South equal half of Lot No. 20, Grant's Patent, in Crownpoint, containing 20 acres. Also, Lot No. 34, in the Pliny Moore Patent, in the town of Crownpoint.

Also, all that certain piece or parcel of land, lying and being in the town of Crownpoint, in the County of Essex and State of New York, and is bounded and described as follows: Beginning in the south line of the road about 2 feet easterly from an apple-tree, and 19 links westerly from a locust tree, both supposed to stand in the north line of said road; then running north 17°, east about 9 rods, until it intersects the south line of the Allen Campbell, then easterly following said south patent line 28 rods to the North line of the road, thence westerly following said North line of said road about 30 rods to the place of beginning, containing by estimation one acre of land. Which said real estate I shall expose for sale at Public Vendue, at the Hotel kept by Jacob Tappen, in Moriah, in said County of Essex, on the 25th day of January next, at Ten o'clock in the forenoon.

Owing to the large increase of patronage, I have found it necessary from time to time to make many improvements and additions to my store.

This spring I have united the stores No. 7 and 9, State St., making a spacious and beautiful room, fitted up expressly for the sale of all the various styles of Silks, Shawls, Cloaks & Mantillas.

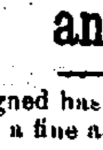
This connects with the main store, No. 202 River St., (the old stand occupied by the subscriber for nearly 30 years,) which is devoted to a general assortment of

STAPLE AND FANCY DRY GOODS,

comprising every variety to meet the wants of all classes of buyers. Besides these, four large rooms over the stores 200, 202 and 204 River St., are occupied as



CARPET WARE-ROOMS,

where I am constantly receiving the newest and most desirable patterns of Velvet, Tapestry, Brussels, Three ply, Ingrain and Venetian Carpets. Also, Oil-Cloths of every quality and width, and every style of Drugetts, Rugs, Mats, Matting, Stair-Rods, &c.

All those departments combined making an extensive and complete Establishment, conducted on such principles, that customers can trade with confidence, and to their own advantage, my sales being always for cash, and the only price asked, being the lowest cash price. G. V. S. QUACKENBUSH.

PURCHASED AND OBTAINED BY

GEO. MOORE, Plattsburgh, N. Y. [illegible]

Henry's Invigorating Cordial,

PURELY VEGETABLE IN ITS COMPOSITION.

This invaluable Cordial, is extracted from Herbs and Roots, which have been found after years of experience by the most skilful Physicians, to be possessed of qualities most beneficial in the diseases for which it is recommended, and hence while it is presented to the public as an efficacious remedy, it is also known to be of that character on which reliance may be placed as to its safety. In cases of Impotency, Hemorrhages, Disordered Sterility, Menstruation, or Suppression of the Menses, Fluor Albus or Whites, or for arising from any cause, such as weakness from sickness, where the patient has been confined to bed for some time, for Females after Confinement, Abortion or Miscarriage, this Cordial cannot be excelled in its salutary effects; or in loss of Muscular Energy, Irritability, Physical Prostration, Seminal Weakness, Palpitation of the Heart, Indigestion, Sluggishness, Decay of the Procreative Functions, Nervousness, &c., where a TONIC Medicine is required, it will be found equal, if not superior to any Compound ever used.

DEBILITY

TO FEMALES.

Henry's Invigorating Cordial is one of the most invaluable Medicines in the many Complaints to which Females are subject. It assists nature to brace the whole system, check excesses, and create renewed health and happiness. Less suffering, disease and unhappiness among Ladies would exist, were they generally to adopt the use of this Cordial. Ladies who are delicate by nature or from any cause, will be relieved and restored by the use of a bottle or two to bloom and to vigor.

YOUNG MEN.

That solitary practice, so fatal to the existence of man and it is the young who are most apt to become its victims, from an ignorance of the danger to which they subject themselves, causes

NERVOUS DEBILITY.

Weakness of the system, and Premature Decay. Many of you may now be suffering, misled as to the cause or source of disease. To those, then, who by excess have brought on themselves Premature Impotency, Involuntary Seminal Emissions, Weakness and Shrivelling of the Genital Organs, Nervous Affection, or any other consequences of unrestrained indulgence of the sensual passions, occasioning the necessity of renouncing the felicities of lessening both mental and bodily capacity, Hold! Henry's Invigorating Cordial, a Medicine that is purely vegetable, will aid nature to restore those important functions to a healthy state, and will prove of service to you. It possesses rare virtues, is a general renovator of disease, and strengthener of the system.

AS A TONIC MEDICINE,

it is unsurpassed. We do not place this Cordial on a footing with quack medicines, and, as is customary, append a long list of recommendations, certificates, &c., beginning with "Hear what the Preacher says," and such like; it is not necessary, for "Henry's Invigorating Cordial," only needs a trial to prove that it will accomplish all we say.

THE GENUINE "HENRY'S INVIGORATING CORDIAL,"

is put up in 8 oz Panel Bottles, and is easily recognized by the Manufacturer's signature on the label of each Bottle, (to counterfeit which is forgery.) as well as the private Seal on the cork of each bottle.

Price $2 per Bottle; six for $8; $16 per dozen.

Prepared only by S. E. COHEN, No. 3 Franklin Row, Vine Street below Eighth, Philadelphia Pa; C. V. Clickener & Co., N. York, Wholesale Agents. TO WHOM ALL ORDERS MUST BE ADDRESSED. For sale by all respectable Druggists and Merchants throughout the country. 497

MORSE'S

COMPOUND SYRUP OF

Yellow Dock Root.

THIS is a Purely Vegetable Compound, scientifically prepared from the best Roots and Herbs of the Materia Medica, and has gained a universal reputation for the following effects, viz: Regulating and Strengthening the Liver and Digestive Organs, and Cleansing the Stomach and Bowels, and curing all Billious Diseases, Liver Complaints, Dyspepsia, Indigestion, Costiveness, Headache, Fever and Ague, Jaundice, Nervous Lassitude, &c., and cleansing the food to enrich and supply every part, PURIFYING THE BLOOD, and thus curing all Humors, Cutaneous Eruptions, Scrofula, Salt Rheum, Erysipelas, Scald Head, Canker, Pimples on the face, Blotches, Ulcers, Tumors, Mercurial Diseases, &c., &c. Regulating the secretory Organs, and enabling them to perform their proper functions, thereby preventing many painful and dangerous diseases, and relieving and Quieting the nervous system, thus allaying Nervous Irritation, and curing all Diseases of the Nerves, as Hysteria, Neuralgia, Cramps, &c.

It is curative in the cure of all FEMALE COMPLAINTS, as weakness, general debility, Irregularities, Obstructions, Swelling of the Feet, Limbs, Joints, &c., caused by weakness; also, Lung and Throat Complaints, as Colds, Coughs, Asthma, Consumption, &c., also, Dropsy.

Having made use of the Compound Syrup of Yellow Dock Root, prepared by C. Morse and Co., we consider ourselves or in our families and finding it to be a very sure and effectual preparation, we do most cheerfully recommend it to the public as a very valuable medicine.

E. Bourne, Esq., Cashier National Bank, Providence R. I.; A. W. Spencer, Esq., Cashier Lime Rock Bank, do do Rev. William Phillips, Rev. J. B. Richmond, C. S. Jones, editor Providence Gen. Adv., Wm. Field, M. W. G. M. Cyrus Fisher, M. E. H. P. James Hutchinson G. S. Dea. V J Bates, Doct. Benj. Ely and one hundred others of the most respectable families of Providence.

This certifies that I have for a number of years been acquainted with the composition and mode of manufacture of Morse's Compound Syrup of Yellow Dock Root. I have also been acquainted with its use in practice in disease, and can say that I approve it as admirably calculated to remedy the class of Diseases for which it was designed. It is especially valuable in Indigestion and all its attendant symptoms, it excites to healthy action the Liver, removes Torpor, and inactivity of this organ, and stimulates healthy action in all the system. As a Depurator or purifier of the Blood it has no superior.

Agricultural.

Rules For Winter.

1. Keep no more stock than you can keep really well. If you have more, pick out the most inferior and sell them. Better to winter ten head well, and have them in fine condition in the spring than to keep twenty half starved, which it will require all the summer to put into condition.

2. Heat and shelter are equivalent to food. Ask yourself whether it is best to spend a hundred dollars in putting up a good shed, which will last for years, save half your fodder, and preserve your stock healthy and comfortable, or to spend this hundred dollars in hay or other fodder, in wasted manure, and diseased and wasted stock? It is fully proved that well sheltered animals with racks to eat from, can be wintered and kept in fine condition, on one half the food necessary where stock is fed out of doors on the ground, with the lee side of a rail fence for a shelter, and this without taking into consideration the saving of manure, and to any other items of profit.

3. You cannot make your young animals too comfortable, or feed them too well during the first winter. If they are once stunted or starved, they will never recover from it. This applies to all kind of stock but especially to calves and colts.

4. Therefore, make provisions not only for their shelter, but also for their food.—Hay alone will not do for them. If you have no roots, feed them on bran and crushed oats, and corn. The secret of having fine stock, is to keep them always in growing condition. This they do during the summer on the best grass; and the cold of winter consumes a great portion of the food eaten in producing heat, which in summer goes to constitute flesh and fat.—It is morally impossible that a young animal can continue to grow during our winters on the same food which keeps it in summer.

5. It has been fully proved that if your sheep are shut up all winter, with a sufficiency of water, they can be kept fat on wheat and oat straw alone, and make a vast quantity of manure, though a few roots, or a little grain once or twice a week, is better. Thus, by having a proper building, you can turn all your straw into wool at fifty cents a pound, and the richest manure, instead of burning it, or letting it rot, as is often done. Would not this soon pay for a shed?

6 Remember that you raise cattle in order to make a profit on them. It costs, on average, for dollars a year to raise a calf to maturity, at four years old, and then you barely get twenty dollars for it. It may cost you seven dollars a year to raise a fine grade to maturity, at three years old, and you will get fifty dollars for it. As regards horses, the difference is greater still. Depend on it, no one ever made money on stock by half starving and neglect, but you cannot fail to make money, if you breed judiciously and shelter liberally.

SYRIAN CATTLE.—We clip the following from the Morgantown, Va., Republican: "We saw the Khasi cattle pass thro' this country a few weeks since. They are a curiosity to those who never saw the Syrian breed. We learn that the governor ordered them to be kept in Harrison county for a year. The bull is tall as an ordinary horse. The cross is said to make good oxen."

☞They must hunger in frost that will not work in heat.

Letters From the Editor, Concluded.

ELIZABETHTOWN, Jan. 20, 1854.

The circuit is drawing to a close. Robt Gracey, referred to in a previous letter, has been tried, convicted, and senteuced to eleven years and three months imprisonment in Clinton Prison. He was informed by the Judge that he could have no hopes of pardon. His offence was so wanton, so gross, and scarcely paralelled, he would have been senteuced to the longest term allowed by law, but for his aged parents. In consideration of their declining years it was fixed as above stated. Gracy is 23 years of age, large, muscular, and ugly looking. He has been a bold and daring offender—a terror to his neighborhood, and to officers of justice. The offence in this case was Rape upon the person of an old lady of over 40 years of age, and was committed with the assistance of three other wretches who have fled, but who will yet be lodged in the Clinton Prison with their fellow criminal for the vigilance of Sheriff Ensign never tires, and he is as fearless as he is vigilant, as this case proves. He followed this Gracy by night and by day, over hills, and thro' vallies, into caves and thro' swamps—and tho' Gracy was armed with pistols and bowie knives, and tho' he eluded a pursuit like that which the Dist. Atty. finely suggested, fabulous history ascribed to the chase of the Fiery Dragon. He was at last caught while "tripping the light fantastic toe." The Sheriff pounced upon him while he was on the floor at a dance, on his favorite run-ways, on Coot-Hill, and in a twinkling he was pinioned and chained. This scene was happily alluded to by the Dist. Atty. in his speech—"he was commanded to change partners, and we had him!" The county harbors one less vagabond.

January 21.

Since the above, James M. Swinton, so long known as the proprietor of the Hotel at the Pond, on the road from Elizabethtown to Moriah, has been tried, convicted, and sentenced to seven years and three months imprisonment in the Clinton Prison, for burning a barn of E. Hall, esq., of Moriah. He was ably and desperately defended by Messrs. Ross, Kellogg and Hale, but in vain. The Dist. Atty. met and conquered this force single handed and alone. The proof rested upon an interesting chain of circumstantial evidence, but so convincing as to leave no doubt on the mind of any individual. To those who know him his conviction causes no regrets, but only satisfaction that justice has at last overtaken him—a fate he ought to have met with long ago. The county has two less vagabonds, and the people all say, Amen.

The Jurors.—No more able, sensible, conscientious men ever assembled at Elizabethtown than those who were called to the high and responsible duty of deciding between the people and the foregoing criminals.

The Dist. Atty—Mr. Butler is deserving of and has received distinguished praise for the manner in which he has discharged his duty at this court. He has had to meet the ablest men at the bar, and he has triumphed. So may he ever.

The Judge.—Judge James has won golden opinions from all classes. We may truly say, without exception, that he has made a more favorable and lasting impression than any judge who has preceded him. Industrious, yet patient, ready to decide, yet willing to listen; able, clear, and ready on any question; kind and affable, yet dignified; firm but not austere; these were his characteristics. The people on all hands were loud in his praise. Indeed, this notice is but a repetition of what was said by others. What to us was the greatest compliment that could be bestowed upon any man, was that he was a 'good man.' We heard this expression oft repeated—repeated over and over as though it could not be uttered too often: 'Oh, he is a good man—I know he is a good man.'

When such men hold the offices of justice the laws will be impartially administered. May the bench ever be adorned with such.

DAILY NATIONAL DEMOCRAT.—We are in the regular receipt of this sturdy and ably conducted sheet and commend it to the sup-

"The new Party Movement."

In another column we give an article under the above title from the Albany Atlas, not for the purpose of denying the suggestions or of quieting the nerves of the Atlas editor, but to say, that just as likely as not his worst fears may prove true. 'Coalition' is a bugbear that can no longer frighten the people. Coalitions have been witnessed in more than half the states in the union during the past six months. We are in favor of them whenever they can be turned to the interest of the whig party and the country. The question with us is, 'are they honorable, are they consistent, are they for the good of the party and the country?' We shall be opposed under any and all such circumstances to a 'coalition' with the Pierce and Van Buren democracy, because they are a set of knaves any way, morally and politically, but with honest men of whatever party we are ready to coalesce at any time. 'Coalitions' have taken place heretofore and will again. The Pierce party is but a 'coalition' of renegades from all parties, Parties have been broken up and remodelled heretofore and the prospect is that other changes are about to take place. Precisely what shape parties will assume hereafter it is impossible to tell; but that a new fusion is to take place ere long there is little doubt. Only one thing is certain and that is that the Pierce democracy will be overwhelmned by the combined influence of whigs, hards and abolitionists, but whether as one party or three, we know not. Whatever the great future may bring forth we trust that in the meantime, whigs of this Co. will retain their friendly relations with these two parties, hereafter as heretofore, and that they will not hesitate to coalesce at the town meetings next spring as a token of esteem, and by way of paving the way for whatever is to come. 'If this be treason make the most of it.'

N. Y. State Military Association

Our readers will remember that this association was formed last year, and had for its object the improvement of the militia as recently organized. Its first annual meeting was held in Albany the second week in the present month. The use of the Assembly chamber was granted it one evening for a public demonstration. The members appeared in uniform, the Gov. and staff, members of the Legislature, &c. were present, speeches were made advocating the claims of the citizens soldiers upon the favor of the Legislature, and the results of the meeting were believed to have been beneficial. The next annual meeting is to be held in N. Y. city.

The following officers of the Association were selected for the ensuing year:

President—Brig: Gen. Z. T Bentley, of Morrisville.

Vice-Presidents—Brig. Gen. Nelson Randall, of Buffalo; Brig Gen. A. T. Dunham, of Watervliet; Brig. Gen Chas. B. Spicer, of New York; Brig. Gen. J. T. Blanchard, of Saratoga Spa

Treasurer—Col. H. S Fairchild, of Rochester.

Corresponding Secretary—Col. C. A. Seward, of Auburn.

Recording Secretary—Col. P S. Crook

After adjourning the members called on Gov. Seymour. In this connection we avail ourself of the opportunity to commend to all good citizens the encouragement of the uniformed militia in our midst, It seems to us that their services to preserve the peace and union of our country will be demanded sooner than most people are dreaming of. There is a rampant spirit abroad fostered by this Pierce democracy that will rule, or seek the ruin of the Federal Government. There is a storm gathering at Washington that may not be 'compromised' in peace.

N. H. Democracy.

We have before us the Old Guard Burke's paper, ultra Hard, published at Concord, N.H. from which we learn that at a recent session of the dem. State Com. a Pierce dem. was elected chairman by one majority, that there were several members absent, that with a full meeting he could not have been elected, that the one chosen was a hard cider whig in 1840, and that at the next session of the Legislature it is altogether likely a hunker paper will be selected as state paper, and asks the N. H. Patriot, Pierce's Organ, 'to put that in its pipe and smoke it.' So waves the Pierce and Van Buren democracy.

DULY APPRECIATED.—Messrs. Stringer & Townsend, and Messrs. Dewitt & Davenport, N. Y. city have a just appreciation of the favor of the country press. We are indebted to them for some of their best publications, bound in the most beautiful manner, and worthy of a place in the most carefully selected library We trust they will reap an abundant harvest for their liberality. This practice of sending to the country press the best bound, and valuable volumes is something new, and evinces an enterprise worthy of commendation. We hope the country press will appreciate and reciprocate the favor.

The New Party Movement.

The Hon JOHN M. BOTTS, of Virginia, has undertuken the guardianship of the NEW PARTY movement, and in a recent speech at Newark, New Jersey, which he has had published in pamphlet form, gives his views as to the basis of coalition organization and the name of the new created hybrid. We find the extracts embodied in an article in the Philadelphia Pennsylvanian:

'Look at the course pursued by the President of their choice. You will recollect what I said in Newark last fall about Free Soilism and his New Boston speech—you all know that his election was demanded as a triumph of the Union party of the country, against all factious and disorganizing agitators; and here, after his election, the triumph was claimed for those who had stood by the Union, and the Compromise against the hostility of Secessionists and the Free-Soilers, and yet Mr. Pierce has done more in the brief space that he has been in office, to give influence and importance to the Secessionists and Disunionists of the South, than five hundred Nashville Conventions could have done, and he has done more to revive the fallen fortunes of the Free Soil party in the North, than five thousand such men as Mr. Seward could do in a life time; by depositing all the influence and emoluments of office in their hands, and making their views the only passport to favor; and there is but one remedy left, and that is the action of the U. S Senate next winter If they confirm all these appointments of Seceders, on the one hand, and the Buffalo platform party on the other, then, indeed, we may tremble for the consequence; we can only hope that they will draw certain lines AND BY THE CO OPERATION OF THE WHIGS AND CONSERVATIVE DEMOCRATS, the evil may be averted by rejecting all those who come within those lines. * * * * *

I do not know that my opinions are of any value, but according to my judgement, they should hold on to their present organization with the tenacity of death; that they should surrender nothing of their principles, hold on to such grounds as they can occupy without producing excitement at the polls, let the other party quarrel as they choose over the spoils, and assume the responsibility for whatever is to be done—no responsibility can rest on us, and I should be sorry to see the party take the responsibility of originating any measure, but let us raise our flag aloft, (that the discontented of the other side may know where to find a resting place,) and keep it floating until 1856, when the fruit will have ripened and we shall have little else to do if we are wise and prudent, than hold out our hats and catch it as it falls.'

Mr. BOTTS opposes the change of one iota of Whig principles; but he advises a change of name. Hear him:

'I incline to think that we should derive some advantage by assuming our old and true name, of 'National Republicans;' for whilst there is no particular meaning attached to the word 'Whig,' and the masses do not know what it imports, 'Nationality' and 'Republicanism, have each a clear and distinct definition that every body understands, and that no sound man can object to; but a change to an old name does not involve re-organization, and therefore I am for adhering to the organization as it is."

This then is the position of the opposition to the administration, which enters now on a three year's campaign to overthrow it in 1856—the whigs to change their name to a more national one, to retain their principles, and to keep aloft their flag for the discontented to gather under, till Sen. SEWARD, who is infinitely more acceptable to BOTTS than Gen. PIERCE, or some other national republican shall be elected to the Presidency.

The elements of the new party are not left to be gathered from conjectures and vague assertions like these. The attempt is made to classify and organize them, in the present Congress, beginning with the Senate, which is thus divided by the most popular organ of the coalition the N. Y. Herald:

United States Senate—Classification of the Members.—The following Senators are understood to be supporters of the present administration under the Cabinet as now organized:

Fitzpatrick and Clay, of Alabama.
Johnson and Sebastiian, of Arkansas.
Toucey, of Connecticut.
Mallory, of Florida.
Petit, of Indiana.
Jones, of Iowa.
Shields, of Illinois.
Slidell, of Louisiana.
Hamlin, of maine.
Stuart, of Michigan.
Norris and Williams, of N. H.
Chase, of Ohio.
Butler and Evans, of South Carolina.
Mason and Hunter, of Virginia.
Dodge and Walker, of Wisconsin.
—Total 21, all Democrats.

Senators opposed to the coalition Cabinet, including National Democrats and Whigs:

Weller and Gwin, of California.
Smith, of Connecticut.
Bayard and Clayton, of Delaware.
Morton, of Florida.
Dawson and Toombs, of Georgia.
Bright, of Indiana.
Douglass, of Illinois.
A. C Dodge, of Iowa.
Dixon and Thompson, of Kentucky.
Benjamin, of Louisiana.
Everett and Sumner, of Massachusetts
Pearce and Pratt, of Maryland.
Cass, of Michigan.
Thompson and Wright, of New Jersey
Adams, of Mississippi.
Atchison and Geyer, of Missouri.
Seward and Fish, of New York.
Badger, of North Carolina
Wade, of Ohio.
Cooper and Brodhead, of of Pa.
James and Allen, of Rhode Island.
Jones and Bell, of Tennessee.
Houston and Rusk, of Texas.
Foote, of Vermont.

Total 37—14 Democrats, 23 Whigs.—Albany Atlas.

A MAGNIFICENT RIVER.—The [illegible] river, Australia, is navigable for More Territory.

☞A foreign correspondent writes to the Herald as follows:—'I mentioned in my last that the United States had offered to advance a considerable sum to the Porte on condition of receiving an island in the Archipelago. I now learn, on pretty good authority, that Mr. Buchanan has been engaged in the preliminary negotiation for the purchase of an island in that sea for a naval depot or arsenal. It is deemed necessary by the United States government to have a depot there or in the Mediterranean.'

This forcibly illustrates the folly of annexation. Texas was taken to keep her out of the clutches of England. Texas made California necessary. California renders the Sandwich Islands of the first importance. Cuba and the adjacent Islands are deemed requisite to our defence.—When we get an island in the Mediterranean we shall want there a large military and naval force, and directly more Islands, and more territory, and in fact, there will be no end to our wants and necessities till we get the whole world annexed. Nonsense.—How long before the people will find out that this cry for annexation is carried on by a rampant democracy to drown social questions they dare not meet.

WASHINGTON, Friday, Jan. 20, 1854.

The Congressional proceedings for this week closed in the Senate yesterday, and the House to-day—the Senate being in session twelve and the House fifteen hours in six days. It is said that the several Committees require time to consider and report upon the business before them; but one would suppose that some time could be devoted to session business, and still leave time sufficient for Committee labor. The truth is, that with few important exceptions, Congressmen are idle and indifferent to the public business. There are 230 members of the House, more than one-half of whom are new members. Many of them came here impressed with their own local importance at home, and become mortified and disappointed to find that an ordinary member of Congress is of no particular account or consideration whatever in Washington. Some new members are active, enterprising and industrious men at home, and they come here resolved 'to do something;' but they soon discover 'it's of no use' to try to do anything, and soon accommodate themselves to the prevailing idleness, conviviality and dissipation. The life of a Congressman is sorrounded with temptations, which frequently ruin his subsequent business and domestic habits, and very seldom contribute to his own honor or the public weal.

From Washington.

Nebraska—Cabinet Meeting.

Correspondence of the New York Herald.

WASHINGTON Jan. 21, 1854.

The most intense excitement prevails here among members of Congress with reference to the Nebraska bill. It is evident that we are fast approaching a similar state of feeling to that which existed in the winter of 1849-50. The secessionists are marshalling their bands, and the free soilers are receiving daily additions to their forces. Mr Dean, of New York, on Thursday, undertook to speak for the peculiar friends of the administration in his State, and declared they intended to support the Nebraska bill. Since then two-thirds of the New York 'Soft' delegation have openly denounced his assertion as untrue.

WENDELL LANSING.—Two or three weeks ago we had a long visit from our old friend from Wilmington, and at the time wrote a note of it which we supposed duly appeared in the Republican, but it seems to have been overlooked and is now lost. Suffice it to say that we had a good visit and we trust our friend found himself at home. He got out a Prospectus for a new paper while here, and picked up the type as though he had been used to it. Mr L. will be remembered as the former editor of this paper from whence he removed to Wilmington to try his hand at farming.—We wish him success in any undertaking upon which he may enter.

UNBLUSHING CONFESSION.—The Hon. Mr. Perkins, (Dem,) member of Congress from St. Lawrence Co. in a recent speech said he preferred Marcy to Dickinson for the U. S. Senate, but would vote for Dickinson to defeat Seward. So much for his free soil professions. This only goes to corroborate what we have all along insisted upon, that a Pierce, Van Buren, barnburner, free soil, Buffalo platform democrat will sell his principles for spoils. To prove it we need not go beyond our next door neighbors, and what is true of one section is true of the whole country.

GENERAL SCOTT.—The resolution of Senator Shields, authorising the President to confer the title of Lieutenant General by brevet on General Scott, was ordered to be engrossed in the Senate by the following vote:

Yeas.—Messrs. Allen, Atchison, Badger Bayard, Benjamin, Bradhead, Cass, Clayton, Dixon, Dodge, (Wis.) Dodge (Iowa,) Evans, Fish, Foot, Gwin, James, Jones, Mason, Pearce, Pratt Sebastian, Seward, Shields, Stuart, Thompson (Ky.) Thompson (N. J.) Wade, Weller, Wright.

Nays.—Messrs, Adams, Chase, Clay, Douglas Fitzpatrick, Hamlin Norris, Slidell, Sumner Walker, Williams.

Yeas 30, nays 12.

The vote of Norris and Williams of New [illegible] may be presumed to be significant [illegible] probation of President Pierce. [illegible] who could not sit on his [illegible] co, has proved himself to be

John Mitchell, the Irish Patriot.

The following lines are the outpourings of an honest hearted Irish friend residing in a southern town in this county, and we believe a participant in the scenes which resulted in the banishment of Mitchell and others. He is an humble but honest laboror, making no pretentions to genius, but has a noble soul that beats proudly for Old Ireland and her children.—[Ed. Rep.

John Mitchell is a God like man, and Irish-like and free,
Search Erin round you cannot find one better tried than he,
For Liberty's sacred cause five years he wore his chains,
But Irelands wrongs are still his themes, and bright his fame still shines.

In his country's sacred cause his youthful days were spent,
Like Emmett, and Jefferson in youth his mind was bent;
In pleasant dreams of Liberty he passed to manhood's stage,
Nor place, nor pension did he seek, nor dread a tyrant's rage.

As once through College Green with light heart he passed his way,
He saw his native Parliment in ruin and decay—
Round that stately pile of art there was terror, death and dread,
With inborn zeal that sighed for strength, he prayed the sacred dead.

Five stout hearts with pride stood boldly by his side,
To free millions of white-born slaves was their ambition's pride;
Oh! how your heart would sink with grief had you been there to see,
Mitchell, Meagher and O'Brien closed bound and chained—yet free.

Upon John Mitchell's manly deeds, Victoria's wrath was cast.
Twice she charged her penfeather Judge, make sure his death at last;
O, that Judge—that odious Judge—no human heart can love,
Nor pity, nor truth, nor sacred right can o'er his deeds approve.

And who is he whom Mitchell to Francis Meagher said,
'Is like the father of serpents in human flesh arrayed;'
'Tis Victoria's only son; Judge Pennefeather is the same,
Never was Britain's Bench disgraced with half so vile a name.

Next year to view his home, Mitchell will safe return,
Where many a son of '98 his absence now doth mourn;
And ill-betide that serpent tongue, and fatal was the spell,
The ink, the paper, and the Judge who sent him from,

OLD CLONMEL.

General News.

U. S. SENATOR FROM GEORGIA.—Charleston, January 19.—The Legislature of Georgia had five ballots for a United States Senator, on Wednesday, without choice. The last ballot stood: Dawson, 93; McAllister, 93; McDonald, 30. The balloting was then postponed till Monday.

CONGRESSMAN REDFIELD.—The nomination of Redfield hangs fire, and there is beginning to be some distrust among his friends as to their ability to carry him. Had the vote been taken last week, Mr. Redfield would have been confirmed without a decision. Gov. Seward is to speak in opposition if he returns in time. Gov. Jones of Tennessee, will by no means allow it to go through without a vigorous protest against the removal of Judge Bronson, and a proper rebuke of the audacious interference of the Executive in State elections. The Hard Shell Senators are also coquetish on this interesting question.

☞A terrible tornado swept over a portion of the State of Ohio on Friday afternoon. Its track was about half a mile in width, and it demolished almost every thing it encountered. The town of Brandon was almost entirely destroyed. The gale was accompanied by terrific lightning and heavy rain, and followed by such a rapid rising of the streams of water that the town of Mount Vernon was partly inundated. The amount of property destroyed is very great.

John J. Chittendon is returned to the Senate from Kentuckey. No one can fill the station better. He is a man of generous impulses, able and felicituous in debate beyond most men who have ever shone upon that theater, of wide legislative and administrative experience, and signal ability No man will stand higher in that body, and among Whigs no man will be more prominent for the highest gifts in their power to bestow.—[N. Y. Tribune.

Good Riddance.

☞LEVI S. CHATFIELD held the office of Attorney General for four years. During that period he must have received large sums in 'fees' in his office. The intention of the law is that these fees shall go into the State Treasury. But that intention is not as clearly expressed as it is in regard to other departments of the government. After the first few months of his official life, he detected this obscurity, and saw how, by a quibble, he could pocket these fees, and not subject himself to an indictment for embezzlement or theft. Hence, after having, in 1850, paid in an installment of $84 he concluded not to repeat so foolish an act, and afterward appropriated what every one else supposed belonged to the State, to his own use!—Albany Journal.

SONG.

BY THE BARONESS SKYFRIED.

Balmy breeze! thou idle lisper!
Tell'st thou what is told to thee?
Go, where sleeps my love; and whisper
Thou'rt a sigh—but not from me.

Thoughtless wave! thy sweet way stealing
To his feet, where I would be,
Tell him, like a dream's revealing,
Thou'rt a tear—but not from me.

The War News.

The intelligence from Constantinople and St. Petersburgh continue to be as contradictory as ever.

The latest rumors, however, are of a character to leave, in the estimation of the public, scarcely any hope that the Czar would escape the last proposition of the United Powers,

This view of the matter is almost unanimously entertained. As a natural consequence, the greatly increased probabilities of a general European war.

News for girls.

The fashionable boots now worn by Parisian ladies are made of morocco, with kid tops, high heels, thick soles, and buttoning up at the sides like gentlemen's. The price is $3,33 per pair.

'Whiskerettes' is the name of the 'little John cow-catchers' that the ladies wear on their cheeks in the place 'where the whiskers ought to grow.' They are formed by drawing down a little tuft of hair from the temple, and curling up in the shape of a ram's horn or a little pigs's tail with an extra kink in it.

Eloquence of a Slave.

A writer in the Christian Herald cites the following, which he heard delivered by a slave in a religious lecture room, Montgomery, Alabama. It is not a bad illustration in the way of an admonition and would do credit to many a white man of considerable pretentions:

"My bredren, God bless your souls!—'ligion is like the Alabama ribber! In Spring comes fresh, and bring in all de ole logs, sleds an' sticks dat hab been lying on de bank, and carry dem down in de current. Bymeby de water go down—den a log cotch on dis island, den a slab get cotched on do shore, and sticks on de bushes, and dare dey lie, witherin' an' dvin' till come 'nother fresh. Jus' so dar come 'vival of 'ligion—dis ole sinner bro't in, dat ole backslider bro't back, an' all de folks seem comin,' an' mighty good times. But bredren, God bless your souls! bymeby 'vivals gone—den dis ole sinner is stuck on his own sin afore on jus' such a rock; den one arter 'noder, dai had got 'ligion, lie all long de shore, and dey lie till 'noder 'vival. Beloved boredren God bless your souls! keep in de current."

The Queen of Spain, it is said, has become perfectly reckless of public opinion, and her conduct rivals that of the worst of her predecessors.

☞Pierce papers please copy: Marcy, shows his good feelings and courtesy towards the crowned heads, by terming their fugitive enemies ADVENTURERS AND SEDITIOUS PROPAGANDISTS.

Also, that the democratic Press all over the country have joined in the "hue and cry" against Mitchell, calling him a 'wordy imbecile,' accusing him of 'bad taste and gross indiscretion,' &c, &c.

Also, that the N. Y. Day Book, a Native-American Organ, Whilom whig, Silver Grey, and Adamantine, has wheeled into the support of Pierce, Marcy and the Administration, in consequence of their hostile attitude towards refugees from foreign oppression.

Latest news.

The nomination of Redfield to the collectorship of the port of N. Y. in place of Bronson removed for 'insubordination' was sent into the Senate some three weeks ago. The delay alarms the administration.—The bill for the organization of Nebraska which proposes to extend slavery into that territory it is thought will blow the administration sky high, and it begins to be surmised by Marcy & Co. that it is got up to swamp them—and it will.

The hards in Congress are gaining strength and courage daily. They opened on the softs the other day in debate and came off triumphant. We shall give the particulars next week.

The leading Press seem to concur in the opinion that a general European war is at last inevitable.

Book & Stationary House

IN NEW YORK,

On the Cash plan. Extensive sales and no Losses make it profitable to sell at very low prices.

Mason Brothers,

23 PARK ROW, opposite the Astor house

NEW YORK,

Offers one of the most extensive Stocks and complete assortments in the country of Books and Stationary,

FOR CASH ONLY.

The amount of goods in our line purchased by country merchants is usually quite small compared with their dry goods, hardware, and other bills; and this very circumstance absolutely compels jobbers in the book business, who sell on time, to get larger profits in order to make up for the losses and extra expenses necessarily involved in a credit business of small amounts. It is also easy for the merchant to make arrangements to buy his book bill for cash; though it might not be so convenient for him to purchase his larger bills in this way.

Those considerations have led us to adopt in our business, from this date, January, 1854, the following principles, viz.: small profits, unvarying prices, and terms always cash.

Being ourselves the sole publishers of a number of the leading and most extensively selling School Books in the country, as well as works in other departments, our facilities are unsurpassed.

Call upon us, or send an order, and judge for yourselves, if the saving you can make by buying of us for cash is worth while.

Our location is very central, and easily found Stand on the Astor House steps, and look straight forward across the corner of the Park, and you cannot avoid seeing our signs. Remember, the name is

MASON BROTHERS.

Liberation.

THIS certifies that I give to my Son, HENRY W. BUGBEE, his time. I will not hereafter claim any of his wages, nor be responsible for any of his debts or liabilities.

"EVERY FAMILY SHOULD HAVE A COPY."

20,000 Copies sold in less than 5 months. A new edition, revised and improved just issued.

Dr. Hunter's Medical Manual and Hand Book for the Afflicted—Containing an outline of the origin, progress treatment and cure of every form of disease contracted by promiscuous sexual intercourse, by self abuse or by sexual excess, with advice for their prevention, written in a familiar style, avoiding all medical technicalities, and everything that would offend the ear of decency, from the result of some twenty years successful practice, exclusively devoted to the cure of diseases of a delicate or private nature.

To which is added, receipts for the cure of the above diseases, and a treatise on the causes, symptoms and cure of the Fever and Ague

Testimony of the Prof. of Obstetrics in Penn College, Philadelphia—"Dr. Hunter's Medical Manual."—The author of this work unlike the majority of those works who advertise to cure the diseases of which it treats, is a graduate of one of the best Colleges in the United States. It affords me pleasure to recommend him to the unfortunate, or to the victim of malpractice, as a successful and experienced practitioner, in whose honor and integrity they may place the greatest confidence.

JOSEPH LONGSHORE M. D.

From A Woodward M. D., of Penn. University, Philadelphia—It gives me pleasure to add my testimony to the professional ability of the author of the "Medical Manual." Numerous cases of diseases of the Genital Organs some of them of long standing have come under my notice, in which his skill has been manifest in restoring to perfect health, in some instances where the patient has been considered beyond medical aid. In the treatment of Seminal weakness, or disarrangement of the functions produced by Self-abuse, or Excess of venery, I do not know his superior in the profession. I have been acquainted with the Author some thirty years, and deem it no more than justice to him as well as a kindness to the unfortunate victim of early indiscretion, to recommend him as one, in whose professional skill and integrity they may safely confide themselves. ALFRED WOODWARD, M.D.

"This is, without exception, the most comprehensive and intelligible work published on the class of diseases of which it treats. Avoiding all technical terms, it addresses itself to the reason of its readers. It is free from all objectionable matter, and no parent, however fastidious, can object to placing it in the hands of his sons. The author has devoted many years to the treatment of the various complaints treated of, and 'with too little breath to puff,' and 'too little presumption to impose,' he has offered to the world at the merely nominal price of 25 cents, the fruits of some 20 years most successful practice."—Herald.

"No teacher or parent should be without the knowledge imparted in this Invaluable work. It would save years of pain, mortification and sorrow to the youth under their charge."—People's Advocate.

A Presbyterian clergyman in Ohio, in writing of "Hunter's Medical Manual," says: "Thousands upon thousands of our youth, by evil example and influence of the passions, have been led into the habit of self-pollution without realizing the sin and fearful consequences upon themselves and their posterity. The constitutions of thousands who are raising families have been enfeebled, if not broken down, and the do not know the cause or the cure. Anything that can be done so to enlighten and influence the public mind as to check, and ultimately to remove this widespread source of human wretchedness, would confer the greatest blessing next to the religion of Jesus Christ, on the present and coming generations. Intemperance (or the use of intoxicating drinks,) though it has slain thousands upon thousands, is not a greater scourge to the human race. Accept my thanks on behalf of the afflicted, and, believe me, your co-worker in the good work you are so actively engaged in."

THE MARRIAGE STATE;

Shall Happiness and Health, or Misery and Sickness, attend it?

MOST STARTLING CONSIDERATIONS!

Reflections for the Thoughtful.

Strange that countless human beings exist and drag through life as do the beasts of the field, or the insects of the earth, evincing no more thought or reflection than though the noble faculties of mind were not vouchsafed to them.

Many such are husbands and fathers, upon whom are dependent the health, the well-being, and the happiness of a confiding and affectionate wife, with perhaps a family of children.

HOW OFTEN IT HAPPENS THAT THE

WIFE LINGERS FROM YEAR TO YEAR

In that pitiable condition as not even for one day to feel the happy and exhilerating influence incident to the enjoyment of health.

She may not be an invalid confined to her bed, or even to her room; as her pride, ambition and energy induce and nerve her to take personal charge of her household, even when her health will not admit of it; but she is nevertheless perceptibly sinking from day to day, and always ailing.

Thus, day after day, and month after month transpire. Her health daily sinks, till finally even the hope of recovery no longer remains. And thus

THE BLOOMING BRIDE,

But a few years ago in the flush of health and youth, and buoyancy of spirits, and rapidly, and apparently inexplicably, becomes a feeble, sickly, debilitated wife, with frame emaciated, nerves unstrung, spirits depressed, countenance bearing the impress of suffering, and an utter physical and mental prostration.

Sometimes this deplorable change may and does arise from organic or constitutional causes. But oftener, by far oftener, to gross and inexcusable ignorance of the simplest and plainest rules of health as connected with the marriage state, the violation of which entails disease, suffering and misery, not only to the wife, but often

"UNTO THE THIRD AND FOURTH GENERATION,"

Transmitting CONSUMPTION, SCROFULA, HYPOCHONDRIA, INSANITY, GOUT, KING'S EVIL, and other diseases, as a

DREADFUL INHERITANCE

from the Parents.

And must this continue? Shall we be wise in all that concerns the cattle of our fields, our horses, our sheep, our cows, our oxen, the nature and character of the soil we possess, the texture and quality of our goods and merchandise; but in all that concerns ourselves as human beings, with human functions and passions, subject to great derangement, involving our future peace and happiness—in all that concerns the health and welfare of the wife of our affections, and the mother of our children; in all that concerns the mental and physical well being of those children, we should be immersed in the darkest and most

BENIGHTED IGNORANCE,

AS CULPABLE AS INEXCUSABLE!

How long shall this ignorance prevail so productive of its bitter fruits? How long shall the wife and mother be ignorant of the nature, character and causes of the various womb and sexual complaints, embittering her days by suffering—suffering often prolonged to years, eventuating in a complication of diseases utterly and hopelessly incurable? Shall we for ever close our eyes to the results of physiological science by which we may arrive at an understanding of ourselves as man and women, subject to serious life-long enduring diseases, and perpetuating them to our children.

LET EVERY WIFE AND HUSBAND PONDER!

No husband or wife need be ignorant of what concerns them most to know to secure their health and happiness. That knowledge is contained in a little work entitled

The latest and most approved Trusses; Female Supporters; Do. with shoulder braces attached; spinal elevators for curvature of the spine and projection of the shoulder blade. Suspensary shoulder braces. This instrument is so constructed that it not only acts the par of shoulder braces, but car. ies the beft of the ladies' skirts on their shoulders; and, hence remedies the evil consequent to carrying them on the hips and sides. For gentlemen, it not only serves for a shoulder brace, but acts the part of suspenders.

As to the importance and usefulness of the above named instruments, and their beneficial effects, their peculiar mechanism and superiority over other instruments of the same name, I need not say anything. They are so well known by physicians, and the multitude of persons that have had occasion to test them in this northern section of country, that I deem it not important to introduce a long catalogue of certificates; yet I have abundant evidence in my possession to justify me in all I claim or affirm, and deem it a privilege to give references to any who wish to make inquiries.

BY virtue of several executions issued out of the Supreme Court of the State of New York, to me directed and delivered, against the goods and chattels, lands and tenements, real estate and chattels real, of Henry Haile, and of Henry Haile and Charles Haile, I have seized and taken all the right, title and interest, which the said Henry Haile or the said Henry Haile and Charles Haile had on the the 14th day of January, 1852, or which they, or either of them, may since have acquired, of, in, and to all and singular the following described real estate, to wit:—

Lot No. 2.—Hague tract, in the town of Schroon, in the County of Essex, being same lot sold to Bradley by Joseph Weed and wife, June 1st, 1837. Also, Lot No. 13, in Robert Grant's Patent, in the town of Crownpoint, containing 76 1-10 acres of land, excepting one half acre thereof deeded by Henry Haile and wife to Solomon S. Flint, April 1st, 1851. Also, all that part of Lot No. 14, in Grant's Patent, in Crownpoint, lying east of Putnam's Creek, containing 13 90-100 acres of land.—Also, a small strip of land lying on the northeast side of the road leading from Samuel Russell's to the White Meeting-house, being on Robert Grant's Patent in Crownpoint, occupied in 1845 by Stephen Spaulding, containing one half acre. Also, all the South equal half of Lot No. 20, Grant's Patent, in Crownpoint, containing 20 acres. Also, Lot No. 34, in the Pliny Moore Patent, in the town of Crownpoint.

Also, all that certain piece or parcel of land, lying and being in the town of Crownpoint, in the County of Essex and State of New York, and is bounded and described as follows: Beginning in the south line of the road about 2 feet easterly from an apple-tree, and 19 links westerly from a locust tree, both supposed to stand in the north line of said road; then running north 17°, east about 9 rods, until it intersects the south line of the Allen Campbell, then easterly following said south patent line 28 rods to the North line of the road, thence westerly following said North line of said road about 30 rods to the place of beginning, containing by estimation one acre of land. Which said real estate I shall expose for sale at Public Vendue, at the Hotel kept by Jacob Tappen, in Moriah, in said County of Essex, on the 25th day of January next, at Ten o'clock in the forenoon.

Carpets and Oil-Cloths.

Owing to the large increase of patronage, I have found it necessary from time to time, to make many improvements and additions to my store.

This spring I have united the stores No. 7 and 9, State St., making a spacious and beautiful room, fitted up expressly for the sale of all the various styles of ilks, Shawls, Cloaks & Mantillas.

This connects with the main store, No. 202, River St., (the old stand occupied by the subscriber for nearly 30 years,) which is devoted to a general assortment of

STAPLE AND FANCY DRY GOODS,

comprising every variety to meet the wants of all classes of buyers. Besides these, four large rooms over the stores 200, 202 and 204 River St., are occupied as

CARPET WARE-ROOMS,

where I am constantly receiving the newest and most desirable patterns of Velvet, Tapestry, Brussels, Three-ply, Ingrain and Venetian Carpets. Also, Oil-Cloths of every quality and width, and every style of Drugetts, Rugs, Mats, Matting, Stair-Rods, &c.

All these departments combined making an extensive and complete Establishment, conducted on such principles, that customers can trade with confidence, and to their own advantage, my sales being always for cash, and the only price asked, being the lowest cash price. G. V. S. QUACKENBUSH.

Henry's Invigorating Cordial,

PURELY VEGETABLE IN ITS COMPOSITION.

This invaluable Cordial, is extracted from Herbs and Roots, which have been found after years of experience, by the most skillful Physicians, to be possessed of qualities most beneficial in the diseases for which it is recommended, and hence whilst it is presented to the public, as an efficious remedy it is also known to be of that character on which reliance may be placed as to its safety. In cases as Impotency, Hoemorrhages, Disordered Sterility, Menstration, or Suppression of the Menses, Fluror Albus or Whites, or for arising from any cause, such as weakness from sickness, where the patent has been confined to bed for some time, for Females after Confinement, Abortion or Miscarriage, this Cordial cannot be excelled in its salutary effects; or in loss of Muscular Energy, Irritability, Physical Prostration, Seminal Weakness, Palpitation of the Heart, Indigestion, Sluggishness, Decay of the Procreative Functions, Nervousness, &c., where a TONIC Medicine is required, it will be found equal, if not supperior to any Compound ever used.

DEBILITY

TO FEMALES.

Henry's Invigorating Cordial, is one of the most invaluable Medicines in the many Complaints to which Females are subject. It assists nature to brace the whole system, check excesses, and creates renewed health and happiness. Less suffering, disease and unhapiness among Ladies would exist, where they generally to adopt the use of this Cordial. Ladies who are debilitated by these obstructions which females are liable to, are restored by the use of a bottle or two, to bloom and to vigor.

YOUNG MEN.

That solitary practice, so fatal to the existence of man and it is too young who are most apt to become its victims, from an ignorance of the danger to which they subject themselves, causes

NERVOUS DEBILITY.

Weakness of the System, and Premature Decay. Many of you may now be suffering, misled as to the cause or source of disease. To those, then, who by excess have brought on themselves Premature Impotency, Involuntary Seminal Emissions, Weakness and Shrivelling of the Genital Organs, Nervous Affection, or any other consequences of unrestrained indulgence of the sensual passions, occasioning the necessity of renouncing the felicities of lessening both mental and bodily capacity, Hold! Henry's Invigorating Cordial, a Medicine that is purely Vegetable, will aid nature to restore those important functions to a healthy state, and will prove of service to you. It possesses rare Virtues, is a general remover of disease, and strengthener of the system.

AS A TONIC MEDICINE,

It is unsurpassed. We do not place this Cordial on a footing with quack medicines, and, as is customary, append a long list of Recommendations, Certificates, &c., beginning with "Hear what the Preacher says," and such like; it is not necessary, for "Henry's Invigorating Cordial," only needs a trial to prove that it will accomplish all we say.

THE GENUINE "HENRY'S INVIGORATING CORDIAL."

is put up in 8 oz. Pannel Bottles, and is easily recognized by the Manufacturer's signature on the label of each Bottle, (to counterfeit which is forgery,) as well as his private Seal on the cork of each Bottle.

☞ Sold for $2 per Bottle; Six for $8; $15 per dozen.

Prepared only by S. E. COHEN, No. 3 Franklin Row, Vine Street, below Eighth, Philadelphia, Pa.; C. V. Clickener & Co., N. York, Wholesale Agents, TO WHOM ALL ORDERS MUST BE ADDRESSED. For Sale by all respectable Druggists and Merchants throughout the country. 495:1y

COMPOUND SYRUP OF

Yellow Dock Root.

THIS is a Purely Vegetable Compound, scientifically prepared from the best Roots and Herbs of the Materia Medica, and has gained a universal reputation for the following effects, viz: Regulating and Strengthening the Liver and Digestive Organs, and Cleansing the Stomach and Bowels, and curing all Billious Diseases, Liver Complaints, Dyspepsia, Indigestion, Costiveness, Piles, Headache, Fever and Ague, Jaundice Nausea, Loss of Appetite, &c., and causing the food to nourish and support every part, PURIFYING THE BLOOD, and thus curing all Humors, Cutaneous Eruptions, Scrofula, Salt Rheum, Erysipelas, Scald Head, Canker, Pimples on the face, Blotches, Ulcers, Tumors, Mercurial Diseases, Cancers, &c. Regulating the Secretory Organs, and by enabling them to perform their proper functions preventing and curing many painful and dangerous diseases; Strengthening and Quieting the nervous system, thus allaying Nervous Irritation, and curing all Diseases of the Nerves, as Hysteria, Neuralgia, Cramps, &c.

It is unrivalled in the cure of all FEMALE COMPLAINTS, as weakness, general debility, irregularity, Obstructions, Swellings of the Feet, Limbs, Joints, &c., caused by weakness; also, Lung and Throat Complaints, as Colds, Coughs, Asthma, Consumption, &c., also, Dropsy.

Having made use of the Compound Syrup of Yellow Dock Root, prepared by C. Morse and Co., either ourselves or in our families, and finding it to be a very salutary and effectual preparation, we do most cheerfully recommend it to the public as a very valuable medicine.

E. Bourne, Esq., Cashier National Bank, Providence, R. I.; A. W. Spencer, Esq., Cashier Lime Rock Bank, do do Rev. William Phillips, Rev. J. B. Richmond, C. S. Jones, editor Providence Gen. Advt., Wm. Field, M. W. G. M., Cyrus Fisher, M. E. H. P. James Hutchinson, G. S. Des., V. J. Bates, Doct Benj. Colby, and one hundred others of the most respectable families of Providence.

This certifies that I have for a number of years been acquainted with the composition and mode of manufacture of Morse's Compound Syrup of Yellow Dock Root. I have also been acquainted with its modus operandi in disease, and can say that in all respects it is admirably calculated to remedy that class of Diseases for which it was designed. It is especially valuable in Indigestion and all its attendant symptoms, it excites to healthy action the Liver, removes Torpor, and inactivity of this organ, and stimulates healthy action in all the system. As a Depurator or purifier of the Blood it has no superior.

How to tell a Good Teacher.

A gentleman from Swampville, State of New-York, was telling how many different occupations he had attempted. Among others, he had tried school teaching.

'How long did you teach?' inquired a bystander.

'Wal, I didn't teach long; that is, I only went to teach.'

'Did you hire out?'

'Wal, I didn't hire out: I only went to hire out.'

'Why did you give it up?'

'Wal, I gave it up—for some reason or nuther. You see, I traveled into a dee:strict and inquired for the trustees. Somebody said Mr. Snickels was the man I wanted to see. So I found Mr. Snickels—named my object, interduoing myself—and asked him what he thought about letting me try my luck with the big boys and unruly gals in the deestrick. He wanted to know if I realy considered myself capable; and I told him I wouldn't mind his asking me a few easy questions in 'rithmetic and jography, or showing my hand writing. But he said no, never mind, he could tell a good teacher by his gait.

'Let me see you walk off a little ways,' says he, 'and I can tell,' says he, 'jis's well's I'd heard you examined,' says he.

'He sot in the door, as he spoke, and I thought he looked a little skittish; but I was consid'rable frustrated, and didn't mind much; so I turned about and walked off as smart as I know'd how. He said he'd tell me when to stop so I kep' on till I thought I'd gone far enough—then I s'pected s'thing was to pay, and looked round. Wal, the door was shut, and Snickels was gone!'

'Did you go back?'

'Wal, no—I didn't go back.'

'Did you apply for another school?'

'Wal, no—I didn't apply for another school,' said the gentleman from Swampville. 'I rather judged my appearance was against me.'

Sentiments join man to man, opinions divide them. The former are elementary and concentrate, the latter are composite and scatter. The friendships of youth are founded on sentiment; the dissensions of age result from opinion. If we could know this at an early age, if, in forming our own mode of thought, we could acquire a liberal view of that of others, and even of those that are opposed to ours, we should then be more tolerant, and endeavor to reunite by septiment, what opinion divided and dispersed.

Election Notice.

A special eldction is to be held in the County of Essex on the 15th day of February next, for the purposes mentioned in a notice from the Secretary of State, of the state of New York, of which a copy is hereto annexed.

C. W. ENSIGN, Sheriff,
Essex Co.

Dated, January 27, 1854.

State of New York, } Albany, January
Secretary's office, } 21, 1854.

To the Sheriff of the County of Essex:

Sir:—Notice is hereby given, that a special election is to be held in this state on the third Wednesday of February next, (February 15, 1854,) to determine whether the people will approve or reject a certain proposed amendment to the constitution of this state, embodied in a concurrent resolution of the Legislature, of which the following is a copy:

CONCURENT RESOLUTION PROPOSING AN AMENDMENT TO THE CONSTITUTION.

"Resolved. (if the Senate concur,) That the following amendment be proposed to the Constitution of this State, and referred to the Legislature to be chosen at the next general election of Senators, and be published for three months previous to making such choice, in pursuance of the provisions of the first section of the thirteenth article of said Consatitution:

Substitute, for section three of article seven, the following—

After paying the said expenses of collection, superintendance and repairs of the canals, and the sums appropriated by the first and second sections of this article, there shall be appropriated and set apart in each fiscal year, out of the surplus revenues of the canals, as a sinking fund, a sum sufficient to pay the interest as falls due, and extinguish the principal within eighteen years, of any loan made under this section; and if the said sinking fund shall not be sufficient to redeem any part of the principal at the stipulated times of payment, or to pay any part of the interest of such loans as stipulated, the means to satisfy any such deficiency shall be procured on the credit of the said sinking fund. After complying with the foregoing provisions, there shall be paid annually out of said revenues, into the treasury of the state, two hundred thousand dollars, to defray the necessary expenses of government. The remainder shall, in each fiscal year, be applied to meet appropriations for the enlargement and completion of the canals mentioned in this section, until the said canals shall be completed. In each fiscal year thereafter the remainder shall be disposed of in such manner as the legislature may direct; but shall at no time be anticipated or pledged for more than one year in advance. The legislature shall annually, during the next four years, appropriate to the enlargement of the Erie, the Oswego, the Cayuga and Seneca canals, and to the completion of the Black River and Genesee Valley canals and build them, a sum not exceeding two millions two hundred and fifty thousand dollars. The remainder of the revenues of the canals for the current fiscal year in which such appropriation is made shall be applied to meet such appropriation; and if the same shall be deemed insufficient, the legislature shall, at the same session, provide for the deficiency by loan. The legislature shall also borrow one million and five hundred thousand dollars, to refund to the holders of the canal revenue certificates of issued under the provisions of chapter four hundred and eighty five of the laws of the year one thousand eight hundred and fifty-one, the amount received into the treasury thereon. But no interest, to accrue after July first, one thousand eight hundred and fifty-five, shall be paid on such certificates. The provisions of section twelve of this article, requiring every law for borrowing money to be submitted to the people, shall not apply to the loans authorised by this section. No part of the revenues of the canals, or of the funds borrowed under this section, shall be paid or applied upon or in consequence of any alledged contract made under chapter four hundred and eighty-five of the laws of the year one thousand eight hundred and fifty-one, except to pay for work done or materials furnished prior to the first day of June, one thousand eight hundred and fifty-two. The rates of toll on persons and property transported on the canals shall not be reduced below those for the year one thousand eight hundred and fifty-two, except by the canal board with the concurrence of the legislature. All contracts for work or materials on any canal shall be made with the person who shall offer to do or provide the same at the lowest price, with adequate security for their performance."

Very Respectfully yours.
ELIAS W. LEAVENWORTH,
Secretary of State.

For the Boys.

"GOT IT BY HEART."—Two schoolalled lads, en route for school, were capering along just in advance of us, yesterday morning, and for a wonder, so far as our recollecting goes, they were talking about their lessons. Their tongues ran merrily enough for a while, we now and then catching the words 'class,' 'rithmetic,' 'g'ography,' &c., when one of them cried out, 'Oh! I know it like a book—I've got it by heart!'

As if there were any other way of learning anything thoroughly; any other route to the knowledge-box, except via the heart.

Were we a map-maker general, a slight change in the geographical position of the country would be delineated; for we should set it plump down in the heart, and leave some small area in the head for other occupancy. The lessons of sorrow are those longest retained, because they appeal directly to that odd, little bundle of irritable muscle known by the name of heart. And she has a habit of [illegible]

This is but a synonyme for enthusiasm, a thorough and hearty earnestness in the accomplishment of any intellectual labor.

The branchman's rule for clambering a mountain, is not altogether true in the highly regions of mental toil. 'Begin the ascent,' said he, 'as if you never intended to complete it.'

The deep impressions of childhood are so, because the heart and the head in those days, were not more than a Sabbath day's journey asunder, and everything that was learned at all, was learned as everything ought to be—by heart.—N. Y. Tribune.

Women of the Olden Time.

In this age when "Woman's Rights" and "woman's wrongs" are the subject of general discussion the following will be read with interest. It will show that the "strong minded women" of that day like truly "strong minded women" of all ages are not necessarily street walkers, pulpit orators, stump speakers, haranguers, and denunciaters of the opposite sex. The present movement among the women is a humbug. It originates with the discontented, disappointed, spleneties, and those Old maids, (not the good kind that could get married if they would) but those ugly old hitchel faces that the d—l hates.—[Ed. Women as Printers and Publishers.

The Cincinnati Columbian, in a recent article upon 'the Revolution in Printing Offices' gives the following list of women, who have at different times officiated as editors, printers, and publishers. The items are compiled from documents in the Massachusetts Antiquarian Library at Worcester:—

The first paper printed in Rhode Island was at Newport, in 1772. James Franklin, brother to Dr. Benjamin, was the publisher. When the paper was a couple of years old he died, and his widow continued the publication several years. She was printer to the colony—supplied blanks, published pamphlets, &c. The Newport Mercury, still regularly issued, was printed at her office in 1756. In 1745, Mrs. F. printed for the government an edition of the laws; it formed a book of 340 folio pages. Mrs. F. was aided by her two daughters, who were swift compositors. A servant of the house worked the press.—Printing newspapers was not Mrs. F.'s only business. Read her advertisement:

'The printer hereof, prints linens, calico, silks, &c., in figures, very likely and durable colors, and without the offensive smell which commonly attends linens printed here.'

Mrs. Sarah Goddard, was also a printer at Newport in 1762. She was the widow of Charles Goddard, a printer of New London; she had the management of a newspaper, and conducted it with much ability for two years, when John Costar was associated with her, and the business was carried on under the firm of Sarah Goddard & Co.

Mrs. Margaret Draper was the widow of Richard Draper; she published the Massachusetts Gazette, and the Boston News Letter after her husband's death. All the newspapers but hers were suspended when the English beseiged Boston. She left Boston and went to England, where a pension was bestowed on her for life.

Mrs. Cornelia Bradford was the widow of Andrew Bradford, who died in Philadelphia in 1742; she continued his business several years, and was very successful.

In Philadelphia, 1805, Jane Aitkin continued her father's business at his death. She was noted for correctness in proof reading.

Mrs. Zenger, widow of John P. Zenger, who published the second newspaper established in New York, carried on the business several years after his death. She was the editor of the New York Weekly Journal for three years previous to 1748.

Mrs. Mary Holt, widow of John Holt, publisher of the New York Journal, in 1793 was appointed printer to that State.

Anne Katharine Greene succeeded her husband in publishing the Maryland Gazette, in 1776; the Gazette was the first paper printed in that State. She was the colony printer at her death.

Mrs. Hassebatch, widow of the first printer in Baltimore, continued her husband's business after his demise.

Mrs. Mary Catharine Goddard was sister to Wm. Goddard, of Rhode Island, who established the Maryland Journal He was obliged to quit the State because he wrote rather freely, and his sister conducted the paper eight years, till 1784.

Mrs. Hannah Boyle published a paper at Williamsburg, Va., in 1774.

Clementine Bird succeeded her husband as editor of the Virginia Gazette in 1776. Thomas Jefferson was contributor to her paper.

Mrs. Elizabeth Timothee, after the death of her husband in 1778, continued the Gazette in Charleston, S. C. Her son succeeded her in two years.

Anne Timothee, widow of the son just mentioned, after the Revolutionary War revived the Gazette, which had been discontinued when the British troops were in possession of Charleston. She was a printed State Printer, and held the office till 1792.

Mary Couch was the widow of C. Couch, of R. I. He established a P. in Charleston, S. C., in opposition to the Stamp Act. Mrs. Couch conducted the for several years previous to 1765, when she removed to Salem, Mass. [illegible]

There were other female printers in the last century, and during the early part of the present, but we cannot now give their names and location.

A few years ago Miss Walter succeeded her brother as one of the Editors and Publishers of the Boston Transcript. Many of our citizens remember with pleasure the Guest, which Mrs. R. S. Nichols, conducted for a number of years. Mrs. M. A. Dennison has been one of the Editors of the Boston Olive Branch, the composition on which paper is done by women. We need scarcely mention Mrs. Swisheim of the Pittsburgh Visitor, who has been Reporter as well as Editor and Publisher, and, we believe, can set type. Three or four years ago Mrs. L. A. Pierson edited and published a handsome and well-conducted paper at Lancaster, Pennsylvania.

As Editor and Publishers we have now, besides those already mentioned, Mrs. S. J. Hale, Godey's Lady Book; Mrs. Amelia Bloomer of the Lily, at Mt. Vernon, of Ohio, Mrs. Nicholas, of the Democrat, at Windham, Vermont; Mrs. Gove Nichols, of a Water Cure Journal, at New York; Mrs. Oakes Smith, of a literary paper in New York; M. Pauline Wright Davis, of the Una, at Providence, Rhode Island, Grace Greenwood, of the Little Pilgrim, which succeeds the Friend of Youth, published by Mrs. Bailey; Mrs. Lindsley, of the Garland, at Louisville, Kentucky, and Mrs. Elizabeth Aldrich, of the Genius of Liberty, and Mrs. Ella Wentworth, of the Literary Journal, in our city.

The Editor of the Columbian says, in conclusion; 'There may be others, but their names do not at present writing occur to us. We have given enough names and cited enough facts to show, that women may be good compositors and good editors and publishers. We are completing our arrangements to avail ourselves of the labor of female printers, and we are quite confident that type setting is to become one of the regular employments of the women, in all parts of the country.'

The following may be deemed almost sacrilegious by some, but it is too good to be lost, and we give it a place. All must admit it to be a good story.

A Bear Story.

"A friend of ours who has recently returned from a little jaunt in the country, happening to stay at the house of an old Deacon, has handed us the following specimen of that pious gentleman's commentary on a passage in the Bible. As it is quite equal to anything we have seen lately, we do not feel disposed to keep it entirely to ourselves. It appears that for many years past the Deacon had observed the custom of reading daily a chapter from the sacred Scriptures to the family; and of making a running extemporaneous commentary upon each particular passage that seemed to require elucidation.

Coming to that part of the Bible which says, "Now these seven did Milcha bare unto Nahor," he cleared his throat and explained it thus:—

'The object of this here passage is to show us how unfortunate the people used to was in old times. Then they did'nt have no dairys, but was obleeged to milk bears, and it took six to hold the bear, while tother milked it, and they had to go to Nahor to get the bears.'"—Ex

A young man in Ct Ka ia, whose friends at home had neglected to write to him for a long time, adopted the expedient of sending letters to various business men in the neighborhood, inquiring the prices of land and stock, what he could buy a handsome farm of 7 or 800 acres for, &c., intimating that he had a large sum to invest. By return mail he received no less than seven letters, anxiously inquiring after his health, when he was coming, &c., and he has received three or four every mail since, including some very warm ones from an old and very cold sweetheart.

☞ An editor of a Western paper, who taking a snooze in the dark, traveling in a railway carriage, had his pocket picked.—The thief next day forwarded the pocket book, by express, to the editor's office, with the following note:

'You miserabil skunk, hears yer pookit book. I don, keep sich. Fur a man dressed as well as you was to go round with a wallit with nuthin in it but a lot of noosepaper scraps an ivury tooth comb, two noosepaper stamps, an a pass from a railroad directur, is a contemperable imporsition on the publick. As I heer your a editor, I return yer trash—I never robs any but gentlemun.'

Flood at St. Regis.

An attentive correspondent gives us the following particulars of a disastrous flooding of the Indian village of St. Regis, last week. The weather on Tuesday was extremely cold, the wind blowing a steady gale from the west. About 2 o'clock P. M. a loud rumbling noise was heard, as of the breaking of a heavy body of ice. The wind blew with increased fury till about 10 o'clock in the evening, when it somewhat abated. The inhabitants retired for the night, and were aroused about one o'clock on Wednesday morning, by the roaring of the water and the ice rushing up the high banks of the St. Lawrence, and driving before it, timber, canoes, and large rocks. The mingled mass crushed into the dwellings, and drove the inhabitants into the open air, to buffet with the dangers that surrounded them.

The water, in the streets, was several feet deep, and one female was compelled to swim fifteen or twenty rods, before she could find a foothold. Fourteen dwellings which were near the banks of the river were entirely destroyed. The water rose fourteen feet above high water mark, driving some four or five hundred inhabitants from their dwellings, destroying their little stores of provisions, and drowning their cattle, horses, and swine in their stalls.

The American portion of the tribe sustained but little loss, as they are a more industrious class, and spread out into the country between St. Regis and Hogansburgh. They are now extending their

The Canals—A warning.

The barnburners all over the state are moving against the proposed amendment to the constitution for the enlargement of the Canals. They have not abandoned their hostility to this great measure as they gave it to be understood they had.

Whigs and Hards must be up and doing. They should cast a full vote. The canals are not safe without. The enlargement of the Erie Canal is the great measure of the age, or of any age. It would have been completed years ago and paid for out of its own earnings, but for the unrelenting hostility of the Van Buren, barnburner democracy. The question is, shall the Empire State open her arms to the produce of the great West, or will she reject it and send it to bless other states, and even foreign nations?

Shall N. Y. open through her very centre a channel whose wealth is the wealth of the great West? Shall we complete a grand and magnificent work foreshadowed by the Father of his Country, and projected by De Witt Clinton, a work not excelled in splendor in any age, but which to splendor adds countless blessings and wealth to our state?

And De Witt Clinton—the name reminds us that this same Van Buren, barnburner democracy, dismissed this great and good man from the Canal department, and the articles in the Old Settler, and the Post are dictated by the same spirit precisely, and the writers and their faction would do it to day, and would fill up the Canals if they had the power, and dared to do it.

We appeal then to Whigs, and to Hards to be warned in time. Cast a full vote.

"ROB ME THE EXCHEQUER THE FIRST THING THOU DOEST."—From this text the Elizabethtown Post of the 13th ult. preaches a long discourse against the Canals, commencing thus, 'The witty, selfish, and gluttinous old leecher,' &c. The article proceeds in the usual slang style of the barnburner faction to denounce the Canals, and those who favor them. The article oven 'out Herods Herod.' The barnburner members of the last Legislature professed to be the peculiar and only real friends of the Canals, but this article goes so far as to show if it shows anything, that the canals are worthless, and their creation originally an act of folly!

Statements are made based upon receipts during barnburner administrations, when Canals were in the hands of their enemies, and when business was diverted to other channels for the want of this very enlargement, and in consequence of the hostility of those in whose hands they were, and when the receipts had run down from $900,000 a year under whig management to $200,000, under barnburner management. Two falacions and wicked suggestions are made to prejudice the reader, to wit:

1. That the people are to be taxed to complete the enlargement, and 2, that the canals are of no benefit to the people of Essex, and other distant counties. Now, it has been demonstrated over and over again that the canals will afford the means to enlarge themselves if kept out of the ruthless hands of the barnburners. This it is proposed to do.

As to the other point it is hardly worthy of an answer. Are the Iron Ore deposites in Moriah of no value to the county at large? Is not the Ogdensburgh Rail Road of great benefit to the county of Essex?

Does not any great improvement in any part of the state add to the general wealth and general benefit of the people at large?

But we do not notice the article in question to reply to its sophistry, and evident attempts at deception. We more particularly desire the attention of whigs to the doctrines put forth in a pretended neutral paper which lives only by their patronage.

RELIGIOUS TOLERATION.—Our readers are doubtless aware that M. Bedini is in the U. S. as a special Envoy from the Pope of Rome, and that he had letters from the Pope to President Pierce; in which the Pope expresses the hope that protection will be extended to the Catholics in this country, and feels confident that Pierce will shield them with his power and authority.

We only wish to enquire whether Catho-

The Telegraph.

The new Printing Telegraph which we have all watched with so much interest for the past three months is now rapidly approaching completion. Obstacles of the worst description have been overcome by the indefatigable exertions of the contractor, Mr. P. C. Dodge, who has steadily persevered in spite of the inclement season.—The work when finished will challenge competition for economy and durability. Mr. Dodges connection with the Co ceases on the completion of this work, but we shall remember him as we would a public benefactor and wherever he may be called we wish him ever success. To those of our Canada and other friends who are yet without a Printing Telegraph we recommend them to secure his services in construction and they will not be disappointed. We hope our citizens will now come forward and subscribe the required sum to the stock list, so that we may have an office in "full blast" in this village at an early day. We are aware that our folks got badly bit by the other cheat, but really we hope we are not to be without an office at this place, especially when we have a line giving every possible assurance of ability, and perfection.

DOINGS AT WASHINGTON.—We spoke last week of a debate in Congress between the hards and softs. Next in interest to the slavery agitation in Congress is the widening breach between the democratic factions. The hards are growing stronger and bolder every day. They have taken the floor and opened the ball in a plain and spicy debate. In reply to a question from a southern 'soft' Mike Walsh said 'the difference between a "Hard" and a "Soft" was that between an honest man and a rogue.' Mike had been saying good things and got the house ready for a laugh, and when this retort was uttered, the members roared in a body, and some fairly screamed. Of the President Mike said,

For the President he entertained a very high regard, more particularly for his simplicity. He is a very kind, agreeable man. In common parlance among the New York rounders, he is a "glubber."

A southern soft having compared the troubles of the N. Y. democrats to Gulliver's travels, Mr. Cutting from N. Y. city and a Hard, most eloquently said:

There was a period recently in the history of our country when gentlemen of the South did not stop to inquire who were the "hards;" and when the storm swept over the South they were true to constitutional rights while the South was true to itself.

No one then rose in his place and read Gulliver's Travels and a lecture to Northern men to disparage them under scenes which were enough to chill the stoutest hearts. And now, within this short space of time, gentlemen have forgotten who the party is that stood by them and nailed their colors to the mast when the ship of State appeared to be settling and sinking.

Spirit of the Press.

☞ A change is coming over the spirit of their dreams.

The N. Y. Express was a leading advocate and friend of the compromise of 1850. In view of the shameful desertion of their friends by the south that paper now talks thus:

The Savanah (Geo.) News in upholding the Administration, says:

"While we can, we shall, regardless of the warnings or denunciations of intriguing politicians, repose confidence in the compromise adjustment, and the administration reared upon its platform. When we can no longer rely upon these guarantees, we shall consider that the time has arrived when the South must prepare, hopelessly, for the worst."

"The worst" won't be much, judging by the history of the Secession party there, for a year or two back. Only buy off the leaders with a few Federal offices, and they will consort with any body or any thing North. 'The worst' now means we see, a rumpus when out of power to get in. The cry of wolf won't be very alarming hereafter, now that we see the mode of catching him.

JEW PEDLARS.—Those who patronise this class of travelling merchants may possibly learn from the following how their goods are originally obtained. The reflection that a person is wearing stolen goods cannot be very pleasant:

DESCENT BY THE POLICE UPON A RECEIVING CRIB.—Yesterday afternoon, Lieutenant Dalton, Sergeant Conley, and officer Smith, of the 7th ward police, made a descent upon the premises No. 121 Mulberry street, which was suspected of containing a large amount of stolen property. The building was occupied by a large number of Germans, and great consternation prevailed among them when the officers made their appearance. Each seized one or more bundles, and endeavored to escape into the street, but were prevented. The police succeeded in finding two cart loads of goods, cosisting of 178 pieces of calico and muslin, 24 shawls, 30 pieces of silks, several pairs of scissors, sewing thread in great abundance, and other articles too numerous to mention. Amongst the goods was a package containing about 50 silk cravats, which are supposed to be part of the 30 dozen recently stolen from the store of Stone & Co., No. 43 Exchange place.—All the goods were taken to the lower police court, where they can be seen by persons interested. The parties who stole goods from the store of Stone & Co., were arrested on Thursday last, and stated one-half of the goods they had sold to a man named Meyer Rosenthal, livi Mott street. This man w found in the house No. 12 Mu ested, with two others also fou rested and taken before Just ☞ Essex County's tax in prospective for the enlargement of the Erie Canal, is $200,000. This year we pay near $6,000. Is this the entertainment to which we were invited by the cry of the "Canals and Reform?" We shall not vote for that amendment to the Constitution. We put this fact on record for the benefit of our friends JOHN MCGREGOR and A. B. KINGSLAND.—Why should Essex, St. Lawrence, &c. be taxed to divert trade from their own doors? We wish our tax payers would examine this subject, divested of partizan considerations. Our taxes, to be sure, wouldn't be much, but our interests are those of the community in which we live.—[The Old Settler.

We are certainly much surprised that the Old Settler should so far depart from his neutrality as to pen an article like the above. It is not a fair and candid article becoming a man of years and discretion, but one which could only be expected in such papers as the Albany Atlas, Northern Gazette, and mere partizan papers of that class, who are regardless of truth and candor. Although disposed to humor the Old Settler in anything he may say, we cannot permit the above to pass unnoticed. It is readily disposed of:

1. The proposed ammendment does not propose to tax the people, but on the contrary, it is expected and insisted that the Canals will pay for themselves if properly conducted.

2. "This year" we do not "pay near $6000," for the 'enlargement of the Erie Canal,' nor any other sum for that purpose. But we do pay a mill tax of $4677, unnecesarily imposed in 1842 by that faction of the democratic party to which the Old Settler belongs, to pay damages to contractors caused by the arrest of the public works by that faction.

3. The enlargement of the Erie Canal will not 'divert trade' from Essex, St. Lawrence, &c.' This is a selfish and unworthy attempt at prejudice—argument it is not. The same reasoning would have opposed the building of the Canals at all, it is that feeling which prompts men to ruin the fair fame of those they cannot rival, which opposes all interests but one's own, and leads men to defeat improvements beyond their own locality, and that would have defeated all the Canals, all the roads, bridges, railroads, public buildings, harbors, breakwaters, &c., &c. in the country.

Lastly. The above article is unworthy of the source from whence it emenates. It is out of place in a neutral paper and would be false in any. 'We wish' the Old Settler 'would examine this question divested of the partizan considerations.'

The Old Settler professes to be 'devoted to the early history and present condition of Northern N. Y. and the region of Lake Champlain, sketches of character, &c. &c.' We suppose such articles come under the head of "&c., &c."

DIRECT TAXES.—Taxation is obnoxious to the people. Knowing this, the Old Settler and the writer in the Post, to which we have alluded elsewhere, revive the exploded bugbear cry of "$40,000,000 debt and direct taxes," against the proposed amendment to the constitution for the Enlargement of the Canals, yet the present State mill tax was imposed by the barnburner faction, to which both those gentlemen belong, and in the last Legislature that same faction advocated the Enlargement by direct taxation to the very last moment, causing in consequence an Extra Session. The "stop and tax" law of 1842, which was the measure of the barnburners, was not only unnecessary, but suicidal. It arrested the progress of the Canals, threw thousands out of employment, ruined contractors, damaged the canals, sent business through other channels; and the State mill tax, of which this county pays this year over $4,000, goes to pay the damages to the canals, contractors, and the State, caused by this piece of wickedness and folly, whereas, the canals, if let alone, would have paid for themselves without taxation. The truth of it is, however, and those articles prove it, the barnburners are in fact opposed to the canals, and taxes were imposed, and further taxation proposed with a view to make them odious to the people. Fortunately the people are not all stupid and ignorant. They saw through this flimsy pretext. Taxation is odious, but the Canals are not. It is gratifying to know that these feeble efforts are "last expiring kicks."

Personal.

James B. Ross, son of Hon. H. H. Ross of Essex, has located in Detroit, and entered upon the practice of the law. We have had the pleasure to receive his card, and we are indebted to him for Detroit papers, for which we are under obligations.

Col. W. T. Barron, formerly of Moriah, but for several years of Montreal, it will be seen is married. We infer that a broker's daughter has got the "rocks," and we trust the Col. has got a love of a wife, as he is worthy of the best Canada can produce.

Capt. Baxter, having been up the river' dropt in upon us on Wednesday most unexpectedly, but still most welcome. After a short but pleasant visit the Capt. went on his way to Plattsburgh. It has been d that he was going in to the new Plattsburgh, but it is not certain. are few more kindlier disposed or r men than the gallant Capt.

Keep it before the People.

Contrary to the prognostications of many, Redfield appointed to the N. Y. customs in place of Bronson, has been confirmed by the U. S. Senate and the softs are in extacies. The news came on the wings of the lightnings, and the Softs lost no time in boasting of the triumph of the administration, and of pointing the finger of scorn at the whigs:

☞ But "keep it before the people," that the 'softs' conceal, or have not heard the following facts:

☞ Pierce papers please copy; Marcy, shows his good feelings and courtesy toward the crowned heads, by terming their fugitive enemies ADAENTURERS AND SEDITIOUS PROPAGANDISTS.

Also, that the democratic Press all over the country have joined in the "hue and cry" against Mitchell, calling him a 'wordy imbecile,' accusing him of 'bad taste and gross indiscretion,' &c., &c.

Also, that the N. Y. Day Book, a Native American Organ, Whilom whig Silver Grey, and Adamantine, has wheeled into the support of Pierce, Marcy and the Administration, in consequence of their hostile attitude towards refugees from foreign oppression.

☞ Essex County's tax in prospective for the enlargement of the Erie Canal, is $200,000. This year we pay near $6,000. Is this the entertainment to which we were invited by the cry of the "Canals and Reform?"—Old Settler.

No—and you knew when you penned that article that it was not. No tax is proposed, and you know it. It is proposed to let the Canals build themselves. "This year we pay near $6,000," imposed upon us in 1842 by the political faction to which you belong, not for the enlargement, but to pay damages caused by the arrest of the enlargement by your faction, and to make repairs, when, if let alone, the canals would have paid their own enlargement. From $900,000 under whig management the receipts of the canals run down under barnburner control to $200,000. You were "invited" to this "reform," and you will see it. The State Prisons have run in debt under Barnburner control to the tune of $80,000 or more. This is another reform to which you were "invited." The law contemplates that the Atty. Genl. shall pay the "fees" of his office over to the State Treasurer and allows him a salary in lieu of them, but Chatfield, a pious barnburner, discovered a defect in the law and pocketed both the salary and the fees, and ran away. To this "reform" you were also "invited." These and other 'reforms' you were 'invited' to, and if Whigs and Hards do their duty, you will see the Canals enlarged without direct taxation. The last legislature was a bear-garden, it was controlled by the barnburners whose factious anti-canal policy caused an extra Session at a cost of $80,000, and corruption stalked abroad at noonday—faction prevailed and business was delayed. These 'reforms' also you were "invited" to, and others too numerous to mention. But enough.

Now, will the Old Settler please to inform his readers if this is the kind of talk whigs are 'invited to' who take the Old Settler?

"CONSISTENCY, THOU ART A JEWEL.—Thou art, indeed; but thou canst not be found in the ranks of the Pierce and Van Buren democracy. Professing to be strict constructionists, they annex territory without the pretense of right, opposed to State debts, and they run the country in debt $100,000,000, for California, and took Texas with her war and debts; of the greatest good of the greatest number, and they are opposed to internal improvements; they cannot spare a dollar to improve rivers and lakes, or build the Pacific Railroad, but they can buy land we don't want, and propose to increase the Army and Navy to get rid of the surplus in the treasury. The last act of folly is a treaty with Mexico for another slice of territory, for which we are to pay $20,000,000. Indeed, "consistency is a jewel," tho' rare.

☞ WHAT IS DEMOCRACY?—Who can tell? Can the thousands who vote 'the ticket?"

What it is in Georgia may be seen by reading the following resolutions of a recent democratic meeting, in that State.—Let 'Softs' read and tremble:—

'Resolved, The democratic party of Georgia emphatically avows its construction of the Baltimore platform of 1852, in reference to the slavery question, to be a distinct repudiation of the principle of the Wilmot proviso, in any future organization of territory now in our possession, or hereafter to be acquired, and that we cannot recognize any one as belonging to the democratic party who shall seek to enforce, or shall advocate the principle so repudiated.'

What the Pierce, Van Buren, and Secession democracy of Mississippi is, may be ascertained from the following extract from the card of a recent candidate:

"I am the only Democrat and original Anti-Bond candidate in the field, for the office of Circuit Judge, who avows the opinion, that the judgment of the Supreme Court against the State, for its alledged indebtedness, on the Union Bank Bonds, ought to be repudiated. And if personally qualified for the office, I am the only candidate entitled to the support of Democrats, who profess to vote on party grounds."

There's your democracy for you, the real Simon pure, Pierce, Van Buren, disunion, Jefferson, Jackson, 4th of July, Gutta Per-

"The Canals and Reform."

Once more we throw "our banner to the breeze." Under it we fought and triumphed in the late election, and we again sound the tocsin of war. An unprincipled enemy is on the alert, and the success of the Canals depends upon a vigorous canvass and a full vote. Depend upon it, that the Barnburners will cast their votes against the measure, whatever their professions may be. They are not to be believed, and Whigs and Hards will only do their duty by turning out to a man.

☞ John J. Crittendon, the greatest man, in our opinion, now left to the whig party in the United States, has just been elected U. S. Senator from Kentucky.

This compliment is from the Jeffersonian, printed at Malone, and is the Organ of the Hards of Northern N. Y.

IN THE DUST.—The Ogdensburgh Sentinel criticizing the Govenors Messago says:

However we put our haud upon our mouth, and our mouth in the dust, and humbly recommended our readers to read the message, and call it good—if they can.

Soft Impeachment of the President.

In the U. S. Senate on the 19th Senator Gwin preferred the charge by implication, and in the form of a resolution of inquiry, that the Executive has habitually neglected his duty as respects the suppression of Filibusterism in California. He said a single ship of war, stationed at San Francisco, would have been sufficient to stop and break up all the expeditions that have left San Francisco, and they be organized at no other point in California.

Special Election, Wednesday, Feb. 15.

Readers, don't forget it, and don't neglect on any account to vote. The barnburners will cast thousands of secret votes, and the Canals are not safe without a full vote.

Vote for the Enlargement, and when the great work is completed, you can tell your children of your part in the glorious triumph. You will stand out on the pages of history with Washington and Clinton.

News of the week.

Our exchanges the first of the week all concurred in the opinion that a general European war was inevitable. Those by the last mail say that negotiations for peace are still pressed by the friendly powers.—Louis Napoleon has issued a circular taking a bold, manly stand against Russia.—Some think it equivalent to a declaration of war, but others that its effect will be peace.

Another battle has been fought at Kalefat between the Russians and Turks, in which the latter were victorious.

At Washington Slavery agitation is the absorbing topic by our latest files.

At Albany the Maine Law has been the leading topic, but a bill to bridge the Hudson River at Albany has been introduced into the Senate, and this will very likely be the leading subject of interest in a few days. The doings of the Barnburners are being overhauled and rascalities of various kinds and hues are being discovered.

The troubles at Erie still continue.—They have been really serious, law and law officers set at defiance, mobbed and imprisoned, yet the General Government still looks quietly on without a lisp.

Fires, shipwrecks, murders, and other casualities are no less numerous than they have been.

News from the Federal Capitol are headed thus:

From Washington.

Cabinet Session—Important Proceedings—The Gadesden Treaty—Army Orders—Great Excitement on the Nebraska Question, &c.

THE MAILS arrive every now and then, sometimes once a week, and sometimes oftener. As we have stages from Whitehall as regular as the succession of days we might have the mails with equal regularity if we only had some old clothes stuffed with straw for Post Masters.

WOMAN'S RIGHTS.—We have received and been requested to circulate a petition to the Legislature to extend the right of suffrage to the women. We have consulted our 'woman' and she don't go it, so, we don't of course.

AN EXTENSIVE TRAVELLER.—We have before us the Oregon Statesman, a neat, well printed, and ably conducted journal, published at Salem, Oregon Territory, by Asahel Bush. It is weekly, about the size of the Essex Co. Republican, and $5 a-year. It is well filled with advertisements of all kinds, showing that business is thriving. We regret to notice, however, numerous applications for divorce.

CAPT. PARTRIDGE.—The Telegraph, brought news of the death of Capt. Alden Partridge, at Norwich, Vt., of which place he was a native. Few names connected with military affairs in this country have been longer and more widely known than Capt. Partridge. His career may be summed up in a few words. He entered the army as a cadet in the summer of 1806 and on the 30th of October succeeding was appointed 1st Lieutenant of Engineers, and a few weeks later was called to fill the place of Assistant Professor of Mathematics in the Military Academy. In the list or promotions July 10, he was raised to the rank of Captain, and in 1813, was called to fill the chairs of Mathematics and Engineering. He was at the head of the West Point Institution at various times as Superintendent; first one year, from Sept. 1812, to Sept. 1813; again, from January, 1815, to November 1816, and finally from January to July, 1817. During a period of abscence a Superintendent pro tempore was appointed, with whom, on his return, Capt. P. had a difficulty, which led to a court martial, after which he resigned, April 15, 1818. The succeeding year he was placed at the head of the Exploring Survey, under the 5th article of the Treaty of Ghent.

On leaving public employment he returned to his native place, and established his famous military academy. In 1825 he removed it to Middletown, Conn., and nine years later, we have the impression that he was connected with the movement by act of Legislature. In 1849 he opened another military school at Portsmouth, Vriginia. He at various periods was occupied in the same manner at various places, Pembroke, N. H., and Reading, Pa., among them. Quite recently he opened his last military school at Brandywine Springs, Deleware, the building belonging to which were consumed by fire the day after the closing of the last term. His exertions at this fire are supposed to have laid the foundation of the illness which caused his death. He returned to Norwich to spend the vacation, where a sudden attack of sickness, at the end of twenty-four hours, put an end to a life distinguished by indomitable perseverance and enthusiasm in the cause of military science and instruction.

It is stated by a correspondent of The Boston Traveller, that Capt. P. entered Darmouth College about 1797, and received his degree in 1812.—Tribune.

NEW YORK,

Offers one of the most extensive Stocks and complete assortments in the country of

Books and Stationary,

FOR CASH ONLY.

The amount of goods in our line purchased by country merchants is usually quite small compared with their dry goods hardware, and other bills; and this very circumstance absolutely compels jobbers in the book business, who sell on time, to get larger profits in order to make up for the losses and extra expenses necessarily involved in a credit business of small amounts. It is also easy for the merchant to make arrangements to buy his book bill for cash; though it might not be so convenient for him to purchase his larger bills in this way.

These considerations have led us to adopt in our business, from this date, January, 1854, the following principles, viz.: small profits, unvarying prices, and terms always cash.

Being ourselves the sole publishers of a number of the leading and most extensively selling School Books in the country, as well as works in other departments, our facilities are unsurpassed.

Call upon us, or send an order, and judge for yourselves, if the saving you can make by buying of us for cash is worth while.

Our location is very central, and easily found Stand on the Astor House steps, and look straight forward across the corner of the Park, and you cannot avoid seeing our signs. Remember, the name is

SHERIFF'S SALE.

BY virtue of several executions issued out of the Supreme Court of the State of New York, to me directed and delivered, against the goods and chattels, lands and tenements, real estate and chattels real, of Henry Haile, and of Henry Haile and Charles Haile, I have seized and taken all the right, title and interest, which the said Henry Haile or the said Henry Haile and Charles Haile had on the the 14th day of January, 1852, or which they, or either of them, may since have acquired, of, in, and to all and singular the following described real estate, to wit:—

Lot No. 2.—Hague tract in the town of Schroon, in the County of Essex, being same lot sold to Bradley by Joseph Weed and wife, June 1st, 183[illegible]. Also, Lot No. 13, in Robert Grant's Patent, in the town of Crownpoint, containing 76 1-10 acres of land, excepting one half acre thereof deeded by Henry Haile and wife to Solomon S. Flint, April 1st, 1851. Also, all that part of Lot No. 14, in Grant's Patent, in Crownpoint, lying east of Putnam's Creek, containing 13 90-100 acres of land.—Also, a small strip of land lying on the northeast side of the road leading from Samuel Russell's to the White Meeting-house, being on Robert Grant's Patent in Crownpoint, occupied in 1845 by Stephen Spaulding, containing one half acre. Also, all the South equal half of Lot No, 20, Grant's Patent, in Crownpoint, containing 20 acres. Also, Lot No. 34, in the Pliny Moore Patent, in the town of Crownpoint.

Also, all that certain piece or parcel of land, lying and being in the town of Crownpoint, in the County of Essex and State of New York, and is bounded and described as follows: Beginning in the south line of the road about 2 feet easterly from an apple-tree, and 19 links westerly from a locust tree, both supposed to stand in the north line of said road; then running north 17°, east about 9 rods, until it intersects the south line of the Allen Campbell, then easterly following said south patent line 28 rods to the North line of the road, thence westerly following said North line of said road about 30 rods to the place of beginning, containing by estimation one acre of land. Which said real estate I shall expose for sale at Public Vendue, at the Hotel kept by Jacob Tappen, in Moriah, in said County of Essex, on the 25th day of January next, at Ten o'clock in the forenoon.

C. W. ENSIGN, Sheriff of Essex Co.

LEANDER BABBIT'S PRESS OFFICE

The latest and most approved Trusses; Female Supporters, &c. with shoulder braces attached; spinal elevators for curvature of the spine and projection of the shoulder blade. Suspensary shoulder braces. This instrument so constructed that it not only acts the part of shoulder brace but carries the heft of the ladies' shirts on their shoulders; and, hence removes the evil consequent to carrying them on the hips and sides. For gentlemen, it not only serves for a shoulder brace, but acts the part of suspenders.

As to the importance and usefulness of the above named instruments, and their beneficial effects, their peculiar mechanism and superiority over other instruments of the same name, I need not say anything. They are so well known by physicians, and the multitude of persons that have had occasion to test them in this northern section of country, that I deem it not important to introduce a long catalogue of certificates; yet I have abundant evidence in my possession to justify me in all I claim or affirm, and deem it a privilege to give references to any who wish to make inquiries.

"EVERY FAMILY SHOULD HAVE A COPY."

20,000 Copies sold in less than 5 months. A new edition, revised and improved, just issued.

Dr. Hunter's Medical Manual and Hand Book for the Afflicted—Containing an outline of the origin, progress, treatment and cure of every form of disease, contracted by promiscuous sexual intercourse, by self abuse or by sexual excess, with advice for their prevention, written in a familiar style, avoiding all medical technicalities, and everything that would offend the ear of decency, from the result of some twenty years successful practice, exclusively devoted to the cure of diseases of a delicate or private nature.

To which is added, receipts for the cure of the above diseases, and a treatise on the causes, symptoms and cure of the Fever and Ague.

Testimony of the Prof. of Obstetrics in Penn. College, Philadelphia —"Dr. Hunter's Medical Manual."—The author of this work unlike the majority of those works who advertise to cure the diseases of which it treats, is a graduate of one of the best Colleges in the United States. It affords me pleasure to recommend him to the unfortunate, or to the victim of malpractice, as a successful and experienced practitioner, in whose honor and integrity they may place the greatest confidence.

JOSEPH LONGSHORE, M. D.

From A Woodward, M. D., of Penn. University, Philadelphia—It gives me pleasure to add my testimony to the professional ability of the author of the "Medical Manual." Numerous cases of diseases of the Genital Organs, some of them of long standing have come under my notice, in which his skill has been manifest in restoring to perfect health, in some instances where the patient has been considered beyond medical aid. In the treatment of Seminal weakness, or disarrangement of the functions produced by Self-abuse, or Excess of venery, I do not know his superior in the profession. I have been acquainted with the Author some thirty years, and deem it no more than justice to him as well as a kindness to the unfortunate victim of early indiscretion, to recommend him as one, in whose professional skill and integrity they may safely confide themselves. ALFRED WOODWARD, M.D.

"This is, without exception, the most comprehensive and intelligible work published on the class of diseases of which it treats. Avoiding all technical terms, it addresses itself to the reason of its readers. It is free from all objectionable matter, and no parent, however fastidious, can object to placing it in the hands of his sons. The author has devoted many years to the treatment of the various complaints treated of, and 'with too little breath to puff,' and 'too little presumption to impose,' he has offered to the world at the merely nominal price of 25 cents, the fruits of some 20 years most successful practice."—Herald.

"No teacher or parent should be without the knowledge imparted in this invaluable work. It would save years of pain, mortification and sorrow to the youth under their charge."—People's Advocate.

A Presbyterian clergyman in Ohio, in writing of "Hunter's Medical Manual," says: "Thousands upon thousands of our youth, by evil example and influence of the passions, have been led into the habit of self-pollution without realizing the sin and fearful consequences upon themselves and their posterity. The constitutions of thousands who are raising families have been enfeebled, if not broken down, and they do not know the cause or the cure. Anything that can be done so to enlighten and influence the public mind as to check, and ultimately to remove this wide-spread source of human wretchedness, would confer the greatest blessing next to the religion of Jesus Christ, on the present and coming generations. Intemperance (or the use of intoxicating drinks,) though it has slain thousands upon thousands, is not a greater scourge to the human race. Accept my thanks on behalf of the afflicted, and, believe me your

THE MARRIAGE STATE;

Shall Happiness and Health, or Misery and Sickness, attend it?

MOST STARTLING CONSIDERATIONS!

Reflections for the Thoughtful.

Strange that countless human beings exist and drag through life as do the beasts of the field, or the insects of the earth, evincing no more thought or reflection than though the noble faculties of mind were not vouchsafed to them.

Many such are husbands and fathers, upon whom are dependent the health, the well-being, and the happiness of a confiding and affectionate wife, with perhaps a family of children.

HOW OFTEN IT HAPPENS THAT THE

in that pitiable condition as not even for one day to feel the happy and exhilerating influence incident to the enjoyment of health.

She may not be an invalid confined to her bed, or even to her room; as her pride, ambition and energy induce and nerve her to take personal charge of her household, even when her health will not admit of it; but she is nevertheless perceptibly sinking from day to day, and always ailing.

Thus, day after day, and month after month transpire. Her health daily sinks, till finally even the hope of recovery no longer remains. And thus

THE BLOOMING BRIDE,

But a few years ago in the flush of health and youth, and buoyancy of spirits, rapidly, and apparently inexplicably, becomes a feeble, sickly, debilitated wife, with frame emaciated, nerves unstrung, spirits depressed, countenance bearing the impress of suffering, and an utter physical and mental prostration.

Sometimes this deplorable change may and does arise from organic or constitutional causes. But oftener, by far oftener, to gross and inexcusable ignorance of the simplest and plainest rules of health as connected with the marriage state, the violation of which entails disease, suffering and misery, not only to the wife, but often

"UNTO THE THIRD AND FOURTH GENERATION," Transmitting CONSUMPTION, SCROFULA, HYPOCHONDRIA, INSANITY, GOUT, KING'S EVIL, and other diseases, as a

DREADFUL INHERITANCE

from the Parents.

And must this continue? Shall we be wise in all that concerns the cattle of our fields, our horses, our sheep, our cows, our oxen, the nature and character of the soil we possess, the texture and quality of our goods and merchandise; but in all that concerns ourselves as human beings, with human functions and passions, subject to great derangement, involving our future peace and happiness—in all that concerns the health and welfare of the wife of our affections, and the mother of our children; in all that concerns the mental and physical well being of those children, we should be immersed in the darkest and most

BENIGHTED IGNORANCE,

AS CULPABLE AS INEXCUSABLE!

How long shall this ignorance prevail so productive of its bitter fruits? How long shall the wife and mother be ignorant of the nature, character and causes of the various womb and sexual complaints, embittering her days by suffering—suffering often prolonged to years, eventuating in a complication of diseases utterly and hopelessly incurable? Shall we for ever close our eyes to the results of physiological science by which we may arrive at an understanding of ourselves as men and women, subject to serious life-long enduring diseases, and perpetuating them to our children.

LET EVERY WIFE AND HUSBAND PONDER!

No husband or wife need be ignorant of what concerns them most to know to secure their health and happiness. That knowledge is contained in a little work entitled

DRY GOODS,

Carpets and Oil-Cloths.

Owing to the large increase of patronage, I have found it necessary from time to time, to make many improvements and additions to my store.

This spring I have united the stores No. 7 and 9, State St., making a spacious and beautiful room, fitted up expressly for the sale of all the various styles of Silks, Shawls, Cloaks & Mantillas.

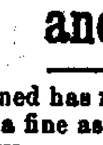
This connects with the main store, No. 202, River St., (the old stand occupied by the subscriber for nearly 30 years,) which is devoted to a general assortment of

STAPLE AND FANCY DRY GOODS,

comprising every variety to meet the wants of all classes of buyers. Besides these, four large rooms over the stores 200, 202 and 204 River St., are occupied as



CARPET WARE-ROOMS,

where I am constantly receiving the newest and most desirable patterns of Velvet, Tapestry, Brussels, Three-ply, Ingrain and Venetian Carpets. Also, Oil-Cloths of every quality and width, and every style of Drugetts, Rugs, Mats, Matting, Stair-Rods, &c.

All these departments combined making an extensive and complete Establishment, conducted on such principles, that customers can trade with confidence, and to their own advantage, my sales being always for cash, and the only price asked, being the lowest cash price. G. V. S. QUACKENBUSH.

Henry's Invigorating Cordial,

PURELY VEGETABLE IN ITS COMPOSITION.

This invaluable Cordial, is extracted from Herbs and Roots, which have been found after years of experience, by the most skillful Physicians, to be possessed of qualities most beneficial in the diseases for which it is recommended, and hence whilst it is presented to the public, as an efficious remedy, it is also known to be of that character on which reliance may be placed as to its safety. In cases of Impotency, Hoemorrhages, Disordered Sterility, Menstruation, or Suppression of the Menses, Fluror Albus or Whites, or for arising from any cause, such as weakness from sickness, where the patient has been confined to bed for some time, for Females after Confinement, Abortion or Miscarriage, this Cordial cannot be excelled in its salutary effects; or in loss of Muscular Energy, Irritability, Physical Prostration, Seminal Weakness, Palpitation of the Heart, Indigestion, Sluggishness, Decay of the Procreative Functions, Nervousness, &c., where a tonic Medicine is required, it will be found equal, if not superior to any Compound ever used.

DEBILITY

TO FEMALES.

Henry's Invigorating Cordial, is one of the most invaluable Medicines in the many Complaints to which Females are subject. It assists nature to brace the whole system, check excesses, and creates renewed health and happiness. Less suffering, disease and unhappiness among Ladies would exist, where they generally to adopt the use of this Cordial. Ladies who are debilitated by those obstructions which females are liable to, are restored by the use of a bottle or two, to bloom and to vigor.

YOUNG MEN.

That solitary practice, so fatal to the existence of man and it is the young who are most apt to become its victims, from an ignorance of the danger to which they subject themselves, causes

NERVOUS DEBILITY.

Weakness of the System, and Premature Decay. Many of you may now be suffering, misled as to the cause or source of disease. To those, then, who by excess have brought on themselves Premature Impotency, Involuntary Seminal Emissions, Weakness and shrivelling of the Genital Organs, Nervous Affection, or any other consequences of unrestrained indulgence of the sensual passions, occasioning the necessity of renouncing the felicities of lessening both mental and bodily capacity, Hold! Henry's Invigorating Cordial, a Medicine that is purely Vegetable, will aid nature to restore those important functions to a healthy state, and will prove of service to you. It possesses rare virtues, is a general remover of disease, and strengthener of the system.

AS A TONIC MEDICINE,

It is unsurpassed. We do not place this Cordial on a footing with quack medicines, and, as is customary, append a long list of Recommendations, Certificates, &c., beginning with "Hear what the Preacher says," and such like; it is not necessary, for "Henry's Invigorating Cordial," only needs a trial to prove that it will accomplish all we say.

THE GENUINE "HENRY'S INVIGORATING CORDIAL."

is put up in 8 oz. Pannel Bottles, and is easily recognized by the Manufacturer's signature on the label of each Bottle, (to counterfeit which is forgery.) as well as his private Seal on the cork of each Bottle.

☞ Sold for $2 per Bottle; Six for $8; $16 per dozen

Advt., Wm. Field, M. W. G. M., Cyrus Fisher, M. E. H. P. James Hutchinson, G. S. Dea., V. J. Bates, Doct Benj. Colby, and one hundred others of the most respectable families of Providence.

This certifies that I have for a number of years been acquainted with the composition and mode of manufacture of Morse's Compound Syrup of Yellow Dock Root. I have also been acquainted with its modus operandi in disease, and can say that in all respects it is admirably calculated to remedy that class of Diseases for which it was designed. It is especially valuable in Indigestion and all its attendant symptoms, it excites to healthy action the Liver, removes Torpor, and inactivity of this organ, and stimulates healthy action in all the system. As a Depurator or purifier of the Blood it has no superior.

Election Notice.

A special eldection is to be held in the County of Essex on the 15th day of February next, for the purposes mentioned in a notice from the Secretary of State, of the state of New York, of which a copy is hereto annexed.

C. W. ENSIGN, Sheriff,
Essex Co.

State of New York, } Albany, January
Secretarys office, } 21, 1854.

To the Sheriff of the County of Essex

Sir:—Notice is hereby given, that a special election is to be held in this state on the third Wednesday of February next, (February 15, 1854,) to determine whether the people will approve or reject a certain proposed amendment to the constitution of this state, embodied in a concurrent resolution of the Legislature, of which the following is a copy:

CONCURENT RESOLUTION PROPOSING AN AMENDMENT TO THE CONSTITUTION.

"Resolved, (if the Senate concur,) That the following amendment be proposed to the Constitution of this State, and referred to the Legislature to be chosen at the next general election of Senators, and be published for three months previous to making such choice, in pursuance of the provisions of the first section of the thirteenth article of said Constitution:

Substitute, for section three of article seven, the following—

After paying the said expenses of collection, superintendance and repairs of the canals, and the sums appropriated by the first and second sections of this article, there shall be appropriated and set apart in each fiscal year, out of the surplus revenues of the canals, as a sinking fund, a sum sufficient to pay the interest as falls due, and extinguish the principal within eighteen years, of any loan made under this section; and if the said sinking fund shall not be sufficient to redeem any part of the principal at the stipulated times of payment, or to pay any part of the interest of such loans as stipulated, the means to satisfy any such deficiency shall be procured on the credit of the said sinking fund. After complying with the foregoing provisions, there shall be paid annually out of said revenues, into the treasury of the state, two hundred thousand dollars, to defray the necessary expenses of government. The remainder shall, in each fiscal year, be applied to meet appropriations for the enlargement and completion of the canals mentioned in this section, until the said canals shall be completed. In each fiscal year thereafter the remainder shall be disposed of in such manner as the legislature may direct; but shall at no time be anticipated or pledged for more than one year in advance. The legislature shall annually, during the next four years, appropriate to the enlargement of the Erie, the Oswego, the Cayuga and Seneca canals, and to the completion of the for the enlargement of the locks of the Black River and Genesee Valley canals and Champlain canal, whenever from dilapidation of decay it shall be necessary to rebuild them, a sum not exceeding two millions two hundred and fifty thousand dollars. The remainder of the revenues of the canals for the current fiscal year in which such appropriation is made shall be applied to meet such appropriation; and if the same shall be deemed insufficient, the legislature shall, at the same session, provide for the deficiency by loan. The legislature shall also borrow one million and five hundred thousand dollars, to refund to the holders of the canal revenue certificates, issued under the provisions of chapter four hundred and eighty five of the laws of the year one thousand eight hundred and fifty-one, the amount received into the treasury therefrom. But no interest, to accrue after July first, one thousand eight hundred and fifty-five, shall be paid on such certificates. The provisions of section twelve of this article, requiring every law for borrowing money to be submitted to the people, shall not apply to the loans authorised by this section. No part of the revenues of the canals, or of the funds borrowed under this section, shall be paid or applied upon or in consequence of any alledged contract made under chapter four hundred and eighty-five of the laws of the year one thousand eight hundred and fifty-one, except to pay for work done or materials furnished prior to the first day of June, one thousand eight hundred and fifty-two. The rates of toll on persons and property transported on the canals shall not be reduced below those for the year one thousand eight hundred and fifty-two, except by the canal board with the concurrence of the legislature. All contracts for work or materials on any canal shall be made with the person who shall offer to do or provide the same at the lowest price, with adequate security for their performance."

Very Respectfully yours.
ELIAS W. LEAVENWORTH,
Secretary of State.

The Robbers of Belldere:—A Ballad.

BY RHYMESLAYER.

I.

A pair of famous robbers
Came riding into town;
John White was somewhat blackish
And white was Robert Brown.

II.

They rode up to a tavern,
And there amid alarms
They took their legs from off their steeds
And laid aside their arms.

III.

Their host was sorely troubled
But he labored well to please;
Though easy natured, it was plain
That he was ill at ease.

IV.

The throne that reason sat upon
Upon the ground was thrown,
And having grown as pale as cloth
He gave a bitter groan.

V.

He treated them politely
Although he didn't treat;
Though courtesy was meted out
He gave to them no meat.

VI.

The red-faced landlord blew and puffed
Till he felt rather "blue;"
He knew some act was due from him
But knew not what to do.

VII.

The robbers said they friendly were
And that he needn't fear;
Yet he must give them ale, or else
Prepare him for the bier.

VIII.

They drank the foaming liquor
And swore 'twas good and true;
While ruefully the landlord looked
Although he hated rue.

IX.

And then he sought the cellar
To hide his precious gold;
And in a hold he stowed it,
As much as it could hold.

X.

Then swiftly he came running up
With terror in his eye;
His face was colored very red
Although he didn't die.

XI.

The robbers called for many things
And filled his soul with fright
And tho' he was a weakish man
He showed a little mite.

XII.

He wished to rid him of his guests
And queerly he did feel,
And tho' he never played a card
He tho't how he should deal.

XIII.

And so he drew a can of wine
And bade them take their fill,
And when they drank to his good health
He tho't they wished him ill.

XIV.

And round the foaming tankard flew
Till glee was at its height;
And as the room grew very dark
Their heads grew very light.

XV.

And still they laughed and drank & swore
While swift the minutes sped,
And when the can of wine grew light
Each had a heavy head.

XVI.

And overcame with what they drank
Down on the floor they sunk,
And snoring lustily they proved
That they were very drunk.

XVII.

And very brave the landlord felt
As there the robbers lay,
And tho' no surgery he knew
He took their arms away.

XVIII.

A trusty rope around their limbs
Then carefully he passed;
He labored very slowly, but
He bound the robbers fast.

XIX.

And when his task was fairly done
He felt a little proud,
And tho' ne'er known to weep 'tis said
For help he cryed aloud.

XX.

To answer him his women folks
Did not appear inclined;
Tho' some were vigorous, still 'tis true
That they were all confined.

XXI.

And to his haughty mandate then
No servant could reply;
And when old Time revealed the truth
He found they all did lie.

XXII.

Because his servants used him so
The landlord took it ill,
And he in vengence vowed to make Them tremble at his will.

XXIII.

And like a madman round the house
The raging master went;
Though he was straight 'twas plain to see
He wickedly was bent.

XXIV.

Misfortunes seldom singly come
To bring their bitter fruit;
And this he learned when by mischance
He chanced to smash his foot.

XXV.

Rage all forgot he hobbled off
As fast as he could go
To see if doctor Bones had skill
Enough to heal his toe.

XXVI.

Another fix awaited him—
He couldn't pay his fee,
For, tho' his country had a king,
No sovereign had he.

XXVII.

And while he fumed and fretted there
The robbers got untied;
Concealment they stopped not to seek
But swift away they hied.

XXVIII.

But not until they robbed the till—
And what is somewhat strange,
Tho' nothing had been altered, yet
They found a little change.

XXIX.

Then off they set in highest glee—
The landlord lost his bill:
And bootless was his footing up,
And empty was his till.

Interesting Narrative of a Woman among the Indians.

From the St. Louis (Missouri) Republican.

SANTA FEE, NEW MEXICO, December 14, 1853.

W. W. H. DAVIS, Esq.—DEAR SIR—Circumstances requiring my absence from this place, I leave in your hands for publication the following narrative, which I prepared at the request of yourself and others. The sufferings herein related appear almost incredible; but no one who has any acquaintance with the subject of the narrative can for a moment doubt her veracity. She is a young woman of prepossessing appearance, is modest and unassuming in her manners, and has a remarkably strong mind. The following recital of her sufferings has been taken from her own lips by Major Carlton and myself. Her language and style have been preserved as far as possible. Hoping that the publication of this narrative may lead our Government to adopt a vigilant oversight and a more stringent course of policy with respect to the wild Indian tribes of the Plains.

I remain, yours truly,

I. SMITH.

A NARRATIVE OF THE SUFFERINGS OF MRS. JANE ADELINE WILSON, DURING HER CAPTIVITY AMONG THE COMANCHE INDIANS.

I was born in Alton, Illinois, on the 12th day of June, 1837, and am, therefore, in the seventeenth year of my age. My father's name was William Smith; my mother's maiden name was Jane Cox. I have five brothers and four sisters. I think it was in the year 1846 that we moved to Missouri and settled at a boat landing, or ferry, called Jamestown, on the North Grand river. My father kept the ferry.

About eight years ago we moved from this place to Texas, and settled near Paris, in Lamar county. Here my father and mother died within one day of each other, leaving six orphan children behind them.—Three of my brothers had died before the death of my parents. My eldest brother, who was in a ranging company, now came home to settle my father's affairs and make provisions for our support. He secured homes for us with different neighbors, but took the youngest sister, our pet with him to place her with one of our aunts.

One day's journey from the place where he left us he was attacked by the Winter fever, and died in one week. I have three sisters older than myself. Their names are Elizabeth, Cynthia and Caroline. My brother James and sister Ellen was four years old when my parents died. Caroline is a dwarf, and the neighbors thought that the medicine the doctor gave her stopped her growth. She was a dear child, and we all loved her because of her misfortune. I lived with several neighbors until the first of last February, when I was married to Mr. James Wilson, a young farmer just beginning life with a little property, consisting of cattle and horses. He was but 19 years of age when we were married. We knew but little of life, for I was not yet 16. I fear we were crazy in getting married while we were so young.

We had heard that people became rich very fast in California, so we concluded to move and commence life in that distant country. We gathered together the little property we possessed and joined a party of emigrants, consisting of 62 men, 12 women and several children. The father and brothers of my husband were among this number. There were in all 22 wagons, and the whole company was placed under the command of Mr. Henry Hickman. We started from Hunt county on the 6th of April last, and took the route for El Paso. We arrived at the Guadaloupe Mountains about the 1st of June. Here the Mescalero Apaches stole from us 19 head of cattle; six men started in pursuit, but were driven back by the Indians. We went then to El Paso. My husband not being able to travel well with Mr. Hickman's train, he determined to remain at El Paso till the arrival of another party of California emigrants. Five of Mr. Herman's men staid with us. While here the Mexicans stole nearly all the property we had, and left us unable to proceed on our journey. We could do nothing now except make our way back to Texas.

About the last of July we started on our return, with the fragments of our property which the thieves had spared. On the first day of August, my husband and his father left us, and fell into the hands of the Indians. I saw them no more after this. I was told that they had been murdered.—You may perhaps be able to imagine my feelings when I found myself thus bereaved and destitute in a land of strangers. My misfortunes seemed heavier than I could bear but I knew not that heavier trials were in store for me.

Unable to continue my journey, I returned to El Paso, where I remained till September 8th, when I started once more for Texas with my three brothers-in-law, in company with a small party, consisting of five Americans and one Mexican. Mr. Hart, who owned and commanded this train having some business in Texas which required his imediate attention, travelled very rapidly; and I hoped in a few days more to be in the midst of my friends.

As we had seen only one Indian on the route, we flattered ourselves that we should not be molested by any of the tribes which infest this route. When near the borders of Texas, some of our own party stole three animals from Mr. Hart and ran off. Mr. Hart anxious to overtake the theives, started in pursuit, taking with him my eldest brother-in-law, a lad some fourteen years of age, leaving myself, a Mexican and the two boys to follow as rapidly as we could. We were at this time within three days journey of a military post at Phantom Hill, and were considered out of danger. A discharged soldier being unable to keep up with us, was some distance behind, but I saw nothing of him after this. The day after Mr. Hart left us, as we were travelling about noon, we saw two Camanche Indians charging upon us in front, and at the same time two others were seen driving up behind. We were all very much frightened, and the Mexican jumped out of the wagon and went towards the Indians, in order, if possible, to gain their friendship.

The mules in our wagon, four in number becoming frightened by the war-whoop of the savages, turned out of the road and commenced running as fast as they could. One of them fell down, before he had gone far, and the others were then obliged to stop. The Indians now came upon us, and ordered the Mexican to take the mules out of the harness. While this was going on I got out of the wagon, and looked on in breathless suspense. After the mules were unharnessed, the Mexican was stripped of his clothing, his hands tied behind his back and ordered to sit down upon the ground. One of them then went behind him and shot him with a gun, while another stabbed him several times with a large butcher knife. His scalp was cut off before he was dead, and put into his own hat, the hat was then worn by one of his murderers. I was stupified with horror as I gazed on this spectacle, and supposed that my turn would come next. But the Indians having secured the plunder of the wagon, mounted us on the mules and ordered us to go with them.

As I left, I looked back and saw the poor Mexican weltering in his blood, and breathing.

We took a northwest direction, and travelling slowly till sunset, when we encamped. Here, the plunder, consisting of blankets, bedding, clothing, bridles and some money which I had in my pocket was divided among the Indians. Some articles considered useless were thrown into the fire. My clothing was taken away, except barely enough to cover my person. In the distribution of the captives, the oldest boy, about 12 years of age, was claimed by the chief. I became the property of one of the others. I should have mentioned that one of our captors was a Mexican who had been stolen from the State of Chihuahua, when an infant. He was now as savage as the Indians, and claimed the youngest boy for his prize. The scalp of the Mexican was stretched on a stick and dried by the fire.

After giving us some meat for our supper, the Indians began to secure us for the night. The boys with their arms tied tightly behind them, were taken under guard by two of the savages. My feet were tied together and I was obliged to lie between the other two. I did not sleep any during night, for I was afraid of being killed.

The next day we resumed our journey and traveled in the same direction. The boys were mounted on good animals, and had bows and arrows. Their faces were painted Indian fashion, and they looked like young savages. They appeared to enjoy this mode of life, and were never treated with excessive cruelties. I was mounted on a good horse, but being obliged to sit astride of the animal, the journey was extremely painful.

I had a fine head of hair, which I valued very much. But the chief ordered it to be cut off; I was not a little mortified at seeing it decorating the heads of the heartless savages. My head was thus left entirely unprotected from the intensely hot rays of the sun.

Nothing of interest occurred except repeated acts of inhumanity toward me, until the twelfth day after my capture. At this time we were joined by two Indian men and a squaw. These were all the Indians I saw until after my escape. Up to this time my sufferings had been so severe as to take from me all desire to live, but now they were greatly increased. The squaw from whom I might have expected some compassion, was evidently the cause of the new cruelties which I now began to experience.

My horse was taken from me, and I was mounted on an unbroken mule without a bridle. I had a saddle, but it was worn out and good for nothing except to torture me. This animal would frequently toss me over its head of its own accord; but not being wild enough to gratify the malice of the Indians, the chief would sometimes shake the Mexican's scalp before its eyes. The beast would then rear and plunge in the utmost fright, and I would be thrown upon the ground with great violence. I have been tossed from the mule's back as many as half a dozen times a day, and once I was so stunned that I lay a considerable time before my senses returned. My repeated falls greatly amused the Indians, whose horrid peals of laughter might have been heard a great distance.

I never saw them exhibit the first sign of pity toward me. It made no difference how badly I was hurt, if I did not rise immediately and mount the animal which had just thrown me, they would apply their riding whips, or gunsticks, or the end of a lariat, to my unprotected body with the greatest violence. The squaw would also help me to raise by wounding me with the point of a spear which she carried. You may understand one object the Indians had in view in putting me upon this wild animal and causing me to be thrown so often, when I tell you I expected to become a mother in a few weeks. They understood our situation, but instead of softening their hearts it only made them more inhuman, and subjected me to greater suffering.

I was obliged to work like a slave while in camp; while there was any service to perform I was not allowed a moment's rest. I was compelled to carry large loads of wood on my back, which, being destitute of sufficient clothing, was mangled till the blood run down to my feet. I had to chase the animals through briars and bushes, till what little clothing I had was torn into ribbons. I brought the animals to camp in the morning, and had to watch them till they were ready to start, and if one more wild than the rest ran off, I must chase and bring him back, and then be knocked down by the savage chief for my want of skill. When all were ready to start I had to catch and saddle my own wild mule, without assistance. If the party did not start immediately, I was compelled to pull at the end of a lariat which the Indians would fasten to a bush. They seemed to study every method of putting me to death by piecemeal.

Exhausted by incessant toil and suffering, and extreme anguish from my wounds, I could not work as fast as the Indians desired; and often when scarcely able to stand, and hardly knowing what I was doing, I have been required to do the work of the strongest man. And because of my inability to accomplish my task satisfactorily, I have been whipped till my flesh was raw. Large stones were thrown at me. I was knocked down and stamped upon by the ferocious chief, who seemed anxious to crush me like a worm beneath his feet. My head sometimes fell under the horses' feet, and then the Indians would try to make the beasts kick me. After all was ready for the day's journey, I was obliged to travel as fast as the others, riding sometimes over rocks and through bushes, aching and sore from head to foot, and exposed alike to cold and heat, sunshine and storm.

I have gone two days at a time without tasting food. The Indians depended on hunting for their subsistence, and sometimes had nothing to eat themselves. Unless there was an abundance of food, I received little or nothing. When any game was killed, the Indians would tear out the heart, liver and entrails, and eat them raw. I suffered exceedingly from thirst; I was not allowed to drink, except while in the camp. We frequently crossed beautiful streams during the day, and I would beg the privilege of dismounting to quench my thirst. But the Indians would always deny my request with contempt. It was in vain I pointed to my parched tongue and head distressed in the rays of the sun. Nothing could soften them to pity, and I ardently desired death that my torments might come to an end.

Every indignity was offered to my person which the imagination can conceive. And I am at a loss to know how I have lived through all the barbarous treatment which was inflicted upon me. Frequently my feelings were so outraged that I was tempted to kill my inhuman masters. My indignation burned particularly against the chief, and I thought if I could only cut him to pieces I could die content.

We travelled every day—we usually started about ten o'clock in the morning, and halted about four in the afternoon.—The Indians were accustomed to go to the tops of the highest hills and stand there gazing in every direction. We always spent the night on a hill and were thus exposed to the cold Autumn winds; we slept on the ground, generally without covering. When I reached the Indians made a tent of the blankets and wagon sheet they had stolen from us, but I was not allowed to take shelter in it—I preferred sleeping outside in the storm.

After my mule had become so gentle that I could ride it without being thrown, it was taken from me and I was obliged to travel on foot. The road over which we passed was often very rough and stony, and full of thorns. My feet were wounded and bruised till they were covered with blood and greatly swollen. But still I was obliged to keep up with the rest of the party, and if I fell behind I was beaten till I was nearly senseless. The Indians often urged me on by attempting to ride their horses over me.—Many a mile of that road is marked with my blood, and many a hill there has echoed to my useless cries.

I travelled thus on foot some five or six days. After the party were ready to start in the morning, the direction of the route was pointed out to me, and I was required to go before the others, in order not to hinder them. They usually overtook me before I travelled far. I had always intended to make my escape as soon as I found an opportunity. I never expected to reach any friendly settlement, but I did not wish to give the Indians the pleasure of seeing me die. On the morning of the twenty-fifth day after my capture, I was sent on in advance as usual. I had eaten no breakfast and was very weak, but the hope of escape now supported me. I hastened on as fast as I could, and finding a suitable hiding place I turned aside and concealed myself in the bushes. After this I saw nothing more of my captors. I found afterwards, by the tracks of the animals, they had searched for me; they probably thought I would die, and therefore took less trouble to find me. I have no doubt that the next time they pass that way, they will look for my bones.

My situation was now distressing beyond description; I was alone in an Indian country, some hundreds of miles from the nearest friendly settlement. I was without food, without shelter, and almost without clothing. My body was full of wounds and bruises, and my feet were so swollen that I could hardly stand. Wild beasts were around me, and savages, wilder than beasts, roamed on every hand. Winter was coming on, and death in its most terrible forms stared me in the face—I sat down and thought of my lonely and exposed situation. But I could not weep, my heart was too full of woe. I remembered the events of the few preceding weeks. The husband of my choice had been murdered, and I was not allowed the melancholy privilege of closing his eyes and seeing his remains decently interred. My little property had been stolen, and when within a few days' march of sympathizing friends, I was captured by savages, and after three weeks of indescribable sufferings, found myself wandering solitary and destitute in the midst of the wild prairies—my cup filled to overflowing, but I resolved to live in hope, if I died in despair.

After remaining three days in the place where I first concealed myself from the Indians, I went to the grove about half a mile distant and built a little house of bushes and grass. Here I lived nine days. My only food was the blackberries which grew on bushes around. I quenched my thirst at a spring near by. My wounds pained me exceedingly, and I wasted to a mere skeleton, for want of proper nourishment. It rained upon me seven nights in succession, and my little house was unable to protect me from the cold storms. More than once I spent a sleepless night, perfectly drenched in rain; while the wolves within five steps of me, would make the woods ring with their frightful howlings. They would also follow close behind me when I went to the spring during the day; I expected some time to be devoured by them; but they are great cowards, and I could easily frighten them away.

When I slept, I would dream of seeing tables spread with an abundance of every kind of food: but when I stretched forth my hand to satisfy my hunger, the effort would awaken me, and I would find myself weeping bitterly.

When absent from my house on the 12th day after my escape, some New Mexican traders passed by on their way to the Camanche settlements. While standing on a small hill, looking after them in order to be sure they were not Indians, I was discovered by some three or four of the party who happened to be some distance behind. They immediately came towards me and soon understood my situation. They kindly offered to take me with them. The Mexicans put me on a burro and gave me a blanket and some men's clothing in which I dressed myself very comfortably.

Two or three days after this we came in sight of a band of Camanches, and as it was not safe for me to be seen by them, I was left behind in the ravine, with the promise that the Mexicans would return for me at night. As they did not fulfill their promise, I started toward their camp; about midnight, while wandering among the bushes, a Camanche Indian passed within twenty steps. I thought I was a captive once more, but fortunately the savage did not see me. I threw myself on the ground and waited for day. In the morning I started again for the camp of the Mexicans, but before I reached it I was discovered by one of the trading party who was herding the animals. This man is a Puebla Indian, of San Ildefonso, and is named Juan Jose. To him, more than to any other man in the party, I owe my present freedom.

He told me the camp was full of Camanches, and if they saw me it would be impossible for the party to save me. He made me lie on the ground while he covered me with dried grass. I lay here all day, and at night crept forth to quench my almost intolerable thirst. Juan came and brought me some bread, and told me not by any means to leave my hiding place the next day. That day dragged slowly along, and I could hear the dreaded Camanches passing and repassing and shouting to each other; at night Juan returned, bringing another blanket and several loaves of bread, and told me that I must remain here for seven or eight days longer, as the party were obliged to go further on, and could not take me unless I was willing to become a captive once more. I saw the party disappear the next day, and it seemed as if my hopes of rescue disappeared with them. But I resolved to wait till the appointed time was up.

In a ravine near by I found a large log which had been left burning; this fire I kept alive day and night till the Mexicans returned, and without it I should probably have frozen to death, as the weather had become very cold. I covered a hollow cotton wood stump with bark and leaves to keep out the cold wind. This stump was my house during my stay here. When I could endure the cold no longer, I would leave my house and run to the fire, I was afraid to stay there long lest the Indians should see me. The wolves soon found out my place of retreat, and frequently while I was in the stump, they would come and scratch around and on its top. The blackberries were very scarce here, and had it not been for the bread Juan Jose gave me, I do not see how I could have been kept from starving to death.

The eight days passed slowly by, and I knew not whether to give way to hope or despair. But on the 9th I heard several persons calling to each other. I feared they were belonged to the traiding party, and were on their return to New Mexico. They had lost the place where I was concealed, and were shouting to each other to attract my attention. I was so overjoyed that I rushed toward them unmindful of briars and sore feet. Juan gave me a fine horse to ride, and the whole party treated me with the utmost civility and kindness. On the 34th day of our return toward New Mexico, we reached the town of Pecos.—Here I met Major Carleton and Mrs Adams of the U. S. Army, who took the deepest interest in my comfort. Here I laid aside men's apparel, and was furnished with a supply from Mrs. A.'s wardrobe. After remaining at Pecos a few days I was conducted to Santa Fe by the son of Gov. Merriwether.

To Gov. M., and also to the American ladies of this place, I cannot be too thankful for their friendly sympathies and uniform kindness.

The past seems like a horrid dream. I have related nothing but facts, and no language that I can use can fully express the sufferings of mind and body which I have endured. My two brothers-in-law are still captives, and unless reclaimed will become as savage as the Indians. The Mexicans saw them with the Camanches, but were unable to procure their freedom. One is twelve years old, the other ten, and unless the strong arm of Government is lifted up for their redemption there is no hope for them.

SPECIAL ELECTION!!

Next Wednesday, Feby. 15.

See the election notice in another column.

As to the form of ballot, mode of conducting the election, meeting of the county canvassers, &c. see abstract of law in another column.

Friends of the Canals! You should all be at the polls.

THE CANALS AND BARNBURNER HYPOCRACY.—Let us recall briefly the history of Canal legislation: From 1835 up to 1839 the democracy had control of State legislation and had passed laws and made contracts to the amount of about $40,000,000. In the latter year, the state becoming bankrupt, it passed into the hands of the whigs to be wound up, but in 1842 the barnburners came into power again under the cry of '$40,000,000, debt and direct taxes.' Tho' the debts were contracted by them. On assuming power the barnburners passed what is called the "stop and tax law," by which the public works were arrested, contractors ruined, laborers thrown out of employment, to pay which, and to make repairs the people are now paying the "Mill tax," Essex county's share this year being $4777,00. In 1846 the constitutional convention assessembled and it was controlled by the barnburners who engrafted their anti-canal policy upon the constitution, utterly denying all possible aid to those works. In 1851, the whigs devised a law to borrow money on the pledge of the canal revenues, and money lenders were ready to advance on that security.—The celebrated stampede of the 17 Senators will be remembered. They resigned to defeat the law, and were themselves defeated at the polls at a special election.—The bill passed, money was obtained, and contracts were let, but the law was declared void by a barnburner court on a fictitious barnburner suit. And here, the barnburner pledge 'faithfully to execute' that very law on which that party was again placed in power, must not be forgotten.

The memorable session of 1852-3, will never be forgotten. It was a long continued and terrible struggle between whigs and hards as the friends of the canals on the one side, and the barnburners on the other, causing an extra session by their factious and bitter hostility. The latter were for a direct tax to build the enlargement. The whigs and hards contended the canals would build themselves if let alone. The result was the proposed amendment to the constitution now submitted to the people. It passed the Assembly unanimously, the barnburners professing to be satisfied with it, certain amendments proposed by them having been adopted, which amendments consisted in a pledge of the credit of the State in addition to the canal revenues, and an affirmance of the unconstutionality of the law of 1851 and a denial of all claim for damages under it. Now in view of this brief history, and of the hostility now manifested by the barnburners to the proposed amendment, our readers are requested to read an extract or two from the Report of the late Comptroller, Mr. J. C. Wright, the prince of barnburners, and of jackasses also. Nevertheless he is good authority in reply to the Old Settler, Post, Plattsburgh Republican, &c.

"It is admitted now by all the true friends of the canals in the State, that if the policy adopted in 1835, of applying their surplus revenues to the enlargement, instead of borrowing money, had been pursued, it would at this day have been completed without the addition of any new debt."

☞"But happily for the people of the State and the interests of that large class of citizens who have looked for the adoption of some safe, just and proper mode of accomplishing the desired object, the proposed constitutional amendment is presented."

☞"The confident hope is now indulged that the enlargement will be carried forward to an early and certain completion. It is based upon a sound system of finance; the revenues of the canals first to be applied to the payment of the debt and interest, and the faith of the State pledged to the capitalists who loan the money to do the work, that no failure of these revenues shall depreciate the value of their securities. It is a source of congratulation also, that the contracts for the performance of this great work, so long desired and so unjustly obstructed by the attempts to make its completion the source of personal aggrandisement and individual gain, are to be let under constitutional guarrantees that the lowest responsible bids are to be accepted. This will secure an economical and faithful execution of the work, and save the honor of the State from a repetition of the unfavorable results which followed a departure from this just principle in the lettings under the act of 1851."

"Irishmen Read."

Certainly, that is just what we want.—Read both sides, read, think and act independently. It is just what whigs have complained of that they would 'read' only the democratic side. We say, 'read,' but not the political essays of knaves put forth on the eve of election. 'Read,' but not those articles addressed to 'Irishmen' and 'catholics' as such. Irishmen have too long blindly followed a bogus democracy who have used them only for selfish ends. If they will 'read' they will find that the democracy have never appealed to them as men, as citizens, as AMERICANS, they have never asked their votes on principles and measures, have never showed them what the democracy have done for the Irish and catholics, but have ever addressed incendiary appeals to their passions, and those on the eve of election. 'Read?' certainly. Read, read, READ. We do not ask Irishmen to be whigs. We only say, read' and act understandingly. Is not that fair and honest?

NEUTRAL PAPERS.—Did any body ever know one that was not locofoco, and that too at the very moment when they should be true to their professions? Tho' three quarters of their support is furnished by whigs, tho' they pat this one on the back, speak a good word for another, call another clever fellow, and thus coax & steal from whigs, yet when important issues are at stake, when honor should of all other times control them, the cloven foot will stick out. Thus do whigs find in the hour of trial that they have been petting, nursing and keeping the breath of life in a scorpion. Such is a barnburner any way, and nothing else can be made of one. Unable to gain a living by publishing a party paper they get up a neutral and from their cozy flatteries, and their smirks and smiles, a slight acquaintance would think 'butter would not melt on their tongues.' But who that knows them well does not know that their political prejudices are beyond description, that their politics are pefered to their religion and kindred, forbidding them to vote for a father or brother if not of their faith. Hence the duty of whigs is plain. They should not furnish weapons for their own destruction. If such men cant find business within their own party for their support let them go about some other calling, and not under the mask of neutral, and 'clever fellow,' spunge out of whigs both a living and means of wrong.

BARNBURNER FALLACIES AND FALSEHOODS.—The following is the most exquisite complication of falsehoods and deceptions we have seen:

If the amendment to the Constitution was so framed as to protect the people against future taxation to pay the debt, it would look different; but there is no such guarantee and no such security.

Now 1. The law of 1851 overthrown as we have elsewhere stated pledged only the revenues of the Canals and capitalists were ready to loan their monies on that security. 2. The pledge of the State was inserted in in the proposed amendment on the express motion of the Barnburners, and in another place we quote John C. Wright, late Comptroller on this very point.

We find the above in a paper the editor of which we personally esteem so highly we wont name it.

Of Blackwood's Magazine, known all the world over, read by political foes as well as by political friends, and esteemed by each alike, even when dissented from as to its conclusions, nothing need be said—but that among Magazines it is what the Quarterly is among Reviews, in religion and politics. In classic literature, history, travels, antiquities, biography, poetry, criticism, fiction, philosophy, reviews, &c., it stands, and ever has stood, without a parallel. Even in this country, where its Toryism is opposed to every political sentiment of a Republican people, yet its sterling talent and seductive pages have always secured for it a large band of admiring readers.

Correspondence of the Republican.

MR. EDITOR.—Mr. somebody over the signature of "Prudence" seems to be firing away at random at some one about the different proposed Railroads from Plattsburgh south. Now who he is or what he is driving at I cannot hardly imagine. But would infer that he himself belong to what he calls the Boston or Steamboat interest and is also under pay. But perhaps I am mistaken which would not be very strange as he talks only by parables. Prudence talks as though passengers on their way south by Ausable Forks and Adirondac would be something over an hour behind the Boston or Whitehall train. From this one would infer that he himself belongs to Keeseville and was one of those who agreed something over one year ago to join a company making a road from Plattsburgh by Keeseville, Ausable Forks, Keene, Schroon, &c. to Albany, and afterwards joined with the Elizabethtown, Peru to go through their valley and Lewis, giving as a reason that they wanted the people of the valley of the Ausable to give Keeseville as Prudence calls it their business. Next we found Prudence if our inferance is correct being affraid if they joined any other company than the Boston. Boat or Whitehall. That Keeseville would not have the valley above always to pay her tribute, so he formed a copartnership with this same Boston Boat, Whitehall company, saying now people on the river above Keeseville, you must still give us tribute. The alliance is proved, but lo, Trambleu mountain was the depot, Keeseville still in the rear and must also pay tribute, so now we have many parables about self interest, self will and other divers projects. For one I wish that Prudence instead of talking about circuitous routs would give us the figures and showing up the actual difference of length in those different routes, give us facts and figures, freight and business, and less parables and show how he makes the back route some 50 miles further than Boston and Whitehall route, as his parables of one hour and ten minutes would indicate.

NEW SWEDEN.

The Great Snow Storm in England.

The snow storm in England, of the 3d, 4th and 5th of January, was almost beyond precedent. Writing of London, the Morning Chronicle says:

'It is currently stated that any longer continuance of the present inclement weather will entail the alarming probability of a failure in the supply of gas for the metropolis. The condition of the river below London bridge is now such that the colliers in the Pool cannot discharge their cargoes, the barges being in almost every condition frozen in, or so jammed up as to render it impossible to carry on the ordinary operations. The directors of several of the leading gas companies met yesterday for the purpose of determining what was best to be done under the circumstances. No decision was arrived at, and the only hope seems to be that the severity of the weather may moderate. The price of coals, we need scarcely add, is almost fabulous.'

A telegraphic dispatch from Manchester, dated the 5th inst., says: 'There is no express train from here to London to-night, as the line is closed in by snow. No London papers have arrived in Manchester to-day. The train which should have brought them is embedded in the snow between Crewe and Stafford, nor has any crew arrived here from Birmingham or London since the early mail this morning.

All traffic on the Bolton road is stopped; and the East Lancashire line is blocked up beyond Barry. The traffic on the Manchester, Sheffield, and Lincolnshire line is stopped at Guidgbridge; and three luggage trains are imbedded in snow at Glossop, one on the Stockport, and the one on the Statelybridge branch. The North Staffordshire line is blocked up at Macclesfield. The snow on the line is said to be sixteen feet deep. In many places in Manchester it is a yard deep. The snow fell all day, with fierce wind from northeast by east, but ceased to snow about 8 o'clock at night, and the wind fell at 10. Several accidents reported.

The snow was eight feet deep between Retford and Newark; the line of course impassible. The Midland and Lincolnshire train got snow-bound—All the lines, in fact, were impassable

Strange Coincidence.

We don't know but it is all right, but still there is a singular circumstance connected with the late destruction of the Collector's office at this place. Some six years since, when the Whigs came into power and a Whig was appointed for this place in the place of a Locofoco, about this season of the year, the office, books, papers, and everything connected with the business, was suddenly destroyed by fire. Now, scarcely were the appointments made, ere another similar calamity takes place! We don't suppose there were any iniquities to be covered up in either case, requiring the destroying angel to revisit us; but still it is singular.

The Whigs, we believe, have not suffered by a similar calamity, and for fear of future misfortunes, we hope the good people of the State of New York will see to it, that they are hereafter made the custodians of the State property.

Did any one ever think of the destruction of the Treasury Buildings at Washington, under like circumstances? We only ask for information.—Whitehall Chronicle.

It is a strange coincidence, and 'truth is often stranger than fiction.'—[Ed. Rep.

☞The Washington Union lends it columns to the abuse of Gen. Scott. That the organ of General Pierce, whose highest recommendation is, that he served under Scott in Mexico, and fainted before he got into one battle, and was taken suddenly sick as another was approaching, should abuse the man whose military exploits have been lauded on both sides of the Atlantic, is perfectly characteristic. If Gen. Scott is to be assailed, it is appropriate that the attack should come from an administration containing such heroes as Pierce & Cushing, whose only renown is that they both fell in the enemy's country—one with a horse, and the other with a damsel.—Boston Atlas.

The Canals. Items.

☞We have just been into Clinton and Franklin Counties, and the 'Softs' are generally opposed to the Canal Enlargement.'

—Collector Smith is moving every element against it, and there is no doubt but that the National Administration is bringing its power to bear against it. Of all the National Administrations we ever had, the present is the meanest. John Tyler's will shine in history compared to it.

☞THINK OF IT.—We understand the Old Settler has given out that he shall take a bold stand at the polls in opposition to the Canal Enlargement. We should advise him to think it over first. We remember that he used to harangue for free-trade but when he became a candidate he was forced to eat his own words. The Old Settler is ambitious and prospects fair, but if he carries out his announcement he will find it more earnestly treasured than his free-trade vagaries, and that it will be called up in judgment against him at a time when he would give thousands to recall it. We ask nothing for this advice, but it is well enough to—think of it

"ROB ME THE EXCHEQUER THE FIRST THING THOU DOEST."—The article under the above head in the Elizabethtown Post to which we referred last week, has been printed in extras and circulated in Franklin Co. in connection with the bugbear article in the Albany Atlas! We earnestly commend that paper and its whig supporters in Elizabethtown to the favor of the whigs of the county. If followed sufficiently faithful we shant have a whig party in the county over a year or two longer, and a whig Organ less than that time.

THE SPECIAL ELECTION.—The polls will be opened, conducted, closed, votes counted, and certificates made and delivered to the Supervisor, as at our annual fall elections.

—The Supervisors will meet at Elizabeth-town on the Monday after the election to canvass the votes of the county.

—Ballots will be forwarded from this office to every town in the county.

—Essex county is expected to give about 2000 majority for the enlargement.

THE VALUE OF A BARNBURNERS WORD.—In 1852 the barnburners were elected to office on a written pledge published in all the newspapers of the State, 'faithfully to execute the Canal law of 1851,' but they no sooner obtained power than they plotted the destruction of that law. The present proposed amendment to the constitution got up by a conference committee in which Whigs, Hards, and Barnburners united, and all agreed to its terms, and it passed unanimously, the barnburners professing approval. Now, the latter are secretly and publicly arousing opposition to its adoption.

THE OLD SETTLER.—We like the Old Settler—he is a jolly good fellow aside from politics. But he is a barnburner and like all of that faction, politics before religion, victuals, wife, family, or friends. When confined to his neutrality we wish him well. But when he pokes the cloven foot through the gratings he will get it rapped.

Look at This.

The following from the Albany Journal refutes the bogus article going the rounds of the papers from the Albany Atlas

ANTI-CANAL FALLACY.—The repudiated Auditor, who does up most of the Anti-Canal work for the Atlas, based an argument against the enlargement upon the assumed fact that while the Railroads have received $4,000.000 for Freight, the State receipts from Tolls have hardly exceeded $3,000,000. The inference intended to be drawn from this exhibit is fallacious, because while the Tolls may be but about three millions, the receipts from Tolls and Freight exceed nine millions; or more than double the amoubt received by the Railroads.

What has become of it all;

Business of Congress.

'Observer,' the Washington correspondent of the Ledger, says there is plenty of work already laid out to keep Congress in session till September. Among other measures, of no special public interest, are the following, all of which will lead to protracted debates:

1. Our Central American relations, the debate of which may last the Senate some three or four weeks:

2. Our Mexican relations, including the Isthmus of Tehuantepec.

3. The fisheries and reciprocity with Canada, which require an act of Congress.

4. A revision of the Tariff.

5. A revision of the Patent Laws of the United States.

6. The settlement of the question whether the privilege of levying a tonage duty shall be granted to the several States, in lieu of direct appropriations for the rivers and harbors.

7. The French spoilations.

8. The Texas debt bill.

9. The Pacific Railroad bills, (for there will be at least two or three, perhaps six or seven of the kind)

10. The Homestead bills.

11. The various bills, now already amounting to 107, for granting alternate sections of public lands in aid of railroads.

12. The Nebraska Territorial bill, with all its important collateral issues.

13. The bills for increasing the material and personale of the Navy.

14. The Bill for creating a retired list in the Army.

Finally, last, not least, Mr. Ewing's motion to alter the Constitution of the United States so asto abolish the Electoral College, and make the vote for President direct, by Congressional districts. Mr. Ewing has already been before the Committee on the Judiciary, to whom his motion has been referred, and the Committee will probably report in favor of the appointment of a Joint Committee of both Houses, to report a bill. Whether the measure is likely to be successful or not, I can not at this moment determine. I rather think it will be voted down; but strong arguments can be made in favor of it and it is certain that those arguments and the pressing of opposite views will consume time.

Allowing to each of the above measures but a fortnight's discussion—and some of them will be discussed for more than a month—we are already backed for thirty week's more, or about seven months and upwards, without allowing any time for the regular appropriation bills. Allowing but a month for all these, and we have the session extended till the middle of September. I can see nothing but the cholera that can possibly put an end to the long debates before that time.

The Best Fowls for Farmers.

My breed of fowls do not prove equally profitable; the Polands, being small and well fed, having lime and gravel and a little fresh meat, have laid more eggs than most other varieties; but when without meat the eggs have been few.

My Bolton Grays have eaten little and laid well, without sitting: but several litters of their chickens have all been eaten by the rats, and I have labored in vain to raise any where rats could not get to them.

The Golden Pheasants are more beautiful; have laid almost continually, and none of their chickens have been taken, though running upon the same ground with the Grays. The Gray chickens are weakly, while the Pheasants are too sprightly to be caught.

Guilderlands, after being with a cock of any variety, produced half breeds at first; but the second litter was obviously pure. They lay the largest egg, though less in number, and propagate their marks of purity like a wild original breed.

The Black Shanghais find no demand for, nor any satisfactory specification of their faults leaving us to reflect upon their likeness to an unfortunate race. The Dominique or Gray Shanghais seems every way valuable. The White are delicate, and do not rear as well. I had 7 chickens hatched from 60 eggs, and 5 of them lived; while nearly all of the Buff color hatched and are doing well.

I can discover no superior utility in the longer legs and necks of the Cochin Chinas, yet their great size and other faultless qualities speak volumes in their praise. Of the 8 vareities which I breed, the Buff Shanghais (sometimes called red, and yellow) I like best. With me they have reared the best, even the common dunghill not excepted. They have laid a good number of large eggs of the best quality, and have nursed their broods well. Those of the best stock weigh from 8 to 10 lbs. One of my breeders weighed 8 1-2 lbs., and another 9 1-2 pounds.

If the farmer who has not yards for separate breeding would supplant all others with this variety, it could not fail to increase his income. And when the hen fever shall be passed, and its high prices fall away, his chickens in common market would sell not for a shilling, but for half a dollar, and give a proportionable supply of the finest meat at home. Ohio Cultivator.

Mist, Fog, Frost.

Q. What is the cause of mist?

A. Current of air from the water coming in contact with colder land currents.

Q. Why are the currents of air from the land colder than those blowing over water?

A. Because the earth radiates heat after sunset, more freely than water, consequently the air which comes in contact with the land is colder than that which comes in contact with the water.

Q. Why are windows often covered with thick mist, and the frames wet with standing water?

A. Because the temperature of the external air always falls at sunset, and chills the windows glass with which it comes in contact.

Q. How does this account for the mist and water on a window?

A. As the warm vapor of the room touches the cold glass it is chilled and condensed into mist: and the mist, (collecting into drops,) rolls down the window-frame in little streams of water.

Q. Does the glass of a window cool down more rapidly than the air of the room itself?

PDF compression, OCR, web-optimization with CVISION's PdfCompressor

A. Yes; because the air is kept warm by fires, and by the animal heat of the people in the room; in consequence of which, the air of a room suffers very little diminution of heat from the setting of the sun.

Q. Whence arises the vapor of a room?

A. 1st.—The very air of the room contains vapor;

2nd.—The breath and insensible perspiration of the inmates increase this vapor; and,

3rd.—Hot dinners, the steam of tea, and so on, increase it still more.

Q. What is meant by 'the insensible perspiration?'

A. From every part of the human body an insensible and invisible perspiration issues all night and day; not only in the hot weather of summer, but also in the coldest day of winter.

Q. If the perspiration be both insensible and invisible, how is it known that there is any such perspiration?

A. If you put your naked arm into a clean dry glass tube, the perspiration will condense on the glass like mist.

Q. Why are carriage windows very soon covered with thick mist?

A. Because the warm vapor of the carriage is condensed by the cold glass, and covers it with a thick mist.

Q. Why is the glass window cold enough to condense the vapor of the carriage?

A. Because the inside of a carriag is much warmer than the outside; and the glass window is made cold by contact with the external air?

Q. Where does the warm vapor of the carriage come from?

A. The warm breath and insensible perspiration of the persons riding, load the air of the carriage with warm vapor.

Q. What is the cause of the pretty frost-work seen on bed-room windows in winter time?

A. The breath and insensible perspiration of the sleeper, (coming in contact with the ice-cold window) are frozen by the cold glass, and form those beautiful appearances seen in our bed-rooms on a winter morning.—From "Familiar science," edited by R. E. Peterson.

Sad Accident.—On the 31st ult., Mr. Wm. Anderson and a neighbor, each with double sleighs, came across the ice from North Hero to this village, and after transacting business during the day, left for home. When within some fifty rods of the Vermont shore, (between 9 and 10 o'clock in the evening) they came to a crack, and one of the teams, which was a little distance north of the other, passed over safely; while Mr. Anderson's team fell in, and Mr. A., who was in the water up to his shoulders, was so chilled before assistance reached him, that he expired within a few hours after being taken out. One of his horses was also drowned, Mr. A. was a steady, industrious man, and leaves a wife and children.—Plattsburgh Republican.

The Ladies Book,—This book is becoming more and more saught after by fashionable ladies. The present number not only contains its usual amount of instruction in needle work, but adds lessons in drawing. And what with its fashions and its varied reading, has a hold upon a large portion of the ladies which cannot be supplanted.

Book & Stationary House

IN NEW YORK,

On the Cash plan. Extensive sales and no Losses make it profitable to sell at very low prices.

Mason Brothers,

23 PARK ROW, opposite the Astor house

NEW YORK,

Offers one of the most extensive Stocks and complete assortments in the country of

Books and Stationary,

FOR CASH ONLY.

The amount of goods in our line purchased by country merchants is usually quite small compared with their dry goods hardware, and other bills; and this very circumstance absolutely compels jobbers in the book business, who sell on time, to get larger profits in order to make up for the losses and extra expenses necessarily involved in a credit business of small amounts. It is also easy for the merchant to make arrangements to buy his book bill for cash; though it might not be so convenient for him to purchase his larger bills in this way.

These considerations have led us to adopt in our business, from this date, January. 1854, the following principles, viz.: small profits, unvarying prices, and terms always cash.

Being ourselves the sole publishers of a number of the leading and most extensively selling School Books in the country, as well as works in other departments, our facilities are unsurpassed,

Call upon us, or send an order, and judge for yourselves, if the saving you can make by buying of us for cash is worth while.

Our location is very central, and easily found Stand on the Astor House steps, and look straight forward across the corner of the Park, and you cannot avoid seeing our signs. Remember, the name is

SHERIFFS SALE.

BY virtue of several executions issued out of the Supreme Court of the State of New York, to me directed and delivered against the property of Wm. A. G. Arthur, and Clark P. Ives, I have seized and taken all the right, title, and interest which the said Wm. A. G. Arthur & Clark P. Ives had on the 21 day of June 1853 or which they may since have acquired, of, in, and to the following described parcels of real estate:

1 'All that certain piece or parcel of land, situate, lying and being at the Lower Falls, in said town of Ticonderoga, described as follows, to wit: being the south west part of lot of land known as lot No. 5 in Kellogg's survey, of 40 village lots at the lower falls; beginning at the south west corner of a stone basement where it forms an angle with a wooden building, and runs thence along the wooden building and thro' the lot south 13 degrees west two chains & sixty-six links to the centre of the highway leading to Weedsville, thence along the same north seventy-eight and a half degrees west 69 links to the east line of a lane laid out two rods wide, thence along the same north eleven and a half degrees east two chains and sixty nine links to a stake, thence south seventy five and a half degrees east seventy four links to the place of beginning containing 19-100 of an acre, same more or less."

2 'All that certain lot, piece, or parcel of land, bounded and described as follows to wit: commencing at the highway 8 feet north of John McCormick's tailors shop, thence north along the highway 19 feet, thence westerly in a parallel line with McCormick's shop twenty four feet, thence southerly at right angles nineteen feet, thence easterly in a parallel line with said McCormick's shop twenty-four feet to the place of beginning; with the right to use the space between the grocery shop or building in common with others as a lane; same lot deeded by Wm. E. Calkins to Pat. McVeigh the 9th Septr., 1846, same lot and building now occupied by Marshall & Quin as a grocery."

3 'All that certain piece or parcel of land situate, lying and being in the town of Ticonderoga, beginning at a stake in the line between the land formerly owned and occupied by James Jones and Wm. Canfield, near a rock maple tree blazed, thence n'h 8° 45' west 14 chains 83 links to a stake, thence north 76° and 30' east 27 chains 96 links to a stake and stones, thence south 8° 45' west 25 chains 50 links, thence north 79° west 26 chains and fifty links to place of beginning, containing 53 acres of land be the same more or less."

4 'All that lot of land lying and being in the town of Ticonderoga aforesaid, and is known as lot No. 17 in McIntosh Patent as the same was laid down and distinguished by a map of said patent by Peter C. Bishop, special reference being thereto had, containing 190 acres of land more or less 5 Also all that other piece of land situate in Sumners Vale, town of Ticonderoga, county of Essex, and State of New York, distinguished and bounded on a map of said patent filed in the secretary's office by lot number 135, containing 94 1-4 acres."

6 "All the equal undivided 3-4 part of that certain piece or parcel of land situate and being in Ticonderoga aforesaid, known as the black lead lot in the Sumner vale Patent, known as number 134.

7 "All that certain piece or parcel of land situate, lying and being in the town of Ticonderoga, being part of what is usually called the John Carr lot in the Cockburn Patent in said town, and bounded as follows: beginning at a stake and stones on the East and West road, thence southerly along the line of said lot thirteen rods to a stake and stones, thence easterly to the line of lot number 17, thence northerly to the said east and west road, thence southerly along the middle of said road to the place of beginning, containing one acre and a half of land be the same more or less. 8 Also, all and singular that piece or parcel of land situate in Ticonderoga, and is a part of lot number 11, in McIntosh Patent, bounded as follows; Beginning in the west line of said lot in a road leading from Bly's saw mill westerly at a stake and stones, thence on said road east 5 chains to a stake and stones, thence south 19° 15, east 30 chains to a black ash stake and stones, thence 5 chains to a stake and stones in the west line of said lot, thence north 19° 15' west 30 chains in the west line of said lot to the place of beginning, containing 15 acres, reserving all mines and minerals. Also, all such reservations as are subject to a deed from Francis Arthur to Thomas Burns.

9 "All the equal undivided one-fourth part of lot No. 134, in the Sumner Vale Patent in the town of Ticonderoga, being the same premises deeded to said Wilson by John Porter, Jr., Dec. 20, 1842.

10 'All that certain piece or parcel of land situate lying and being in Ticonderoga, and bounded as follows: Beginning on the north side of the highway leading from the village at the Lower Falls, to the 4 corners west of A. P. Delano's store at a stake at the south-west corner of the village lot owned and occupied by Lucius Thatcher, from thence North along the line of said lot to a stake 16 rods from the place of beginning, thence westerly at right angles to a stake 7 1-2 rods, thence southerly on a parallel line with Thatcher's lot 16 rods to to the highway, thence easterly along said highway to the place of beginning, containing 3-4 acre of land."

All of which said real property I shall expose for sale, at public auction, at the Inn of Jacob Tappen in Moriah, in said county of Essex, on the 28th day of November next, at 12 o'clock at noon. Dated Oct. 15, 1853. 493 7w

Dr. Hunter's Medical Manual and Hand Book for the Afflicted—Containing an outline of the origin, progress, treatment and cure of every form of disease, contracted by promiscuous sexual intercourse, by self abuse or by sexual excess, with advice for their prevention, written in a familiar style, avoiding all medical technicalities, and everything that would offend the ear of decency, from the result of some twenty years successful practice, exclusively devoted to the cure of diseases of a delicate or private nature.

To which is added, receipts for the cure of the above diseases, and a treatise on the causes, symptoms and cure of the Fever and Ague.

Testimony of the Prof of Obstetrics in Penn. College, Philadelphia—"Dr. Hunter's Medical Manual."—The author of this work unlike the majority of those works who advertise to cure the diseases of which it treats, is a graduate of one of the best Colleges in the United States. It affords me pleasure to recommend him to the unfortunate, or to the victim of malpractice, as a successful and experienced practitioner, in whose honor and integrity they may place the greatest confidence.

JOSEPH LONGSHORE, M. D.

From A Woodward M. D., of Penn. University, Philadelphia—It gives me pleasure to add my testimony to the professional ability of the author of the "Medical Manual." Numerous cases of diseases of the Genital Organs some of them of long standing have come under my notice, in which his skill has been manifest in restoring to perfect health, in some instances where the patient has been considered beyond medical aid. In the treatment of Seminal weakness, or disarrangement of the functions produced by Self abuse, or Excess of venery, I do not know his superior in the profession. I have been acquainted with the Author some thirty years, and deem it no more than justice to him as well as a kindness to the unfortunate victim of early indiscretion, to recommend him as one, in whose professional skill and integrity they may safely confide themselves. ALFRED WOODWARD, M.D.

"This is, without exception, the most comprehensive and intelligible work published on the class of diseases of which it treats Avoiding all technical terms, it addresses itself to the reason of its readers. It is free from all objectionable matter and no parent, however fastidious, can object to placing it in the hands of his sons. The author has devoted many years to the treatment of the various complaints treated of, and with too little breath to puff,' and 'too little presumption to impose,' he has offered to the world at the merely nominal price of 25 cents, the fruits of some 20 years most successful practice."—Herald.

"No teacher or parent should be without the knowledge imparted in this invaluable work. It would save years of pain, mortification and sorrow to the youth under their charge."—People's Advocate.

A Presbyterian clergyman in Ohio, in writing of "Hunter's Medical Manual," says: "Thousands upon thousands of our youth, by evil example and influence of the passions, have been led into the habit of self pollution without realizing the sin and fearful consequences upon themselves and their posterity. The constitutions of thousands who are raising families have been enfeebled if not broken down, and the do not know the cause or the cure. Anything that can be done so to enlighten and influence the public mind as to check, and ultimately to remove this wide-spread source of human wretchedness, would confer the greatest blessing next to the religion of Jesus Christ, on the present and coming generations. Intemperance (or the use of intoxicating drinks,) though it has slain thousands upon thousands, is not a greater scourge to the human race. Accept my thanks on behalf of the afflicted, and, believe me, your co-worker in the good work you are so actively engaged in."

One copy, (securely enveloped,) will be forwarded free of postage to any part of the United States for 25 cents, or 6 copies for $1.—Address (post paid) COSDEN & Co., publishers, Box 196, Philadelphia. 478y

THE MARRIAGE STATE;

Shall Happiness and Health, or Misery and Sickness, attend it?

MOST STARTLING CONSIDERATIONS!

Reflections for the Thoughtful.

Strange that countless human beings exist and drag through life as do the beasts of the field, or the insects of the earth, evincing no more thought or reflection than though the noble faculties of mind were not vouchsafed to them.

Many such are husbands and fathers, upon whom are dependent the health, the well-being, and the happiness of a confiding and affectionate wife, with perhaps a family of children.

HOW OFTEN IT HAPPENS THAT THE

WIFE LINGERS FROM YEAR TO YEAR

In that pitiable condition as not even for one day to feel the happy and exhilerating influence incident to the enjoyment of health.

She may not be an invalid confined to her bed, or even to her room; as her pride, ambition and energy induce and nerve her to take personal charge of her household, even when her health will not admit of it; but she is nevertheless perceptibly sinking from day to day, and always ailing.

Thus, day after day, and month after month transpire. Her health daily sinks, till finally even the hope of recovery no longer remains. And thus

THE BLOOMING BRIDE,

But a few years ago in the flush of health and youth, and buoyancy of spirits, rapidly, and apparently inexplicably, becomes a feeble, sickly, debilitated wife, with frame emaciated, nerves unstrung, spirits depressed, countenance bearing the impress of suffering, and an utter physical and mental prostration.

Sometimes this deplorable change may and does arise from organic or constitutional causes. But oftener, by far oftener, to gross and inexcusable ignorance of the simplest and plainest rules of health as connected with the marriage state, the violation of which entails disease, suffering and misery, not only to the wife, but often

"UNTO THE THIRD AND FOURTH GENERATION," Transmitting CONSUMPTION, SCROFULA, HYPOCHONDRIA, INSANITY, GOUT, KING'S EVIL, and other diseases, as a

DREADFUL INHERITANCE

from the Parents.

And must this continue? Shall we be wise in all that concerns the cattle of our fields, our horses, our sheep, our cows, our oxen, the nature and character of the soil we possess, the texture and quality of our goods and merchandise; but in all that concerns ourselves as human beings, with human functions and passions, subject to great derangement, involving our future peace and happiness—in all that concerns the health and welfare of the wife of our affections, and the mother of our children; in all that concerns the mental and physical well being of those children, we should be immersed in the darkest and most

BENIGHTED IGNORANCE,

AS CULPABLE AS INEXCUSABLE!

How long shall this ignorance prevail so productive of its bitter fruits? How long shall the wife and mother be ignorant of the nature, character and causes of the various womb and sexual complaints, embittering her days by suffering—suffering often prolonged to years, eventuating in a complication of diseases utterly and hopelessly incurable? Shall we for ever close our eyes to the results of physiological science by which we may arrive at an understanding of ourselves as men and women, subject to serious life-long enduring diseases, and perpetuating them to our children.

LET EVERY WIFE AND HUSBAND PONDER!

No husband or wife need be ignorant of what concerns them most to know to secure their health and happiness. That knowledge is contained in a little work entitled

TROY, NEW YORK,

INVITES the attention of those who wish to purchase

DRY GOODS,

Carpets and Oil-Cloths.

Owing to the large increase of patronage, I have found it necessary from time to time, to make many improvements and additions to my store.

This spring I have united the stores No. 7 and 9, State St., making a spacious and beautiful room, fitted up expressly for the sale of all the various styles of ilks, shawls, Cloaks & Mantillas.

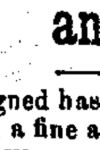
This connects with the main store, No. 202, River St., (the old stand occupied by the subscriber for nearly 30 years,) which is devoted to a general assortment of

STAPLE AND FANCY DRY GOODS,

comprising every variety to meet the wants of all classes of buyers. Besides these, four large rooms over the stores 200, 202 and 204 River St., are occupied as



CARPET WARE-ROOMS,

where I am constantly receiving the newest and most desirable patterns of Velvet, Tapestry, Brussels, Three-ply, Ingrain and Venetian Carpets. Also, Oil-Cloths of every quality and width, and every style of Drugetts, Rugs, Mats, Matting, Stair-Rods, &c.

All these departments combined making an extensive and complete Establishment, conducted on such principles, that customers can trade with confidence, and to their own advantage, my sales being always for cash, and the only price asked, being the lowest cash price. G. V. S. QUACKENBUSH.

Henry's Invigorating Cordial,

PURELY VEGETABLE IN ITS COMPOSITION.

This invaluable Cordial, is extracted from Herbs and Roots, which have been found after years of experience, by the most skillful Physicians, to be possessed of qualities most beneficial in the diseases for which it is recommended, and hence whilst it is presented to the public, as an efficacious remedy it is also known to be of that character on which reliance may be placed as to its safety. In cases of Impotency, Hoemorrhages, also Sterility, Menstruation, or Suppression of the Menses, Fluor Albus or Whites, or for arising from any cause, such as weakness from sickness, where the patient has been confined to bed for some time, for Females after Confinement, Abortion or Miscarriage, this Cordial cannot be excelled in its salutary effects; or in loss of Muscular Energy, Irritability, Physical Prostration, Seminal Weakness, Palpitation of the Heart, Indigestion, sluggishness, Decay of the Procreative Functions, Nervousness, &c., where a TONIC Medicine is required, it will be found equal, if not superior to any Compound ever used.

DEBILITY

TO FEMALES.

Henry's Invigorating Cordial is one of the most invaluable Medicines in the many Complaints to which Females are subject. It assists nature to brace the whole system, check excesses, and creates renewed health and happiness. Less suffering, disease and unhappiness among Ladies would exist, were they generally to adopt the use of this Cordial. Ladies who are debilitated by those obstructions which females are liable to, are restored by the use of a bottle or two, to bloom and to vigor.

YOUNG MEN.

That solitary practice, so fatal to the existence of man and it is too young who are most apt to become its victims, from an ignorance of the danger to which they subject themselves, causes

NERVOUS DEBILITY.

Weakness of the System, and Premature Decay. Many of you may now be suffering, misled as to the cause or source of disease. To those, then, who by excess have brought on themselves Premature impotency, Involuntary Seminal Emissions, Weakness and shrivelling of the Genital Organs, Nervous Affection, or any other consequences of unrestrained indulgence of the sensual passions, occasioning the necessity of renouncing the felicities of lessening both mental and bodily capacity, Hold! Henry's Invigorating Cordial a Medicine that is purely Vegetable, will aid nature to restore those important functions to a healthy state, and will prove of service to you. It possesses rare virtues, is a general remover of disease, and strengthener of the system.

AS A TONIC MEDICINE,

it is unsurpassed. We do not place this Cordial on a footing with quack medicines, and, as is customary, append a long list of Recommendations, Certificates, &c., beginning with "Hear what the Preacher says," and such like; it is not necessary, for "Henry's Invigorating Cordial," only needs a trial to prove that it will accomplish all we say.

THE GENUINE "HENRY'S INVIGORATING CORDIAL,"

is put up in 8 oz Panel Bottles, and is easily recognized by the Manufacturer's signature on the label of each Bottle (to counterfeit which is forgery) as well as his private Seal on the cork of each Bottle.

☞ Sold for $2 per Bottle; six for $8; $16 per dozen

MORSE'S

COMPOUND SYRUP OF

Yellow Dock Root.

THIS is a Purely Vegetable Compound, scientifically prepared from the best Roots and Herbs of the Materia Medica, and has gained a universal reputation for the following effects, viz: Regulating and Strengthening the Liver and Digestive Organs, and Cleansing the Stomach and Bowels, and curing all Bilious Diseases, Liver Complaints, Dyspepsia, Indigestion, Costiveness, Tick Headache, Fever and Ague, Jaundice Nausea Loss of Appetite, &c., and causing the food to nourish the system every part. PURIFYING THE BLOOD, and thoroughly curing all Humors Cutaneous Eruptions, Scrofula Salt Rheum, Erysipelas, Scald Head, Canker, Pimples on the face, Blotches, Ulcers, Tumors, Mercurial Diseases, Cancers, &c. Regulating the secretory Organs, and by enabling them to perform their proper functions, preventing and curing many painful and dangerous diseases; strengthening and Quieting the nervous system, thus allaying Nervous Irritation, and curing all Diseases of the Nerves, as Hysteria, Neuralgia, Cramps &c.

It is invaluable in the cure of all FEMALE COMPLAINTS, as weakness, general debility Irregularity, Obstructions, Swelling of the Feet, Limbs, Joints, &c., caused by weakness; also, Lung and Throat Complaints, as Colds, Coughs, Asthma Consumption, &c., also, Dropsy.

Having made use of the Compound Syrup of Yellow Dock Root, prepared by C. Morse and Co., either ourselves or in our families and finding it to be a very salutary and effectual preparation, we do most cheerfully recommend it to the public as a very valuable medicine.

E. Bourne, Esq., Cashier National Bank, Providence, R. I.; A. W. Spencer, Esq., Cashier Lime Rock Bank, do do Rev. William Phillips Rev. J. B. Richmond, C. S. Jones editor Providence Gen. Advt., Wm. Field, M. W. G. M. Cyrus Fisher, M. E. H. P. James Hutchinson, G. S. Dea., V. J. Bates, Doct. Benj. Kelly and one hundred others of the most respectable families of Providence.

This certifies that I have for a number of years been acquainted with the composition and mode of manufacture of Morse's Compound Syrup of Yellow Dock Root. I have also been acquainted with its modus operandi in disease, and can say that in a large class it is admirably calculated to remedy the class of Diseases for which it was designed. It is especially valuable in Liver Complaint, and all its attendant symptoms, it excites to healthy action the Liver, removes Torpor, and inactivity of this organ, and stimulates healthy action in all the system. As a Depurator or purifier of the Blood it has no superior.

The Old English Oak.

There is hope for the Old Ireland!

The norman from afar;
The axe at last has cut the root,
The tyrant tree must fall;
With listning ear and steady gaze,
They watch the quivering top,
And tyrants tremble at the thought,
Which way the tree may drop.

Four hundred years this oak has stood,
In mean and steady gaze.
One hundred is its rightful age,
So now this oak must die.
Its fruit of crowns is past,
At the first shake 'twill fall,
One exile then can buy them all,
Blood-bought crowns, John Bull's, and all.

No man of sane mind now
A lease of one would take,
The chains of brave Smith O'Brien
More glorious are to me,
Than all the crowns of that degenerate tree.
The tyrants now in conclave meet,
They are hatching kingly plots,
But they know that death is on their track.

Next year within St. James' court
The nobles will attend,—
Prepare ye sons of eighty two,
Let truth her banner lend;
Then bow thee not for place or power—
For home and justice stand.

And if the noble beauty Queen
Chance to alight thee, as she does,
Repay her wrath with easy scorn,—
Her lords with cool disdain:
And fear may teach the tyrant heart
What Truth could never gain.

EMIGRANT.

Ticonderoga, Jan. 18th, 1854.

Mary.

Affectionately Inscribed to my Friend, Rev. H. Gregg, of Brockport, N. Y.

BY WILLIAM M. BURLEIGH.

GONE home! gone home! how few the years
Earth's rough or flowery paths she trod—
Now from its trials, pains, and fears,
Summoned to dwell for aye with God!
In the glad morning of her life,
While faith and love glowed fresh and warm
Called to the guerdon from the strife,
To the still haven from the storm!

Not hers the gloomy doubt that throws
Its shadows o'er the spirit here;
But perfect trust and sweet repose,
In heaven's unclouded atmosphere!
Not hers the weary war with sin;
Through Christ triumphant, on her brow
The victor-wreath 'twas hers to win,
Beams with unfading glory now!

Not hers the bitter sob that speaks
The heart that bleeds o'er severed ties:
No tear-drop glistens on the cheeks
Fanned by the airs of Paradise!
From sin, temptation, sorrow, free,
Walking amid the white-robed throng,
Her glad soul pours exultingly
The passion of its joy in song!

Oh, better thus, than still to know
The doubt, the fear, the weary strife,
The care, the grief, which ever throw
Their shadows o'er the sunniest life!
Better, than all delights that Earth
Can o'er her children's pathway shower,
Though sweetest hopes, each day, have birth,
And purest pleasures, every hour.

For she is safe! our feet may err,
Wide-straying from the narrow path—
She walks in light, and over her
No power to blind, the tempter hath.
Our hope may fail, but hers hath found
Fruition in her home on high:
We still must strive—but she is crowned
With life and immortality!

Weep not for her!—but, patient, tread
The bright'ning path her spirit trod
Home to His clasping arms, who said
"The pure in heart shall dwell with God!"
By faith, that looks beyond our skies,
By the sweet sanctities of prayer,
Press on!—and Love's dissevered ties
Shall re-unite forever there!

Parents and Children.

Don't Tell Mother.

BY AUNT HETTIE.

'I wonder what mother will say to us?"
'I don't know!" was the hesitating answer.
'Suppose we don't tell her!'
'Well, say we don't: she'll be sure to scold us if we do!'

This was the dialogue I overheard between two little boys, as they passed under my window. They were bright-eyed, rosy-cheeked boys, and their nice, comfortable style of dress showed a mother's care. 'They have done something wrong,' I said, looking after them, 'or they would not be afraid of telling mother;' and tho' they were both strangers to me, I felt as if I wanted to stop them, and say, 'Don't hide what you have done from your mother, as you wish to be happy; go and tell her all about it, for as long as you conceal anything from her, it will hang like a weight about your heart, and steal away your peace.'

The next evening I was repeating the incident to some little friends, when one of them said, 'I can't tell mother everything I do, because I am so afraid of her scolding me.'

'You must feel conscious, then, of doing things that deserve reproof. Your mother never scolds you for trying to do right.'

'I know that very well; but it does not make the matter any, or make it any easier to bear the scolding. Now, to-day I went with the boys, at recess, to see the new building near the school-house. Mother had told me not to go, because she was afraid I'd get hurt; but I did not. Yet if I were to tell her I had been, she would scold so dreadfully I should not hear the last of it for a week; and I don't see any use in telling her, when I know it will only bring a storm about my ears.'

'But though you escape being scolded are you happy while concealing anything from your parents? Can you meet her loving glances, and enjoy her kindness, without feeling guilty at the thought that you are deceiving your good mother?'

'O, I used to feel so, when I was younger; but I don't mind it now,' he answered.

'Don't mind deceiving your mother!' exclaimed Harry. 'Well, you must be made of different stuff from what I am!—Brother Ned and I tried to cheat mother once; but we found it such hard work, I don't think we shall ever try it again.—We were going to school one morning, when we met Jim Brown and two other boys, who told us they were going to play truant, and spend the morning in the woods. They knew I was too little and weakly to go with them; but they tried to persuade Ned to go, urging that 'Mother need know nothing about it.'

"'Harry will never tell of us—will you Harry?' asked one.

'No, that he won't!' said Jim; 'he doesn't tell tales. And here is a top for you—the one you wanted yesterday.'

'I promised 'not to tell,' and taking the top, started for school, my brother going with the other truants. I hadn't gone a dozen yards before I turned back, and handing the top to Jim, said, 'Here, take it back. I don't want to be hired to keep silence!'

'He means to tell!' said the others; but Ned said, 'Not he—he's above that!' and so we parted. The boys made for the woods, and I went to school; but never did a summer morning seem so long to me before. The thought that we were cheating mother, and fear that something would happen to Ned on account of his wickedness, haunted me. I felt that I was just as guilty as he, because I had not begged him not to go. I sat with my eyes upon my book; but I could not study. If anything happens to Ned, how can I ever look mother in the face again? I thought.

'At last school dismissed for the noon recess, and I looked out anxiously for some signs of Ned, but all in vain; and as I walked home, for the first time in my life, I felt afraid of meeting mother. My heart was heavy enough when I reached the house, when who should I see sitting on the door stone watching for me, but Ned! I could not understand why it was that he looked so happy, when I was feeling so guilty, and all on his account; but I soon found out how he had lost the feeling of guilt. 'Why Ned!' I said, running up to him, 'are you here? What did mother say about your getting home before me? I spoke low, for fear she would overhear us; but Ned answered boldly and cheerfully, 'O, mother knows all about it! I could not have any peace until she did. The woods looked very pretty, and the air blew fresh and cool; but I did not feel like playing, because mother thought I was at school, and when I sat down under a tree, to hear the birds sing, they only seemed to say, 'He is cheating his mother: naughty boy to cheat his mother!' and the butterflies and the bees seemed to buzz out, 'Go home and tell your mother!' and somehow it seemed that if I didn't tell her they would. Mother says it was my guilty conscience that made me feel so. Well, I couldn't stand it; so I left the other boys, and came home and told her all about it.'

'O, I am so glad you have told!' I said, 'for I was so afraid something dreadful would happen to us! It was better to tell mother!'

'Yes, I feel much happier since I told her all. I expected she would whip me; but I thought I would rather take ten whippings than bear the guilty feelings I had while I was deceiving her. She did not whip me, though, because she said, she thought what I had suffered in my mind would keep me from doing so again; and I feel sure it will. Just think how kind mother is, and how wicked and ungrateful it is in us to try to deceive her!'

'Since then, neither Ned nor I have ever tried to hide anything from mother.'

Carrie Mason.—A Reminiscence of the Early Days of Central New-York.

BY T. W. BROWN.

From "Temperance Tales and Hearth Stone Reveries."

But a few days since, my eye fell upon a thrilling description of a contest with wolves. The details stirred some bitter memories of the past. The very name of wolf causes a shudder to creep over me, and brings back a train of most bitter associations. A dark horrible vision falls upon the inward soul, its freezing incidents as vividly portrayed as when enacted long years ago.

Reader, indulge an old friend in a brief tale of facts. Draw your chair closer to the fire, and I will tell you a story of other days which will stir your blood.

You did not know Carrie Mason? Why I ask the question, for years have gone by since she died. I knew her and loved her. Who could know her and not love her?

Carrie! I turn back into the past, when the world was all a paradise, and she its loveliest angel. She was beautiful—how beautiful! No thing of earth was more so. I will not attempt to describe her. No light cloud, tripping the summer sky, was ever more graceful; no snow-flake ever purer; no warbling bird, or dancing stream, ever more happy and gleeful. And yet she had a spirit which soared; and her blue eye, as mild as the depths of a summer sky, would melt in tears or flash indignantly at a tale of wrong. She was surpassingly beautiful in form and angelic in mind. Such was the guiding-star of my youth—the lovely flower which beamed out in the wilderness. Do you wonder that I loved her? I love her now, is embalmed in memory, and bow in silent homage to her pure spirit as it lingers around me in the winter of life. Carrie Mason of earth is dead. I know that. But the Carrie Mason of heaven lives, and I love her as I love things of heaven.—Years have swept by, and sifted the snow among my locks, and my eye looks dimly out upon the world; yet that one bright dream lingers as freshly in the heart as when treasured there in the springtime of life.

Closer with your chair. Heap on more fuel, for chills creep over me as that blast goes by. I can hear the snow sift thickly against the window-panes. I know that a thick white snow-shroud is silently weaving over the leafless, bladeless, flowerless earth. So has time woven a shroud over all the bright hopes of my youth.

The drifts are piling up! Away back of the village church heaps lie upon the graves of the dead. Carrie lies there. I see the spot now, even as I watch the blaze and listen to the wind without. The snow there gathered is not purer than the spirit of Carrie.

That was a fierce one! The night winds have a language. I understand it. Long, long years I have sat here and listened. As they go past they whisper, and I wander in thought until the ashes gather on the waning hearth.

How the winds shriek and wail! They have a touching moan. It makes me sad to hear them sigh, and I people the night air with spirits of grief. Now a faint, solemn dirge goes whispering by. There! hark to a shriek which leaves a freezing sense of some fearful crime committed.—And yet the winds are company for me.—They have been sole companions for years.

Let the winds murmur, for I should miss their faintest whisper.

Forty years ago!

Time has fled fleetly. It seems but a day, and yet I look in the glass across the table and see the withered features of an old man. Is it myself that is old? I draw my hand over a face of wrinkles, and then lay it upon a smooth bald head. Around the ears are thin white locks, and a well-worn staff glistens in the fire-light.

Years have gone by, while the heart has been dreaming as though there were no winter after the springtime of youth.

Forty years ago, as I was saying, my father's family settled in one of the counties of central New York. All was a wilderness, wild, grand, beautiful. We located fifteen miles from the farthest pioneer 'clearing.' The shadows are around us, the tall trees and the picturesque mountains.

Many a summer's day have I toiled up the rugged mountain sides, and looked out upon a sea of green as it swayed and rolled in the summer breeze, or watched the waning sun as it lingered to bathe the whole wilderness in a flood of gold and crimson. All was very beautiful.

The axe had opened a space in the forest, and a cabin of that good old time afforded us shelter. It looked new and comfortable, and its chimney-smoke curled gracefully up and vanished with the shadows of the forest. The blackened heaps smoked and crackled, and deep in these wild woodsolitudes the wilderness blossomed and smiled in the presence of yellow harvests. A happy home was there. The birds sang at earliest morn, and the deep river near the door murmured sweetly at nightfall. There were gentle whisperings in the old trees. As they bowed their heads to the winds, a holy anthem floated up from the vast temples where nature breathed fresh and pure from the hand of God. The wild flowers bloomed even by the very door-sill, and the deer stopped in the forest edge to gaze upon the smoke of the chimney-top.

'Twas a beautiful home in the old wilderness!

The spring brought us neighbors.—'Twas a great day when a settler came in and purchased land across the river. He received a warm welcome from pioneer hearts, and by the ready agency of pioneer hands a comfortable log-cabin peeped out from the dense woodland of the opposite bank. I watched the smoke from its open roof as the sun went down, and eagerly looked for it the next morning. But it was not the smoke that I cared so much about. I only knew that it curled upward from the fire side where dwelt as beautiful a creature as ever bloomed away from the busy world. And so I watched smoke, and dreamed as I watched the river, until the moon threw down its beautiful pathway of glimmering silver, and listened for the sound of familiar footsteps.

Across the river was the home of Carrie Mason. Before the mellow haze of autumn had dropped its dreamy hue on leaf and stream, I learned to love her, and to tell her so in the still moonlight of that hidden home.

The leaves faded, and the winter winds swept wailingly through the forest. But we cared little for that. The snow fell thick and fast, but our cabin homes were bright; and our hearts were alive with happiness and hope. When the spring opened and the birds returned, we were to be married.

I was happy.

A winter evening party in a new country!—Did you ever attend one, reader?—There are large hearts and open hearts there to be found.

Carrie and I were invited to attend the party. A rude 'jumper' had been built, and in this we started. Ten miles were soon passed, and we found ourselves in as merry and happy a throng as ever gathered on a frontier. The huge fire crackled on the wide hearth, and old-fashioned fun and frolic rang out until a late hour.

The moon had gone down when we started for home, and the snow began to fall. But we heeded it not, for we talked fast as the stout horse sped on the forest path.

Carrie grasped my arm and whispered, Hist! The wind shrieked over the tops of the dark pines, and I laughed at her fears. But she nestled closer to my side and talked with less glee. In spite of all my efforts, a shadow would creep over my own spirits.

The road wound among a dense growth of pines which shot upward and veiled even the sky from our path. The old pines swayed and moaned in the increasing storm and the snow fell fast and thickly. I touched the horse with the whip, and he moved briskly through the woods.

Again Carrie grasped my arm. I heard nothing save the storm, and yet I was started as the horse gave a quick snort and struck into a gallop. With a heart full of happiness, I had not yet dreamed of any danger.

Again the horse snorted in alarm.—There was a sound above the storm, and I felt my cheek grow white and cold, and the blood rush quickly back to my heart.

Clear, wild, terrific, it burst out in an unearthly howl, like a wail from the world of fiends. I heard it. Its dismal, heart-chilling echoes had not yet died away on the storm, when it was answered by a score of throats.

Merciful God! a pack of wolves were around us! In those dark woods, at night and the storm howling overhead, a score of hungry throats were fiercely yelling each other on to the feast.

For a moment, my senses reeled, but I felt Carrie leaning heavily on my shoulder, and aroused.

But what hope was there? I had no weapon, and the maddened devils were in the path before and behind us. There was but one chance, and that was to push ahead.

That was a slim chance, and I grew sick as I thought of Carrie. The quiet cabin and the happy hearth at home, flashed swiftly through my brain.

At that moment a dark shadow glided up by the side of our sleigh, and so wild and devilish a yell I never heard since.—My flesh crawled on my bones. A cold shiver ran to the heart and crept over my head as though the hairs were standing on end. Two orbs glared out like demon lights, and I could hear the panting of the eager beast.

The horse needed no urging. At the act, that infernal chorus again burst out in earnest, and their dark forms leaped in lengthened strides on either side of us.—The speed was fearful, and yet the yelling devils kept pace. Turning to speak to Carrie I saw a dark form leap into the path and as we sped ahead, his teeth shut with a vice like snap, missing Carrie, but stripping her shawl from her shoulders. With a shriek she clung to me, and with my arm I saved her from being dragged out of the seat.

God! It was horrible! We were to be eaten alive!

I became maddened—reckless. I shouted to the horse, now reeking with foam, and went at a fearful rate. The stumps and roots, and uneven places in the road, threatened every instant to wreck our sleigh.

Home was three miles ahead! Oh for a world to give for home!

As the road struck the river bank, it turned shortly almost on the brink of a fearful precipice. Here was a new danger.—It was a difficult place, and not only danger of upsetting but of being hurled into the river.

There was a path across this angle of land where logs had been drawn out. It was a mile nearer this way to the clearing than by the river, but I durst not attempt it with the sleigh.

On we sped! that infernal pack neck and neck with us, and every now and then jaws shutting like steel traps close to our persons. Once round that angle, and I hoped!

How madly I shouted to the noble brute as we neared the turn in that race, for life.

Heavens! the infernal devils had crossed ahead, and hung in dark masses in the path. A demon instinct seemed to possess them.

A few rods more! The wolves seemed to feel that we had a chance, for they howled more devilishly than ever.

With a swoop, the horse turned in spite of me. The left runner struck high on the roots of a pine, and the sleigh swung over like a flash, burying us in the new snow. Away sped the horse, and my heart sunk as I heard his quick footsteps dying out towards home!

But I had no time to think. In truth, I can remember nothing distinctly. It all seems a nightmare which I never can forget.

The maddened pack had followed the horse, and shot by us as we were thrown out upon the bank, for a number of rods. A shriek from Carrie arrested them in their career, and in an instant they were upon us. I gave one long desperate shout in the hope of arousing the folks at the cabins. I had no time to shout again. Their hot breath burned upon me, and their dark masses gathered around like the shadows of doom. With a broken limb I wildly kept them at bay for a moment; but fiercer and closer surged the gnashing teeth. Carrie lay insensible on the ground before me.—There was one more chance. A stunted pine grew upon the outer edge of the bank, and shot out nearly horizontally over the river below, full a hundred feet from the surface.

Dashing madly in the teeth of the pack with my cudgel, I yelled with the waning energy of dispair, grasped Carrie with one arm, and dashed recklessly out upon the pine. I thought not of the danger. I feared not. I braved the fiends to escape a greater. I reached the branches and breasted deer, as I heard the fierce howl of the baffled pack.

I turned my head, and God of mercy! a long shadow was gliding along on the trunk to our last refuge. Carrie was helpless, and it required all the strength of intense despair to hold her, and remain upon the slippery trunk. I turned to face the wolf—he was within reach of my arm. I struck with my fist, and again those fearful jaws shut with a snap as my hand brushed his head. With a demoniac growl he fastened upon the shoulder of Carrie! Oh for help! for a weapon, for a foothold upon earth, where I could have grappled with the monster!

I heard the long fangs crunch into the flesh, and the smothered breathing, as the wolf continued to make sure of his hold! Oh, it was horrible! I beat him over the head, but he only deigned a munching growl. I yelled, cursed, wept, prayed; but the hungry devil cared not for curses or prayers. His companions were still howling and whining, and venturing out upon the pine. I almost wished the tree would give way.

The wolf still kept his hold upon Carrie. None can dream how the blood hissed as it swept through my knotted veins. At last the brute, hungry for his prey, gave a wrench, and nearly threw me from the pine. Carrie was helpless and insensible. Even the crunching teeth of the monster did not awaken her from the deathly swoon into which she had fallen.

Another wrench was made by the wolf, and Carrie's waist slipped from my aching grasp, leaving me but the hold upon the skirt of her dress. The incarnate devil had not released his hold, but, as if aware of danger beneath, retained his grip on the shoulder of Carrie.

The end had come! My brain reeled. The long body of the wolf hung downward like a dark shadow in the abyss, fast wearing out my remaining strength. The blood gushed warmly from my nostrils, and lights danced and flashed across my eye-balls.—The overtasked muscles of the hand would relax, and as instantly close convulsively upon the eluding skirt. I heard a tearing as of stitches. The black mass beneath writhed and wrenched, as if to deepen the hold. A sharp cracking mingled with the humming noises in my head, and the dress parted at the waist! I shrieked as I heard the swooping sound of the fall of the black devil and his victim, as they shot down, down into the darkness. I heard something like the bay of the old house-dog, and the firing of guns, and heard no more.

* * * *

Weeks and months passed away before the fearful delirium of that night left me. I returned to consciousness in my father's cabin, an emaciated creature, as helpless as a child. My youth had passed away, and I was prematurely old. The raven black locks of twenty had changed to the silvery ones of eighty years of age. Look on this arm that clung to Carrie! It is withered. I never have raised it since that night. In my dreams I feel again that fearful night, and awake, covered with the cold, clammy sweat that gathered upon me while on that pine.

The neighing of the horse, as he dashed into the clearing, had aroused the people at home. The empty and broken sleigh told a brief story. The howling of the wolves arose on the blast, and with guns, and the old house dog, they rushed to the scene.—They found me senseless upon the trunk, covered with blood, and a wolf feeling his way towards me. In turning at the sound of their approach, he slipped, and went down upon the ice.

Our people looked long for Carrie Mason, but did not find her until next morning. They then went down on the ice, and found her corpse. The wolves had not picked her crushed bones—I thanked God for that. The fall had partially broken the ice, and the oozing water had frozen and fastened her long black hair as it had floated out. The wolf had not released his death-grasp, and his teeth were buried in her pure white shoulder.

The spring sunshine, and birds, and green leaves had come again, as I tottered out.—My sisters led me to a grave on the river's bank—the grave of all my youthful hopes, and of all that I loved. The wild flowers were already on the sacred mound. I wept over and blessed them, for they were blooming upon the grave of Carrie.

Such was the fate of my first and only love.

There never was but one Carrie Mason.

☞ A singular phenomenon occurred at Royalstown, Vt., during a recent snow storm. While it was snowing fast, and the wind high, a white appearance in the air resembling a flock of wild geese was observed, but it was soon ascertained to be balls of snow collected in the air by a thousand whirlwinds. They increased in size and number for about twenty minutes, when they fell to the ground, covering something more than an acre. On examining the spot where they fell, balls were found from one to 20 inches in diameter.

SHIP BUILDING IN BATH.—From the Daily Mirror, or Bath, Mo. we learn that ship building in that city, the present season, will be carried on more extensively than usual. A fleet of thirty ships, averaging about 1200 tons each, are now either in process of construction or contracted for which, at that estimate will make a total of 39,000 tons, within about 10,000 tons of the build of the whole district the past year. It is thought that the build of Bath for 1854, will be at least double that of the preceding year.—Boston Advertiser.

the democracy, or is there not?—Ed. Rep.

From the Richmond Examiner, (Dem.)

The Modern Law of Treason for the Party.

There was a time in the history of the Democratic party, when the defence of an Administration was left to the independent press of the country, and not to an obsequious central organ—when it was considered the duty of every editor to support the principles of his party, rather than the men in power. Cabinet officers were then regarded as men, not at all superior to the rest of the human family, and to point out their errors was esteemed anything rather than an assault upon the President. Now, however, the Washington Union proclaims, that to point out the violations of party principles by cabinet officers, is to assail the President and to strike a blow at the welfare of the party. Cabinet officers are regarded as the high priests of democracy—as august personages to whom editors and legislators, from Senators to state Assemblymen, are to bow, with the humility of eastern slaves before the Satraps of the Sultan. Their word is now the law of the party, and although the oracles speak in strange and unknown languages to democratic ears, they must be obeyed. It is treason, rank treason, to denounce any man in Washington, who exercises the least influence in the distribution of the spoils. We wish to know what officers we can with impunity assail, if they prove incompetent or unworthy?—We know that it is an aggravated case of high treason to call the Union a self-constituted, flexible, unscrupulous flatterer of every member of the cabinet—and heaven forbid that we should ever utter such an opinion—but we do not know whether the punishment, in the event of insolence, of a negro coachman, belonging to the Secretary of the Treasury, would be visited with all the pains and penalties of an assault upon his master. We know, also, that to hold up to the execration of the honest democracy of Virginia, a conspirator against a woman's all—her character—is a deadly sin; but we have not yet learned whether it would be safe to quarrel with his underlings, or whether it would not be deemed a violation of the spirit of the Baltimore platform.—What is the Union's standard of treason? How much can we commit without being hung in chains? Who is exempt from the legitimate criticism of the press and who is not? are questions of fearful import. Why does the Union keep the country in the dark? Why are editors, who are in the habit of uttering their candid opinions about public men and measures, kept groping in ignorance and stumbling into treason traps and felonious assaults upon one or the other of the Union's masters?

In advising the President to dismiss the unreliable and unpopular members of his cabinet, in order to restore harmony to his party—in advising the resignation, or bow-stringing of Guthrie, we care not which, we have, we know, committed an offence of great magnitude in the eyes of the Union. We are gratified in knowing that we have. But still we wish from that paper a full and explicit definition of its law of treason. Humanity, and the spirit of our institutions, alike demand that there should be clear, distinct, and simple laws relating to all offences. Men now tottering on the verge of destruction, whose skulls may, in ten days, be split by the withering wrath of the Union, might be saved by a speedy publication of the Union's law of treason against the administration. The criminal code of Draco has been, for centuries, the synonyme of oppressive tyranny, because it was not intelligible, by reason of its position and the smallness of its written characters. Unless the Union will render its ideas of political treason intelligible, it will enjoy with posterity, the unenviable reputation of the most cruel of law-makers, and the most abhorred of legislators—if legislator it was. To guide the steps of the unwary, to protect the unsophisticated from hidden snares, to save the outlaws of the press from the clutches of the Executioner General of the cabinet, we publish what we humbly conceive to be the revelations of the Union upon the subject of 'Treason against the Administration,' with a few words about traitors and their doom.

TREASON WITHOUT THE BENEFIT OF CLERGY.

I. To proclaim, publish, or to utter in any manner whatever, that vile Jeffersonian heresy or maxim, 'Principles, not Men,' as utterly subversive of the modern maxim, 'Perish the party—God save the officeholders'

II. To hint that any of the members of the cabinet are not entitled to as much respect as the President, or that they can, by any possible means, commit a blunder or an improper act.

III. To speak disparagingly of the brilliant, refined and delicate manner in which Mr. Secretary Guthrie, conducted the correspondence with Bronson, or to decline to award him much praise for the masterly manner in which he connected and associated the administration with a dirty squabble in New York about spoils.

IV. To defend that noble, persecuted, and brave old modern Dentatus, Daniel S. Dickinson, for the spirited and heroic manner in which, amid freesoilers, white-washed hypocritical abolitionists, and shortboys, he has clung to the constitutional rights of the slaveholder.

V. To refuse respect or belief to the declaration of the Union, that Daniel S. Dickinson must hereafter be ranked by the democratic party with such men as Tallmadge and other apostates, because he refused to unite with those who, by treason and desertion, conspired with Van Buren to defeat General Cass in 1848.

VI. To deny that the Van Burens—especially John, the freesoiler—are entitled to more respect and esteem than the aforesaid outlawed, excommunicated traitor and heretic, D. S. Dickinson.

VII. To declare that the Union, having produced nothing but dissension and confusion in our party, does not deserve to be rewarded by ALL the fat jobs of printing in Washington.

VIII. To deny that the Washington Union does not deserve to be regarded as a safe party organ, as, from its position and means of support, it can never reflect the sentiments of the party—where the party and members of its cabinet differ upon a question of policy or principle.

IX. The true way to overwhelm Nolan is to defeat the President, upon the well known principle of organ-grinding—"love me, love my dog."

Under these premises, their following conviction has been long since entered:

I. DANIEL S. DICKINSON.

We gather the following miscellaneous items:

SUSPECTED CHARACTERS.

I. Senators Atchison, Weller, Bright, and men equally true to the south.

II. All who voted against Forney.

III. All who voted for Beverly Tucker, in the House of Representatives.

IV. All who voted for do. do. in the Senate.

MEN WHO CAN DO NO WRONG.

I. The members of the Cabinet.

II. Those who swear by the Cabinet.

GOOD MEN AND TRUE.

I. Martin and John Van Buren.

II. John W. Forney.

III. William J. Brown.

IV. Short Boys,

V. Repentant Freesoilers.

PRINCIPLES AND OPINIONS.

I. The Pacific Railroad.

II. The doctrines of the soft shells.

III. Whatever the Cabinet avers to be right is right—the party and the principles of the party to the contrary notwithstanding.

IV. The interference of the Federal Government with the politics of a State.

Above we have given the Union's opinions upon all subjects relating to the Administration.

From the influence of such a paper, we desire to rescue the proscribed. The welfare of the Democratic party demands that other words than those of honied flattery and adulation should reach the ears of the President. He has done nothing to impair the affection and respect in wich he was held by the party at the commencement of the Administration. But dissatisfaction and discontent now exist—one and both have been produced by members of the Cabinet and the innumerable follies of that most worthless of organs, the Washington Union.

COMPTROLLER'S REPORT.—This is quite a useful and interesting document. Among other items we find the report of the Commissioners for laying out a road from Clinton County to Carthage in Jefferson County from which we learn that out of an appropriation of $10,000 dollars, $7,000 have been expended towards building the road; $1903,99 for personal expenses and services of Commissioners; about $700, to Hon L. Stetson, as counsel, and the balance for board, surveyors, &c., &c. We go in for Commissioner under the next appropriation!

In regard to the policy of this and other appropriations in Northern N. Y. the report says:

"It is believed that the State bounty for internal improvements has not been more justly employed, than in aid of the efforts to improve the navigation of the streams which have their rise in the almost impenetrable regions of Northern New York.

The vast tracts of timber land in that portion of the State, have heretofore been comparatively valueless to individual enterprise or the State. (as the owner of a great portion of the lands) in consequence of the great difficulty in using the streams for transportation of the logs to the mills below. But the small appropriations made for these objects have contributed to the removal of many of the obstructions and now large quantities of valuable timber from those far northern regions find their way to a profitable market."

HON. GEO. RICHARDS.—The young Senator from this district, occupies a high and honorable position in the State Senate.—As a testimonial of the estimation in which he is held we perceive that he is on three or four different committees. He is thus alluded to in sketches of the Senators" in a widely circulated journal:

The Fourteenth district is represented by George Richards, a whig in politics and a lawyer by profession. He resides in his native town of Warrensburg, Warren county, and is thirty two years of age. His father, Hon. Peletiah Richards, has been a resident of the same town more than half a century. He was originally, we believe, from the State of Connecticut and of Welch ancestors. The Senator elect graduated at Union College, Schenectady, studied law with Joshua A. Spencer, of Utica, and was admitted to the bar at Rochester, in 1843. He was elected District Attorney for Warren county in 1847; and in 1851 was chosen a member of the Assembly. In person Mr. Richards is of the medium height, light complexion, and of a pleasant disposition. Although not brilliant as an orator or debater, his remarks are generally marked with that sound sense and good judgment which commend them to favor and respect. He enjoys a decided personal popularity among his constituents.

THE SOFTS AND THE NEBRASKA BILL.—The Jeffersonian, (Hard,) says:

"All the softs can do, is to pray to Marcy for deliverance from the sore strait into which that ugly customer, the Nebraska bill, has brought them. But we don't believe that old "Patch" can save them this time. He would rather have met the sooty old gentlemen who is said to have a formidable pair of horns, a long tail, and a cloven foot, all alone in a dark night, a little before time he expected to be called for by that renowned personage, than to have had that same Nebraska bill thus unceremoniously thrust in his face, just at this inopportune time, when the New York hards are making such a rumpus at Washington."

WHIGS NOT ALL DEAD.—The legislature of Maine has just elected a whig Gov. and U. S. Senator.

WISCONSIN.—We are indebted to Geo. Gary for a copy of the Message of this state to the legislature on the 11th ult.

Senator Douglass and Internal Improvements.

We have read the letter of this democratic leader to Gov. Matteson of Ill., on the subject of Internal Improvements. He says: "Those portions of the Union most deeply interested in internal navigation naturally feel that their interests have been neglected, if not paralized, by an uncertain, vascillating, and partial policy."—He then proceeds to discuss the constitutional question and vindicates whig arguments and whig policy unanswerably. The difficulty of getting an appropriation through Congress, the probabilities of a Veto, the ignorance of those entrusted with the expenditure of the money, the consequences to life and property, the consequent hindrances to business and growth of the Western States, are all suitably enlarged upon. He then says, (☞"In addition to these facts, it should be borne in mind that a large and intelligent portion of the American people, comprising, perhaps, a majority of the democratic party, are in the habit of considering these works * * a violation of the creed of the democratic party." He concludes, therefore, "that the policy heretofore pursued has proven worse than a failure." Exactly—all true—and yet Senator Douglass calls himself a democrat. Notwithstanding whigs are with him on this question, he has done his utmost to oppose them, and tho' vetos have met him in the face from democratic Presidents only, and tho' the obstacles to be overcome in getting an appropriation thro' Congress have all existed in the democratic party, Senator Douglass has had no small share in keeping that party in power, and we presume meditates no change of policy in this respect. Instead, he proposes a system of Internal Improvements by States and the levying of a tonnage duty to pay the expense. And thus, rather than unite his interests with the whigs, he proposes a system that, if adopted, will be the source of endless annoyances between the States, and end in civil wars and the disruption of the Union, if not in fact so designed. A great Western Republic is no more visionary than a Southern Empire in the days of Aaron Burr. This scheme of the Senator is a weak invention, will prove "worse than a failure," and the Senator himself is not merely a demagogue but a "little giant" in truth—smaller than we ever supposed.

When the Whig party changes its principles so far as to differ with us on measures of great national importance, we shall leave the party. We shall follow our principles into whatever party they lead. We would not exchange our independence for the position of the Senator.

TOWN MEETINGS.—Annual town elections are close at hand. Are our friends ready? Have they reflected and consulted together? Laying aside all prejudices, and passions, all personal animosities, and personal ambition, are they prepared to go into town meeting unitedly, cordially, and successfully? Success is what is wanted, and all passions, prejudices, local and personal ambition, and rivalries should give way to this great end. We have suggested to whigs to be considerate towards Adamantines and Abolitionists, and again renew the suggestion, not in a dictatorial spirit, but as worthy of consideration. As to the barnburners, give them "No quarter!"

W. H. TITUS & Co.—We call the attention of Northern merchants to the card of this firm in another column. The name of J. W. Macauley and C. E. Brown will be recognized as old, familiar acquaintances. The former went to the city from Ticonderoga, and the latter from this place. By diligence and uprightness, they are now partners in one of the heaviest firms in New York.

☞We have the largest and best paying list of subscribers in Crownpoint of any in this country. For this we are very much indebted to H. H. Havens, Esq., counselor at law of that place. We are, also, under obligations to C. Fenton, Esq., for numerous favors, who, tho', a democrat, is just one of the finest men we know of.

PIERCE IN 1848.—It turns out that Pierce wrote a letter to the Barnburners in 1848. Its contents are not known as the letter is said to be lost! There is little doubt that Pierce long ago placed himself in the power of the Van Burens, and the Hards were sadly taken in by his nomination.

Irishmen Read.

The New York Day Book.—During the campaign of 1852 when the democratic Organ of this place, used to parade its flaring capitals, 'Irishmen Read,' the above paper used to be quoted as the Native American Organ of the whigs and General Scott.—Recently that paper has wheeled into the support of Gen. Pierce.

Now-a-days what does the Gazette sings:

THE NEW YORK DAY BOOK.—This paper has vastly improved in tone and character since D. A. Wright, Esq. has become connected with its editorial management. It has cast off its Native Americanism ranting, and Hard Shell stubbornness, without sacrificing a bit in patriotism and anti-sectional feeling. We notice also that its local department is conducted with increased spirit. Its Washington Correspondence seems to be among the ablest that appears in its conferers. Its literature, original and selected, is of the choicest character, and no wonder that under the effort of all these improvements, its proprietors are called upon to enlarge their field of operation—Accordingly they are about doubling the size of their daily and weekly, and the "Day Book" is now on the eve of stepping in the first ranks of New York journalism.

"Since D. A. Wright, Esq. has become connected with its editorial management;" the dodge is contemptible. Under the editorial head appears,

"N. R. Stemson and D. A. Wright, editors." Mr. Stimson has been and remains the editor. But the Gazette says 'it has cast off its Native Americanism ranting.' Not at all. The following is from that paper of the 31st ult, and was no doubt before the editor of the Gazette when he penned the above puff.

"If the American people have no other gift, they are at least good judges of patriots. No bogus article can be palmed off upon them. If they fail to detect the pretender on his first landing upon our soil, or on the occasion of his first public dinner, they will surely ere long find him out by his every day life and conversation.

And we are sorry to say that few modern European patriots can stand the criticism of the American people. ☞The leaders of the Irish, Hungarian and German revolutions of 1848 have already visited this country, and though they have our sympathies and our good will, though they had every advantage for making a favorable impression, the feeling of the most of our citizens, as soon as the popular enthusiasm had subsided, was that of dissappointed expectation. The distinguished foreigners did not come up to their standard of what a liberal ought to be.

We append the following from the Malone Jeffersonian, the Organ of the Hards, of Jan 24.

The New York Day Book.

Early last winter, while the direction which official favor and patronage at Washington were to take, under the new administration, was a matter of uncertainty, the Day Book took very strong ground against free soilism and the coalition. We published and commended some of its articles. But since then it has become the advocate and organ of Native Americanism, and the patron and defender of such agitators as Gavazzi, and months ago we denounced the course which it was pursuing. It is no wonder that Day Book is now found opposing and slandering the national democracy of New York. Mitchell's Citizen, the American Celt, the New York Freeman's Journal, the Boston Pilot, and other Irish American journals, are opposed to free soilism in all its phases, and avowedly side with the national democracy, which is enough to carry over to the coalition so rabid a Native American sheet as the Day Book. it couldn't possibly go or sympathize with a party which Irishmen in America almost universally sustain. Native Americanism and free soilism are natural allies, and it is not surprising to see them thus cordially co-working together.

The exposure of one 'Short Boy' at least is complete.

TAXES! Taxes!! Taxes!!!—This is the cry of the Barnburners in opposition to the canals, yet they imposed the present tax, not to enlarge the canals, but to pay damages to contractors, and make repairs, their plan in the legislature a year ago was by direct tax, and they stood out to the last moment; they destroyed the law of 1851 which pledged only the canal revenues, and money lenders were ready to loan their money; they, proposed the clause in the proposed amendment pledging the State credit, and the late comptroller approved it in his annual report to the Legislature from which we quoted last week. This cry is all gammon—there will be no tax as long as the barnburners are kept out of power.

BUSINESS OF KEESEVILLE.—We looked in upon Messrs. Green and Conro's establishment the other day and were surprised at the increase of business. Since we have been in Keesville it has doubled. They have built a large addition to their machine shop, and contemplate still further additions in the spring. They are enlarging their foundry, and otherwise extending their facilities for meeting increased orders.—They have three steam engines in the course of completion, one for California to run a flouring mill being built by Bordwell and Co, another for Canada, &c.

This is a fair index of the increase of business at large in Keesville during the last year or two.

THANKS.—Gov. Seward will accept our thanks for a pamphlet copy of his Address before the American Institute in N. Y.

And Hon. Geo. Richards for a copy of the Report of the State Treasurer.

And Hon. S. A. Douglass for a copy of his letter to Gov. Matteson of Ill.

☞The Adamantines are begining to organize, in many counties in the State.—The following, which we copy from two leading journals of that party, shows that there is a determination abroad for action at the next town meeting.

Seasonable and Sound Advice.

We advise our friends in the different towns to [illegible] independent nominations—select good and capable men—pay no attention to the overtures of those who have alienated themselves from the Democracy [illegible] all will come out right. Let us organize and be successful in electing our candidates in all of the [illegible] county, but it is important that we [illegible] bands of our brethren [illegible] cause Republicans.

These are capital suggestions. Applicable every where throughout the state. Democrats have every thing to lose, and nothing to gain by coalition with fanatics for the mere sake of spoils. Consistency, not less than respect for themselves and duty to the principles for which they contend, forbid any renewal, on a small or large scale of the disreputable bargain of 1849, with the faithless renegades of '48, and their despicable allies of the 'soft' gang. Nothing but disgrace and deserved defeat can result from such combinations. They ought to be frowned upon and repudiated by the democracy, in every town and ward in the state.—[Albany Argus.

TO GOOD TO KEEP.—The following letter sufficiently explains itself. Some years ago we obtained a small judgt. against a poor but unfortunate debtor and the following is in reply to a dun for costs and services. To make it complete we should say that the writer is considered a knave of the first water. Whether it is practible for lawyers of York State if a note is sent to them to collect to collect it & keep it all & then want oliant to pay over the cost and their services," 'this deponent saith not.' If it is, we hope this disclosure of their reputation in a sister state will induce them to 'mend their ways.' If the 'lawyers of York State' act on the motto of 'get all they can and keep all they get,' we have learned it several years too late to benefit our 'estate.' But to the letter. ——Feb. 13, 1854.

MR. J. TARBELL,

SIR If you will send me the Note or execution I will send you the amt. you claim for cost and trouble which I think I am entitle to if pay cost and your fee and think it is easear for you to obtain the execution and send to me than it is for me to go to the trouble to send to the Justice who tride the case and pay out two or three dollars for a certificate of Judgemt Rendered Against * and now if you chose to send me $2,00 Keep the execution you may or else Send the Original papers. Presume you Wood bee very glad to keep the hole amt and then Want me to pay 4,46 besides but apprehend I Shall not the lawyers tell me here that you must produce the execution and deliver it to me if I pay you for costs and fee and therefore I demand it if pay you have ben told it is practible for lawyers in York State if a note sent to them to collect to collect it and keep it all and then want cliant to pay over the cost and their servises your letter without post paid.

Europe.

The following items may be interesting, and perhaps lead our readers to turn to their books.

The entire of Europe contains 250,000,000 inhabitants, with an area of 3,800,000 square miles.

Country	No Inhabitants	Sq. Miles	Army.
Russia,	70,000,000	7,000,000	800,000
Sweden,	4,000,000	170,000	50,000
Norway,	2,000,000	120,000	12,000
Denmark,	2,000,000	22,000	40,000
Holland,	4,000,000	13,000	80,000
Belgium,	4,000,000	11,500	50,000
Austria,	37,000,000	258,000	300,000
Prussia,	15,000,000	106,000	200,000
Switzerland,	3,000,000	17,500	40,000
France,	36,000,000	200,000	500,000
Italy,	22,000,000	120,000	50,000
Turkey,	23,000,000	700,000	400,000
Gr't Britain,	27,000,000	120,000	200,000

It will be seen that in Europe the power of a state does not consist in numerical numbers nor in its territorial limits. We suppose, however, under the influence of democracy the rule is different in America. The more slaves and slave territory Mexicans and Indians we bring into our "glorious Union," the greater and stronger the Republic. With them, it is, 'presto—change,' and Mexicans and Indians become enlightened republicans and good democrats. Democrats? Pshaw!

Excuse this digression. Great Britain, France, Russia and Turkey are the leading powers in Europe now as they will be in the approaching contest. The pride of France is her army, and of Great Britain her navy. Except the U. S., no single nation can match either.

Transactions of the N. Y. State Ag. So. for 1852.—We acknowledge with pleasure the reception of this volume, and commend it to every farmer, and every inhabitant of the county. The report of the Survey of the County by W. C Watson, Esq., of Port Kent, President of the Essex Co. Ag. Soc'y, occupies about 250 pages, and is a production of absorbing interest, embracing its early history, as well as its soil, climate, productions, &c., &c. The report is replete with interesting facts, valuable statistics, &c., and is written in a pure, elegant and powerful style. It should be issued in a book by itself.

Fatal Railroad Accident.

A very serious accident occurred on the [illegible] at Chateaugay, on Tuesday last [illegible] Scott of Waterford in this State, in attempting to get on a freight train under motion, missed his hold on the car, and his foot was caught by the wheel [illegible] crushing it to atoms & fracturing the leg above the knee. [illegible] for some 80 [illegible] train of the Superintendent finding the [illegible] of the accident, [illegible] where the train stopped to wait for another to pass, and returned [illegible] for the purpose of [illegible] Scott supposing that [illegible] and being in haste to get along on business, and though [illegible] informed of the [illegible] of the train, made no effort to get in. His wife was immediately telegraphed, and physicians from this place summoned, but owing to a failure of the telegraph and in the cars both, they did not leave here till nearly, darkness. They found him in the position above described, and after consultation proceeded to amputate the leg below the knee, but the unfortunate man died in the operation.

As soon as he was taken in, E. P. Smith Esq. was called in for the purpose of assisting him in making his will. We understand he was a lumber merchant and is worth of considerable property.—[Magog Paladium.

MRS. PUSSY'S ANNOUNCEMENT.—The advertisement contains the following spirited announcement, which does its authors infinite credit.

TO THE PUBLIC: Whereas, my husband, Edward H. Pussy, has falsely advertised that I have left his bed and board, and that he will pay no debts of my contracting, &c. this is to inform the public that the aforesaid Edward H. Pussy had neither bed nor board for me to leave, he having been living at the expense of my father; and further, under pretence of procuring money to pay his way to Birmingham, Connecticut, he borrowed a dollar of my father, and with that paid for his living advertisement against me, and even after this dastardly act, he took all the money I had, and borrowed every cent in my mother's possession, and left town. For the past three months he has been kept from nakedness and starvation by the exertions of myself and relatives; he squandered in dissipation all the money his auburn laziness would allow him to earn. The scamp need not have advertised that he would not pay debts of my contracting, for the public well knows that he would not even pay his own.

He is a lazy, ungrateful, loafing scoundrel; not content with living at the expense of my relatives and borrowing their money, he publishes an outrageous lie—His bead and board, indeed! If left to himself, his bed would be nothing but a board, and I should not be much surprised if the bed he dies on were made of boards, with a strong cross-beam overhead.

SARAH A. PUSSY.

THE LATE M. L. FOSTER.—The following is from a letter to the editor from a friend of the deceased:

VERGENNES, February, 13, 1854.

J. TARBELL, ESQ.,

DEAR SIR;—I have just heard of the death of a much esteemed friend of mine Moses Lee Foster, of your place. Than his,—a nobler heart never throbbed in the breast of man—but alas! we may not grieve, for inexhaustible time is urging us onward and new trials and duties, await us. We can only therefore offer a sigh and a tear to his memory ere we commit ourselves to the on-rushing tide, which will soon hurry us to where the luster of his name will eclipse me'en by its supreme effulgence; requiescat in pace. * *

PROF. MOORE'S CONCERT.—On Monday eve was largely attended by our most intelligent and music loving citizens. Our people have found out now that they are not dependent upon foreign lecturers, or musicians for their entertainment. The result will be the more zealous encouragement of home talent. The Professor's class gave assurance of talent and application, and entertained the audience with a great variety of pieces, [illegible] and complicated, patriotic, [illegible] &c. Young Mr. Jerome with his violin drew down the most decided applause of the house, as well from [illegible] appearance as the skill with which he performed.

Will's Cornet Band.—Keeseville has a fine brass Band, Harry Wills leader. The instruments are new and nice. The members are men of rare musical talent, and bid fair to build up a first class band. The village is serenaded every fair night, and the music shows astonishing progress.

Rev. Mr. Mattocks of this place, goes to Malone next week by invitation to repeat his lecture delivered on The Life and Times of Oliver Cromwell.

Mortgage Sale.

WHEREAS, Henry Haile, then of the town of Crownpoint in Essex county, by a certain Indenture of mortgage executed and bearing date the 7th day of February, A. D. 1849, and with the usual power of sale therein contained, and duly recorded in the office of the clerk of the county of Essex, in vol. O of mortgages on pages 364 and 365 on the 4th day of June, 1849, at 3 o'clock, P. M., to secure the payment of five hundred dollars and interest, did duly grant, bargain, sell and convey to Jeremiah Powers, then of the town of Pittsford, county of Rutland and State of Vermont, certain premises described in said mortgage as follows, to wit:

"All that certain piece or parcel of land situate, lying and being in the town of Crown Point, in the county of Essex and State of New York, being sub division lot in a larger tract of land granted by letters patent, bearing date on the 7th day of August in the year of our Lord 1764, to Captain Robert Grant, which said sub-division lot hereby intended to be sold and conveyed is described and distinguished on a map and survey of the said tract of land granted as aforesaid to the said Captain Robert Grant, and filed in the office of the clerk of the county of Essex, on the 9th day of December, 1835, as lot number thirteen (13) and is bounded and described as follows, to wit:

Commencing at an iron-wood stake and stones in the easterly bounds of lot No. 17, in the possession of Isaac Russell, and runs thence south-easterly fifty-four chains and sixty five links to an iron-wood stake and stones in the westerly bounds of lot No. 32, in the possession of Howard Barrows; thence south-westerly twelve chains and forty-one links to an oak stake and stones in the west bounds of lot No. 24, in the possession of Nathan B. Sprague; thence north-westerly fifty-four chains and twenty-five links to an iron-wood stake and stones in the east bounds of lot No 23 in the possession of Stephen L. Herrick, thence north easterly fifteen chains and eighty-seven links to the place of beginning—containing seventy-six acres and one-tenth of an acre of land be the same more or less."

And, whereas, on the 17th day of May, 1853 the said mortgage with the moneys unpaid thereon were for a valuable consideration, and by an instrument in writing of that date sold and assigned by the said mortgagee to Charles F. Hammond, John C. Hammond and Allen Penfield of Crownpoint aforesaid.

And whereas, default has been made in the payment of the moneys secured to be paid by said mortgage, and there is now claimed to be due on said mortgage at the time of the first publication of this notice, (being the date hereof,) the sum of six hundred and seventy-five 97-100 dollars ($676 97.) and no proceedings at law or equity having been had or instituted to recover the same or any part thereof.

Now, therefore, notice is hereby given, that in pursuance of said power of sale contained in said mortgage, and of the statute in such case made and provided, said mortgaged premises hereinbefore described, or so much thereof as shall be necessary to satisfy the amounts due on said mortgage together with the costs and expenses of foreclosure will be sold by public auction at the hotel kept by J. A. Benedict, in the town of Crownpoint and county of Essex, on the 16th day of May 1854, at 10 o'clock in the forenoon.

Books and Stationary,
FOR CASH ONLY.

The amount of goods in our line purchased by country merchants is usually quite small compared with their dry goods hardware, and other bills; and this very circumstance absolutely compels jobbers in the book business, who sell on time, to get larger profits in order to make up for the losses and extra expenses necessarily involved in a credit business of small amounts. It is also easy for the merchant to make arrangements to buy his book bill for cash; though it might not be so, convenient for him to purchase his larger bills in this way.

These considerations have led us to adopt in our business, from this date, January 1854, the following principles, viz: small profits, unvarying prices, and terms always cash.

Being ourselves the sole publishers of a number of the leading and most extensively selling School Books in the country, as well as works in other departments, our facilities are unsurpassed.

Call upon us, or send an order, and judge for yourselves, if the saving you can make by buying of us for cash is worth while.

PROCLAMATION!

Know all men by these presents that I,

James A. Walker,

of Burlington, Vt., have just returned from the Boston and New York markets with the best selected assortment of Ladies, Gents, Misses, Boys, Youths and Childrens ever offered north of the cities, and have removed from the store lately occupied by me in Bank Block, to two doors east, same block, (one door West of I. D. Bixby & Co.) where I shall offer them at my usual low prices; having a large share of my goods expressly for me at the best manufactories in New England. I am enabled to sell a good article and WARRANT it, at a very low price. I have now on hand every variety of Boots and shoes, all of which I will sell at a very small advance on the original cost.

Boots and Shoes

[illegible] out of the Supreme Court of the State of New York, to me directed and delivered against the property of Wm. A. G. Arthur, and Clark P. Ives, I have seized and taken all the right, title, and interest which the said Wm. A. G. Arthur & Clark P. Ives had on the 21 day of June 1853 or which they may since have acquired, of, in, and to the following described parcels of real estate:

1 'All that certain piece or parcel of land, situate, lying and being at the Lower Falls, in said town of Ticonderoga, described as follows, to wit: being the south west part of lot of land known as lot No. 5 in Kellogg's survey, of 40 village lots at the lower falls; beginning at the south west corner of a stone basement where it forms an angle with a wooden building, and runs thence along the wooden building and thro' the lot south 13 degrees west two chains & sixty-six links to the centre of the highway leading to Weedsville, thence along the same north seventy-eight and a half degrees west 69 links to the east line of a lane laid out two rods wide, thence along the same north eleven and a half degrees east two chains and sixty nine links to a stake, thence south seventy five and a half degrees east seventy four links to the place of beginning containing 19-100 of an acre, same more or less."

2 'All that certain lot, piece, or parcel of land, bounded and described as follows to wit: commencing at the highway 8 feet north of John McCormick's tailors shop, thence north along the highway 19 feet, thence westerly in a parallel line with McCormick's shop twenty four feet, thence southerly at right angles nineteen feet, thence easterly in a parallel line with said McCormick's shop twenty four feet to the place of beginning; with the right to use the space between the grocery shop or building in common with others as a lane; same lot deeded by Wm. E. Calkins to Pat. McVeigh the 9th Septr., 1846, same lot and building now occupied by Marshall & Quin as a grocery."

3 'All that certain piece or parcel of land situate, lying and being in the town of Ticonderoga, beginning at a stake in the line between the land formerly owned and occupied by James Jones and Wm. Canfield, near a rock maple tree blazed, thence n'h 8° 45' west 14 chains 83 links to a stake, thence north 76° and 30' east 27 chains 96 links to a stake and stones, thence south 8° 45' west 25 chains 50 links, thence north 79° west 26 chains and fifty links to place of beginning, containing 53 acres of land be the same more or less,"

4 'All that lot of land lying and being in the town of Ticonderoga aforesaid, and is known as lot No. 17 in McIntosh Patent as the same was laid down and distinguished by a map of said patent by Peter C Bishop, special reference being thereto had, containing 190 acres of land more or less 5 Also all that other piece of land situate in Sumners Vale, town of Ticonderoga, county of Essex, and State of New York, distinguished and bounded on a map of said patent filed in the secretary's office by lot number 135, containing 94 1-4 acres."

6 "All the equal undivided 3 4 part of that certain piece or parcel of land situate and being in Ticonderoga aforesaid, known as the black lead lot in the Sumner vale Patent, known as number 134.

7 "All that certain piece or parcel of land situate, lying and being in the town of Ticonderoga, being part of what is usually called the John Carr lot in the Cockburn Patent in said town, and bounded as follows: beginning at a stake and stones on the East and West road, thence southerly along the line of said lot thirteen rods to a stake and stones, thence easterly to the line of lot number 17, thence northerly to the said east and west road, thence southerly along the middle of said road to the place of beginning, containing one acre and a half of land be the same more or less. 8 Also, all and singular that piece or parcel of land situate in Ticonderoga, and is a part of lot number 11, in McIntosh Patent, bounded as follows: Beginning in the west line of said lot in a road leading from Bly's saw mill westerly at a stake and stones, thence on said road east 5 chains to a stake and stones, thence south 19° 15, east 30 chains to a black ash stake and stones, thence 5 chains to a stake and stones in the west line of said lot, thence north 19° 15' west 30 chains in the west line of said lot to the place of beginning, containing 15 acres, reserving all mines and minerals. Also, all such reservations as are subject to a deed from Francis Arthur to Thomas Burns.

9 "All the equal undivided one fourth part of lot No. 134, in the Sumner Vale Patent in the town of Ticonderoga, being the same premises deeded to said Wilson by John Porter, Jr., Dec. 20, 1842.

10 'All that certain piece or parcel of land situate lying and being in Ticonderoga, and bounded as follows; Beginning on the north side of the highway leading from the village at the Lower Falls, to the 4 corners west of A P Delano's store at a stake at the south west corner of the village lot owned and occupied by Lucius Thatcher, from thence North along the line of said lot to a stake 16 rods from the place of beginning, thence westerly at right angles to a stake 7 1-2 rods, thence southerly on a parallel line with Thatcher's lot 16 rods to to the highway, thence easterly along said highway to the place of beginning, containing 3-4 acre of land."

All of which said real property I shall expose for sale, at public auction, at the Inn of Jacob Tappen in Moriah, in said county of Essex, on the 28th day of November next, at 12 o'clock at noon. Dated Oct. 15, 1853. 493 7w

Dr. Hunter's Medical Manual and Hand Book for the Afflicted—Containing an outline of the origin, progress, treatment and cure of every form of disease. contracted by promiscuous sexual intercourse, by self abuse or by sexual excess, with advice for their prevention, written in a familiar style. avoiding all medical technicalities, and everything that would offend the ear of decency, from the result of some twenty years successful practice, exclusively devoted to the cure of diseases of a delicate or pirvate nature.

To which is added, receipts for the cure of the above diseases, and a treatise on the causes, symptoms and cure of the Fever and Ague.

Testimony of the Prof. of Obstetrics in Penn. College, Philadelphia —"Dr. Hunter's Medical Manual."—The author of this work unlike the majority of those works who advertise to cure the diseases of which it treats, is a graduate of one of the best Colleges in the United States. It affords me pleasure to recommend him to the unfortunate, or to the victim of malpractice, as a successful and experienced practitioner, in whose honor and integrity they may place the greatest confidence.

JOSEPH LONGSHORE M. D.

From A Woodward M. D., of Penn. University, Philadelphia—It gives me pleasure to add my testimony to the professional ability of the author of the "Medical Manual." Numerous cases of diseases of the Genital Organs some of them of long standing have come under my notice, in which his skill has been manifest in restoring to perfect health, in some instances where the patient has been considered beyond medical aid. In the treatment of Seminal weakness, or disarrangement of the functions produced by Self-abuse, or Excess of venery, I do not know his superior in the profession. I have been acquainted with the Author some thirty years. and deem it no more than justice to him as well as a kindness to the unfortunate victim of early indiscretion, to recommend him as one, in whose professional skill and integrity they may safely confide themselves. ALFRED WOODWARD, M.D.

"This is, without exception, the most comprehensive and intelligible work published on the class of diseases of which it treats Avoiding all technical terms, it addresses itself to the reason of its readers. It is free from all objectionable matter. and no parent, however fastidious, can object to placing it in the hands of his sons. The author has devoted many years to the treatment of the various complaints treated of, and with too little breath to puff,' and 'too little presumption to impose,' he has offered to the world at the merely nominal price of 25 cents, the fruits of some 20 years most successful practice."—Herald.

"No teacher or parent should be without the knowledge imparted in this invaluable work. It would save years of pain, mortification and sorrow to the youth under their charge."—People's Advocate.

A Presbyterian clergyman in Ohio, in writing of "Hunter's Medical Manual," says: "Thousands upon thousands of our youth, by evil example and influence of the passions, have been led into the habit of self pollution without realizing the sin and fearful consequences upon themselves and their posterity. The constitutions of thousands who are raising families have been enfeebled if not broken down, and the do not know the cause or the cure. Anything that can be done so to enlighten and influence the public mind as to check, and ultimately to remove this widespread source of human wretchedness, would confer the greatest blessing next to the religion of Jesus Christ. on the present and coming generations. Intemperance (or the use of intoxicating drinks,) though it has slain thousands upon thousands, is not a greater scourge to the human race. Accept my thanks on behalf of the afflicted, and, believe me. your co-worker in the good work you are so actively engaged in."

One copy, (securely enveloped.) will be forwarded free of postage to any part of the United States for 25 cents, or 6 copies for $1.—Address (post paid) COSDEN & Co., publishers, Box 196, Philadelphia. 476y

MOST STARTLING CONSIDERATIONS!

Reflections for the Thoughtful.

Strange that countless human beings exist and drag through life as do the beasts of the field, or the insects of the earth, evincing no more thought or reflection than though the noble faculties of mind were not vouchsafed to them.

Many such are husbands and fathers, upon whom are dependent the health, the well-being, and the happiness of a confiding and affectionate wife, with perhaps a family of children.

HOW OFTEN IT HAPPENS THAT THE

WIFE LINGERS FROM YEAR TO YEAR

In that pitiable condition as not even for one day to feel the happy and exhilarating influence incident to the enjoyment of health.

She may not be an invalid confined to her bed, or even to her room; as her pride, ambition and energy induce and nerve her to take personal charge of her household, even when her health will not admit of it; but she is nevertheless perceptibly sinking from day to day, and always ailing.

Thus, day after day, and month after month transpire. Her health daily sinks, till finally even the hope of recovery no longer remains. And thus

THE BLOOMING BRIDE,

But a few years ago in the flush of health and youth, and buoyancy of spirits, rapidly, and apparently inexplicably, becomes a feeble, sickly, debilitated wife, with frame emaciated, nerves unstrung, spirits depressed, countenance bearing the impress of suffering, and an utter physical and mental prostration.

Sometimes this deplorable change may and does arise from organic or constitutional causes. But oftener, by far oftener, to gross and inexcusable ignorance of the simplest and plainest rules of health as connected with the marriage state, the violation of which entails disease, suffering and misery, not only to the wife, but often

"UNTO THE THIRD AND FOURTH GENERATION,"

Transmitting CONSUMPTION, SCROFULA, HYPOCHONDRIA, INSANITY, GOUT, KING'S EVIL, and other diseases.

DREADFUL INHERITANCE

from the Parents.

And must this continue? Shall we be wise in all that concerns the cattle of our fields, our horses, our sheep, our cows, our oxen, the nature and character of the soil we possess, the texture and quality of our goods and merchandise; but in all that concerns ourselves as human beings, with human functions and passions, subject to great derangement, involving our future peace and happiness—in all that concerns the health and welfare of the wife of our affections, and the mother of our children; in all that concerns the mental and physical well being of those children, we should be immersed in the darkest and most

BENIGHTED IGNORANCE,

AS CULPABLE AS INEXCUSABLE!

How long shall this ignorance prevail, so productive of its bitter fruits? How long shall the wife and mother be ignorant of the nature, character and causes of the various womb and sexual complaints, embittering her days by suffering—suffering often prolonged to years, eventuating in a complication of diseases utterly and hopelessly incurable? Shall we for ever close our eyes to the results of physiological science by which we may arrive at an understanding of ourselves as men and women, subject to serious life-long enduring diseases, and perpetuating them to our children.

LET EVERY WIFE AND HUSBAND PONDER!

No husband or wife need be ignorant of what concerns them most to know to secure their health and happiness. That knowledge is contained in a little work entitled

THE LADY ILDA.

A TALE OF THE ORDER OF THE SCULPTURED CROSS.

[WRITTEN FOR THE OLIVE BRANCH.]

CHAPTER I.

The hand is raised—the pledge is given,
One monarch to obey, one creed to own.
SPRAGUE.

He asked no question—all were answered now
By the first glance upon that marble brow,
It was enough—she died—what rocked it how?
BYRON'S CORSAIR.

But never a tear his cheek descended,
And never a smile his brow unbended,
And o'er that fair broad brow were wrought
The intersected lines of thought;
Those furrows, which the burning share
Of sorrow, ploughs untimely there;
Scars of the lacerated mind,
Which the soul's war doth leave behind.
BYRON.

The Lady Ilda stood alone upon the balcony, singing to herself in a low lute-like voice, a ballad of the crusaders. Behind her, through the half open casement, came the happy laughter of her companions, as if it would woo her back to the hall she had so suddenly deserted. She heeded it not; her light song ceased, and with folded arms and downcast head, she paced slowly to and fro, like a sentinel upon the ramparts of a beleaguered castle.

The Lady Ilda was young and fair.—Nineteen years had passed since her gentle mother died that she might live, and each one seemed to give a new charm to her face and form.

Hers was no angelic beauty; the pride of earth sat upon her lofty brow, its spirit flashed from her handsome eyes, and its passion trembled upon her full red lips.—Child of Earth, in her lower nature, child of Heaven in the glimpses of a higher being that would often struggle into light.

I have said the Lady Ilda was young; said I rightly? True, only those few short years had she dwelt in her ancestral home, but in that time she had lived a life. She was one of those whose hearts are touched by the hoar-frost of Experience before a shadow dims the girlish brow. Left alone in the world by the death of her father, mother, brother and sister, she was under the control of a guardian, and her vast estate was subject to his care.

Rudolph Lintha was a worthy and honest man, who discharged the trust reposed in him most faithfully, but who had not the slightest sympathy with a being like his fiery ward.

He looked upon her vagaries as a scientific man would watch the motions of some curious animal, never troubling himself to think or inquire if they were really outbreaks of a restless volcanic nature, or mere freaks of girlish caprice.

The Lady Ilda found in him a most indulgent protector. Her slightest wish was gratified, and she was petted by him like a spoiled child. Even on this very night, at her request, he had formerly relinquished all control over her or her fortune in the presence of all the assembled guests, and the Lady Ilda was free to act for herself.—And in consequence of this eventful change in her life, she withdrew from her companions, and sought the solitude of the balcony, that she might decide upon her future.

Many years ago a secret society was formed in Germany by a few brave kindred spirits. Their meetings were held in by places, in antiquated and unhabited houses and those who exchanged its sign and password, did so with a fear and trembling.—That little society has now become a great and powerful one; its members are in every city of the new country as well as the old; its insignia are worn not in secret, but in the open day, as badges of honor, as marks of true men and women.

I may not speak of the grand and noble purpose it is slowly, but surely working out for every beating of my own heart heaves up the golden cross with the sculptured shield and sun, I wear more proudly than if a monarch's hand had placed it there.

Suffice it to say that the Lady Ilda belonged to the mysterious order—that the cross with its shield and sun) glittered also upon her breast. And walking slowly to and fro, she thought with a flush of pride, that she who had joined the band, a weak and powerless girl, could now come forward, with the might of her ancient house and broad acres, and prove herself in very truth, a believer in their beautiful secrets, a friend to those she had so often named "brother," and "sister," an earnest laborer in their ranks, and a faithful apostle of their divine truths.

She had decided, and pausing in her rapid walk, she lifted up her earnest eyes and swore inwardly that she would never desert the cause she had espoused, till Death came between it and her.

As the promise, so earnest that it might well have been called a prayer, fell from the lips of her heart, she turned to re enter the hall where her young companions were whirling in their beloved national dance.

A tall dark figure stood in the casement through which she sought to enter, and waved her back with outstretched hand.

His face was concealed by the heavy drapery of the window, but she saw that the repelling hand was slender. white and delicate, and upon the third finger flashed a heavy diamond ring.

A strange feeling of mingled joy and tenderness thrilled through her heart, but the next moment she drew herself up and exclaimed—"Who forbids me to enter my own home?"

'Ilda!' said a deep rich voice.

The hot blood surged to the maiden's cheek, and a look of wonder shone like a star in her large eye. Again she spoke.

'Ilda!' said the stranger once more, and [illegible] standing immovable as a carved statue.—She leaned hastily towards him. He threw the heavy cloak he wore, back from his shoulder, and there, upon his breast, glittered the golden cross with the sun and shield.

She sprang forward with a joyful cry, 'Brother, who art thou?'

'Thine. Thine only and forever,' was the sudden reply, as he caught her to his breast, and pressed his lips passionately to hers. She shrank back with a look of terror. 'Brother, I know thee not! Give me the sacred sign.'

He gave it.

'And the word of admittance.'

He leaned above her, and whispered softly.

Her countenance cleared, and she laid her hand in his.

'I know thee now,' said she, lingering upon the words as if she loved their music. 'Thou art Ion, whose place is among the united, is by my side.'

'Thou hast spoken rightly,' said the stranger; and leaving the shadow of the drapery, he stood by her side a tall slender man, in the prime of life, with unshorn beard, long heavy curls of the darkest brown, and eyes whose beauty lay in their expression of secret strength. Never met two more fairy natures since God first shone upon the earth, through the medium of our life giving sun; never met two hearts whose beatings were so tumultuous, and so nearly alike. The sign of the holy brotherhood had banished the lady's fears, and her small hand yet rested in that which had often clasped it before, in the solemn and secret rites of The United.

'Thou comest to me in haste,' said she, after a pause. 'Is aught amiss at our home of rest?'

'Nay, Ilda, beloved Ilda! All is well, and the cause still prospers. A dream came to me last eve and with the morning light I hastened to thee. I dreamed that Death would part us before I had spoken of my wild love, and I hastened to throw myself at thy feet. Beloved, does thy heart answer mine?'

"Twas an idle omen, Ion,' said the lady evasively, 'and a soldier should never be so timid.'

'Ah, thou divine one! I own my weakness, but I love thee, and the dream touched my heart. Ilda, wilt thou be mine?'

She turned from him and plucked the leaves from a rose that grew upon the balcony. He still spoke, but more anxiously and hurriedly.

'Ilda, beloved one, for the past year we have drank of the same cup and eaten of the same bread. Thou hast rested beside me on the golden throne, and when the myrtle chains went round, the same one bound thy hand and mine. Was the union an idle ceremony? Hast thou not often thought of me—prayed for me, as I for thee? Answer me. Not with the timid bashfulness of a maiden, not with the cautious cunning of a trifler, but from thy heart, as a member of the holy order; am I not dear to thee?'

She turned with a sudden frank movement, and exclaimed, 'Ah yes!'

'And wilt thou be mine?'

'And I will be thine,' was the low reply.

He opened his arms.

'Ah, my heart has waited long for thee!'

'Take me then,' said she, leaning upon his breast, 'for I fear nothing, doubting nothing. Take me, clasp me to thy heart, and let me die there!'

'Die! no, thou shalt live there, Ilda!—Who speaks of death in such an hour as this? Death could not come between me and thee! Throw thy arms around me—can death unseal that clasp?'

'Ah, but thy dream, Ion—thy dream!' said the lady sadly.

'Tush! 'twas but a panthom of the night. Think no more of it, or I shall repent that I told thee. Smile upon me, Ilda, with thy eyes.'

She smiled but faintly, and then clasping her arms more closely around his neck, and leaning her head thoughtfully upon his shoulder, she said with a defiant impetuosity.

'Be it as it may, nothing shall part me from thee now that I have found thee, beloved! Tell me once more that thou lovest me, and though I die at thy feet, I will return to comfort thee.'

'Ah, I love thee more than God or heaven!' was the passionate reply, and when the lady heard it, a peace fell down and calmed the wild unrest of her heart.

A few brief moments elapsed, and the Lady Ilda stood before the chapel altar, with Ion, the Chief of the United, by her side. The voice of the aged priest, who had scattered the water of baptism upon her infant brow, and sanctified the death bed of her sainted mother, by prayer and psalm, uttered the words that united the lovers through life and death,—for who shall say that the marriage vow endures not in another world?

Stately nobles and high born dames graced the sculptured chapel; and ever and anon flashing on the broad breast of some haughty man, or shining like a star amid the costly decorations of some graceful woman, was the cross with Sun and Shield carved upon its glittering surface. Even the bridal dress was not suffered to banish the joyous emblem—it nestled upon the softly heaving breast of Ilda, and upon the heart of Ion—its founder and bestower.—The imposing ceremony was over; the secret greeting, and public blessing of the order had been bestowed; the halls and chapel were hushed and silent; and at the casement of the bridal chamber, sat they who now more than ever deserved the title of The United.

The lady's face was pale and pensive. [illegible] her head rested upon [illegible] For a long time neither spoke. As it was now so was it in that olden time. It was a happiness to deep for words that filled the hearts of the lovers. The evening wind blew chill and cold through the open casement. The lady shuddered and buried her face in her hands, as if to shut out some fearful vision.

'What seest thou?' asked Ion, tenderly.

'Ah, that wind! It came from the church yard upon yonder hill, and it has chilled me to the heart;' said the lady feebly.

'Am I not with thee?'

'Thy dream, Ion! Death is powerful!'

'Ah, beloved, thou art fanciful! Rest here in my arms, and I will defy Death; he shall never take thee from my breast!'

He murmured love above her, as a cushat murmurs over its young; he pressed passionate kisses, upon her trembling lips, and won her back to life and love by the warmth and strength of his own devotion.

But in the silence of the night, that dream came once more to Ion, in a more fearful guise. Death came between them, in spite of his frantic prayers and tears; Death snatched his bride away, while yet her lips clung to his. He wrestled wearily with that terrible agony—terrible though unreal. Morning brought light and life to him, and he awoke from the dream.

How fared it with her who had now become so inexpressibly dear to him?

She lay calm and silent in his arms. A faint flush was upon her cheek—a faint smile upon her lip, as though her rest was peaceful. But alas for Ion! that rest was eternal! The United were without a priestess—their chief without a bride!

CHAPTER II.

I tell you, hopeless grief is passionless—
That only men incredulous of dispair,
Half-taught in anguish, through the midnight air,
Bgat upward to God's throne in loud access
Of shrieking and reproach.

For this, fair poetry hath wreathed her sweetest purest flower,
For this, proud eloquence hath breathed his strain of loftiest power!

WILLIS.

Within a room filled with German students, quarrelling over their beer, and mystifying each other with hard words, learned arguments, and meerschaum smoke, sat the Professor Ion.

Ten years that has passed since the sudden death of his bride, had furrowed his brow, and silvered his hoary locks and beard; but the same eager enthusiasm dwelt in his brown eyes, and the cross of the order was still proudly displayed upon his breast, while its mate mouldered with its wearer, in the chapel vaults of Eringstein.

He never spoke of the beautiful lost lady, nor did he ever breathe a word of love again. Devoted to his order, his friends, and his college, the professor seemed to those around him, a contented, if not a happy man.

But in the solemn night, when all the city around him was hushed in tranquil sleep, a light shone from his casement, like a watchfire; and those who envied him, little dreamed of the fearful vigils he kept there, warring wildly with the sheeted phantoms of the past.

O, still the sorrow that preys upon the heart, and drinks the life-blood of its victim, is that which wears a mask of smiles before the world—that crouches and hides itself from the gaze of men, only to rise with tenfold power of torture in the loneliness of the soul!

The professor often joined his students here. They loved him devotedly; and while his presence restrained their boisterous mirth, it diffused a tranquil happiness in its stead. He possessed a remarkable power over their minds; hence it was, that when he entered and took his accustomed seat, while their voices rose loudly in disputation, above the heavy shuffling steps of the servants, the clashing of drinking cups, the conversation insensibly took a calmer, sadder, tone.

They spoke of home, of the beloved ones there, and many a deep blue eye shone with tears at the memories called up by the familiar names and words. It was as if a breeze from their native hills had blow in upon them from the open door when Ion entered. He sat apart, playing idly with his wine glass, without filling it from the decanter before him, his favorite merschaum lay upon the table—he gazed upon it abstractedly, and then pushed it aside, and pressed his hand convulsively upon his heart.

The pipe fell upon the floor and was dashed into a thousand pieces; but without even casting a glance towards it, he turned to listen to the conversation of his students—his hand still resting upon his heart, and his serious features wearing an unmistakable expression of pain.

They spoke quietly—almost, sadly, yet with the subdued enthusiasm which every German inherits as the stamp of his race.

Ion listened, and the hopes and dreams of his boyhood came back to him again—He leaned his head upon his clasped hands and tears, such as he had not shed since the Lady Ilda died, fell fast upon the book he had been glancing over. At that moment he was near Heaven, and for the first time, he felt in his heart, that God, in His wisdom, had taken her away.

[illegible] beautiful twilight descended slowly [illegible] the room, with a delicious night.—[illegible] could no longer be distinct, seen, but their voices came from the gloom like the voices of disembodied spirits.

A presence seemed near to Ion. He looked up, half expecting to see the fair, young face of the lost lady, and felt, her light kiss upon his brow. At that moment a student, who had long been silent, rose and spoke—

'There is a name,' said he, 'a beloved name, which I offer as a toast. Comrades, I give you—The United!'

The professor recognized the speaker by his voice, as a young and hopeful member of the holy order. There were many there who bore the sculptured cross upon their breasts, and with one accord they rose to their feet. The professor rose also, and his voice broke through the gathering darkness as they honored the toast.

'Comrades,' said he softly, 'it is indeed a beloved word, and all who speak it are beloved by me. But death breaks even into the ranks of The United—we are powerless, and cannot withstand him. Therefore, oh comrades, there is one word still more beautiful—for it is the name of a home where we shall meet and he can never come. I give it—not as a toast, but as a prayer that we may soon meet there—Heaven!'

He sat down again, and a deep silence fell upon all the assembly. Each heart had thoughts too deep for tears.

When at last lights were brought, the professor still sat with his face bowed upon his hands For a time they heeded him not but his fixed stillness oppressed their hearts and he who had proposed the toast went forward and laid his hand upon his arm.

He moved not, spoke not, and bending down to look into his face, the awe-struck student met the still, stony gaze of Death. The spirit of his lost love had lingered beside him, and he had followed her with words of holy supplication lingering upon his lips.

They of whose virtue and love we have heard so many tales, have gone before us, oh brothers, oh sisters of the sculptured cross! But in that heaven they await us. And there we who wear the glittering badge and those who bear the cross of suffering upon their souls, will yet meet them, and with hearts filled with 'the peace that passeth all understanding,' feel that all, both bond and free. are gathered into one fold, and call themselves truly, 'The United.'

Ladies' Department.

Saint Valentine; or, Last Year's Memory.

[WRITTEN FOR THE OLIVE BRANCH]

If I were one of the true fold, I should have chosen his saintship for my patron—Dear, merry old soul of thrice blessed memory! But unfortunately for them, most fortunately for my self, I am next of kin to no Romanist doctrine whatever, having no more reverence for the 'toe of His Holiness' than for the lower digit of any other human.

But to St. Valentine I am heretic enough to pay homage once a year, and once in four (when the month to which twenty-eight days only were assigned, receives an added twice twelve hours,) my reverence grows most profound!

'St. Valentine!' How may joyous memories cluster around the magical sheets which annually speed forth purporting to be from the courts of Hymen, bearing the broad seal of that most mischeivous of urchins, young Cupid! What eager eyes glance over the well-filled page, never heeding the cautions of wise age, who bid young hearts—

"Trust not in vows,
Though warmly spoken;
For vows are but words,
Made to be broken."

They do not believe it, no, not a word of it. The experience of their grandmothers have no more weight with some of them than the sermon I heard last sunday with Deacon Heavysoul's yawning congregation.—They are even wicked enough to hint in a whisper, that the old folks are in the vicinity of their dotage, and are not to be held accountable for such sayings.

But where was I? Oh, commencing to tell you about a Valentine that I had the good fortune to receive no longer ago than last year. You need not think because "Ingleside" is so far out of the world, that we never hear of such things. That is a sad mistake. We know all about it, and are just the ones to do such things in handsome style.

Well, on last Valentine's eve we had quite a gathering of the young people in our little cottage. What a merrie time we had of it! Allie had not then been hung in the silken chains of Hymen; and in the absence of her liege lord elect, was as merry as possible. Then there was "Lilly Dale," sweet "Lilly," with her gentle winning ways, (we did not dream, then, that there were so few steps between those tinid feet and the dark grave,) and Rosa Lee, the mad-cap—Emma Tracy. as wild a spirit as was ever shrined in human form, —Kate O'Donnell, a blithe daughter of Erin, who was visiting at Squire Tracy's, and last, if not least, "Miss Flora Neale," about the only demure demoiselle in the assembly.

We grew more thoughtful as twilight came on, and refused to have the lamps brought in, but sat clustering round the fire, that sent up a ruddy blaze from the ample hearth. We talked over school days; the past and present were compared, and then we longed, some of us, to lift the veil that hid the future, hoping from [illegible] we were sure there was something great, bright and joyous in store for each of us.

"Oh jewels, did ever a one of you receive a Valentine?" suddenly burst from the coral lips of Kate; "and it's myself has been dreaming of that same for a week past, and wondering if Laurence Mahon the spalpeen, will be after remembering the day, good luck to him?"

Oh yes, we had all in our possession some two scores of such missives, though we would not for the world have published the authors thereof as fearlessly as did the bonny Kate. Such a chapter of Valentines followed the query, such amusing episodes of village life, such merry confessions of how many of those same epistles, professing to be from the lords of creation, were the genuine productions of the weaker sex, on mischief bent, humbugging each their neighbor, and being in turn most marvellously deceived—oh, it would have furnished material for I can't tell how, many newspaper sketches.

I thought of some I had hoarded away among my treasures, but kept my own counsel, for I would not have opened that little casket to the gaze of those bright, curious eyes—I would not have had the light touch of fairy fingers upon those withered, scentless flowers, holy and beautiful to me, because of the halo of past joy that lingers around them. No, it were better far to keep them hidden from the light, and none would know that a shadow ever rested on Flora's heart, or that the past for her had aught of sorrow of which the only tokens visible are the faded blossoms, withered leaves. and a ribbon from which the blue has faded, like the azure oft from memory's sky.

The subject, interrupted by the entrance of several of the genus homo, was merrily resumed at the tea-table, and conjectures as to the probable receptions of the morrow furnished amusement for us all.

Rosa said nothing, but I noticed significant glances between the young beauty and my old schoolmate, Charlie, that did not give me the same amount of pleasure that some glances I had in times past received from those dark, mirthful eyes, but they did not dream I had detected them, for I laughed and talked more gaily than ever, sang my merriest songs, and rashly declared that I did not expect a Valentine, nay, would not accept one if received, and would be past forgiveness offended, should any one venture to address to me such commonplace effusions as had more than once reached me at such seasons.

I scarce knew how decisively I had spoken until I caught a glimpse of the wondering faces turned towards me, and overheard Emma Tracy whisper that "Flory was a little spoiled by staying so long in the city." I did not care for that—Emma's speeches were never heeded—but I did care for the shade on one noble brow, and the changed tone of the voice that bade me good night more sadly than was his wont.

He came back for a moment, and asked almost timidly if I had spoken in earnest about the Valentines; that he thought they ought to be received in the same spirit which dictated them, as tokens of good will, a merry reminder of the season.

He waited for a reply, and a penetential disclaimer rose to my lips, but (what possessed me to look that way?) I saw just without the door a tableau vivant which by no means delighted me. There was that teaze of a Rosa Lee, her blue eyes dancing with mirth, personating Charlie; and Kate O'Donnell, with her handkerchief to her eyes, (leaving however a loop-hole for observation) in imitation, I supposed, of the anxiety depicted on my unlucky phiz.—That glance decided me. Drawing myself to dignity's height, I coldly replied that I seldom revoked my words, and wished to hear nothing farther on the subject.

One moment and I was alone, with a merry peal of laughter ringing in my ears, seeming a mockery to my proud but saddened heart.

Don't imagine that I passed a sleepless night; I was too weary for that; but dreams of no very pleasant nature were the companions of my slumber. Mocking faces flitted before me with the eyes of Rosa, and Valentines were extended, which when I sought to clasp, were hastily withdrawn, and then rang wild and tauntingly the sound of that strange laughter.

Morning dawned bright and joyously, and my spirits rose as I looked forth on the fair scene without. Happier thoughts came to cheer me, and I almost chided myself for indulging in gloomy anticipations. Song after song trembled upod my lips as I hastily wound the long curls round my fingers after the fashion that somebody liked to see them.

The hours passed on, each one more wearily than the last, and it might have been any other day than St. Valentine's, for any token that reached me of its coming.

Those tormenting girls did not fail to drop in accidentally to display triumphantly various documents of Love's own signing, and very infidels they were as to the truth of the assurance that none similar had found me out!

Morning, noon, almost night, still the accustomed package came not! When did it ever fail before? To be sure I ought not to have expected it, after those foolish words of mine—and yet I did.

Disappointment, jealousy, sorrow, and at last wounded pride swept the chords of my spirit-harp. If Charlie was so stupid as to mistake my jesting for downright earnest, I should not break my heart about it, no, not I, and in token of such a magnanimous resolve, I was proceeding in search of my hat for a tete-a-tete with Allie, when—"Something for you, Miss Flora, in the parlor," greeted my ears, and a grin on the sable messenger's face imparted something [illegible]

How swiftly I flew to grandpa's expect- [illegible]

ing to receive from her dear hands the welcome billet—but what was the matter?

Grandma' could not speak at first; at last she pointed to the sofa and gasped out, "It came in a wagon!"

Amazement held me speechless. What could it be? A motionless mass of something white bundled into one corner of the sofa, adorned with various lengths of ribbon, blue, yellow and green, and a direction that might have been read half a mile off—"To Miss Flora Neale."

"If you this Valentine accept,
A heart and hand," etc.

Perhaps I did not wait very long to divest the ponderous weight of some of its paper wraps, and, dear rider, what do you think met my bewildered gaze, as the first paper fell beneath my touch?

Why, nothing more or less than the curly head of that wicked Charlie Hunt, and oh, such a laugh as he indulged in with—

"You see I did not believe you, Flory."

"Now grandma', what ought to be done to punish him?" but grandma' had retired (perhaps to laugh) and I was sole judge and jury, and perhaps, dear reader, I accepted that Valentine, and perhaps I did not. Who kens?

FLORA NEALE.

At the present time when a general European war seems inevitible, an account of Schamyl, the celebrated Circassian Chief, who will occupy a prominent place in the event of such a war, will be read with interest.—[Ed. Rep.

Schamyl. The Circassian Chief.

The first time we hear of Schamyl is in 1832. In that year, a devout Musulman. Kasi-Mollah, held a chief command in the bands of Lesghians, Tchorchentzes, and other tribes of the eastern chain and the steppes abutting on the Caspian and traversed by the Koisu. Kasi-Mollah's reputation for sanctity was greater than that which he acquired for the higher military qualities, although a dashing leader, and individually one of the bravest of the brave. He was brought to bay in 1832, by Gen Rosen, at a place called Gumri.

Encircled on all sides, almost the last scrap of food devoured, nothing remained, in the opinion of Kasi-Mollah and about thirty of his most zealous disciples, but to hew for themselves a path though the Russian bayonets, to freedom or to Paradise—either alternative a welcome one. This resolution finally taken, they suddenly emerged from the fastness they could no longer hold, and burst upon the Russian troops with the shock of an avalanche, and the furious, discordant yells of a troop of madmen. For one or two brief moments, it seemed that they must escape, so far through the beleaguring circle of their foes did they cleave their desperate way, before the momently-recoiling ranks re-closed around them, and they fell by twos and threes, wildly fighting to the last, riddled by musket balls and bayonet stabs. Kasi-Mollah "died with his hand on his beard, and a last prayer murmuring from his lips;" and his pupils perished with him, all save one, and he the bravest and fiercest of them all, who broke through the encircling bayonets, dashed at headlong speed past the more distant lines of running fire unharmed—reined suddenly up as he reached the angle of a mountain gorge, into which he knew none dared to follow, shook his red scimetar, and hurled a defiant execration into the faces of his baffled foes, and the next moment, with an exulting shout of 'Allah! Il Allah!' disappeared in the dark mountain pass.

The fortunate horseman was Schamyl, the future Imam, (preacher,) the prophet soldier of the Caucasus, whose escape, as just described, many of his followers to this day firmly believe was due to the direct interposition of the angel Gabriel! Schamyl, who is one of the dark-eyed, dark-haired, partly, Tartar race of Tchetchetzes, was born at Tschirskei, a place of about 3,000 inhabitants; after his escape from Gumri he employed several years in perambulating mountains of the Lesghian chain, preaching wherever he went with fervid eloquence upon the sacred duty, developed by God upon all true believers, to extirpate the intrusive infidel, and the paradisal rewards which death in so high and holy a cause must infallibly insure. The prophet call, as it was deemed, to battle, from the cupolas and minarets of the sublime and towering Alps, gradually kindled the latent fanaticism of the mountaineers to a flame, which soon communicated itself to the dwellers in the cities and steppes of Daghistan, and the adjacent valleys and plains. The story of Schamyl's miraculous escape from Gen. Roson, by favor of the archangel Gabriel, was repeated from mouth to mouth with endless variations and additions—his daring skill and success as a soldier confirmed the illusions of a credulous bigotry; and he gradually drew around his standard, and bent to his sway, the multitude of rugged warriors whose swords have inscribed so many victories upon the backs of the Russian armies, and to this hour presents an invincible front to their dismayed and practically discomfited adversaries.

Many well authenticated instances of his daring are related. One or two of these may interest the reader at this juncture—In 1840, Schamyl found himself surrounded by General Grabbe and 12,000 veteran Russian troops, at Achulko, a kind of mud encampment perched upon the top of a rock on the banks of Koisu. The position of this place was so strong; that the attempt to storm it was abandoned after the loss of 1500 men; but Schamyl had soon a deadlier foe than General Grabbe and his army to contend with—hunger; hunger, verging upon famine, came before a week had passed. This was known in the Russian camp; and the place having been strictly invested on all sides, it was certain that the surrender could not be long delayed. On the last day but one of August, General Grabbe learned, from an emancipated Lesghian whom his soldiers had caught whilst attempting to crawl past the blockading lines, that not a particle of food was left in Achulko; that Schamyl Bey proposed to escape that very night, with one or two chosen comrades by means of a rope lowered down the face of the rock to the Koisu; and Achulko, he added, would be surrendered immediately afterwards. A strict watch was immediately ordered to be kept at the indicated spot, and the directions were given to awaken the General at whatever hour of the night the capture of the redoubted Schamyl might be effected.

Just before dawn, one—two—three men were seen to cautiously descend by a rope, let gently down on the river side, as predicted, who were of course, instantly secured, and hurried off to the General's tent. One of the captives admitted, in the flurry of the surprise, as was supposed, that he was Schamyl; and this was confirmed by the Lesghian, through whose information the important prize had been secured.—Gen. Grabbe was delighted, and an estafette was forthwith dispatched with the tidings that the notorious rebel, Schamyl Bey had been caught, and ordered to be shot out of hand. Whilst all this was going on the rope which had been quietly drawn up again, was once more lowered, and this time only one man descended by it, who reached the river unobserved, leaped upon a raft that just at that critical moment swept by, and the too haughtily exultant Russian General was aroused to a knowledge of the trick that had been played him by shouts of 'Schamyl! Schamyl!" from the mud walls of Achulko, in exulting reply to the waving of a small green flag, by the true Schamyl, as he swept down the swift Koisu in the dawning sunlight; presently to find himself amidst hills and among friends, that would render successful pursuit, if attempted, impossible. Achulko surrendered at discretion, the huts were burned, and General Grabbe retraced his steps in a very angry mood, which a daring attack on his rear guard, by the ubiquitous and indefatigable Schamyl, at the head of a large body of horse, exasperated to fury. The Imam was beaten off with some difficulty, and the victorious General's march was sullenly resumed, and concluded without further molestation.

The Nebraska Bill.

☞Mr. JONES. I put that question to the Senator; I put it to every Northern man. Have I not the same right to say that he shall not move into the territories of the United States with his particular property as he has to say that I shall not move there with my property? If we were to propose that the man of Massachusetts should not carry his machinery there, what would the Senator from Ohio think of that? Would he not invoke the spirits of the dead to rise up in judgment against such an unholy exercise of power? Yet he asks us to submit, tamely to submit, to a restriction which he would scorn and spurn as an outrage on his rights.—Senator from Tennessee on the Nebraska Bill.

Yes, and may not some twenty Grand Muscovites take up each some twenty miles square, and establish therein the system of Russian Serfdom?

And may not the Counterfeiter establish himself there with his false dies and plates, as well as the respectable Banker with his issues based on a vault full of real gold and silver? Why not? "I put that question to the Senator; I put it to every Southern man.' What! shut out the Counterfeiter? Would he be willing to incur the fearful responsibility?—"Would he not invoke the spirit of Stephen Burroughs to rise up in judgment against such an unholy exercise of power?"

And who shall say a Division of the Subterraneans may not locate at the Capital as the headquarters of Robbery, Arson, and Fillibustering?

Suppose we try one Grand Experiment, and allow the admission of a representation from all classes of vagabondism and crime throughout Christendom into the Territory of Nebraska, and legalize all the enormities they bring with them. Again, we say, why not? Canvass earth and there cannot be found a counterpart to the horrors of American Slavery. Why, then, "strain at a gnat, and swallow a camel?"

We have been accustomed to look upon Senator Jones as one of our most reliable Southern Whigs, standing shoulder to shoulder with our favorite Crittenden, of Kentucky. We were at first half inclined to the belief that the reporter was at fault, and that he had got the wrong man. But we clip from the National Intelligencer, a paper that makes no mistakes.

Thirty Six Thirty, indeed! We were trying to bring to our recollection a little scrap of ancient history; but we remember well it was something about "carrying the war into Africa!"

TOWN MEETINGS.—We wish to keep this subject before the people and would urge them to prepare for success; to suffer no selfish ambition, no personal prejudices, or animosities to prevent so desirable a result:—Be assured that the man who is willing to forego his personal ambition for the sake of harmony is the most deserving of the confidence of the people.

LATER FROM EUROPE.

NEGOTIATION ENDED.

THE ENGLISH AND FRENCH MINISTERS WITHDRAWN.

WAR INEVITABLE.

The Czar's last proposition has been rejected. Negotiations have been broken off. The Russian Ministers have left Loudon and Paris.

Instructions have been sent to the English and French Ministers to withdraw from St. Petersburg.

France and England are making preparations for war.

Such is at last the terrible announcement from Europe. The only hope of peace is in the powerful combination against the Czar. If he yields there will be peace.—If he persists, then war—and such a war as the world has never seen. All Europe and Asia will take part in it. No nation can escape. The barbarians even will be enlisted. Every interest, every class, every faction will enter the lists. Nation against nation and the people against their rulers. The Bourbons will plot against Napoleon, Kossuth will rally the Hungarians, and Mazzini the Italians. The Poles will once more strike for freedom, and the banished criminals in far off Austria will break their chains. If the shock comes, as come it must from present appearances, it will make an era in the world's history.

The Canals.

It is too late to discuss the question of the Enlargement. It is no longer debatable—it is an established fact. After a protracted struggle of a quarter of a century, the Canals are to be enlarged. Notwithstanding the election is past and the Canals triumphant, we submit a point or two in support of the verdict of the people.

1. The Canals have doubled the value of real property all over the State.

2. The Enlargement will still further increase the value of real estate 20 per cent.

3. The question was one of Enlargement, or total abandonment of the Erie Canal.

4. If kept under the control of Whigs or Adamantines, no tax will ever be imposed, but the Canals will pay for themselves and yield a surplus fund for the benefit of the State.

5. The Enlargement is demanded to provide a competitor to the Rail Roads.—The latter are no favorites of ours. They are terrible and powerful monoplies. Under Barnburner administrations they control legislation. It was urged that they were eating up the business of the Canals. If true, it was of all others the reason why the Canals should be encouraged, but the fact is that the business of the latter has been steadily on the advance.

Lastly, honor, plighted faith, judicious economy. State pride, sacred recollections bid us on to a speedy enlargement. Quod erat demonstrandum.

THE ELECTION.—The vote is light but the majority is emphatic, which a larger vote would only have rendered more so.—Unfortunately the subject had gone partially out of people's minds, and the discussion was all one side. Some voted 'against' because really opposed to the Canals, but many from a vague fear of future taxes.—As an offset it is a pleasure to say that we know of some men of large wealth who went for the Enlargement and declared that they would do so if they knew they should be taxed. The result in Essex County, though not such as we should have liked, yet under all the circumstances, and considering our remote position and the fact that our own Canal was not included, is entirely satisfactory and must be so to our friends. Chesterfield we are proud of.

HON. GEORGE A. SIMMONS.—We have been favored with the following extract from a letter of a distinguished citizen now at Washington to a friend in this county.—None of the constituents of Mr. Simmons have doubted what would be his ultimate position at the Capitol, where he is adequately appreciated:—

"Permit me to say a word in relation to your worthy and able Representative, Mr. Simmons. He has just concluded a short but most sensible speech on a private claim. He was listened to with much attention.—He commanded the high respect of the house."

The Neutrals.

The Old Settler says, the result of the late election is just what he knew it would be and he is glad of it! Of course he was only in fun. The Elizabethtown Post is ahead of him, however, for that paper after doing all the harm it could—after publishing a long article which was re published in Franklin County and circulated in extras in connection with the Atlas debt and tax article, with a mock show of sincerity went in for the Enlargement before the election in an article of nearly 20 lines!—We trust whigs will continue to patronize and encourage such papers.

A GOOD SUGGESTION.—It has been suggested that the Report of the Survey of the County by Mr. Watson be placed in the School District Libraries. That is right. It is particularly worthy, and we hope the suggestion will be carried out.

Why is a man with a bad mem[illegible] thief? Because he is for-gett[illegible]

Plattsburgh & Montreal Railroad.

As reports have been industriously circulated through the papers, emanating from Montreal, that the Plattsburgh & Montreal Railroad was to be discontinued; and as we find these reports to be in consequence of arrangements recently made by a majority of the Directors of the Montreal & New York with the Champlain and St. Lawrence Road, which are yet subject to the action and approval or disapproval of the stockholders of the M. & N. Y. R. R., we feel called upon to lay the facts on this subject before them, and to appeal to them to reject a proceeding so hostile to our interests and rights, and so directly in violation of good faith and honor.

The line of road from Plattsburgh to Montreal consists of the Plattsburgh & Montreal Road, leading from Plattsburgh to the Canada line, a distance of 23 miles, and built by citizens of the United States; of the St. Louis & Province Line Road leading from the Canada Line to the St Lawrence at Caughnawaga, a distance of 29 miles, built at the same time, principally by the stockholders of the Lachine Railroad; of the Ferry, of one mile, across the River St. Lawrence, and of the Lachine Road of eight miles, leading from Lachine to the city, built long since at great expense by citizens of Montreal.

The Montreal gentleman found the Lachine road a bad investment, from the want of connections, and believing it might be made profitable by extending it to Lake Champlain, at Plattsburgh, in the winter of 1851, took measures to induce the citizens of Plattsburgh to join them in such extension. The Canadian delegates were courteously received at Plattsburgh, public meetings were called, their eloquent addresses were listened to with attentive interest, and the citizens of Plattsburgh and its vicinity were induced to vest their limited means in the enterprise of meeting them with a Railroad at the Canada line, and to interest their more able friends in the southern cities in the accomplishment of the object. The object was accomplished. A special agreement was made between the citizens of Montreal and Plattsburgh, interested in the measure, that the roads should be one in interest and management. They were simultaneously commenced and completed, and their completion was celebrated by inhabitants of Canada and the United States, as a new tie of interest, friendship and commercial intercourse, binding together the citizens of the two governments. The stockholders of the Lachine Road then obtained an act of Parliament, combining the Lachine and Province Line Railroad into one, under the title of 'the Montreal & New York Railroad,' and then entered into another agreement with the Plattsburgh & Montreal Railroad, making common stock of all receipts and expenses, and making but one interest of the whole line from Plattsburgh to Montreal as fully as the same could be done under different governments, having but one superintendent and one management, under a joint committee. This agreement was sanctioned by resolution of both boards mutually interchanged, and the running of the road proceeded in harmony and good faith, and mutual confidence. Together they built a fine steamer, crossing the St. Lawrence in ten minutes, transmitting freight cars across the river without breaking bulk, and have purchased a new steamer for crossing Lake Champlain from Plattsburgh to Burlington. Together they made arrangements for business at the south, the east and the west, and put down the slanders of their common rival, 'the Champlain & St. Lawrence Railroad.' Old national prejudices gave way before the confidence inspired by frequent business transactions, and tried good faith. The business of the roads steadily increased, and new avenues of profit opened themselves for the coming year. Such was our trust in the honor and good faith of our Canadian neighbors that no proposition in which they were interested, would have been listened to for a moment without consulting their wishes and interests. We reposed in their honor and integrity, the confiding faith which honorable men require and are willing to accord.

So situated, it was with surprise and incredulity that we heard rumors of attempts on their part to amalgamate with our common and determined competitor, the Champlain & St. Lawrence Railroad Company, whose overtures to us to build in connection with them were so promptly rejected by us, on account of our obligations of honor to the Directors of the Lachine road.

We made inquiries of some of the Directors, and found them ignorant of any such negotiations; we enquired of others, and were met by evasions and concealment. Alarmed at such treatment, we pressed the enquiry, and found that a portion of the Board of Directors of the Montreal and New York Railroad had secretly made arrangements to sell out or transfer their road, and the whole control of it to the Champlain & St. Lawrence Railroad Company, and had pledged themselves to obtain a vote of the stockholders to that effect, without any notice to us—without guarding one of our interests—without one intimation to us that they wished to sell, and without affording us any opportunity of purchasing, leasing, or in any way protecting our interests.

This proceeding must necessarily deeply affect our interests, and, without desiring on our part to characterize the transaction we confidently appeal to the stockholders to direct whether it be not a breach not only of positive agreement, but of comity and good faith.

And do these Directors expect that this transaction will be sanctioned by the stockholders? Much of the stock is held by honorable, highminded citizens of Montreal—men who cannot, by any appliances, be induced to sanction a measure which is tainted with dishonor, especially when the transaction is had with the citizens of a foreign friendly nation, and the act must be regarded as the betrayal of the interests of a confiding ally into the hands of an inveterate opponent.

It ought not to be, and we believe it will not be sanctioned by the stockholders of the Montreal & New York Railroad, and, we call upon them to refuse to give effect by [illegible] to the great injustice and breach [illegible] agreement, which are attempted [illegible] consummated to our injury.

We ask nothing but a fair consideration of our rights, and what we are clearly and equitably entitled to, and which honorable men should cheerfully concede to us. We look for justice to the action of the stockholders; if disappointed there, we must, of course, resort to such remedies as the laws of the country afford against proceedings as illegal in their progress so far, as they would be unjustifiable if suffered to proceed to completion.

Business in Congress. Land for the Landless.

The N. Y. Tribune says:

"Only two measures which promise any wide and permanent good to the People are agitated; and they have scarcely a chance among the hundreds of selfish projects which overlie and threaten to smother them. Those two are the Pacific Railroad and the Homestead bill.

We have scarcely a hope of the triumph of the former at this Session. Whatever chance it had has been blasted by the reckless interposition of the Nebraska firebrand. But the Homestead bill is at length fairly before the House in Committee, and if its friends are but firm and faithful, a vote upon it may be secured. And if it be voted on, it will pass, or we are grievously in error. There is no majority of the House which would like to meet its constituents on the issue which a vote against the Homestead bill would raise.

There are so many men in Congress who expect to be made rich by the projected Railroads which this same Congress is expected to endow and vitalize by large grants of Public Lands, that we fear the bill will never be pressed to a third reading. It proffers a chance to live by honest labor to millions otherwise needy and dependent; but none of those millions are in Congress, while no one who is there can hope to make even $100 by its passage. It is so just to everybody that it has no chance to be generous to anybody. We fear, therefore, that it is doomed to receive the go-by."

The democratic majority in Congress is overwhelming, and if they are such friends of the people, why don't they provide homes for the homeless out of the untold millions of public lands? They used to cry out against Protection on the ground that it would make the rich richer and the poor poorer, yet they reserve the public lands for democratic speculators. We ask our readers to think of these things.

The Army and the Democracy—With every addition of territory comes a proposition for the increase of the army. It is proposed to increase it from 10 to 17000, and to increase the pay, so that a Maj. Genl. shall receive $265, a month, or $3180, a year, which with rations and extras, will make his pay about $5000, a year. A Brig. Genl. is to have $135 per month, which with rations, &c. will be about $4000, a year; a Col. $135, a month, which with rations, &c. will be about $3000, a year; and a Capt. $75, a month, rations, &c. about $2000 a year. Thus will the Army be fitted to take part in some of the (not distant) local and sectional strifes which agitate this country.—Yet democracy brings about annexation and the increase of the army. Who does not remember the gigantic military scheme of Van Buren by which the whole country was to be turned into a camp and a monster machine for democratic pets, ending in such an obnoxious incubus as to produce a rising of the people, and revolution?—These things demand serious consideration.

Plattsburgh and Montreal R. R.—We call attention to the Address of the Directors in another column. We trust that so great an outrage, will not be practised upon, nor so great a misfortune befal our sister and much esteemed village as that foreshadowed by the Directors.

Plattsburgh has been thriving rapidly and bade fair to become the leading village on the lake, and we trust the hopes of her people and her friends are not thus to be blasted.

THE STAGES AND THE MAILS.—We have never before had stages with the same regularity, nor the mails with the same ir-regularity, as this winter. Stages from Whitehall to this place, and from this place to Burlington by Smith and Spencer, and from this place to Plattsburgh by G. G. Fuller, are as prompt to time as Rail Roads, and yet the mails are in "confusion worse confounded." We have several dailies from Albany and two from Troy.—Some days we get one, some days not any, and then "a heap." Barnburners are death to anything they touch, whether the canals, or mails, or morals.

FIRE.—The large and valuable Hotel of Jacob Tappan of Moriah, was burned about 9 o'clock in the evening of the 22d inst.—The furniture was saved. There was an Insurance of $2000, which we should judge would cover half the value of the house.—This is indeed painful news in all respects. Mr. Tappan, tho' in fact able to meet the loss is one of the first rate of men whom all regret to have meet with a misfortune and then it leaves the village without a public house. The fire is supposed to have taken from a pipe.

Why are the Rochester knockings like a grub hoe? Because they are a great ho-ax

An Explanation demanded.—The boatmen of some of the towns in this county went 'against' the Canal Enlargement because the Northern Canal was not included. The argument was that with their present boats they could not compete with those adapted to the enlargement. Will our Albany friends explain why the Northern Canal was omitted?

☞The small majority in Essex County for the Canals we have heard ascribed to the fact that the Northern Gazette maintained utter silence upon the subject. If it had only come out openly agst., it would resulted in doubling the majority. Well, that may be so. We shouldn't wonder.

ALMOST A FIRE.—The inmates of the Adirondac Hotel of this place were aroused by the cry of fire in the night of the 23d.—The house was filled with smoke and the smell of fire. On making search the cause was discovered in a room occupied by Joseph Hall. A blaze was found about the size of a bushel basket, and Hall quietly and soundly asleep. The fire was soon extinguished, and after a hard shaking Hall was awakened. The conclusion was that the fire started from a pipe in the vest pocket of the sleeper. Smokers take warning.

ALL RIGHT.—By a letter from the Comptroller's office we perceive that Mr. Phelps is retained as Deputy. Mr. Phelps has held the same place for upwards of 20 years, and tho' a democrat, is retained partly because of his experience, but mostly because he is an Adamantine.

"NICK,"—our old friend 'Nick' and not 'Old Nick,' has sent us a 'free' ticket for the '2d Annual Ball' of the '31st Regt.' N. Y. State Militia, 'at D. Judd's' Hotel in Elizabethtown, March 3, 1853.' If the above date is correct we shall be unable to attend. But if, as we suppose, it means next Friday, March 3, 1854, that will alter the case. That the party will be a brilliant one there is no doubt. The officers of the 31st. are gentlemen, and the Regiment a fine band of of worthy citizens, commanded by Col. Persons of Westport J. L. Merriam, Wadhams Mills, Lt. Col.

☞Last Monday night snow fell in N. Y. city to the depth of 2 feet, and in Boston to the depth of 4 feet! Yet we northerners away up in this 'Siberian' region are suffering for the want of snow on which to perform our usual business.

A live Whig.—On the 15th Col. E. F. Williams of Elizabethtown run up the 'stars and stripes,' and let them float till the announcement of the triumphant success of the Canals.

WELL'S CORNET BAND.—We understand this band has been invited to play at a School Celebration in Elizabethtown next week. This band is composed of most estimable citizens of middle age, and most decided musical talent.

SOCIAL BALL.—The young Irish citizens of Keeseville held their annual Social Ball at Mr. B. Roger's hall, on Friday evening 17th inst. A great many from Plattsburgh, Peru, and this place were in attendance.—"Ed." was favored with an invitation, and he says the ladies were captivating, the music good, and everything went off in first-rate style.

Assembly Chamber.—We are indebted to Hon. Jonathan Burnet and Hon. Geo. Richards for a Diagram of the Assembly Chamber for 1854 from each.

THANKS.—We are indebted to Hon. Geo. A. Simmons for a handsomely bound copy of the Presidents Message and accompanying documents.

Also to Hon. Jonathan Burnet, for a copy Report of the Adjt. General of the state of N. Y.

JUDSON'S HOTEL, N. Y. CITY.—By reference to a card in another column it will be seen that P. & J. O'GRADY lately of Lake Champlain Steamers have taken this well known and popular Hotel. The Messrs O'Grady are proverbial for promptness and accuracy in business, and as intelligent gentlemen they have few superiors. In going to the city they will add vastly to their reputation, but more to their pockets.

JOHN P. CHAPIN & Co.—We call attention to the card of this firm. Wherever Louis Follet is, business has got to move briskly, and systematically. His numerous friends in this section will learn his connection with pleasure, and will wish him well in his distant home. "May no ill betide him," but may prosperity attend him all his days.

☞AN OPEN WINTER, has some comforts it is true; but it is a decided disadvantage to Livery Stables, Lumbermen, &c. In some of its phases, too, it proves to be a great inconvenience to the farmer. The icy surface of the last fortnight makes it quite troublesome for cattle, and innumerable mishaps is the consequence, cows, in a particular manner being the most liable to injury, have suffered the most from unlucky falls. It has occurred to us that a great deal of pains should be taken in such a stage of the winter to supply them with water to keep them from rambling, so that they might keep quiet in their yard, or tied up in their stables.

STATEMENT in relation to the proposed amendment in relation to the Canals:

The Board of County Canvassers of the county of Essex having met at the office of the Clerk of said county on the 20th day of February, 1854, to canvass and estimate, the votes given in the several election districts of said county at the Special Election held on the 15th day of February in the year aforesaid, Do certify as follows, to wit: that it appears on such estimate and canvass that the whole number of votes given In relation to the proposed amendment in relation to the Canals was one thousand six hundred and sixteen, (1616,) of which the number of votes given "For the proposed amendment in relation to the Canals" was one thousand and one hundred and twelve, (1112); and the number of votes given Against the proposed Amendment in relation to the Canals, was five hundred and two, (502); and the number of votes given as follows: "The proposed Amendment in relation to the Canals" was two, (2).

Dated the 20th day of February, in the year 1854.

Wm. E. CALKINS, Chairman of Board County Canvassers.

E. A. ADAMS, Co. Clerk and Secretary.

I certify the above to be a true copy from the Record in my office.

E. A. ADAMS, Clerk.

Mortgage Sale.

WHEREAS, Henry Haile, then of the town of Crownpoint in Essex county, by a certain Indenture of mortgage executed and bearing date the 7th day of February. A. D. 1849, and with the usual power of sale therein contained, and duly recorded in the office of the clerk of the county of Essex, in vol. O of mortgages on pages 364 and 365 on the 4th day of June, 1849, at 3 o'clock, P. M., to secure the payment of five hundred dollars and interest, did duly grant, bargain, sell and convey to Jeremiah Powers, then of the town of Fittsford, county of Rutland and State of Vermont, certain premises described in said mortgage as follows, to wit:

"All that certain piece or parcel of land situate, lying and being in the town of Crown Point, in the county of Essex and State of New York, being sub-division lot in a larger tract of land granted by letters patent, bearing date on the 7th day of August in the year of our Lord 1764, to Captain Robert Grant, which said sub-division lot hereby intended to be sold and conveyed is described and distinguished on a map and survey of the said tract of land granted as aforesaid to the said Captain Robert Grant, and filed in the office of the clerk of the county of Essex, on the 9th day of December, 1835, as lot number thirteen (13) and is bounded and described as follows, to wit:

Commencing at an iron-wood stake and stones in the easterly bounds of lot No. 17, in the possession of Isaac Russell, and runs thence south-easterly fifty-four chains and sixty-five links to an iron-wood stake and stones in the westerly bounds of lot No. 32, in the possession of Howard Barrows; thence south-westerly twelve chains and forty-one links to an oak stake and stones in the west bounds of lot No. 24, in the possession of Nathan B. Sprague; thence north-westerly fifty-four chains and twenty-five links to an iron-wood stake and stones in the east bounds of lot No. 23 in the possession of Stephen L. Herrick, thence north-easterly fifteen chains and eighty-seven links to the place of beginning—containing seventy-six acres and one-tenth of an acre of land, be the same more or less."

And, whereas, on the 17th day of May, 1853 the said mortgage with the moneys unpaid thereon were for a valuable consideration, and by an instrument in writing of that date sold and assigned by the said mortgagee to Charles F. Hammond, John C. Hammond and Allen Penfield of Crownpoint aforesaid.

And whereas, default has been made in the payment of the moneys secured to be paid by said mortgage, and there is now claimed to be due on [said] mortgage at the time of the first publication of this notice, (being the date hereof,) the sum of six hundred and seventy-five 97-100 dollars ($675 97,) and no proceedings at law or equity having been had or instituted to recover the same or any part thereof.

Now, therefore, notice is hereby given, that in pursuance of said power of sale contained in said mortgage, and of the statute in such case made and provided, said mortgaged premises hereinbefore described, or so much thereof as shall be necessary to satisfy the amount due on said mortgage together with the costs and expenses of foreclosure—will be sold by public auction at the hotel kept by J. A. Benedict, in the town of Crownpoint and county of Essex, on the 16th day of May 1854, at 10 o'clock in the forenoon.

NEW YORK,

Offers one of the most extensive Stocks and complete assortments in the country of Books and Stationary,

FOR CASH ONLY.

The amount of goods in our line purchased by country merchants is usually quite small compared with their dry goods hardware, and other bills; and this very circumstance absolutely compels jobbers in the book business, who sell on time, to get larger profits in order to make up for the losses and extra expenses necessarily involved in a credit business of small amounts. It is also easy for the merchant to make arrangements to buy his book bill for cash; though it might not be so convenient for him to purchase his larger bills in this way.

These considerations have led us to adopt in our business, from this date, January, 1854, the following principles, viz.: small profits, unvarying prices, and terms always cash.

Being ourselves the sole publishers of a number of the leading and most extensively selling School Books in the country, as well as works in other departments, our facilities are unsurpassed,

Call upon us, or send an order, and judge for yourselves, if the saving you can make by buying of us for cash is worth while.

Our location is very central, and easily found. Stand on the Astor House steps, and look straight forward across the corner of the Park, and you cannot avoid seeing our signs. Remember, the name is

"Man Know Thyself."

An Invaluable Book for 25 Cents.

"EVERY FAMILY SHOULD HAVE A COPY."

20,000 Copies sold in less than 5 months. A new edition, revised and improved, just issued.

Dr. Hunter's Medical Manual and Hand Book for the Afflicted—Containing an outline of the origin, progress, treatment and cure of every form of disease, contracted by promiscuous sexual intercourse, by self abuse or by sexual excess, with advice for their prevention, written in a familiar style, avoiding all medical technicalities, and everything that would offend the ear of decency, from the result of some twenty years successful practice, exclusively devoted to the cure of diseases of a delicate or private nature.

To which is added, receipts for the cure of the above diseases, and a treatise on the causes, symptoms and cure of the Fever and Ague.

Testimony of the Prof' of Obstetrics in Penn. College, Philadelphia —"Dr. Hunter's Medical Manual."—The author of this work unlike the majority of those works who advertise to cure the diseases of which it treats, is a graduate of one of the best Colleges in the United States. It affords me pleasure to recommend him to the unfortunate, or to the victim of malpractice, as a successful and experienced practitioner, in whose honor and integrity they may place the greatest confidence.

JOSEPH LONGSHORE, M. D.

From A Woodward, M. D., of Penn. University, Philadelphia—It gives me pleasure to add my testimony to the professional ability of the author of the "Medical Manual." Numerous cases of diseases of the Genital Organs some of them of long standing have come under my notice, in which his skill has been manifest in restoring to perfect health, in some instances where the patient has been considered beyond medical aid. In the treatment of Seminal weakness, or disarrangement of the functions produced by Self-abuse, or Excess of venery, I do not know his superior in the profession. I have been acquainted with the Author some thirty years, and deem it no more than justice to him as well as a kindness to the unfortunate victim of early indiscretion, to recommend him as one, in whose professional skill and integrity they may safely confide themselves. ALFRED WOODWARD, M.D.

"This is, without exception, the most comprehensive and intelligible work published on the class of diseases of which it treats Avoiding all technical terms, it addresses itself to the reason of its readers. It is free from all objectionable matter and no parent, however fastidious, can object to placing it in the hands of his sons. The author has devoted many years to the treatment of the various complaints treated of, and with too little breath to puff,' and 'too little presumption to impose,' he has offered to the world at the merely nominal price of 25 cents, the fruits of some 20 years most successful practice."—Herald.

"No teacher or parent should be without the knowledge imparted in this invaluable work. It would save years of pain, mortification and sorrow to the youth under their charge."—People's Advocate.

A Presbyterian clergyman in Ohio, in writing of "Hunter's Medical Manual," says: "Thousands upon thousands of our youth, by evil example and influence of the passions, have been led into the habit of self-pollution without realizing the sin and fearful consequences upon themselves and their posterity. The constitutions of thousands who are raising families have been enfeebled, if not broken down, and the do not know the cause or the cure. Anything that can be done so to enlighten and influence the public mind as to check, and ultimately to remove this widespread source of human wretchedness, would confer the greatest blessing next to the religion of Jesus Christ, on the present and coming generations. Intemperance (or the use of intoxicating drinks,) though it has slain thousands upon thousands, is not a greater scourge to the human race. Accept my thanks on behalf of the afflicted, and, believe me, your co-worker in the good work you are so actively engaged in."

One copy, (securely enveloped,) will be forwarded free of postage to any part of the United States for 25 cents, or 6 copies for $1.—Address (post paid) COSDEN & Co., publishers, Box 196, Philadelphia. 478y

THE MARRIAGE STATE;

Shall Happiness and Health, or Misery and Sickness, attend it?

MOST STARTLING CONSIDERATIONS!

Reflections for the Thoughtful.

Strange that countless human beings exist and drag through life as do the beasts of the field, or the insects of the earth, evincing no more thought or reflection than though the noble faculties of mind were not vouchsafed to them.

Many such are husbands and fathers, upon whom are dependent the health, the well-being, and the happiness of a confiding and affectionate wife, with perhaps a family of children.

HOW OFTEN IT HAPPENS THAT THE

WIFE LINGERS FROM YEAR TO YEAR

In that pitiable condition as not even for one day to feel the happy and exhilerating influence incident to the enjoyment of health.

She may not be an invalid confined to her bed, or even to her room; as her pride, ambition and energy induce and nerve her to take personal charge of her household, even when her health will not admit of it; but she is nevertheless perceptibly sinking from day to day, and always ailing.

Thus, day after day, and month after month transpire. Her health daily sinks, till finally even the hope of recovery no longer remains. And thus

THE BLOOMING BRIDE,

But a few years ago in the flush of health and youth, and buoyancy of spirits, rapidly, and apparently inexplicably, becomes a feeble, sickly, debilitated wife, with frame emaciated, nerves unstrung, spirits depressed, countenance bearing the impress of suffering, and an utter physical and mental prostration.

Sometimes this deplorable change may and does arise from organic or constitutional causes. But oftener, by far oftener, to gross and inexcusable ignorance of the simplest and plainest rules of health as connected with the marriage state, the violation of which entails disease, suffering and misery, not only to the wife, but often

"UNTO THE THIRD AND FOURTH GENERATION,"

Transmitting CONSUMPTION, SCROFULA, HYPOCHONDRIA, INSANITY, GOUT, KING'S EVIL, and other diseases, as a

DREADFUL INHERITANCE

from the Parents.

And must this continue? Shall we be wise in all that concerns the cattle of our fields, our horses, our sheep, our cows, our oxen, the nature and character of the soil we possess, the texture and quality of our goods and merchandise; but in all that concerns ourselves as human beings, with human functions and passions, subject to great derangement, involving our future peace and happiness—in all that concerns the health and welfare of the wife of our affections, and the mother of our children; in all that concerns the mental and physical well being of those children, we should be immersed in the darkest and most

BENIGHTED IGNORANCE,

AS CULPABLE AS INEXCUSABLE!

How long shall this ignorance prevail so productive of its bitter fruits? How long shall the wife and mother be ignorant of the nature, character and causes of the various womb and sexual complaints, embittering her days by suffering—suffering often prolonged to years, eventuating in a complication of diseases utterly and hopelessly incurable? Shall we for ever close our eyes to the results of physiological science by which we may arrive at an understanding of ourselves as men and women, subject to serious life-long enduring diseases, and perpetuating them to our children.

LET EVERY WIFE AND HUSBAND PONDER!

No husband or wife need be ignorant of what concerns them most to know to secure their health and happiness. That knowledge is contained in a little work entitled

Carpets and Oil-Cloths.

Owing to the large increase of patronage, I have found it necessary from time to time, to make many improvements and additions to my store.

This spring I have united the stores No. 7 and 9, State St., making a spacious and beautiful room, fitted up expressly for the sale of all the various styles of ilks, Shawls, Cloaks & Mantillas.

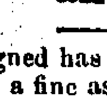
This connects with the main store, No. 202, River St., (the old stand occupied by the subscriber for nearly 30 years,) which is devoted to a general assortment of

STAPLE AND FANCY DRY GOODS,

comprising every variety to meet the wants of all classes of buyers. Besides these, four large rooms over the stores 200, 202 and 204 River St., are occupied as



CARPET WARE-ROOMS,

where I am constantly receiving the newest and most desirable patterns of Velvet, Tapestry, Brussels, Three-ply, Ingrain and Venetian Carpets. Also, Oil-Cloths of every quality and width, and every style of Drugetts, Rugs, Mats, Matting, Stair-Rods, &c.

All these departments combined making an extensive and complete Establishment, conducted on such principles, that customers can trade with confidence, and to their own advantage, my sales being always for cash, and the only price asked, being the lowest cash price. G. V. S. QUACKENBUSH.

Henry's Invigorating Cordial,

PURELY VEGETABLE IN ITS COMPOSITION.

This invaluable Cordial, is extracted from Herbs and Roots, which have been found after years of experience, by the most skillful Physicians, to be possessed of qualities most beneficial in the diseases for which it is recommended, and hence, whilst it is presented to the public, as an efficacious remedy it is also known to be of that character on which reliance may be placed as to its safety. In cases of Impotency, Hemorrhages, Disordered Sterility, Menstruation, or Suppression of the Menses, Fluor Albus or Whites, or for arising from any cause, such as weakness from sickness, where the patient has been confined to bed for some time. for Females after Confinement, Abortion or Miscarriage, this Cordial cannot be excelled in its salutary effects; or in loss of Muscular Energy, Irritability, Physical Prostration, Seminal Weakness, Palpitation of the Heart, Indigestion, Sluggishness, Decay of the Procreative Functions, Nervousness, &c., where a tonic Medicine is required, it will be found equal, if not superior to any Compound ever used.

DEBILITY

TO FEMALES.

Henry's Invigorating Cordial. is one of the most invaluable Medicines in the many Complaints to which Females are subject. It assists nature to brace the whole system, check excesses, and creates renewed health and happiness. Less suffering, disease and unhappiness among Ladies would exist, where they generally to adopt the use of this Cordial. Ladies who are debilitated by those obstructions which females are liable to, are restored by the use of a bottle or two. to bloom and to vigor.

YOUNG MEN.

That solitary practice, so fatal to the existence of man and it is too young who are most apt to become its victims, from an ignorance of the danger to which they subject themselves, causes

NERVIOUS DEBILITY.

Weakness of the System, and Premature Decay. Many of you may now be suffering, misled as to the cause or source of disease. To those, then, who by excess have brought on themselves Premature Impotency. Involuntary Seminal Emissions, Weakness and shrivelling of the Genital Organs. Nervous Affection, or any other consequences of unrestrained indulgence of the sensual passions, occasioning the necessity of renouncing the felicities of lessening both mental and bodily capacity, Hold! Henry's Invigorating Cordial, a Medicine that is purely Vegetable, will aid nature to restore those important functions to a healthy state, and will prove of service to you. It possesses rare virtues, is a general remover of disease, and strengthener of the system.

MARRIAGE,

AS A TONIC MEDICINE,

it is unsurpassed. We do not place this Cordial on a footing with quack medicines, and, as is customary, append a long list of Recommendations, Certificates, &c., beginning with "Hear what the Preacher says," and such like; it is not necessary, for "Henry's Invigorating Cordial," only needs a trial to prove that it will accomplish all we say.

THE GENUINE "HENRY'S INVIGORATING CORDIAL."

is put up in 8 oz, Pannel Bottles, and is easily recognized by the Manufacturer's signature on the label of each Bottle, (to counterfeit which is forgery.) as well as his private Seal on the cork of each Bottle.

☞ Sold for $2 per Bottle; Six for $8; $16 per dozen

MORSE'S

COMPOUND SYRUP OF

Yellow Dock Root.

THIS is a Purely Vegetable Compound, scientifically prepared from the best Roots and Herbs of the Materia Medica, and has gained a universal reputation for the following effects, viz: Regulating and Strengthening the Liver and Digestive Organs, and Clensing the Stomach and Bowels, and curing all Billious Diseases, Liver Complaints, Dyspepsia, Indigestion, Costiveness, Piles Headache, Fever and Ague, Jaundice Nausea Loss of Appetite, &c., and causing the food to nourish and support every part, PURIFYING THE BLOOD, and thus curing all Humors, Cutaneous Eruptions, Scrofula, Salt Rheum, Erysipelas, Scald Head, Canker, Pimples on the face, Blotches, Ulcers, Tumors, Mercurial Diseases, Cancers, &c. Regulating the Secretory Organs, and by enabling them to perform their proper functions, preventing and curing many painful and dangerous diseases; strengthening and Quieting the nervous system, thus allaying Nervous Irritation, and curing all Diseases of the Nerves, as Hysteria, Neuralgia, Cramps, &c.

It is unrivalled in the cure of all FEMALE COMPLAINTS, as weakness, general debility, Irregularity, Obstructions, Swelling of the Feet, Limbs, Joints, &c., caused by weakness; also, Lung and Throat Complaints, as Colds, Coughs, Asthma, Consumption, &c., also, Dropsy.

Having made use of the Compound Syrup of Yellow Dock Root, prepared by C. Morse and Co., either ourselves or in our families and finding it to be a very salutary and effectual preparation, we do most cheerfully recommend it to the public as a very valuable medicine.

E. Bourne, Esq., Cashier National Bank, Providence, R. I.; A. W. Spencer, Esq., Cashier Lime Rock Bank, do do Rev. William Phillips, Rev. J. B. Richmond, C. S Jones, editor Providence Gen. Advt., Wm. Field, M. W G. M., Cyrus Fisher, M. E. H. P. James Hutchinson, G. S. Dea., V. J. Bates, Doct Benj. Colby, and one hundred others of the most respectable families of Providence.

This certifies that I have for a number of years been acquainted with the composition and mode of manufacture of Morse's Compound Syrup of Yellow Dock Root. I have also been acquainted with its modus operandi in disease, and can say that in all respects it is admirably calculated to remedy that class of Diseases for which it was designed. It is especially valuable in Indigestion and all its attendant symptoms, it excites to healthy action the Liver, removes Torpor, and inactivity of this organ, and stimulates healthy action to all the system. As a Depurator or purifier of the Blood it has no superior.

"The D——l to pay."

The Carrier's Address of the Sandy Hill Herald, (Hard,) on the opening of the New Year thus discoursed:

Marcy, Chatfield, Ho, Seymour and Co.,
With the prince, half-seas-over, have been all the go.
He moulded their party from A down to Z,
Made them play tweedle-dum, and sing tweedle-dee;
On the old rotten platform at Buffalo plan'd
(Fit place for such party) the traitors took stand,
But Bronson's rude pen gave its timbers a shock,
And Guthrie, enraged, brought his head to the block.
Shame! shame on our country, must the gifted and free
To faction bow down, and to knaves bend the knee?
Let centralization unite blot out our state,
Yield the rights they hold dear, or meet such a fate?
No! this cannot be, true patriots won't cower
To the vengance of minions, or strong arm of power;
"The Old Guard" stands firm as the rock belted shore,
They dash back the foam and mock at its roar;
To faction they bow not, they yield not to might,
Their motto "the union," "each state has its right."
With you Gumbo Marcy, a wager I'll stake,
You'll find some staunch crafts that won't sail in your wake;
And take this advice, howe'r coarse it may come,
You'd better, by half, "mend your breeches" at home
Than to stay where you are, tugging at boilers,
And getting up steam for propelling
FREE SOILERS.
They once had a platform, at least so 'twas said,
Large enough for the Prince, Johnny Dix, and dark Fred,
But one pleasant morning, the chaps that designed it,
For a suck at some pap, to Guthrie assigned it;
They too had a stone which they watch'd with great care.
Now buried in rubbish, the devil knows where Except in the dark they have left former haunts
And taken day quarters in Marcy's old pants.
But one thing is certain, in this last retreat
They'll have to stick close or they'll fall through the seat;
They're "union men" now a name took for cheating,
But like Crowell's lamb, "'twas got just by bleating."

We copy the following from the "ODD-FELLOWS' OFFERING, for 1854," published by Bro. EDWARD WALKER, 114 Fulton-street:

"REBEKAH."

BY N. LANSFORD FOSTER.

"OH, WOMAN! * * * * *
* * * * * * *
When pain and sickness wring the brow,
A ministering Angel THOU!"

THE "DEGREE OF REBEKAH"—This modern female Degree, in our beloved Order, appears to my mind to be its most ornamental, its crowning Degree. We are alone, we are lost and bewildered, without the society of woman; and, in a great measure, we are inefficient without her cooperation, her friendly and sympathizing aid.

Where any great and important object is to be attained through intellectual effort and more especially by moral suasion or entreaty, let Woman enlist her sympathetic feelings, let her put forth her philanthropic exertions, and unite her voice in the good cause; and the work is destined to progress; it will most assuredly be accomplished. And in case of sickness, bereavement, destitution, suffering of any kind—oh, is she not, indeed, a "MINISTERING ANGEL?"

I was travelling recently in Virginia, and stopped a while in a little romantic hilly city, to one of whose citizens, a brother of the Order, I had a line of introduction.—Calling with him one day at the residence of a lady, for whom I had a communication, I had the pleasure of learning that her husband was a brother Odd-Fellow, and herself a sister "REBEKAH." From her lips I had a very interesting and pathetic history of the sickness and death, that not long before had taken place in that city, of a member of the Order; who, having been led by force of circumstances, some years ago, to leave his dear wife and children in a northern city, had located himself there and engaged in the pursuit of his accustomed calling. He had for some length of time resided there—diligent, industrious, and respected. There he sickened and died among strangers—far from his beloved family. His sickness was protracted and severe. Although among strangers, he was amidst friends—brothers of a kindred tie;" surrounded by fraternal kind, and sympathizing hearts.

And here the gentle Rebekah watched by his sick-bed, dispensed his medicine, witnessed from day to day the ravages of his disease; wiped the perspiration from his fevered brow; noted his languid pulse—his ebbing life-tide; listened to his parting expressions of gratitude, as his eyes closed in death. He died in early life; calmly and peacefully, in hope of future blessedness. His remains, inclosed in a metallic sarcophagus, provided by the brethren, were accompanied by a delegation of the Order to his former home; and there fraternal hearts united in condolence with his bereaved family, and mingled tears with theirs, as they committed his "dust to its kindred dust."

Such incidents are not uncommon in the records of Odd Fellowship. Such are its noble deeds. Such are its seasonable, friendly acts; and such are our Rebekahs.

Nobly does our Order take them under its sheltering wing!

I had just received a visiting missive from my 'Pacific' Alma Mater in Penn's far distant city; and I entered one of the Lodges in L———. It was not numerously attended. I learned that the Lodge was in debt to a considerable amount for their new Hall. Nevertheless, being enterprising and energetic, their hearts were warm, and their hands open at the call of charity; they were Odd Fellows indeed.

A letter was read, which had recently been received from a lady residing in a distant city. She was the widow of a brother, formerly a member of the same Lodge. The letter was well written. It was a pathetic appeal to the benevolence of the Order, and it proved an affecting appeal to the sympathies of the brethren assembled. It was the spontaneous effusion of an afflicted mother's heart. She was a widow; and her fatherless children were in destitute circumstances and afflicted—they were meet objects of aid.

She claimed nothing as benefits guaranteed to her deceased husband; for all had been already promptly paid. But, her husband had been an Odd-Fellow, good and true. She was a lone widow—her children were orphans—and they were in want. This assembly of fraternal hearts, short of funds as they were, by a unanimous vote made her a donation of thirty dollars. Liberal, this, in their financial circumstances; yet the sum appeared too small to satisfy their generous emotions.—A brother rose and said, 'I will be one of ten, who will give one dollar each, to add to our donation.' With electric speed the deed was done, and the additional ten dollars were given on the spot. Oh! is it not 'more blessed to give than to receive?'

Often have I heard it said, 'Odd-Fellowship can do no good.' I have heard the professed Christian speak against Odd-Fellowship, and all 'secret societies;' and urge as an argument against them, that the Church of Christ is a benevolent society, from its very nature the most benevolent that can be instituted; and therefore supercedes the necessity of any other benevolent or beneficent association. This might be conceded, if the Christian Church were what it should be; if it were all it professes to be. But it is to be regretted the Church is not in this respect, what it should be. Heaven forbid that I should say aught against the Church, as such. It is the Divine institution, fraught with richest spiritual blessings, and designed to be the almoner of the highest good to society for the life that now is and that which is to come. I love the Church. I love its charitable, its benevolent, its Good Samaritan-like acts, whenever and wherever I witness them. And I would make no invidious comparison between the Church and any other benevolent or beneficient institution. But I may be permitted to say, in the language of a traveling Odd-Fellow, and as the result, too, of my own observation: 'Let a member of our Order be taken sick abroad—far away from his home; let him be in want; destitute of the means to provide for himself the things which are necessary to his comfort, or even to sustain his being; he has only to make himself known as of this Fraternity, and his wants are at once supplied. Fraternal hearts dilate with sympathy; fraternal hands are extended with grief-dispelling, joy-inspiring charity. The brothers visit him; minister to his necessities; provide him medical attendance; watch, in person, around his couch of sickness; and if his days be numbered, perform for him the last sad offices of humanity, by consigning his remains to the tomb.

"But the travelling Christian may be recognized as in good standing in the Church; so that, perchance, he may be invited to their communion table; yet when abroad, among strangers, he may suffer from accident, loss, privation, and sickness; and no special kindness is shown him by his Christian brethren; the priest 'and Levite pass by on the other side,' and scarcely does a 'Samaritan pour in oil and wine.' He may languish in distress and destitution, till nature's last debt is paid; and then, if without money, though among professed Christians, he is scarcely allowed a decent burial."

I have already delineated the amiable and soul cheering power of woman as the female philanthropist around the bed of languishing and death. How susceptible is her heart of the most exquisite sensibility, and of the tenderest and most refined emotions of sympathy! Her religious emotions, too, are in general far more pure, exalted, and spiritualized, than those of the sterner sex. And in soliciting contributions to forward any benevolent, moral, or religious enterprise, who can plead like woman? and whose importunity is so uniformally crowned with success? Indeed, the influence of the female mind has already become proverbial. All that is requisite is, that the female mind be properly cultivated, and richly stored with virtuous and religious principles; and let these true 'sisters of charity' unite, with one consent, to oppose the torrent of vice which threatens to devastate our widely extended Republic, and what an irresistible phalanx would they present to the progres of vice!

The protean forms which infidelity and vice assume among us, and which seem to spread a dark funeral pall over the fair visage of our moral world, are not to be suddenly annihilated. This must be the work of time; but the work, though slow, is sure. Let the united voice of woman pronounce the duellist an outlaw from society. How effectually and how speedily would such a decree put an end to those heartless, heaven-defying murders—t[illegible]d Harry! look back into that spring of a co[illegible] misnamed the co[illegible] 'he frock has fallen from her honor! [illegible]ars are falling fast upon it.

Take another prevailing sin—that hydra-headed vice—INTEMPERANCE. Woman's destiny and mission is to destroy this monster, suicidal crime. Who does not already see the necessity of this? for woman has a direct interest in the accomplishment of this long-desired and ardently prayed-for lustration. Thus ONLY, will a death-blow be given to drunkenness. And thus will woman—our Christian sisters, and our sister REBEKAHS—be foremost in the redemption of our land.

In such a manner may the combined influence of woman counteract the vices which severally pollute our moral atmosphere, stigmatize our national character, and even now threaten to crush all cherished hopes of human progress.

ELSIE'S FIRST TRIAL.

BY FANNY FERN.

FIVE happy years had Elsie Lee slept on her husband's bosom. False prophets were they, who shook their heads at her bridal, and said she would rue the day she wedded Harry Lee; that he was 'unsteady, impulsive and fickle.'

She knew it was true, as they said, that he had loved unhappily before she met him; but the bright vision that had bewildered him was far beyond the seas; she might never cross his path again. Be that as it may, Elsie was not the woman to cloud the sunshine of the present with dim foreboding, or question the past of the history of a heart now so loyal to her.

They were not rich; but light hearts seldom keep company with heavy coffers; and Elsie's fairy hand had made their small house better worth the seeing, than many a gorgeous drawingroom with its upholstery show. And for sculpture, she could show you a little dimpled fairy, whose golden head was nightly pillowed on her breast, and whose match it were hard to find in any artist's studio in the land. Yes, with Harry by her side and her babe upon her knee, Elsie defied the world. Kings and queens might lord it where they liked—her region was absolute in her own little, kingdom.

'So you are married and settled since I went abroad,' said Vincent to Harry; 'have a nice little wife, so I hear: 'sown all your wild oats,' and made up your mind to be virtuous. Now, I shan't come to witness your felicity, for two reasons. Firstly, if your wife isn't pretty, I don't want to see her. I think every ugly woman's pious duty to make way with herself! Secondly, if she is handsome, I should make love to her, spite of fate or you; for I'm neither a 'non-resistant' nor 'a perfectionist,' as you very well know. And, thirdly, to sum up all I have to say, your old ideal, Miss ———, returned in the steamer with me, lovely as a Peri. She inquired about you; and, if your little wife will allow you'—and a slight sneer curled his handsome lip—'I'd advise you to call on her; but prenez garde, Harry, I defy any man to withstand her witchery. I'm an old stager myself, but she plays the very misobief with my petrified heart, for all that.'

'If his little wife would let him!' It rang in Harry's ear all the way home. Vincent thought him already in leading-strings. That would never do! and so he persuaded himself this was the reason he intended calling on the fair Marion—just to show Vincent how angelic Elsie was, and how far above such a petty feeling as jealousy. And then his imagination wandered back to by-gone days, when a radiant smile of Marion's a flower she had worn in her hair, a touch of her small hand was worth all the mines of Peru to him.

'Pshaw! how foolish! and I a married man!' and he stepped off briskly, as if in that way he could rid himself of such foolish thoughts.

Elsie met him at the door, fresh and sweet as a daisy.

"You are not well, Harry," she said, as she remarked his heightened color; 'you've been annoyed with business.'

'Not a bit,' said he, patting her on the cheek, and tossing up his child. 'Not a bit; and now let's have dinner, for I've a business engagement at four.'

How absent he was! how abstracted! he seemed to eat just for the form of the thing, although she had been all the morning preparing his favorite dish. 'Never mind,' said the gentle little wife to herself; 'he has some business perplexity that he is too thoughtful to annoy me with;' and she passed her hand caressingly over his forehead, as if to assure him silently of her sympathy.

'Elsie,' said he, with a slight heart-twinge, 'you have heard me speak of Marion Ruthven? Vincent says she has returned with him in the steamer—and as she is a stranger in the city, I feel as if I must call on her. She leaves soon for her brother's house in New York.'

Elsie's heart throbbed quickly, but she bent her graceful head very closely over the little frock she was embroidering, so that Harry could not see the expression of her face, and said, in her usual tone.

'Don't apologize to me, dear Harry, if you wish to go.'

'Like yourself, dear Elsie!' said he, kissing her cheek. And in half an hour afterwards he emerged from his dressing-room, where he had made himself very unnecessarily handsome, by a most careful toilette.

Elsie complimented him on his appearance, and gave him his usual warm-hearted kiss as he left; and Harry said to himself, as he went down the street, 'how glad I am she is not jealous! Some women would have made quite a scene.'

Now she paces the floor. What! she jealous of Harry? Oh, no, no! but the bright, dazzling Marion! so talented, so gifted, so fascinating! If Harry's old penchant for her should return! Oh! what had she to oppose to all her witchery? Only a sweet, childish face, and a heart whose every pulsation was love for him who had won it. Oh why did she ever come back? Such a happy dream as her wedded life had been, thus far!

Oh, how slowly the hours passed, as she gave herself up to this voluntary self-torture! Harry must not see her thus—no. She rose and bathed her eyes, and tried to busy herself with her accustomed occupations, and so far succeeded, that when he sat opposite to her at the tea-table, that evening, he was quite convinced that he could repeat his call without giving his little wife a single heart-pang. Poor little, proud Elsie! he didn't know how you longed to throw your arms about his neck, and say: 'Oh, never look on those bright eyes again, dear Harry! Be mine—mine only!"

No, he didn't know that! The spell had begun to work—he was blinded! Elsie hoped the fair enchantress would soon leave; but it was not so, and Harry became more abstracted every day, although his manner still continued kind as usual.

Elsie's heart could not be deceived. It was not 'business' that kept him as often from his hearthstone. No, she had twice, thrice, heard him murmur the bright stranger's name in his dreams. But no words fell from her lips to remind him of all his heart-wanderings. She was more studious than ever for his comfort. She never upbraided, never questioned. He went and came, as he liked. Still it was telling fast, this secret sorrow, upon the patient little wife. There was a pallor on her cheek that told its own story—or would have done so to eyes less blinded than Harry's.

Our sorrows are so lightened by sympathy; but the grief that may not be spoken—the weight of trouble that slender shoulders must bend under alone—who shall know save those who have borne it!

Elsie was alone in her dressing-room, where she had sat for hours, motionless. A sudden thought seemed to inspire her. She started up, bathed her pale face, smoothed her sunny ringlets, and arrayed herself with more than usual care.

'That will be better,' she murmured to herself, as she passed through the busy street to lady Marion's dwelling.

'I do not recollect,' said Marion, with a graceful courtesy, and blushing slightly, as Elsie entered.

'I am a stranger to you,' said Elsie, her silvery voice tremulous with agitation; and as her eye glanced over Marion's full, round figure, with its queenly grace of motion, and noted her large, bright eyes, and raven hair, and snowy shoulders, she marvelled not at the spell!

'I am Harry Lee's wife,' said Elsie. 'Oh, lady Marion! of all the hearts your beauty wins, only one I claim! For God's sake, do not wrest it from me! Earth would be so dark to me without my husband's love!' and her tears fell fast upon the fair strangers hand.

'As God is my witness, never!' said the impulsive woman, touched with her sweet confidence. 'I will never see him again;' and she drew her to her side with a sister's fondness.

'God bless you!' said the happy Elsie. 'And you will keep my secret?'

'Elsie, 'tis very odd you were never the least bit jealous of my old friend Marion,' said Harry, a few days after the above occurrence. 'Very shabby of her, don't you think so, to leave town without even saying good-bye to me? N'importe; my little wife is worth a dozen of her;' and Harry kissed her cheek fondly.

Praise.

Almighty God, whose gifts to me
Like living waters flow,
The sum of praise I owe to thee
My numbers fail to show.
In praise to thee, if beasts and birds
Awake their glad acclaim,
With nobler notes, and burning words,
Let man extol thy name,

To spread thy praise, do oceans roar;
Do floods lift up their song?
O, then, to praise thee more and more,
It must to man belong.
Art thou a gracious God for me?
And wilt thou guide my ways?
Then give me grace wherewith, to thee,
To give adoring PRAISE. E. C.

First Sabbath of The Pilgrims.

It was in December, 1620, that the ship May Flower, which brought over the first emigration of Puritans, anchored on the wild New England shore. There were none to show them kindness, or bid them welcome. A boat was sent from the vessel to explore the coast, and seek a favorable landing. She was manned by the bravest hearts, and stoutest arms. The cold was severe, and the spray frose as it fell on them, making their clothes like iron coats. No convenient harbor was yet discovered.

After some hours' hard sailing, a storm of sleet and snow sets in; night is at hand, the sea swells, the storm increases, the rudder splits, the masts bends and breaks, and the sail falls overboard. The frightened pilot would have run the boat ashore in a cove full of breakers. 'About with her!' shouts one of the sailors, 'or we are lost.' They hasten to obey the order; the boat rises over the surf, and is soon under the lee of land. It is dark, and the storm rages furiously. Hungry and wet, cold and tired, the men creep ashore, and after much difficulty kindle a fire. When morning dawned, they found themselves on a small island at the entrance of a harbor, which proved to be Plymouth harbor; and here they spent the day, to rest from their fatigues, and repair their boat.

The next day was the Sabbath. Time was precious; it was late in the season, and their comrades in the ship might suffer anxiety on their account; every thing demanded haste, but they 'remembered the Sabbath-day to keep it holy.' All labor was put aside; and on a frozen ground, in a chilly air, under a frowning sky, without shelter, and almost without food, they spent the day in divine worship and holy rest. Here is a picture of the first observance of the Sabbath in New England.—There are Carver, and Winslow, and Bradford, and Standish, honored names among the Puritan fathers. They do not ask to be excused from the obligations of religious duty, even under circumstances so pressing and unfavorable. The Sabbath, and the God of the Sabbath, have claims upon them superior to any thing besides. Strict and unflinching obedience to Bible law, is the rule of their lives. These were Puritan principles, which gave excellence and honor to the New England forefathers, and which now give to her institutions their moral power. Let not their children prove unfaithful to them.

How to Enjoy an Old Cloak.

Three winters ago my friends said, 'You will have a new cloak this winter; yours is getting quite old-fashioned.' Its color was fresh, the quality good—perhaps it was a little too long or too short, and as all my neighbors were intent upon new cloaks without much considering, I answered, 'Yes, I suppose I must,' and put aside fifteen dollars of my small income for this purpose.

Before the time of cloak-making we learned that a poor and pious woman, who in her old age had been defrauded of her little patrimony by a wicked son, was now in need of many comforts for the approaching winter, one of which was a new stove, in place of the rickety thing which smoked, her kitchen and consumed her wood without making her comfortable. In spite of all I could do, my old cloak and a new stove began to balance themselves in my mind; and in the end the new cloak was given up, and the new stove was bought. The winter set severely in, but having a share in aunt Joanna's stock of comfort, I often went to see her. One day lightly opening her door, I heard her supplicating blessings on those who had thought of her and supplied her wants. And how 'pleased and blessed was I,' when she took a sick neighbor and her child into her warm kitchen, and nursed her through the coldest weather. Did not my old cloak possess a beauty and a warmth of which fashion could never rob it?

Two years ago, 'Of course you will have a new cloak,' they said; 'the new patterns are very becoming.' 'Yes,' I answered, 'I suppose so.' One day on going out to make some choice in the matter, a letter came describing the destitute state of a poor minister's library. Scott's Bible, Pilgrim's Progress, and Webster's Dictionary, with a few others, made up the scanty catalogue of his books. 'Fifteen dollars' worth of books would do incalculable good to the missionary in the destitute region in which he lives,' so the letter ran. Here was a new adversary to the new cloak. As we thought of the crippled means of that man of God and the long winter evenings in that far-off clearing with books or without them, and of his self-denials for his Master's work, my heart and conscience went for the books. Twenty dollars' worth of good reading for a friend, added to mine, were forwarded to the distant clearing; and in God's good time we heard how they had gladdened and encouraged the minister's heart, how they had passed from house to house and hand to hand, and how they had issued in a great revival of God's glorious work. Did not the colors in the old cloak begin to stand out with a living lustre?

One year ago, and the matter of a new cloak again came up, with all the urgency of an 'entire new style.' The same preliminaries were gone through, and the cloak was as 'good as bought,' they said, when the case of a young man struggling with embarrassments in order to qualify himself for the ministry, came to our knowledge. It was a little history of unwonted interest; and there was unwonted urgency in the call. Well nigh overwhelmed by the waves of disappointment and adversity, should not some Christian brother be ready to throw out to him the life-preserver of sympathy, encouragement, and help? In God's name, Yes. The old cloak and I have not yet parted.

Another winter has come. We are still intimate. What may happen to sunder or cement our tie, we cannot tell; but come what will, the dear old cloak has taught me the significant and often to be repeated lesson in the great economy of means, that it is not so much what we have, as what we do, that is the true riches, the real joy; or, as our heavenly Master has at once disclosed the true idea and the great reward of Christianity, 'It is more blessed to give than to receive.'

Washington's Birthday.

*BY C. M. CADY.

The Nations long have groped their way
Amid the shrines of sceptred Wrong,
When twilight bursting into day,
Proclaimed the birth of WASHINGTON.
Then from our Western shores the night
Of doomed Oppression fled away,
And untold millions now unite
To hail our Chieftain's Natal Day.
Fresh laurels bring—let hill and dell
Recche with the festal song;
From year to year the story tell,
While Freedom's sons the strains prolong.

The poor and crushed of other lands,
The exile tost, the famine worn,
With hopeful brow stretch forth their hands
To this, the clime of WASHINGTON.
Here, as by magic, melt their chains—
Here sovereigns only walk the sod;
Here Right with Reason jointly reigns,
And men but fear and worship God.
Fresh laurels bring, &c.

In other climes when despot might
Shall shroud in gloom the struggling brave,
Freedom will haste to here relight
Her torches at our Hero's grave.
One name her banners shall outfling,—
One name along her ramparts run,
And Liberty triumphant sing
The peerless name of WASHINGTON.
Fresh laurels bring, &c.

Calculated Comfort.

RECOLLECT, as well you may
(You that pine and brood in sorrow,)
If there's little luck to day,
More is left to come to-morrow:
Every present grows to past,
Almost while the grumbler heeds it;
But, in pleasure made to last,
Look to where the future feeds it.

Coming chances must be more,
(Reason will herself remind us,)
And all prizes crowd before,
If the blanks are all behind us;
Therefore, never go downcast,
But let care sit all the lighter,
Since a dark and luckless past
Argues all the future brighter!

A LOVE AFFAIR OF BENEDICT ARNOLD'S.—The following is a veritable letter, written by Gen. Benedict Arnold, inclosing one to Miss Deblois of Boston. It was addressed to Mrs. Gen. KNOX, who was then residing in Boston, and was a friend of Arnold's lady love, who was, as we understand from one of her few surviving cotemporaries, quite a belle in Boston, a lady of most respectable standing in society and of fortune. Whether she reciprocated Arnold's passion we cannot learn. Whether she did or did not, however, it is certain that the parties were never united and the lady was never married; tradition says that some time subsequently to the date of this letter she went so far as to enter the church for the purpose of being married to a Boston gentleman, and that there the marriage was forbidden by her own mother, for what reason is not now known. Miss Deblois lived and died in Boston in single blessedness and high respectability. It will be seen by the impassioned language of Arnold's letter that he made love even as he fought and did everything else, with all his might and main. And one cannot help reflecting how very different might have been the history of this brave but passionate and ill-principled man, had he succeeded in this, perhaps his first love affair.

At the time he wrote this letter he was perhaps at the zenith of his fame. It was just subsequent to his brilliant career in Canada and along the lakes. The original letter, in Arnold's own hand writing was recently discovered among the papers of Gen. KNOX. It is written in a handsome, free and unaffected hand. The Boston Traveller which publishes this letter, gives the spelling and capitalising as in the original:

WATERTOWN, March, 1777.

DEAR MADAME:—I have taken the liberty of inclosing A Letter for the Heavenly Miss Deblois, which beg the favor of your delivering, with the Trunk of Gowns, &c., which Mrs. Colburn promis'd me to Send to your House. I hope she will make no objections against receiving them. I made no doubt you will soon have the pleasure of seeing the Charming Mrs. Emery, and have it in your power to give me some favorable Intelligence. I shall remain Under the most Anxious Suspence until I have the favour of a line from you, who (if I may Judge) will from your own experience, conceive the fond Anxiety, the Glowing hopes, and Chilling fears, Alternately possess the breast of

Dear Madame,
Your Obed't & most Humble Serv't.

RELIC OF THE REVOLUTIONARY WAR.—We are indebted to JOHN FITCH, Esq, of this city, for 'General Orders,' which were the ordrers given by Gen. Hugh Mercer, on the 25th of December, 1776, to Col Durkee, previous to the ever memorable battle of Trenton. The document is in a very excellent state of preservation, and we hope it may be presented to the Young Men's Association, as all such ancient papers connected with the revolution should be placed in the possession of Literary or Historical societies.

"25 Dec., 1776.

"To Col. Durkee—

'Sir; You are to see that your men have three day's provision ready cooked, before 1:2 O'Clock this forenoon—the whole fit for duty except a Sergeant and six men to be left with the baggage are to parade precisely at four in the Afternoon with their Arms Accoutrements & Ammunition in the best order, with their provision and blankets—you will have them tol'd off in platoons, in which order they are to march—eight men abreast, with officers quit his division, on pain of instant punishment—each officer is to provide himself with a piece of white paper stuck in his hat for a field mark———You will order your men to assemble and parade them in the valley immediately over the hill, on the back of McConkeys Ferry, to remain there for further orders—a profound silence is to be observed, by both Officers and men, and a strict and ready attention paid to whatever orders may be given—on forming the Brigade Co Durkee takes the Right. Co Stone the Left Co Bradly on the left of Co Durkee & Co Rawlings on the Right of Co Stone—the Line to form & march from the Right—Co Hutchinson to form by themselves. Your ob sv't,

H. MERCER."

THE CIRCASSIAN CAVALRY.—The Circassian cavalry wear a painted steel helmet with a long horse-tail pendant from it. A net of steel work hangs down from the lower part of the helmet, protects the front and nape of the neck, and is looped together under the chin, underneath, a short, red vest, cut in the Polish fashion. He is clad in a species of coat of mail, consisting of small bright rings of steel intervened. His arms, from the wrist to the elbow, and his legs, from the foot of shin bone to the knee, are guarded by thin plates of steel. He also wears close pantaloons and laced boots.—Two long Turkish pistols, as well as a pioggnard, are stuck into his girdle. He has a leather strap with a noose, like a Mexican lasso, hanging at his side, which he throws with great dexterity over the head of his enemy. A Turkish sabre and a long Turkish musket are slung behind his back and two cartridge-holders across his breast.

'The skill with which the Circassians use their weapons is really beyond belief. I have seen them repeatedly fire at a piece of card lying on the ground, at full speed without ever missing. They will pick up a piece of money from the ground while executing a charge, by bending themselves round below the horse's belly, and after seizing the piece suddenly throw themselves back into the saddle. They form the choicest body in the cavalry in the Turkish service, and I have watched them when charging, attack their opponents with a sabre in each hand, managing the reins with their mouth they will spring out of their saddles, take aim and fire from behind their horses, then jump into their saddles again, wheel round and reload their gun as they retreat in full career. They are perfect madmen in the attack, and few troops could withstand the utter recklessness of danger they evince.

Democratic Diplomacy.

Correspondence N. Y. Tribune

WASHINGTON, Wednesday, Feb. 22 1854.

The Ministers, Charges and Consuls appointed by this Administration—the actings and doings of the appointees as well as the manner of the appointments, have conferred a dazzling notoriety upon the American name at home and abroad. The Secretary of State issues an official circular, prescribing with characteristic particularity the cut and fashion of the masculine habiliments to be worn by all Democratic Representatives at Kingly and Imperial Courts. Mr. SOULE, noted for his fillibustering proclivities, in reference to Cuba annexation, is selected as Minister to Spain; and after providing himself with Court custome, an original fashion in Paris, he proceeds to Madrid, and the first thing he does is to make himself and the Country he represents, ridiculous, by getting up a brace of duels, about the propriety or impropriety of high or low necked dresses.

Mr. MASON who was finally commissioned as Minister to France, by rendering 'inoperative and void' the Executive promise to Gen. Dix, on his arrival at the Imperial Court hastens to present himself before their Imperial majesties bedecked in servile livery, totally 'inconsistent with' the dress circular of Mr. Secretary MARCY. This has occasioned the resignation of the Secretary of Legation, Mr. Sanford, and made the American name a ridiculous jest in European circles.

Mr. BUCHANAN, a highly respectable 'old foggy,' was sent to England, with 'manifest destiny' Sickles and 'Young America' Sanders for his lieutenants. All was quiet for a time, sack and roast beef apparently producing a soporific influence—but the Consul to London soon aroused himself, and began to regulate and agitate European public opinion—while 'Old Buck' wishing to do something to distinguish his diplomatic career made an official effort to silence the very poor and very dishonest American correspondent of The London Times, because he wrote disrespectfully of President Pierce. Making a most ridiculous failure, he next commissioned his lieutenants Sickles and Sanders to browbeat The Times editor, all which has resulted in disgracing the representatives of this Government as well as the Government itself in the British capital for the time being.

Mr. GADSDEN, was sent to Santa Anna, and in a few weeks returned, having in his pocket the evidence establishing the unparalleled ability of South Carolina Diplomacy—a compact by which $15,000,000 is to be paid to Santa Anna to enable him to begin Imperial house-keeping; and $5,000,000 to be paid claimants and favorite agents.

Mr. DANIELS, one of the 'F. F. V.'s' of the Old Dominion, is dispatched as Charge to Sardinia, where, according to his last dispatch, he was busily eating garlick and cutting pigeon-wings 'in the dance of 'fools.'

Gov. WOOD of Ohio, was induced to accept the Consulship at Valparaiso, under the executive assurance that it was worth $25,000 a year and upward; but finding that the official receipts are not sufficient to pay board bills, he is about returning in disgust.

Col. MEDARY of Ohio, was commissioned as Minister Plenipotentiary to Chili, received the $9,000 outfit, and finally declined going, and this fat place has long been and is now held in reserve, as a trump-card in an Administration emergency. Without further reference, it will be seen that this Administration has distinguished itself in its foreign appointments, and that the appointees have made the American name as notorious and ridiculous with foreign nations and 'the rest of mankind,' as is

The Nebraska Bill.

☞Mr. JONES. I put that question to the Senator; I put it to every Northern man. Have I not the same right to say that he shall not move into the territories of the United States with his particular property as he has to say that I shall not move there with my property? If we were to propose that the man of Massachusetts should not carry his machinery there, what would the Senator from Ohio think of that? Would he not invoke the spirits of the dead to rise up in judgment against such an unholy exercise of power? Yet he asks us to submit, tamely to submit, to a restriction which he would scorn and spurn as an outrage on his rights.—Senator from Tennessee on the Nebraska Bill.

Or, in other words, "have not the South the same right to carry Slavery to new territory that the North have to carry their horses, and cattle, and sheep, and plows, and hoes and axes, and all the implements and machinery for farming?" We answer no. In the name of humanity, No!—Slavery is not recognized by the common law, and it can no more be made legal by Statute, than stealing, or highway robbery, piracy, or murder. A stolen horse, though it may pass through a hundred bona fide hands for a valuable consideration is a stolen horse still, and the rightful owner may reclaim him wherever he can find him. Slavery originated in piracy, pillage, and murder, and an eternity of legislation can never make it lawful. The right to hold slaves rests only in might, and so far as the North is responsible for the continuance of Slavery, it is accessary to the grossest, most revolting, immoral, and inhuman tyranny of this or any other age. What were the grievances of our forefathers compared to it? Or Ireland's woes, or Hungary's wrongs? Our sympathy with their struggles for Freedom is misplaced if American Slavery is right. If their struggles were noble, how blessed of Heaven would be a rising of American Slaves. Would American democracy sympathize in their struggle? Alas, no, they have dark skins. Spanish tyranny in Cuba and Mexican oppression in Southern California excite the most resolute exertions of patriotic Fillibusters, but alas, for the poor American Slave, there are no Fillibusters. "Property" in man? Power of life and death? Control of the mind? Master of virtue? Proprietor of the soul? Preposterous, blasphemous. By the same authority by which the whites enslave the blacks, the latter may enslave the former, viz: the authority o superior power or force. It matters not that the Bible sanctioned slavery of any description. God never authorized the robbery and blood in which American slavery originated, time can never sanction it, nor God bless it, or the Country that sanctions it.

Property in man? Blackstone & Kent, common law writers and authority in all civilized lands, say no; but Senator Jones says, yes. Property in man? How was it acquired? I put that question to the Senator; I put it to every Southern man: How can property in man be acquired? By creation? By manufacture? By finding? How? Originally by rapine and fraud, continued by brute force. And this is the title to the "property" which Senator Jones so vehemently demands to be permitted to plant in the newly acquired territory of the "land of the free and the home of the brave." American Slavery is a withering, blighting curse to the soil, and to the institutions and the people where it exists, and a disgrace to the country; yet the Senator asks that it be co-extensive with the "Stars and Stripes" and the spread of freedom.—The spread of freedom! Out upon such freedom.

And now, in view of the enormities of Slavery and of the proposed breach of faith, let the North do right and fear not. Be just and let consequences take care of themselves. Devote new territory to freedom, annul the terms on which Texas was admitted, repeal the Fugitive Slave law, abolish slavery in the Dist. of Columbia, and otherwise throw off all responsibility of this weight which hangs so like a mill-stone about our necks. 'There is a good time coming,' and if by the treachery of the South, the vengeance will be the sweeter.

☞G. M. P.—This is a new title which we are informed some society or individual has bestowed upon John Van Buren, since his refusal to go the Nebraska bill. Will some learned man explain?

☞Did you ever meet with any b[illegible] who 'borrowed trouble,' has [illegible] without any expression of SELF GOVERNMENT.—This principle, right in itself, is misapplied by the advocates of the Nebraska swindle. Slavery is not merely a wrong, but a curse, and hence the position of non-interference proposed by this bill is equivalent to an actual, affirmative wrong. This government has no more right passively to permit slavery to fasten itself upon new territory than a man has to stand by and permit a murder without an effort to prevent it. In short, the duty of this Government, in view of the monstrous evils of slavery, and the treachery of the South, is to take such positive, affirmative action as shall forever exclude it from new territory and circumscribe it by every means in the power of the general government. The South have ruled long enough; let the North try it a while.

JOHN VAN BUREN.—We never expect to see the time when Prince John will have restored himself to the confidence of the people, morally, or politically. He, however, went for the Canal Enlargement, and is opposed to Douglass' Nebraska bill. So far so good. We lose no time in giving John two long credit marks. Here they are,

Disturbing the Harmony of the Democracy.

The nervous old gentleman who presides over the Washington Union, sees in a proposed Amendment of the U.S. Constitution damages to the harmony of the democracy. In the troubles in N. Y. it was only a design to break down the Administration.—At first it saw only a similar design in the Nebraska bill, but its optics are suddenly enlarged to its beauties. Come what will, the Administration must be sustained. No matter about the great interests of the Country, the harmony of the democracy is paramount. The Union has probably not heard that the harmony of the party is forever disturbed past healing, and the more it is left to itself the worse it will get.

☞The American Minister in London is to be excluded from all places where Court Dresses are worn. On the occasion of opening Parliament Mr. Buchanan, being informed Tickets admitted Ministers in Court Costume only absented himself.

This was not so in the days of Franklin, Jefferson, Adams and Jay.—[Albany Journal.

Is this a great country, or is it not?—Where is Pierce's boast that no American Citizen should fear to stand before kings? Where Mr. Buchanan's manhood that he did not present the question to the Government? He was dressed in the Court Costume of his country, if as we suppose, he had on a plain suit, whether of black or sheep's grey. The truth is that Pierce's foreign ministers are a set of flunkies any way, and the whole system of resident ministers a humbug, the $9000 outfit, $9000 salary, and $9000 infit included tho' it is a convenient way of paying off some party hack at the expense of the people. Vive le humbug.

Pertinent Questions.

In an editorial article the N. Y. National Democrat put some pertinent questions to President Pierce. After wondering what he has gained, or what he expects to gain, by identifying himself with traitors and disorganizers, the editor inquires:—

"What is the game which the Cabinet has thus far played for him? If his term of office expired to-morrow, and a new election were to take place the next day, could he obtain the electoral vote of a single State? That is the question. Even with General Scott for an antagonist, he would be defeated by an overwhelming vote if a new election was to take place to-morrow."

The Nebraska bill in a Nut Shell.

Missouri was admitted as a Slave State on condition that all of the Louisiana purchase north of 36° 30' should be forever devoted to freedom. Slavery has enjoyed her share of the bargain for 30 years, and now as that territory is about to be formed into States Senator Douglass proposes to freedom to relinquish her share of the bargain to slavery by repudiating, not the whole bargain including the admission of Missouri, but that part of it devoting the remaining territory to freedom. Shall it be done?

The Germans of N. Y. City and the Nebraska Bill.

Some weeks since the administration at Washington, in accordance with its usual small beer operations, concocted a plot by which these citizens were to endorse this iniquitous bill. An agent was sent on from head quarters, a call, an address, resolutions, the committee, and officers of the meeting were all prepared in advance, and the poor Germans were thus to be mere "Clay in the hands of the Potters." They proved, however, not to be as ignorant as the Administration is dishonest, and the scheme failed. About 1000 persons answered to the call. Two thirds were opposed to the plot. Those in favor of the bill kept up a wrangling, stamping, screeching, howling, and cat-a-wailing till nearly 9 o'clock in the genuine 'short boy' style, when they were mildly but resolutely thrown out doors, when those remaining denounced the plot and the plotters.

Such is an abstract from a very lengthy and detailed account in the Tribune.—What will this administration stoop to next?

The Legislature.

WOMAN'S RIGHTS, we perceive has made its appearance on the floor of the House in the shape of a petition for a redress of grievances. Judge Burnet made a sensible speech against the movement, but he did not go far enough. We suppose every person has the right to petition, and that the Legislature is bound to give it respectful hearing; but in view of the fact that the most of these strong minded woman denounce the Bible and Marriage they should have been rebuked and told to go about their business. The petition however, was received and referred to a special committee & if it shall give these misguided woman wholesome advice it will be satisfactory.—But woe to those who court and encourage them.

DEATH TO BARNBURNERS.—An Adamantine paper in central N. Y. thus exclaims:

No compromises—no concessions with those who are seeking a coalition with us in order to sustain their falling fortunes.—Bring forward good men and then let the enemy fire. If we fail, we fail in a good cause.

Truth crushed to earth will rise again,
The eternal years of God are her's;
But Treason, wounded, writhes in vain,
And dies amid her Barn-burners!

TURNING THE TABLES.—The Washington Union and other administration papers having asserted that the N. Y. Herald is destitute of influence, whatever may be its circulation, Bennett quietly turns the tables upon his assailants by publishing the letter addressed to the acting editor of the Herald, while B. was in Europe:—

CONCORD, N. H., Nov. 30, 1852.

MY DEAR SIR:—

Your obliging letter of Oct. 25th should have been answered before.

Nothing could have been more kind and considerate under the circumstances than the letters both of Mr. Bennett and yourself.

It is quite unnecessary for me to say that I have not been insensible to the vast influence of the Herald throughout the late canvass. Will you assure Mr. B. when you write him, that I appreciate both the motive and ability, and at the same time present to him my sincere acknowledgements.

I am, very respectfully,
Your friend and servant.
FRANK PIERCE.

The Administration and its Toadies.

It may be said of the fulsome flatterers of Pierce and his cabinet who for a miserable mess of pottage advocate measures their souls revolt at as of France during the first Republic:

The sensual and the dark rebel in vain,
Slaves by their own compulsion! In mad game
They burst their manacles, and wear the name
Of freedom, graven on a heavier chain!

THE REASON WHY!—There are five papers in New England which sustain the Nebraska swindle; and they have each received their "thirty pieces of silver," viz:

New Haven Register, edited by the U. S. Collector of New Haven.

Bridgeport Farmer, edited by the U. S. Collector of Bridgeport.

Middletown Sentinel, edited by the U. S. Collector of Middletown.

Boston Post, edited by the U. S. Collector at Boston.

Boston Times, edited by the U. S. Special Agent, at Boston.

If there are any others, they must be like the editor of the Concord Patriot, in the secret service of the President, or looking for a sop from the General Government.

There are, in every community, traitors to Freedom—men who can be bought for less than the value of an able-bodied negro; and all such are likely to be in demand at the north before Douglass pockets his expected reward.—Exchange.

New England don't monopolise all the "traitors!" The Editor of the Northern Gazette and Postmaster at Keeseville was so anxiously advocating the Nebraska swindle as not to find time or space for even so much as an allusion to, or to announce editorially the fact of the late Canal election.

MORE DISCOVERIES.—Among other disclosures resulting from a change of officers at Albany is, that the Barnburner officers have been bidding in the School Fund Lands on tax sales, thus cheating the State and the Schools, which they were sworn to protect. We wonder if these same Barnburners wont by and by get up a cry ag'st setting aside lands for School purposes on the ground that they open such a temptation to frauds! It would only be in imitation of their cry against banks, State debt, and taxes.

The Nebraska Question,—Is thus presented by an exchange:

The whole gist of the Nebraska question is comprised in the following dilemas, and I would propose them for the unincumbered consideration of all the friends of the Douglas proviso:

If the compromise of 1850 superceded the Missouri compromise, why any further action on the subject?

If the compromise of 1850 did not supercede the Missouri compromise, why renew the agitation of the subject of slavery?

If it is supposed that slavery would be introduced into any State hereafter formed north of 36° 30° in consequence, could the North consistently allow or the South now reasonably ask the repeal of the Missouri compromise?

If it is supposed that slavery would not be introduced into any such State in consequence, would the South gain and would not the North lose by its repeal?

AN exchange paper has this advertisement—'Two sisters want washing.' We hope they may get it.

REGENERATION OF TURKEY.—The London Times thinks the result of the present movement in Europe will tend to the regeneration of Turkey by colonization and the infusion of the Anglo Saxon race. The Tribune says, Protection to Home Industry is necessary to her regeneration, as her first step towards degeneracy was a treaty with Great Britain by which the manufactures of the latter were admitted into Turkey free of duty. The first great duty of a nation is undoubtedly self protection.

THE FASHION.—What is the fashion, and where does it come from, and who is the inventor? If fashion says, big ties & big cravats, it's big ties and big cravats. If fashion says, high collars, then it's high collars. If fashion says, long tail coats, then it's long tail coats, but if bob tails, then it's bob tails. If fashion says collars must turn down, then they turn down. If fashion says, blue coats then it's blue. If fashion says, 'high heeled shoes,' then its high heels, and if 'square toed,' then its square toes, but if round, then its round.—If fashion says, tight pants, then its 'tights.' If fashion says to the ladies, hats on the back of the head, it is adopted, tho' the constant pull at the front to keep them in their place shows what a painful fashion it is. If fashion says broad fronts, then they flare like a ship under sail. If fashion says short dresses, then they are short, but if long, they sweep the streets. If fashion says, low neck dresses, the person is unduly exposed to the gaze and the laugh of libertines and fools.

But what is this fashion, and where does it come from? It is the invention of courtiers at licentious courts, and of tailors, and dress makers whose trade is to be supported. In the cities, its most faithful devotees are blacklegs, rowdy sons and dissipated daughters of uneducated millionaires, and it is regarded least by the men of worth.—Yet in the country, fasion reigns with a fearful tyranny over all classes.

The Plattsburgh & Montreal R. R. Troubles.

We are indebted to Col. C. M. Watson for Montreal papers containing further Addresses from directors of each road reviewing the action of each very much at length. We published the Address of the Directors of the Plattsburgh & Montreal Road last week and it will be sufficient to say that their worst fears have been realized. An amalgamation has taken place between the Canada portion of the Plattsburgh road and the Champlain & St. Lawrence roads, and as it seems in violation of the honor and faith of gentlemen—and in utter disregard of the rights of and consequences to individuals opposed to the project, as well as without their knowledge or consent. We sympathize particularly with the people of Plattsburgh who in good faith united with the people of Montreal and having subscribed liberally, and otherwise assumed heavy responsibilities, are suddenly and secretly deserted. We hope, however, there is 'a good time coming" for the people and village of Plattsburgh

---

STEAMBOATS NEXT SEASON ON THE ST. LAWRENCE AND LAKE CHAMPLAIN.—We understand that all the Champlain steamboats next season will run to Rouse's Point instead of as heretofore to Plattsburgh.—We learn, moreover, that the steamboat proprietors on the Hudson propose to place on the St. Lawrence three of the largest vessels which have been running between New York and Albany; these are the Hendrik Hudson, the New World, Isaac Newton. One of the boats will probably run, should they be sent into our waters, as a day boat.—[Montreal Herald.

The Herald, we think, is in error.—These floating Palaces cannot be spared from our own River. But something like them should be on the St. Lawrence. The travel there is becoming immense, and, while there are one or two very pleasant vessels in service, there is not one just what it should be.—[Albany Journal.

Freedom Turned into Slavery.

The Concord (N. H.) Statesman, discussing New Hampshire Politics, says:

"It is surprising to see the control that a few, comparatively insignificant men, will sometimes acquire over a whole political party of intelligent and responsible men.—Men who in other matters think and act for themselves, in political matters often become as so many yoked oxen, to be driven and turned about at the crack of the whip, in the hands of petty tyrants. Such is the case at the present time in this State. A few intriguing men at Concord and elsewhere have as complete control of the dominant party in this State as ever a general had of his army."

Such is N. H. now. Such is Va., Miss., Ill., Ind., and every other steadily democratic State. Such was N. Y. in the days of the Old Regency. Democracy is a humbug. There are no worse tyrants than leading democrats, and they know it.

"Common Dangers Make Common Friends."

The iniquitous Nebraska bill of Senator Douglass is rapidly uniting the whigs of the north on a common platform of opposition to a gross violation of plighted faith. No northern man can hold up his head and sustain that bill. The Hunker democrats may for a time and for a purpose, but the whole north will eventually think and act with one will and one mind on the question.

A Change of Name.

New Jersey.—The politicians of this State having sold themselves to the Camden and Amboy R. R. the N. Y. Tribune denominates that, 'the State of Camden and Amboy.'

LATEST FOREIGN NEWS.—Sweden and Denmark have issued a declaration of neutrality in the coming contest. It is thought Prussia and Austria will take the same course. There has been a change in the Russian's Cabinet, which it is thought looks for peace. There are to be further efforts at negotiation. At the same time Great Britain and France are making active preparations for war.

REPORT, of the committee to examine the Treasurer's account and of the Canal and Banking Departments: We are indebted to Hon. Geo. Richards for a copy of this document, and find in it many interesting facts, showing how favorites are paid off by the immaculate barnburners.—We notice immense bills of lumber charged at $16 pr. M. when the same could have been and were purchased in any quantity for $11, and paid by the Comptroller without the proper vouchers. Although contrary to law, Superintendents on the Canals have numerous bills for teams of their own employed the year round and for lumber, rope, merchandize, &c.

Items for labor amounting to over $3000 on one check Roll, were paid without any proof of service as required by law.

$124, was paid to two women for 31 days labor each for clearing the room occupied by the court for the trial of Impeachments!

The items paid illegally, above referred to in the aggregate to thousands of dollars.—Oh, John C. Wright!

Quere? Do the barnburners propose to recognize John C. Wright as a patron saint of their faction? They ought.

AN EXCITEMENT.—Will's Cornet Band left for Elizabethtown, Wednesday afternoon, to play at a School Celebration, at that place, and as they moved slowly through our streets playing some of their best pieces, the people were all out to listen, and were highly flattering in their comments.

TOWN MEETINGS.—We have said all we could to awaken our friends to this subject, and to make such suggestions as occurred to us. We have only now to ask some friend in each town to reciprocate by sending us the result by first mail after the votes are counted. If some one in each town will see to this we can give the whole county in our first issue after town meeting. Our friends will perceive that they will be well repaid for the trouble.

☞Please send the entire list of Officers elected and the politics of each, whether whigs, Hards, Softs, or Abolition.

☞The proprietors of Tammany Hall, New York, have instituted an action in the Superior Court against the members of the Democratic General Committee of the year 1842, to recover the sum of $1,617 alleged to be due for rent, broken glass, broken furniture, refreshments, &c.—[Ex.

There have been broken noses too in Tammany Hall. Have they been mended and paid for? Some of the 'fighters' have been tried, convicted and sentenced to Blackwell's Island, but has sentence been executed, or has a democratic Judge, or a democratic Govr. interfered, and arrested its execution? We point with pride to the fact that whigs have never been thus disgraced.

THE WHIG ALMANAC.—We have recd. from the publishers, Messrs. Greely & Mc Elrath, N. Y. this valuable annual. For a great variety of political and other statistics it is a most convenient book of reference.

NEBRASKA IN N. H.—There has been a great meeting in concord, N. H. composed of men of all parties opposed to this bill.

The Washington Union.—Less than two months ago this paper opposed the Nebraska scheme when proposed by a Southern whig, but now that it is adopted by the Administration it vies in its toadyism with the most abject sycophant of a king.

THANKS.—We are indebted to Hon. Wm. H. Seward for a copy of the Speech of Hon. S. P. Chase of Ohio on the Nebraska bill.

We are indebted to Senator Seward for a copy of Douglass' Nebraska bill

☞We are indebted to Hon. George Richards for the "Third Annual Report of the Trustees of the N. Y. S. Asylum for Idiots"

FROZEN TO DEATH.—Two men left Port Kent on foot on Sunday, each with a hand sled loaded with liquor. When about two-thirds across, one of them became exhausted and laid down to—DIE. His companion went on, and he was picked up by the stage the next morning and taken to Burlington where a Coroner's Inquest was held on the body.

The case has caused no little stir among temperance men, and it has given their cause a great impetus. The deceased left a wife and four children in destitute circumstances. Some of our best friends and the very best of good fellows are in the liquor trade, and it is only wishing them well when we wish they were fairly out of a business which so naturally, and so frequently leads to such sad results.

A "Trot" came off at the Forks the other day for a purse of $30, and it was taken by H. O. Matthews, who always has a good horse.

To Owners of Blackhawks.

We have the largest and best cut of a Blackhawk in Essex, ever yet got up. It was drawn and engraved expressly for us at a large expense. A impression will be sent on request.

European Rumors.

One part of the rumor asserts the probable union of Spain and Portugal. This may be one of the surprising events which time has in store; but much mutual jealousy and hatred, between Spanish and Portuguese, must first be obliterated, and there are few tokens of this at present—Nevertheless more startling things will be witnessed in Europe by those who live twenty years. The curtain is possibly even now lifting on one of those mighty dramas which affect men's destinies for generations. On every side we hear sounds of coming changes; 'distress of nations, with perplexity; the sea and the waves roaring; and men's hearts failing them for fear.'

Triumphs of Slavery.

Theodore Parker, says, Slavery has, by nine successive steps, succeeded in planting itself upon a million square miles of new territory since the achievement of our independence. Freedom has triumphed but twice,—once in securing the ordinance of 1787, and again in the abolition of the Slave Trade in 1808. The tenth effort of the South is to extend Slavery into Nebraska; and if successful, Mr. Parker predicted that they would seek next the conquest of Mexico, Cuba, Porto Rico, Hayti and South America,—the right of bringing their slaves into the free States for a longer or shorter term, and then the restoration of the African Slave Trade. And judging from the past, he saw no reason to doubt that the North would permit them to carry all these schemes into full effect.

DIED,—In Walpole, N. H., Feb. 2d, Mr. JONATAHN FLETCHER, aged ONE HUNDRED years, FIVE months and FOUR days. He died suddenly in his chair, while conversing with his family His centennial birth day was celebrated in August last. He was in the battles of Bunker Hill, and Bennington, under Gen. Stark. He voted for Gen. Washington for the first President of the United States, and for Gen. Pierce the last. On his 100th birth day he went into the hay field and mowed a handsome swath somp five rods long, and afterwards read several chapters in the Bible—Platts. Rep.

But for that last vote the venerable man might have lived many years yet.

Godey's Lady's Book, for March, came to hand last week. Thus is Godey not only rec'd. in advance of all others, but he is ahead of all competition in variety, value, and amount of matter.

BLACKWOOD, for Feby. is rec'd. It presents the following table of contents:—Abysinian Aberations, The Quiet Heart, Part 3. National Gallery. A glance at the Turkish History, Macauley's speeches, Fifty years in both Hemispheres. A sporting settler in Ceylon, Grey's letters. See permanant advertisement.

☞The School Celebration at Elizabethtown, Wednesday evening, is well spoken of by those who went down from this place. There was an immense crowd and 500 people outside who could not gain admittance. We also understand that the Band gave universal satisfaction.

The majority in favor of the Canals at the late election was about 125000!!

OPPOSITION.—"A certain amount of opposition," says John Neil, 'is a great help to a man. Kites rise against and not with the wind Even a head wind is better than none. No man ever worked his passage anywhere in a dead calm. Let no man wax pale, therefore, because of opposition. Opposition is what he wants, and must have to be good for anything. Hardship is the native soil of manhood and self-reliance.—He that cannot avoid the storm without flinching or quailing, stirps himself in the sunshine, and lays down by the wayside, to be overlooked and forgotten. He who but braces himself to the struggle when the wind blows, gives up when they have done, and falls asleep in the stillness that follows.'

Mortgage Sale.

WHEREAS, Henry Haile, then of the town of Crownpoint in Essex county, by a certain Indenture of mortgage executed and bearing date the 7th day of February, A. D. 1849, and with the usual power of sale therein contained, and duly recorded in the office of the clerk of the county of Essex, in vol. O of mortgages on pages 364 and 365 on the 4th day of June, 1849, at 3 o'clock, P. M., to secure the payment of five hundred dollars and interest, did duly grant, bargain, sell and convey to Jeremiah Powers, then of the town of Pittsford, county of Rutland and State of Vermont, certain premises described in said mortgage as follows, to wit:

"All that certain piece or parcel of land situate, lying and being in the town of Crown Point, in the county of Essex and State of New York, being sub-division lot in a larger tract of land granted by letters patent, bearing date on the 7th day of August in the year of our Lord 1764, to Captain Robert Grant, which said sub-division lot hereby intended to be sold and conveyed is described and distinguished on a map and survey of the said tract of land granted as aforesaid to the said Captain Robert Grant, and filed in the office of the clerk of the county of Essex, on the 9th day of December, 1835, as lot number thirteen (13) and is bounded and described as follows, to wit:

Commencing at an iron-wood stake and stones in the easterly bounds of lot No. 17, in the possession of Isaac Russell, and runs thence south-easterly fifty-four chains and sixty-five links to an iron-wood stake and stones in the westerly bounds of lot No. 32, in the possession of Howard Barrows; thence south-westerly twelve chains and forty-one links to an oak stake and stones in the west bounds of lot No. 24, in the possession of Nathan B. Sprague; thence north-westerly fifty-four chains and twenty-five links to an iron-wood stake and stones in the east bounds of lot No. 23 in the possession of Stephen L. Herrick, thence north-easterly fifteen chains and eighty-seven links to the place of beginning—containing seventy-six acres and one-tenth of an acre of land, be the same more or less."

And, whereas, on the 17th day of May, 1853 the said mortgage with the moneys unpaid thereon were for a valuable consideration, and by an instrument in writing of that date sold and assigned by the said mortgagee to Charles F. Hammond, John C. Hammond and Allen Penfield of Crownpoint aforesaid.

And whereas, default has been made in the payment of the moneys secured to be paid by said mortgage, and there is now claimed to be due on said mortgage at the time of the first publication of this notice, (being the date hereof,) the sum of six hundred and seventy-five 97-100 dollars ($675 97,) and no proceedings at law or equity having been had or instituted to recover the same or any part thereof.

Now, therefore, notice is hereby given, that in pursuance of said power of sale contained in said mortgage, and of the statute in such case made and provided, said mortgaged premises hereinbefore described, or so much thereof as shall be necessary to satisfy the amount due on said mortgage together with the costs and expenses of foreclosure—will be sold by public auction at the hotel kept by J. A. Benedict, in the town of Crownpoint and county of Essex, on the 16th day of May 1854, at 10 o'clock in the forenoon.

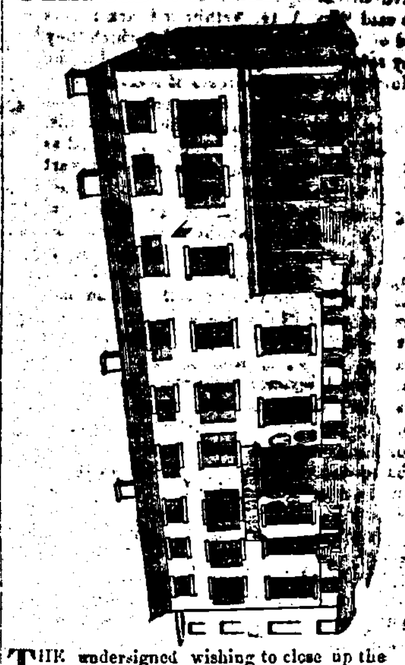
LEANDER BABBIT'S
TRUSS OFFICE

The latest and most approved Trusses; Female Supporters: Do. with shoulder braces attached; spinal elevators for curvature of the spine and projection of the shoulder blade, Suspensary shoulder braces. This instrument is so constructed that it not only acts the par of shoulder braces, but carries the heft of the ladies' skirts on their shoulders; and, hence remedies the evil consequent to carrying them on the hips and sides. For gentlemen, it not only serves for a shoulder brace, but acts the part of suspenders.

As to the importance and usefulness of the above named instruments, and their beneficial effects, their peculiar mechanism and superiority over other instruments of the same name, I need not say anything. They are so well known by physicians, and the multitude of persons that have had occasion to test them in this northern section of country, that I deem it not important to introduce a long catalogue of certificates: yet I have abundant evidence in my possession to justify me in all I claim or affirm, and deem it a privilege to give references to any who wish to make inquiries.



Office at Keeseville, in the building on the corner of Main and Front street, opposite the Bank, up stairs.

Ladies will be waited on at my dwelling by Mrs. Babbit, whose experience in adjusting braces and supporters qualifies her to give perfect satisfaction. 482—3m

SHERIFFS' SALE.

BY virtue of several executions issued out of the Supreme Court of the State of New York, to me directed and delivered against the property of Wm. A. G. Arthur, and Clark P. Ives, I have seized and taken all the right, title, and interest which the said Wm. A. G. Arthur & Clark P. Ives had on the 21 day of June 1853 or which they may since have acquired, of, in, and to the following described parcels of real estate;

1 'All that certain piece or parcel of land, situate, lying and being at the Lower Falls, in said town of Ticonderoga, described as follows, to wit: being the south west part of lot of land known as lot No. 5 in Kellogg's survey, of 40 village lots at the lower falls; beginning at the south west corner of a stone basement where it forms an angle with a wooden building, and runs thence along the wooden building and thro' the lot south 13 degrees west two chains & sixty-six links to the centre of the highway leading to Weedsville, thence along the same north seventy-eight and a half degrees west 69 links to the east line of a lane laid out two rods wide, thence along the same north eleven and a half degrees east two chains and sixty nine links to a stake, thence south seventy five and a half degrees east seventy four links to the place of beginning containing 19-100 of an acre, same more or less."

2 'All that certain lot, piece, or parcel of land, bounded and described as follows to wit: commencing at the highway 8 feet north of John McCormick's tailors shop, thence north along the highway 19 feet, thence westerly in a parallel line with McCormick's shop twenty four feet, thence southerly at right angles nineteen feet, thence easterly in a parallel line with said McCormick's shop twenty four feet to the place of beginning; with the right to use the space between the grocery shop or building in common with others as a lane; same lot, deeded by Wm. E. Calkins to Pat. McVeigh the 9th Septr., 1846, same lot and building now occupied by Marshall & Quin as a grocery."

3 'All that certain piece or parcel of land situate, lying and being in the town of Ticonderoga, beginning at a stake in the line between the land formerly owned and occupied by James Jones and Wm. Canfield. near a rock maple tree blazed, thence n'h 8° 45' west 14 chains 83 links to a stake, thence north 76° and 30' east 27 chains 96 links to a stake and stones, thence south 8° 45' west 25 chains 50 links, thence north 79° west 23 chains and fifty links to place of beginning, containing 53 acres of land be the same more or less,"

4 'All that lot of land lying and being in the town of Ticonderoga aforesaid, and is known as lot No. 17 in McIntosh Patent as the same was laid down and distinguished by a map of said patent by Peter C. Bishop, special reference being thereto had, containing 190 acres of land more or less 5 Also all that other piece of land situate in Sumners Vale, town of Ticonderoga, county of Essex, and State of New York, distinguished and bounded on a map of said patent filed in the secretary's office by lot number 135, containing 94 1-4 acres."

6 "All the equal undivided 3-4 part of that certain piece or parcel of land situate and being in Ticonderoga aforesaid, known as the black lead lot in the Sumner vale Patent, known as number 134.

7 "All that certain piece or parcel of land situate, lying and being in the town of Ticonderoga, being part of what is usually called the John Carr lot in the Cockburn Patent in said town, and bounded as follows: beginning at a stake and stones on the East and West road, thence southerly along the line of said lot thirteen rods to a stake and stones, thence easterly to the line of lot number 17, thence northerly to the said east and west road, thence southerly along the middle of said road to the place of beginning, containing one acre and a half of land be the same more or less. 8 Also, all and singular that piece or parcel of land situate in Ticonderoga, and is a part of lot number 11, in McIntosh Patent, bounded as follows; Beginning in the west line of said lot in a road leading from Bly's saw mill westerly at a stake and stones, thence on said road east 5 chains to a stake and stones, thence south 19° 15, east 30 chains to a black ash stake and stones, thence 5 chains to a stake and stones in the west line of said lot, thence north 19° 15' west 30 chains in the west line of said lot to the place of beginning, containing 15 acres, reserving all mines and minerals. Also, all such reservations as are subject to a deed from Francis Arthur to Thomas Burns.

9 "All the equal undivided one fourth part of lot No. 134, in the Sumner Vale Patent in the town of Ticonderoga, being the same premises deeded to said Wilson by John Porter, Jr., Dec. 20, 1842.

10 'All that certain piece or parcel of land situate lying and being in Ticonderoga, and bounded as follows; Beginning on the north side of the highway leading from the village at the Lower Falls, to the 4 corners west of A. P. Delano's store at a stake at the south west corner of the village lot owned and occupied by Lucius Thatcher, from thence North along the line of said lot to a stake 16 rods from the place of beginning, thence westerly at right angles to a stake 7 1-2 rods, thence southerly on a parallel line with Thatcher's lot 16 rods to to the highway, thence easterly along said highway to the place of beginning, containing 3-4 acre of land."

"EVERY FAMILY SHOULD HAVE A COPY."

20,000 Copies sold in less than 5 months. A new edition, revised and improved, just issued.

Dr. Hunter's Medical Manual and Hand Book for the Afflicted— Containing an outline of the origin, progress, treatment and cure of every form of disease, contracted by promiscuous sexual intercourse, by self abuse or by sexual excess, with advice for their prevention, written in a familiar style, avoiding all medical technicalities, and everything that would offend the ear of decency, from the result of some twenty years successful practice, exclusively devoted to the cure of diseases of a delicate or private nature.

To which is added, receipts for the cure of the above diseases, and a treatise on the causes, symptoms and cure of the Fever and Ague.

Testimony of the Prof. of Obstetrics in Penn. College, Philadelphia—"Dr. Hunter's Medical Manual."—The author of this work unlike the majority of those works who advertise to cure the diseases of which it treats, is a graduate of one of the best Colleges in the United States. It affords me pleasure to recommend him to the unfortunate, or to the victim of malpractice, as a successful and experienced practitioner, in whose honor and integrity they may place the greatest confidence.

JOSEPH LONGSHORE, M. D.

From A Woodward, M. D., of Penn. University, Philadelphia—It gives me pleasure to add my testimony to the professional ability of the author of the "Medical Manual." Numerous cases of diseases of the Genital Organs, some of them of long standing have come under my notice, in which his skill has been manifest in restoring to perfect health, in some instances where the patient has been considered beyond medical aid. In the treatment of Seminal weakness, or disarrangement of the functions produced by Self-abuse, or Excess of venery, I do not know his superior in the profession. I have been acquainted with the Author some thirty years, and deem it no more than justice to him as well as a kindness to the unfortunate victim of early indiscretion, to recommend him as one, in whose professional skill and integrity they may safely confide themselves. ALFRED WOODWARD, M.D.

"This is, without exception, the most comprehensive and intelligible work published on the class of diseases of which it treats Avoiding all technical terms, it addresses itself to the reason of its readers. It is free from all objectionable matter, and no parent, however fastidious, can object to placing it in the hands of his sons. The author has devoted many years to the treatment of the various complaints treated of, and 'with too little breath to puff,' and 'too little presumption to impose,' he has offered to the world at the merely nominal price of 25 cents, the fruits of some 20 years most successful practice."—Herald.

"No teacher or parent should be without the knowledge imparted in this invaluable work. It would save years of pain, mortification and sorrow to the youth under their charge."—People's Advocate.

A Presbyterian clergyman in Ohio, in writing of "Hunter's Medical Manual," says: "Thousands upon thousands of our youth, by evil example and influence of the passions, have been led into the habit of self-pollution without realizing the sin and fearful consequences upon themselves and their posterity. The constitutions of thousands who are raising families have been enfeebled, if not broken down, and the do not know the cause or the cure. Anything that can be done so to enlighten and influence the public mind as to check, and ultimately to remove this wide-spread source of human wretchedness, would confer the greatest blessing next to the religion of Jesus Christ, on the present and coming generations. Intemperance (or the use of intoxicating drinks,) though it has slain thousands upon thousands, is not a greater scourge to the human race. Accept my thanks on behalf of the afflicted, and, believe me, your co-worker in the good work you are so actively engaged in."

One copy, (securely enveloped,) will be forwarded free of postage to any part of the United States for 25 cents, or 6 copies for $1.— Address (post paid) COSDEN & Co., publishers, Box 196, Philadelphia. 478y

THE MARRIAGE STATE;

Shall Happiness and Health, or Misery and Sickness, attend it?

MOST STARTLING CONSIDERATIONS!

Reflections for the Thoughtful.

Strange that countless human beings exist and drag through life as do the beasts of the field, or the insects of the earth, evincing no more thought or reflection than though the noble faculties of mind were not vouchsafed to them.

Many such are husbands and fathers, upon whom are dependent the health, the well-being, and the happiness of a confiding and affectionate wife, with perhaps a family of children.

HOW OFTEN IT HAPPENS THAT THE

in that pitiable condition as not even for one day to feel the happy and exhilerating influence incident to the enjoyment of health.

She may not be an invalid confined to her bed, or even to her room; as her pride, ambition and energy induce and nerve her to take personal charge of her household, even when her health will not admit of it; but she is nevertheless perceptibly sinking from day to day, and always ailing.

Thus, day after day, and month after month transpire. Her health daily sinks, till finally even the hope of recovery no longer remains. And thus

THE BLOOMING BRIDE,

But a few years ago in the flush of health and youth, and buoyancy of spirits, rapidly, and apparently inexplicably, becomes a feeble, sickly, debilitated wife, with frame emaciated, nerves unstrung, spirits depressed, countenance bearing the impress of suffering, and an utter physical and mental prostration.

Sometimes this deplorable change may and does arise from organic or constitutional causes. But oftener, by far oftener, to gross and inexcusable ignorance of the simplest and plainest rules of health as connected with the marriage state, the violation of which entails disease, suffering and misery, not only to the wife, but often

Hereditary Complaints upon the Children

"UNTO THE THIRD AND FOURTH GENERATION," Transmitting CONSUMPTION, SCROFULA, HYPOCHONDRIA, INSANITY, GOUT, KING'S EVIL, and other diseases, as a

DREADFUL INHERITANCE

from the Parents.

And must this continue? Shall we be wise in all that concerns the cattle of our fields, our horses, our sheep, our cows, our oxen, the nature and character of the soil we possess, the texture and quality of our goods and merchandise; but in all that concerns ourselves as human beings, with human functions and passions, subject to great derangement, involving our future peace and happiness— in all that concerns the health and welfare of the wife of our affections, and the mother of our children; in all that concerns the mental and physical well being of those children, we should be immersed in the darkest and most

BENIGHTED IGNORANCE,

AS CULPABLE AS INEXCUSABLE!

How long shall this ignorance prevail so productive of its bitter fruits? How long shall the wife and mother be ignorant of the nature, character and causes of the various womb and sexual complaints, embittering her days by suffering—suffering often prolonged to years, eventuating in a complication of diseases utterly and hopelessly incurable? Shall we for ever close our eyes to the results of physiological science by which we may arrive at an understanding of ourselves as men and women, subject to serious life-long enduring diseases, and perpetuating them to our children.

LET EVERY WIFE AND HUSBAND PONDER!

No husband or wife need be ignorant of what concerns them most to know to secure their health and happiness. That knowledge is contained in a little work entitled

G. V. S. QUACKENBUSH,

202 RIVER & 7 & 9 STATE STREETS,

TROY, NEW YORK,

INVITES the attention of those who wish to purchase

DRY GOODS,

Carpets and Oil-Cloths.

Owing to the large increase of patronage, I have found it necessary from time to time, to make many improvements and additions to my store.

This spring I have united the stores No. 7 and 9, State St., making a spacious and beautiful room, fitted up expressly for the sale of all the various styles of Silks, Shawls, Cloaks & Mantillas.

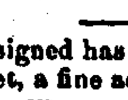
This connects with the main store, No. 202, River St., (the old stand occupied by the subscriber for nearly 30 years,) which is devoted to a general assortment of

STAPLE AND FANCY DRY GOODS,

comprising every variety to meet the wants of all classes of buyers. Besides these, four large rooms over the stores 200, 202 and 204 River St., are occupied as



CARPET WARE-ROOMS,

where I am constantly receiving the newest and most desirable patterns of Velvet, Tapestry, Brussels, Three-ply, Ingrain and Venetian Carpets. Also, Oil-Cloths of every quality and width, and every style of Drugetts, Rugs, Mats, Matting, Stair-Rods, &c.

All these departments combined making an extensive and complete Establishment, conducted on such principles, that customers can trade with confidence, and to their own advantage, my sales being always for cash, and the only price asked, being the lowest cash price. G. V. S. QUACKENBUSH.
